The London Globe of the 22d says: It is generally believed the telegraph will announce to-morrow, the capitulation of Rome." The Gazette of Lyons of the 20th says, "that a telegraphic dispatch from Marseilles was received as they were going to press, announcing the entry of the French into Rome."

France.—The attempted insurrection in Paris has been followed by more formidable resistance to the laws. At Lyons, a serious engagement took place in the streets, between the troops and mob, in the course of which a considerable number of lives were lost on both sides. Barricades were thrown up, which were not taken until battered down by cannon. The fighting commenced on the morning of the 15th ult., and continued till late in the evening.

A telegraphic dispatch, dated Lyons the 16th ult., P. M., announces that the insurgents had been completely routed, the streets cleared, and the city restored to tranquility. There are upwards of 50,000 troops in and around Lyons, and there are no apprehensions of further disturbances. Great excitement existed in different parts of the country, and it is evident that the conspiracy of Paris extended to every town in France. An attempt was made to create a disturbance which totally failed. One regiment of cavalry put all to route without striking a blow.

Ministerial changes are about to take place. Defauvre and friends are about to retire:

It is reported that the Abbe Palootbe, private secretary to Cardinal Antoille, had arrived at Paris from Gaeta, and that he is bearer of important dispatches for the French government, besides an autograph letter from the Pope to Louis Napolean, expressing his regret at the bombardment of Rome.

Up to the latest moment all was tranquil. Ledru Rollin has not yet been arrested. Cholera has decreased in Paris.

Hungary.—The news from Hungary is contradictory. Some accounts give the advantage to the Austrians in the South. Two actions happened, both terminating to the advantages of the Imperialists. The Hungarian General Perezel, from the fortress of Peter Warden, attacked some Austrian entrenchments, but was ultimately repulsed, though the Austrians admit they suffered severely. Another battle was fought by Baron Jellaschich, which is said to have been a brilliant victory. But the Austrian accounts are not trustworthy, at least as regards their own loss.

The London Globe of the 22d of June has intelligence from the seat of war to the 16th of June, giving accounts of a tremendous encounter between the Hungarians, Austrians, and Russians, the latter forces were completely defeated, and left 13,000 killed on the field. The battle took place on the large plains between Raab and Weisenburg, and lasted sixty-four hours. The Magyar loss is stated at 8,000. The Austrians were commanded by Heyman, the Russians by Radtar, and the Hungarians by Georgey. The news of this battle is received by private letters, and no paper alludes to it. The Lloyd of Vienna contains not the most distant allusion to it. Another affair is mentioned as having taken place at Croma. A brigade was sent by Schlick from Oranburg, under Gen. Wess, who was taken prisoner, and Uplan and Col. Baron Zessner killed. Schlick sent this brigade to cover his right flank whilst marching to Raab. It was beaten on the 13th ult. Some reports represent this whole brigade as destroyed—others state 4,000 deserted and joined the Magyars.

For three days carts have poured into Presburg and the places about with fresh forces, and a recruitment throughout all Austria is intended.

Letters from Odenburg state that a certain Count from the Imperial Chamberlain and others, in whose possession were found a number of passports of the rebel parties, have been arrested.

The only mention or allusion which can be gleaned from the Vienna papers regarding the great battle fought from the 13th to 15th near Raab, is the surmise of the defeat of Wess's brigade, and gave origin to fabulous rumors. On the other hand the authorities maintain that the rout of Wess's brigade was only the episode of another battle.

A letter of the 13th ult., Gracow, published in the Breslau Gazette, mentions the affair between the vanguard of the Magyars and the Russians, within the Gallician frontier, at Jordanon. The Russians Col. Mayden, was killed and two hundred Cossacks were cut off and taken prisoners. Another letter, dated Gracow, 15th ult., mentions the report of an engagement at Eng Pass between the Russian advance guard, numbering 6,000 men, and Gen. Bem, in which the former were defeated.

The Germanic States bordering on the Rhine are quiet, but insurrections elsewhere are going on. The Prussians have now advanced, and the struggle has taken place at Manheim. The result is unknown.

England.—In England there is nothing of interest, and but little change in the state of business affairs. During the last week the produce markets were moderately supplied, but there is no extensive demand, and holders are firm, insisting on full rates. Cured provisions meet with fair inquiry at steady prices.

FOREIGN NEWS BY THE NIAGARIA AND CALEDONIA.

The Telegraphic reports of the foreign news brought by the Niagara and Caledonia are very vague—the news by the next steamer will most likely bring definite intelligence in regard to the Hungarian warfare with the Austrians and Russians. Victories are claimed for both armies, and we at loss to say which has the victory. The Hungarians are full of courage and seemed determined to struggle till they obtain either victory or death.

The Romans appear to stand firm against the French and Neapolitan forces, although the future looks dark and gloomy for Romans rights.

New York, 13th July—P. M.

By express from Halifax, and telegraphed from New Brunswick, we are informed of the arrival of the steamer Niagara, egrly on yesterday morning, with 89 passengers,—she will reach New York on Saturday afternoon.

France.—Advices from Paris on Tuesday evening, state that the city was perfectly tranquil; business on the Bourse was steady and prices had an upward tendency. On Monday the Ministry introduced into the Assembly a bill for regulating the Press. Odillon Barrot stated that it was intended merely as a temporary measure to regulate the position of the Press, until an organic law on the subject should be passed. The new law is nearly the same as that passed under Louis Phillippe. Powers are given for the temporary suppression of every journal attacking the Constitution or making an appeal to arms.

The bickerings between the President and the Ministry are rapidly approaching to a crisis, which it is supposed will lead to the retirement of some of the members of of the Cabinet; the principal motive of discord is the anomalous and parricidal policy in Italy.

The Electric Telegraph to the New York Courier, contains nothing definite as to Rome or Hungary. The late victories of the Austrians over the Hungarians were very much exaggerated. The Hungarians having crossed the Waag, suddenly made a violent attack upon the Imperialists, and penetrated to their centre. After a battle of three days with two imperialist armies, the Hungarians retreated to their former position, but not without having, by their onset, done considerable damage to the Imperialists. The Austrian Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Haynau, has published a decree, in which that military chieftain states, that the inhabitants of Boschartaang, having aided and abetted the Hungarians and insurgents in their attack upon the brigade of Gen. Wyss, he has ordered their town to be burned. From Constantinople, we learn that the Sublime Porte has refused to comply with the demand of Russia for the passage of 80,000 troops through Suria.

Rome.—After several bombardments, three squadrons of the French army succeeded in establishing themselves within the outer walls of Rome on the 22d, they had since been occupied by other additional forces, which had acquired possession of the inner bastions and defences, but up to the 23d and 24th they had made very little progress. Every inch of ground was stoutly defended by Garivaldi who still continues [here the dispatch relating to Roman affairs from some unknown cause, breaks off.

General Summary.—The Niagara experienced a succession of heavy gales; she brings £3,000 sterling in specie.

Liverpool and Havre are to be connected by a line of first class of steamers.

The House of Commons has affirmed the second reading of the marriage bill, rendering marriages with deceased wife's sisters unlawful.

The Bill commuting the punishment of Smith O'Brien from death to transportation is now an Act of Parliament, but it is said to contain fatal blunders.

It is supposed that the approaching visit of her Majesty to Ireland, will be signalised by extending the royal pardon to the Irish state prisoners.

St. Johns, N. B., Friday Noon, July 16th.

The steamer Caledonia arrived at Halifax at 7 o'clock last evening, and will reach Boston on Saturday afternoon. She brings forty-five passengers, exclusive of eighteen of the survivors of the ill-fated bark Charles Bartlett, which was run down by the steamer Europa, on Wednesday afternoon, 27th June, 700 miles westward of Cape Fear, in a dense fog. She sunk in three minutes, with 132 passengers and crew, only forty-two out of one hundred and fifty six souls were saved. The captain, mate, and ten of the crew are among the survivors. The Europa is acquitted of all blame, not only by the survivors but by the unanimous voice of the British press. A subscription was promptly raised by the passengers of the Europa, amounting to £352, to which the proprietors added £20. The Charles Bartlett was bound from London to New York, with emigrants. S. B. Forbes, a passenger on the Europa, behaved with surprising gallantry upon the occasion, and has been presented with a gold medal by the Liverpool Shipwreck and Humane Society. The Europa sustained no material damage.

The Arkansas Gold Placer.—The Fort Smith Herald, speaking of the expedition fitting out under Col. Black, goes on to say:

We have heard of gold being found on the Arkansas several years ago. We were also informed by an intelligent Cherokee, not long since, that gold have been washed out by some Cherokees on Grand River; but they would not tell where it was for fear the whites would endeavor to take their country from them, as they did in Georgia when the gold mines were discovered there. There are a great many Cherokees who came from Georgia, that understand gold mining as well as anyof the whites, having washed the precious metal out of the sands of the Old Nation in 1830—31. They are also acquainted with what is termed the "gold blossom," which is found upon the surface of the ground where the metal lies beneath. We have no doubt as to gold being found on the Arkansas and its tributaries, when properly searched for; but whether it will be found in as great quantities, and in as large lumps as in California, is a question yet to be solved.

The Repeal of the Navigation Laws.

The repeal of the celebrated navigation laws of Great Britain, we think, cannot fail to exert a most favorable influence upon the commercial and agricultural interests of the United States. Our trade in agricultural products, now comparatively large, is destined to be greatly augmented by this recent measure of the British Parliament. Such consequences are anticipated by many of the leading British presses. The Liverpool Times, an opponent of the repeal of the navigation laws, has the following remarks upon this subject. It says:

"In 1840 was imported into Liverpool—mind, Liverpool only—10,000 tierces of beef—value £60,000. In the same time weimported into Liverpool 23,600 barrels of pork—value £80,000. This gives an importation into Liverpool, from Ireland, in the year mentioned, of produce to the amount of £140,000.

Look at the difference. In 1848 there was scarcely any beef imported from Ireland. In 1848 there were only 3,700 barrels of pork imported from Ireland into Liverpool, value about £12,950. Into London the value of these articles in 1810 was four or five times as much as the value imported into Liverpool. That is, in 1840, nearly £700,000 of beef and pork.

All this is gone. The United States send us what ruined Ireland cannot send. America is our shambles—she sends us manufactured flour—she is our orchard—she will be our potato garden: and she will continue to be so long as we have a national debt, and nearly £30,000,000 to pay annually to the national creditor. At the time we have alluded to, America sent no provisions to this country. Ireland being ruined by the Peel policy and whig misrule, we draw certain supplies from the United States. What we subjoin is nothing to what we shall hereafter disclose; but we proceed by exhibiting samples:

There were imported into Liverpool, for the week ended the 6th of June, the following articles:

865 barrels of pork.
200 hogsheads of pork.
300 do. and boxes of bacon.
56 do. of pig's heads, &c.
300 barrels of lard.

This is nothing to what is coming, which we shall enumerate by and by. Of cereal produce we have the following in one week, for the week ended 6th June:

10,145 bags Indian corn.
29,713 bushels do. do.
3,229 barrels of flour.
2,129 sacks of do.
6,426 quarters of wheat.
1,629 do. of beans.
1,400 bushels of oats.

Did we say that America is our granary and our potato garden? It is true for the present. It will be so till the great change comes. We have given a weekly return only. The yearly one will astonish. We would, in charity, advise the whig landlords to sell their estates without delay and emigrate; for, as sure as the sun shines, there will be a fearful reckoning."

The Burlington Hawk Eye says: The retiring Locofoco Postmasters are now stated to be afflicted with the Collamer morbus. The disease deprives them of the "power to do harm—and, although accompanied by "Fits," the patients by a course of honest industry, soon recover their wonted health and happiness.

From the Boston Transcript.

Kossuth.

When Hungary was invaded by Jellaschich, in September last, and 50,000 armed men were collected in a fortnight, in the neighborhood of Stuhlweissenborg, to repel the aggression, Kossuth issued a proclamation, from which we extract the following sentances:

"It is an eternal law of God that whosoever abandoneth himself, will be forsaken by the Lord." "It is an eternal law that whosoever assisteth himself, him will the Lord assist." "It is a divine law that false swearing, by its results, chastiseth itself." "It is a law of our Lord's that whosoever availeth himself of perjury or injustice, prepareth himself the triumph of justice." "Standing firm on these eternal laws of the universe, I swear that my prophecy will be fulfilled; it is, that the freedom of Hungary will be effected by this invasion of Hungary by Jellaschich."

This proclamation, which electrified the chivalrous people to whom it was addressed, concludes in a style not unworthy an Eastern prophet, nor unsuited to the genius and origin of his race, by these words:

"Between Vesprim and Weissenburg the women shall dig a deep grave, in which we will bury the name, the honor, the nation of Hungary, or our enemies. And on this grave shall stand a monument inscribed with a record of our shame, 'So God punishes cowardice;' or we will plant on it the trees of freedom, eternally green, from out of whose foliage shall be heard the voice of God, speaking as from the fiery bush of Moses, 'The spot on which thou standest is holy ground; thus do I reward the brave.' To the Magyars freedom, renoun, well-being, and happiness."

Kossuth has appointed his sister general superintendent of the military hospitals, and she has published an address, calling on all the ladies to lend their assistance in this great work of charity.

Our readers will remember that a statement was made, several weeks since, in reference to the ship Edwin, of this port, at Valparaiso, by which it appeared that she brought $20,000, and her cargo $15,000. This was a great profit, but it is now said, on the authority of a letter from Valparaiso, that she has since been resold at San Francisco, at a profit from the last purchase of over $100,000.—[Salem Gazette.

The Necessities of the Pope.—The N. York Knickerbocker in animadverting upon Bishop Hughes' letter to Horace Greely, says:

Instead of the Pope being in want, he is actually better off now, so far as doubloons are concerned, than he ever was. Within the last forty days he has received from the King of Naples sixty thousand dollars—from the Emperor of Russia fifty thousand crowns—from Queen Chrstiana of Spain an invoice of gold, while the Austrian Generals in every city they have captued, have imposed most grevious taxes, every penny of which they have forwarded to Gæta as soon as they got through cutting the throats of the defenceless inhabitants. Within the last two months the Pope must have received nearly a quarter of a million of money—a sum that the Papal treasury has not been burdened with before in many years.

From the St. Louis Union.

Moralizing.

Thus the Cincinnati Nonpareil indulges in moralizing on the ways of the world, and the cold selfishness of men. It is undeniable that scenes like those through which Cincinnati and St. Louis are now passing, bring out the meanness as well as the nobleness of man. On the the other side, the bright one, of the picture, we might see—we could not see it without a feeling of gratitude, and an expression of commendation—the extraordinary, and in some cases fatal tenacity, of the toils and charities of the humane profession, under which some of its scientific and benevolent practitioners have fallen, victims of fatigue beyond their strength—and the equally assiduous and disinterested labors of the Sisters of Charity, and other attendants of the sick, whose lives have been yielded up in ministering to the sufferings of others.

It is to be hoped that the the disease will not visit us again without finding better acquaintance among us, who will know how to give it an appropriate reception.

"In our own city, and in many other places in the United States, the pestilence is raging with unmitigated violence, and sweeping its thousands to the silent grave. Since the first of March last, three thousand souls have flitted to the judgment seat of God, and three thousand bodies have been buried in the ground, yet the scourge sweeps on, laying more and more low before its blasts, and filling our city with consternation and sorrow. The strong man of to-day is clothed in the habiliments of the grave to-morrow, and sorrow sitteth at the door of the household. Taking advantage of the necessities of the times, the undertakers become arrogant and abusive, and the livery stable keepers charge treble prices for carriages. Such is human nature, prone to take advantage of the misfortunes of its fellow beings to reap a rich reward—so wags the world."

There has been received at the Philadelphia Mint $2,000,000 of California gold.

Occupations.—It is calculated that the division of the occupations of men in the United States is nearly in the following proportion:

No. engaged	in internal navigation, -	33,076
do do	in ocean navigation, - -	56,021
do do	in the learned professions, -	65,255
do do	in commerce, - - -	116,607
do do	in manufactures - - -	701,711
do do	in agriculture, - -	3,719,959

Thus it will be seen that those engaged in agriculture, are three and a half times greater in number than those in all other divisions.

The Banda Oriental.—The Oriental government has issued a decree dated April 6th, 1849, abrogating the decree of the 4th May, 1828; by which in addition to the duty of 35 per cent. ad valorum an impost of $15 per bbl. on flour.

The government decrees that every barrel of flour shall pay 29 rials municipal duty when the ordinary duties are paid.

Each fanega of wheat ten rials.

This impost is to continue only so long as is necessary to pay the debt incurred on the article of flour, the liquidations of which shall take place immediately.

The Mexican Minister of War in his late report to government states the number of Mexican women and children annually captured and carried off by the hostile Indians to be upward of six hundred. It is the practice of the savages to murder the men and hold the women as captives.

From Yucatan.—Defeat and Slaughter of the Government Troops.—By the arrival here last evening of the Mexican schooner Felipe, Capt. Hernandez, four days from Sisal, we have received El Boletin, official from Marida, to the 18th ult., inclusive.

The Boletin, of the 16th, contains an account of a sanguinary affair between the Yucateco troops and the Indians, which took place at the distance of a league from the town of Titue, and in which the former were routed with great slaughter. It appears by the report of the commanding officer, Col. Don Jose Doloxes Pasos, that for want of provisions he was obliged to evacuate Titue with his detachment, consisting of 535 men, which was effected on the morning of the 11th. When distant one league from that town, he was intercepted by an overwhelming force of Indians, who attacked him with the greatest fury. After standing their ground until a large number was slain, the Yucatecoes fled, leaving all their baggage, ammunition, &c., in the hands of their foes.

Of the whole detachment only 187, with their Colonel, made their escape. They managed to reach Sabau, carrying off only two officers and fifteen soldiers of the wounded. on the 13th, however, one hundred more of the fugitives, with two sub-lieutenants, made their appearance at Sacalaca. There were seventy-eight head of cattle and all the horses and baggage of the officers captured.

The Indians were still closely besieging Tihosuco. No other record of events is made in these papers.—[N. O. Pic., 23d.

Blockade of the Coast of Africa.—An official notification is published in the Washington papers of a state of war and beligerent blockade, declared by the Commander of the French squadron, against all that portion of the West Coast of Africa lying between the Grand Bassam and Assine rivers. It is in consequence of the natives of the territory of Abka, having violated the treaty which they concluded with France in 1844, and stolen French merchandise.

Canada.—Earl Elgin is said to have assured Earl Grey, that the great majority of the inhabitants of Canada, of the British origin, are in favor of the Rebellion Losses Bill, which has been recently the cause of such great commotion. With the view of justifying this pledge, he is about to start on an electioneering expedition into Upper Canada.

State of feeling in the Canadas.—The latest newspaper accounts we have from Canada indicate much excitement yet existing in the public mind there. The British and French party presses teem with caustic and abusive articles. Lord Elgin is unsparingly denouced by the Tories, or English party, not only for public acts, but for his private deportment—being accused of pecuniary meanness, and of freezing formality in his intercourse with society. The French party, on the other hand denounce the Tories without stint—taunt them with their professions of loyalty and attachment to peace and order, and call on every man who loves his country to stand ready to obey her call, and on the "constitutional press" to persevere in exposing and denouncing the nefarious designs of the Tory faction.

From the Republican's Telegraphic Dispatches.

Cincinnati, July 21.

Horrible Attempt at Poisoning.

Capt. Summons and his whole family, comprising eight or nine persons were poisoned by arsenic being put into the tea; one woman who was employed to sew for the family is dead, and three others dangerously ill, including Huston the Engineer. Capt. Summons remains still very sick. James Summons, his son, has been arrested on suspicion, he was known to purchase poison last evening. The son has been very dissipated and his object in poisoning his father, mother, and the whole family, was to obtain possession of their property; supposing doubtless, that their death would be attributed to the prevailing epidemic. Capt. Summons has been living with his family about two weeks, his place on the Louisville mail line having been temporarily filled.

Philadelphia, July 21.

Wood, convicted of murdering his wife, was hung yesterday, protesting his innocence to the last. Conrod Vintner, for the murder of Elizabeth Cooper, was hung yesterday in Baltimore. Three negroes were hung yesterday in Charleston, making five executions in the whole on yesterday.

Baltimore, July 20.

The Charlston (S. C.) Courier, contains several columns of a speech from the Hon. Jno. C. Calhoun, in reply to the address of of Col. Benton. He begins by declaring him (Benton) unworthy of his notice, and personally he (Mr. Calhoun,) has never thought it worth while to raise him to the dignity of a rival, nor considered it important whether he was put down or not. But, as Mr. Benton strikes at the southern cause through him, (Mr. Calhoun) he feels it his duty to repel his attack.

He says Benton's effort appears to prove him unfaithful to the southern cause, and as aiding the free soilists and abolitionists. This they will understand, and rejoice at his speech as helping to weaken southern confidence in me. It is not the first time a deserter has had the assurance to denounce those who are faithful.

He (Mr. Calhoun) denies being favorable to disunion, and says that he was always favorable to a compromise, but that Northern fanatics prevented it. He claims merit for voting for Claytons compromise, and taunts Benton as the cause of its rejection. He denies the authorship of the Missouri compromise which is Mr. Clay's, and argues the difference between that and the provisal charge against him of having, in Mr. Monroe's cabinet, sustained the power of Congress to restrict slavery in the territories. He deemed, in fact, every assertion of Col. Bentons address and his charges as unfounded.

Benton, he said, offered a proposition to abolish slavery in half of Texas, so as to hem in the south by surrounding it with abolitionists.

The address is bitter and strong, and in the detail is uninteresting.

Boston, July 19.

The steamer Princeton left Naples on the 7th of June, and touched at Fayal, which port she left on the 2nd of July.

The Austrians had quiet possession of Florence and Leghorn. Marshal Radetzsky was at the latter place, and was visited by the commander and an officer of an English steamship then in port, they were received with distinguished consideration.

The Austrian troops at Florence were under the command of Gen. Despre, and the Florentines were paying court to their conquerors, who appeared to be enjoying themselves.

Radetzsky was received at Leghorn with much enthusiasm, which was unexpected by the foreign officers.

Capt. Engle has been in the city from the commencement of the late troubles, and he, with several of his officers, was in Rome for eleven days after the commencement of hostilities at that place by the French.

Washington, July 19.

A package containing $3,000 in Virginia funds, and mailed to this city from Philadelphia, was purloined from the post office on Sunday by some person unknown.

Montreal, Canada, July 19.

The cholera is increasing at Montreal, Quebec, and Toronto. The deaths yesterday were 61. A complete panic exists.

The Governor has ordered the removl of the troops to St. Johns and the Island of St. Fllins.

Cloonan, who was murdered by the Orangemen, was buried to-day. The funeral was attended by about 3,000 Roman Catholics. The body was covered with a red cloth, emblematic of vengeance.

Louisville, July 17, P. M.

Fire in Allegheny City.—The largest portion of the houses destroyed were frame. The fire raged for two hours. A portion of the western telegraph wires were burned. Dr. Swift's church was insured for $5000 in the North American company, Philadelphia. Mr. Henderson was insured in the Franklin office. Mrs. Dowsnap, a widow, lost nine dwellings; no insurance. Johnson & Watson's marble factory were destroyed. The fire burned from Gay alley north to Ohio street, west to West Common, and east to Diamond Common. Two entire squares were destroyed except six houses. The Diamond and west Common saved the fire from spreading. No water was thrown to render any service. The Allegheny firemen had complete possesion of the ground. A patrol was appointed by the Mayor last night, and threats were made to fire the city. The Mayor has offered a reward of $250 dollars for the detection of the persons who interfered to prevent the Pittsburg fire companies from going into service. Great excitement prevails. The Councils meet to-night, and will probably disband the present fire system, and adopt the paid one. A few small fights occurred, but nothing serious.

Fire at Mauchehunk.—A tremendous fire occurred at Mauchehunk on Sunday morning, destroying upwards of thirty buildings, including the Court House and Jail. Loss estimated at $150,000.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness and Bridle Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.
Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

NEW STORE
AT COUNCIL POINT.

JAMES NEEDHAM has opened a store at Council Point, where can be found a choice assortment of Dry Goods and Groceries. Those wishing cheap and good goods would do well to favor him with a call.
Council Point, July 25, 1849—tf

S. F. POULTERER—General Engraver on wood, brass, copper and jewelry. Orders left at the Printing Office, or at the Union Hotel will be promptly attended to.
Kanesville, July 25th, 1849—tf

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at July 25th. C. VOORHIS'.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEAS—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate artilce at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [j25] VOORHIS.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

WINDOW, GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

QUIDO!!
S. M. BLAIR
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.
Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

TAXES.

BEING duly authorized to collect the taxes assessed by the appointed Assessors. I am now prepared to attend to said business at the store of SMITH & STUTSMAN. All persons are therefore respectfully solicited to make immediate call as the law requires.
CHARLES M. JOHNSON.
Deputy Collector for Pottawatamie Co., Iowa.
N. B. Attention special given on Wednesday of each week. C. M. JOHNSON.
Kanesville, June 7, 1849.

BLUFF HOUSE.
Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.
Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.
Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.
St. Joseph, Mo.,
Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.
Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.
St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY,
Attorney and Councillor at Law.
Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.
Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.
Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

Straw Bonnets and Gentlemens' Hats Cleaned and Pressed.

MRS. CROMBIE, (formerly of Boston,) most respectfully informs the Ladies of Kanesville and vicinity that she will attend to the above, and also to Dressmaking and Millinery, and she hopes by assiduous attention to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her. All orders left at Mr. Needhams store, will be promptly attended to.
Kanesville, June 27, 1849.—tf

MRS. BOND, (Late from England,) respectfully informs the inhabitants of Kanesville, and vicinity, that she has commenced business as Vest Maker, near the Printing office; and she hopes by cheapness, punctuality and dispatch, to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her.
Children's clothes made, and gentleman's clothes repaired,
Kanesville, June 16th, 1849.

C. CARBRY,
St. Joseph, Missouri.

WHOLESALE and Retail Grocer, Dry Goods and Provision Merchant. Cash paid for Produce, and sold at the lowest price of the day.
St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.—6m

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.
Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.
Kanesville, Iowa, May 16, 1849.—3m

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of Trading Point.
m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!
JOHN MARTIN,
North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds, liquors at all prices, crackers, &c. &c.
Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.
St. Louis, May 16, 1849

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

The Desolation of Babylon.

BY W. G. SIMMS.

The noise of trooping thousands
That clamor for the strife,
Great hosts that shake their bended spears,
In thirst for human life;
The banner proud of Babylon,
Upon her mountains set,
Waves for the nobles of her courts,
A host more naighty yet.

But hark! a mighty clamor!—
A thousand nations rise;
The Lord of Hosts assembleth
His legions of the skies;
His day of vengance dawneth,
While that of earth grows black;
And Heaven's vast empire trembleth,
A world upon the rack.

The doom is over Babylon,
The glory of the earth,
Most priceless to the Chaldean
Of all his stores of worth;
As Sodom and Gomorrah,
So sink her mighty domes,
No more through countless ages
To joy in human homes.

The curse of God hangs o'er her!—
The Arab shrinks in fear,
Nor though with weariness o'erborne,
Seeks tent or shelter there;
Her ruins know the owl alone,
The dragon at her midnight feast,
And loathy, in their obscene rites,
The bittern and the beast.

From the New York Tribune.

Mount Washington.

I STAND beside thy rocky base,
Thy mighty shadow round me thrown;
I watch the dying sunset trace
Its glory on the Arctic zone;
So grand, so calm the dawn of night,
It seems a many-voiced delight.

And now the day is gone—I see
The silver-shining stars on high,
And thy green head, oh Mount! to me
Is leaning proudly 'gainst the sky,
And through thy pines the breath of night
Comes like a many-voiced delight.

How soft and gently silence binds
The solemn woods that garb the scene,
Save when the thunder-mocking winds
Come rushing down the rock ravine!
O'erwearied with the day, the night
I hail, a many-voiced delight.

O sleep! upon my eyelids rest—
Oh God! me safely guard and keep,
While stretched upon Earth's mossy breast
I sweetly dream or calmly sleep;
And I shall ever bless this night,
Which comes a many-voiced delight.

C. D. STEWART.

MISCELLANY.

The Showman Outwitted.

A SKETCH OF THE PRIMITIVE MENAGERIE.

The menagerie was in town.

A rare occurrence was an exhibition of the wild beasts, lions, tigers, polar bears, and ichneumons, in Baltimore; at the early day of which we are writing, yet they came occasionally and this time were visited by old Nat. Whatly, a jolly, weatherbeaten boatman, well known as an inveterate joker, never let any one get to the windward of him. He was furthermore, a stutterer of the first class.

Nat visited the menagerie.

As he entered, the showman, was stiring up the monkeys and tormenting the lion, giving elaborate descriptions of the various propensities and natural peculiarities of each and all.

"This, ladies, and gentlemen, this, I say is the African lion. A noble beast he is, ladies and gentlemen, and is called the king of the forest. I have heard that he makes nothing of devouring young creatures, of every description, when at home in the woods. Certain is it, that no other beast can whip him."

"M-m-mister," interrupted Whatly, "do-do-y-you say he ca-ca-cant be whipped?"

"I duz," said the man of lions and tigers.

"Wha-at'l you b-b-bet I ca-ant fetch a cri-tter what'l whip him?"

"I ain't a bettin' man, at all. I don't object to take a small bet to that effect."

"I'll b-b-bet I ca-an f-f-fotch somethin' that I'll w-whip him. Whats-say you to a hundred d-d-dollars?"

Now there were several merchants in the crowd who knew Whatly well, and were fully convinced that if the bet was made, he was sure of winning. So he had no difficulty in finding "backers," one of whom told him he would give him ten gallons of rum if he won.

The menagerie man glanced at his lion. There he couched in his cage, his shaggy mane bristling, and his tail sweeping, the very picture of grandeur and majesty. The bribe was tempting and he felt assured.

"Certing, sir, I have no objections to old Hercules taking about with any creature you may fetch."

"V-ve-very w-well," said Nat. "It's a bet."

The money was planked up, and the next night was designated for the terrible conflict. The news was spread over Baltimore, and at an early hour the boxes of the spacious theatre were filled—The pit being cleared for the affray.

Expectation was on tip-toe, and if was with impatience the crowd awaited the arrival of Whatly. He at length entered, bearing a large sack or bag on his shoulders, which, as he let it fall upon the floor, was observed to contain some remarkably hard and heavy substance. The keeper looked at it with indignation.

"Th-th-that, l-ladies and gentlemen," said Nat, gestulating like a showman, "is a wh-wh-whimbamper!"

"A whimbamper!" echoed the keeper, "that's certainly a new feature in zoology and anatomy. A whimbamper! Well, let him out and clear the ring, or old Hercules may make a mouthful of both of you."

The keeper was excited.

Accordingly Nat raised the bag, holding the aperture downwards, and rolled out a huge snapping turtle, while the cheers and laughter of the audience made the arches ring.

"There he is!" said Whatly, as he tilted the whimbamper ove with both his hands, and set him on his legs. The snapper seemed unconscious of his peril.

The keeper was about leaving the room, when he swore his lion should not disgrace himself by fighting such a pitable foe.

"V-very well, said Nat, "if y-y-you choose to g-give me the hu-u-hundred——"

"But it is unfair!" cried the showman.

The audience interposed and insisted upon the fight. There was no escape, and the showman reluctantly released the lion, making himself secure on the top of his cage.

The majestic beast moved slowly around the ring, snuffling and lashing, while every person held his breath in suspense. Lions are prying beasts and this one was not long in discovering the turtle, which lay on the floor a huge and inanimate mass. The lion soon brought his nose in close proximity to it, when the turtle, not thinking, popped out its head and rolled its eyes, while a sort of wheeze issued from its savagerous mouth. The lion jumped back, turned, and made a spring at the critter, which was now fully prepared for his reception. As the lion landed on him, the turtle fastened his terrific jaws upon the lion's nostrils, rendering him powerless to do harm, yet with activity of limb, he bounded around the circle, growled, roared, and lashed himself, but the snapper hung on, seeming to enjoy the ride vastly.

"Go it, whimbamper!" cried Whatly, from the boxes.

The scene was rich.

The showman was no less enraged than the lion. Drawing his pistol, he threatened Nat with terrible threats, that if he did'nt take his turtle off, he'd shoot him.

"Ta-ta-take him off yourself!" shouted Nat, in reply.

At this critical moment, by dint of losing a portion of his nose, the lion shook his dangerous foe from him, and clearing the space between him and the cage with a bound, he slunk quietly in to chew the bitter cud of defeat and pain.

It was a fair fight, all declaring that the whimbamper was the victor. The money was paid over to Nat, who left the theatre delighted at the success of his whim. The next morning he carried his turtle to market and sold him.

So this valient champion, after conquering king of beasts, served to make a dinner for Baltimore epicures.

All that is herein written, is supposed to be true, though highly colored, and is doubtless "green in the memory" of many old citizens of the monumental city.—[Odd Fellow.

Russian Peasants.

The road between Petersburgh and Moscow runs almost in a straight line the whole way through gloomy forests, a deep and sandy country, with scarcely a hill or a dale to enliven the scene: here and there the wholesome sight of a village relieved the tedious sameness of the way. The peasant's houses are built with wood, each in a corner of a large wooden shed, something like a great barn, which is a good contrivance to keep off the cold. The staircase is on one side of the house, though under the roof of the shed, and the door faces the street. One or two rooms, at most, are to be found in these cottages, and they are miserably furnished. Beds they have none; the family sleep either on benches, the ground, or over the stove, which resembles a large oven, and is flat on the top. In every room, from the centre of the ceiling, hangs a vessel of holy water, and a lamp, which is lighted only on certain occasions. Neither would the poorest of the people think their house properly adorned without the picture of their favorite Saint, coarsely daubed on wood. To this representation of their patron, however ugly, (for the features are seldom so well drawn as on an English sign post) they pay devout veneration, crossing themselves, and bowing before it the first thing in the morning, and the last at night. Should one of the neighbors enter the cottage, he makes his obeisance to the Saint before he speaks to any of the family. After this account, it need not be said that they are grossly superstitious. But they are also very ceremonious: when two Russian peasants meet, they pull off their caps, bow, and sometimes kiss one another; and when they address their superiors, they bow their head to the ground. Their dress is as course and rough as their persons. They wear on their head a round hat or cap, with a very high crown; a loose gown reaching below the knee, and tied round the waist with a sash, serves them instead of a coat; in summer, it is made of drugget, and in winter of sheep-skin, with the wool turned inwards. Their trowsers are made of linen, almost as coarse as sackcloth; they wrap several folds of flannel round their legs instead of stocking; and their feet are covered with sandals, woven with strips of bark.

EMIGRATION AND COLONIZATION.—"Ma," said a young lady to her mother the other day, "what is emigrating?"

Mother.—"Emigrating, dear, is a young lady going to California."

Daughter.—"What is colonizing ma?"

Mother.—"Colonizing, dear, is marrying there and having a family."

Daughter.—"Ma, I should like to go to California."

"Early marriages make us immortal. It is the sole and chief end of empire. That man who resolves to live without woman, and that woman who resolves to live without man, are enemies to the community in which they dwell, injurious to themselves, destructive to the world, apostates from nature, and rebels against heaven and earth."

The Cincinnati Nonpareil says that the foes of Horace Greely believe in his honesty. This is not true. They are his foes because they do not believe in his honesty.

ANNEXATION.—A paper is about to be started in Montreal, for the advocacy of annexation to the United States.

The last words ever writen by John Q. Adams to his son were, "A stout heart, a clear conscience, and never despair."

HO!—A gentleman being asked his opinion of the singing of a lady, who had not the purest breath, said, that the words of the song were delightful, but he did not admire the air.

THE RUSSIAN ARMY.—A gentleman, familiar with the subject, has prepared some statistics of the Russian army, from which it appears that the land forces of Russia amount to 1,000,000 of men in the war establishment, and are arranged into six main bodies of the army, the general reserve and the several corps of Cossacks. The first division, the great moveable European army of operations, contains 465,720 men. These are arranged into 386 battalions of footmen, (together 386,000 men,) 469 squadrons of horsemen, (together 79,720 men) and 79 brigades of artillery, with 1200 pieces. By adding the artillerists, the train, the companies of workmen, &c., the great army of operation may be estimated at 500,000 men. The army of reserve contains 202,480 men. To these must be added the artillerists, &c. The total of the pieces of artillery belonging to the army of reserve amounts to 472. The Caucassin army, the third division, has 150,167 troops, with 302 pieces of artillery. The army in Finland consists of 16,000 men, with 16 pieces of artillery. The main body of the army in the province of Orenburg is 64,000 men, with 16 pieces of artillery. The army in Siberia, 16,000 men, 16 pieces of artillery.

The several corps of Cossacks, who are liable to active service abroad in time of war, amount to 50,000 horsemen. The Cossacks, who have several particular appellations with reference to the part of the country where they live, (for instance, Cossacks of the Don, Cossacks of the Ural, &c.) and who number, upon the whole, about 600,000 men, able to carry arms are genuine Russians, as well as the great mass of the nation, but with the difference that they, since the year 1654, enjoy many political and social privileges.

The disposable forces Russia is able to send in the field in time of war amount to about 800,000 men. Of course, they consist only of the European armies of operation and reserve, and of the regiments of Cossacks; because the main bodies of the army in Caucasian Russia, in the province of Orenburg, &c., must keep their stations for the maintaining of internal peace and order there, and for the safety of the frontiers. According to the latet official reports, the total of the population throughout all parts of the Russian empire amounts to about 67,000,000 inhabitants.

The reader may judge from this exhibit what the Hungarians have to encounter, with Austria combined with this formidable power, and Prussia probably lending its aid.

The message of the French President, Louis Napoleon, is another type of the influence of American republican example. Not so much, however, in its spirit, a portion of which is anything but generous towards the progress of Liberty in Europe—as in its form. For the first time in the history of the old world executive speeches, this of Napoleon's is modelled precisely after the manner of the messages of our Presidents. In reviewing the affairs of France, he takes up the budgets in order, and concludes with a resume of the whole.

The message gives a flattering picture of the position and resources of France. Of her military force, we gather the following:

The National Guard, liable at need to be called into service, numbers 4,000,000 men, 1,200,000 of whom are armed with muskets or light arms. It possesses 500 cannon, 300 battalions of the Guard were organized for action on the 22d of July last. The Guard Mobile consists of 6,000 men. Of regular Army, France has now under arms 451,000 men, and 94,000 horses. The army has 16,495 cannon, of woich 13,770 are bronze. Its field pieces amount to 5,139. The Navy of France consists of 10 ships of the line, 8 frigates, 18 corvettes, 24 brigs, 12 transports and 24 light vessels of sail; of steamers, 14 frigates, 13 corvettes, and 34 dispatch-boats; this is her active fleet. Her reserve fleet is composed of 10 ships of the line, 15 sailing frigates, 10 steam frigates, 6 steam corvettes, and 6 mail stemers. To man these requires 950 officers and 28,500 men.

The budget of agriculture, industry, and commerce, is equally flattering. France has largely established farming schools, agricultural societies, and national studs to promote the breeding of horses. The supply of food in the country is set down as sufficient for all purposes. The consumption of raw materials in her manufactures has greatly fallen off. The President dwells with more satisfaction than we should, upon Russia's recognition of the Republic. This, Mr. Napoleon seems to think sufficient to suppress any remonstrance againt the despotic game Russia is persuing in Europe. It is evident from the tone of the message in regard to Rome, that the President is bent on seizing the city.—[N. Y. Sun.

HEAVEN.—A negro woman at the South was relating her experience to a gaping congregation of her own color; among other things she said she had been to heaven. One of the bretheren says;

"Sister, you see any black folks in heaven?"

She replied, "Oh, go way, Sam, don't put a body out; 'spose I go in the kitchen when I was dar?"

Victoria's babies, though destined to be aristocrats in after life, are in infancy on a level with the Illinois babies—they are nothing else than suckers.—[Exchange.

RELIGIOUS INDEPENDENCE.—A Paris journal states that numbers in Sweden, after remonstrating for years against the introduction of changes in the prayers, hymns and catechisms of the establishment, have formally renounced their church, and organized one independent of the state.

A shower of fish bones fell lately, on the plantation of Mr. George Henderson, West Feliciana, La., during a storm. They seem to have been the bones of sea fish mingled with shark's teeth.

FOOT RACE EXTRAORDINARY.—We learn from the Nashville Gazette, that on Saturday last, there was to have been a trial of speed between two gentlemen at White's Creek Springs near Nashville—one weighing three hundred and seventy five pounds, the other two hundred and ninety four. They were to run a quarter of a mile, for a good supper for six persons.

Short Sermon for Parents.

It is said that when the mother of Washton was asked how she had formed the character of her son, she replied that she had endeavored early to teach him three things; obedience, diligence and truth. No better advice can be given by any parent.

Teach your children to obey. Let it be the first lesson. You can hardly begin too soon. It requires constant care to keep up the habit of obedience, and especially to do it in such a way as not to break down the strength of a child's character.

Teach your children to be diligent. The habit of being always employed is a great safeguard through life, as well as essential to the culture of almost every virtue. Nothing can be more foolish than an idea which parents have that it is not respectable to set their children to work. Play is a good thing, innocent recreation is an employment, and a child may learn to be diligent in that as in other things. But let them learn early to be useful.

As to truth, it is the one essential thing. Let every thing else be sacrificed rather than that. Without it what dependence can you place in your child? And be sure to do nothing yourself which may countenance any species of prevarication or falsehood. Yet how many parents do teach their children the first lesson of deception.

WASHINGTON AND VERNON.—When the admiral was attacking Porto Bello, with six ships only as is described on the medal struck on the occasion, who with the most intrepid courage, attended with the most perfect calmness, was always in that part of the ship which was most engaged. After the firing had ceased, he sent his captain to request he would attend upon him, which he immediately obeyed; and the admiral entering into conversation, discovered by his answers and observations that he possessed more abilities than usually fall to the lot of mankind in general. Upon asking his name, the young man told him it was George Washington; and the admiral, on his return home, strongly recommend him to the attention of the admiralty. This great man, when he built his house in America, out of gratitude to his first benefactor, named it "Mount Vernon," and at this moment it is so called.

The Lynn Forum, says: "The use of a bass-viol in the churches is a bass-viol-ation of the Sabbath."

A gentleman having presented his church with the Ten Commandments, it was wittily said that he gave them away because he could not keep them.

It is conceded on all hands that ladies are FAIR, and that chickens are FOWL—that the money market is TIGHT, that the morals are LOOSE, and morning gowns too.

Married—At Rochester, Noble county, Feb. 18th, by the Rev. Mr. Wolf, Mr. Silas Lion to Miss Edith Lamb.

"Our devil calls this a beastly affair, but it remind us of the millenial era spoken of in Holy writ:" "The Lion and the Lamb shall lie down together, and a little child ——" our Bible is lost, and we forgot the remainder of the quotation.—[Exchange.

What is the universe but a hand flung in space pointing always with extended finger unto God?

CALIFORNIA MILLIONAIRE PRINTER.—The Sun says: "We learn verbally from a young man who returned in the Lexington, that Mr. Benjamin F. Foster, formerly a compositor in the New York Sun Office, has accumulated about thirty thousand dollars in two years."

Here is a capital epigram from the pen of a friend, on a woman with red hair, who wrote poetry:

Unfortunate woman! How sad is your lot?
Your ringlets are red—your poems are not.

Household Orders.

Rachael, go and comb your hair,
Betsy, stop your laughing there!
Kate, haste and wash the dishes,
And Susan, mend your father's—pantaloons!
Sammy, run and feed the hogs,
Jim, go out and bring some logs!
I'll whip you John, you know I will,
If you don't stop a kicking Bill!

COCKROACHES.—We have often heard it asked, what end these disgusting creatures serve in the economy of nature—or in other words, what they are good for. We have just learned. It will hardly be believed—but we assert it as a fact—that the manufacturers of Sherry and Madeira wine communicate to these liquors their peculiar flavor, by an infusion of baked cockroaches, which interesting insects or "big bugs," are roasted in an oven set apart for this most odorous and peculiar use. We hope our veracity will not be impeached, as we have for authority one of the most extensive and respectable wine-merchants in this city; who, in confirmation of the above fact, related to us that a friend of his, not content with the delicate flavor thus imparted by the manufacturers, had every day brought to him for dinner, a live cockroach, with which he amused himself, and pampered his appetite, by dipping it up and down in his glass of Madeira.—[Literary American.

TOO COLD.—It is very rare that we hear of persons committing suicide by drowning in winter.

A SECOND SARAH.—Mrs. Booth, of Wisconsin, has lately given birth to a fine healthy boy at the age of 70. Her husband is 80 years old. Wisconsin is a "great country."

AVERAGE INCOME OF MAN.—We once took a notion to find out the avarage annual income of the inhabitants of the most favored countries in Christendom. We opened M'Culloch's great work on Great Britain, and found his estimate for each person in England to be £16 a year, or about 22 cents a day; and for every person in Ireland, £6 a year or 8 cents a day. We looked into Chevalier's admirable Lectures on French Political Economy, and his estimate for each person in France, is about $45 a year, or 12½ cents a day.—Our own census estimates the average product of the richest State in the Union at $110 for each person, or 30 cents a day, while our whole country taken together, slave States and all, yields an annual product of but $62 for each person, or about 17 cents per day.

From the New York Tribune.

The Fall of Rome.

The news by the Hibernia leaves hardly a gleam of hope for Italian Freedom. The lone mother of dead empires' has ere this been trampled beneath the iron heel of invasion, and is now the unresisting victim of her perfidious foes. She might and we think would have withstood all the forces that the Neapolitan butcher and Austria's ruthless Radetsky could have brought against her, but the shameful interposition of France made the disparity too great, and she now lies crushed and bleeding at the feet of her oppressors. Such, there is hardly room to doubt, will be the burden of our next advices from Europe. Venice, too, must also succumb to the Austrian army now besieging her; and thus will be quenched the last spark of Italian Freedom. No! not quenched; it will be smothered for a season, but only to burn more brightly and widely hereafter. Let us not despair, for this is not the end. "God is patient because eternal"

Meantime, it is well to consider closely the causes of the immediate disaster.

Italy is divided into many kingdoms or principalities, of which Austrian Italy (the North-Eastern part, comprising Lombardy and Venice) is the largest, the kingdom of Sardinia embracing Piedmont (or the North-Western part) next in importanec; the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies (Naples and Sicily—in the extreme south) is third, and the States of the Church (or Rome and the Legations) fourth; and the Grand Duchy of Tuscany fifth. The smaller Duchies of Parma, Modena, and Lucca are nominaly independent, but really controlled by Austria. The Two Sicilies is far the most populous of these divisions, having over Eight Millions of inhabitants, while Austrian Italy has but Five Millions, Sardinia rather less, the States of the Church under Three Millions, Tuscany One and a Half Millions, and all the smaller States combined a little over One Million. These divisions are ruinous alike to freedom, the power and the happiness of the Italians. They multiply obstacles to social intercourse and brotherly communion of ideas and feelings: they aid to crush every liberal aspiration. Italy has for thirty years been a dungeon and Austria the jailer. Woe to the inmates of either cell if they attempt to break their chains! The Neapolitans subverted their despotism in 1821-2, but Austrian bayonets restored it. Lombardy threw off the yoke last year, but Austria reimposed it. Sardinia would be a republic to-day, but Austrian soldiers overshadow her frontier, and Austrian councillors of State menacingly demand the possession of her most important fortress, per agreement of her kingly traitor just absconded after doing her all the harm in his power. And now Rome and Venice in their turn, having attempted to be free, are made to feel the wrath of tyrants, and atone with their noblest blood for the crime of loving Liberty. Ah! France! France! bitter will be your anguish for the part played by your rulers and arms in this humiliation!

—The cause of Liberty in Southern Europe we consider temporarily lost. At this moment, there is probably no Republican flag floating southward of the Alps except the dishonored and prostituted Tricolor of France. The brave defenders of Rome and Venice are dead or writhing in hospitals or living in prisons. A few may have made good their escape into exile, but, as Venice was blockaded by an Austrian fleet, and Rome surrounded by hostile armies, we fear these must be few indeed. Pius IX. is again absolute sovereign of the Roman States, and Venice reposes in the paternal arms of Austria, but Austria and the Papacy are both virtually vassals of the Russian Autocrat, who, if Hungary falls, is the substancial arbiter of Europe. Thus Napoleon's famous prophecy is half fulfilled already: Europe is Cossack; how soon shall she be republican?

All is not dark, however. Heroic Hungary stands unshaken, undismayed; and the flame of Democracy spreads like a prairie fire through Southern Germany. Betrayed and menaced France shakes her fetters ominously, and hapless Poland, crushed to the earth, strains her ear to catch the first shout of victorious Hungary, hurling back the Russian slaves through the defiles of Carpathians. There is earnest Republicanism enough in Europe to-day to scatter the enormous hosts of Despotism like chaff, upon one field or a dozen, if it could only be combined and made effectual. But as yet all is chaotic, blind, discordant. Prussia is to-day preponderantly Republican, yet her tyrant has regiments to spare for crushing Revolutionary movements in Saxony and Bavaria. Vienna is Democratic, yet Vienna is to-day the headquarters of Despotism. But this subjugation of the Roman Republic by the soldiers of Republican France dwarfs all the rest.

"Dennis darlint, och, Dennis, what is it you're doing?"

"Whist, Biddy, I'se trying an experiment!"

"Murder! what is it?"

"What is it, did you say? Why it's giving hot wather to the chickens I am, so they will be aither laying boiled eggs!"

Men are frequently like tea;—the real strength and goodness is not properly drawn out of them till they have been a short time in hot water.

TRUE AND BEAUTIFUL.—Some one has remarked, with equal truth and beauty, that education does not commence with the alphabet. It begins with a mother's look, with a father's nod of approbation or sign of reproof, with a sister's gentle pressure of the hand or a brother's noble forbearance. With handsfull of flowers in green daisy meadows, with birds admired, but not touched, with creeping and almost imperceptible emmets, with humming bees, and glass bee hives, with pleasant walks in shady lanes, with thought directed, in sweet and kindly tones and words, to nature and acts of benevolence, to deeds of virtue and to the source of all good, to God himself.

The desire to be beloved is ever restless and unsatisfied: but the love that flows out upon others is a perpetual well-spring from on high.

Be true to thy friend, never speak of his faults to another, to show thy own discrimination.

The best shield against slanderers is to live so that nobody will believe them.

The anonymous spite of a coward should never irritate a gentleman.

FAST MAN.—There is a man at Oxford who lives so fast that he is now absolutely older than his father; and it is thought he will soon overtake his grandfather.

The number of paupers in England was in 1843, in round numbers, 1,876,000, and 1846, 1,471,000, showing an increase in two years of 405,000 persons.

It seems that slavery as was as "gold will knit and break religions." There has been a riot at the M. E. Church, at Alexandria, Va., between the northern and southern members of that church, in which persons not members also took part, and some damage inflicted upon the unoffending building. It originated in the slavery question, and was finally compromised by delivering the keys to the sheriff, who is to retain them until the law shall decide to which party they belong. Meantime the northern church will meet at Liberty Hall, and the southern at the Lyceum.

The Philadelphia North American says that the amount of California gold brought by the passengers in the Ada, has been exaggerated in the pulic prints, and does not exceed $50,000.

Mr. McDougal, one of the passengers, has in his possession a lump of gold found in the dry diggings, about twelve miles south of Suter's mill. It weighs eight pounds and a few ounces, but is not entirely pure, about three pounds of its weight consisting of quartz. It was placed in his charge by Lieut. Woodruff, of the U. S. Navy, and is directed to the care of Mr. Morris, of New York, to be by him deposited in the cabinet of one of the public institutions of Washington.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOBPRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds, Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, July 11th, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our store better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the non opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

NEW GOODS AT LINDEN, MISSOURI,

THE undersigned has just received per steamer "Mustang," 65 tons assorted merchandise—which makes his stock of goods the largest and most complete, ever brought to this country—among which may be found every description of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Iron, Queensware, Hardware and Cutlery, Saddlery, Boots and Shoes, Sole and Upper Leather, Calf Skins, Tin Ware, Stone Ware, Medicines and Dye Stuffs, Ready Made Clothing,

And every thing else usually kept in stores in this country. My terms are CASH or TRADE in hand. And I pledge myself to sell every description of goods as low as they can be bought in St. Joseph or elsewhere in the Platte purchase.

Call at the sign of the CHEAP CASH STORE

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June, 1849.—3m*

FOR SALE AT LINDEN, Mo.

60 sacks best Rio coffee;
6000 lbs N. O. Sugar;
6 bbls S. H. molasses;
3 " vinegar;
100 " Cinn. whisky;
50 " Kanawha salt;
110 sks G. A. salt;
80 bush dried apples;
20 bxs soap;
10 " raisins;
10 " candies;
10 " G. P. and Imperial teas;
16 " tobacco;
10 kegs powder;
15 " nails;
600 lbs cotton batting;
3 coils manilla rope;
1 box clothes pins;
1 cask log chains;
10 Jewett plows;
12 grindestones, &c.

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June 27, 1849—3m*

LAND WARRANTS WANTED—20 Land Warrants wanted—for which I will pay the highest price in Cash or Goods.

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June 27, 1849.—3m*

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street. And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;
" Light do
" Black Kid Slippers;
" Fancy do do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;
" do do Buskins;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;
" do Gaiter Boots;
" do Grane do;
" half Gaiters;
" do Cloth buskins;
" do Monroe boots;
Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" pump-sole do;
" gaiter do;
" Monroe slippers;
Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Pumps
" seal do;
" kip do;
Boys' calf Brogans;
" kip do
" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the BIG BOOT, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 22, 1849. VOLUME I.---NUMBER 15.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE,.....Editor and Proprietor.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year in advance, - - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, fifteen lines or less, one insertion, - $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

Elder Isaac Bullock, is our authorized travelling Agent throughout the United States.
Dr. John M. Bernhisel, Travelling Agent.
Mr. Henry Sanford, Linden, Mo.
Mr. Graham Costerin, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. James Townsend, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder Nathaniel H. Felt, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. Jacob Gibson, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder Thomas Carrington, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder Wilford Woodruff, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. Kesler, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. John Brown, Montrose, Iowa.
Messrs. McKenzie, Quincy, Ill.
David Whitmer, Richmond, Mo.
Peter Jones, Mackinaw, Tazwell county Illinois.
Wm. R. Hesse, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

From the Millennial Star.

Reply to a Pamphlet Printed at Glasgow, with the Approbation of Clergymen of Different Denominations, entitled

"REMARKS ON MORMONISM."

BY ORSON PRATT, OF ENGLAND.

(Continued from our last.)

On page sixth, this author quotes a clause from a revelation, given January 19th, 1841, commanding the Saints to build the "Nauvoo House," and let Mr. Smith and his heirs for ever afterwards occupy a certain portion of the same. (For be it remembered that Mr. Smith himself furnished a larger amount of capital towards its erection than any other person. "In the same generation," this author exclaims, "in which he uttered his predictions" he was "slain with impunity." "The establishment at Nauvoo is overthrown. The Saints are utterly exterminated from their Nauvoo Zion. Year their very Temple became a college in the hands of their enemies, and was ultimately consumed by fire!" If the author had read a little further in the same revelation, he would have found a very plain intimation that the Saints would be hindered from doing the work assigned to them. It reads thus:—"Verily, verily, I say unto you, that when I give a commandment to any of the sons of men to do a work unto my name, and those sons of men go with all their might, and with all their have, to perform that work, and cease not their diligence, and their enemies come upon them and hinder them from performing that work; behold, it behoveth me to require that work no more at the hands of those sons of men, but to accept of their offerings; and the iniquity and transgression of my holy laws and commandments, I will visit upon the heads of those who hindered my work, unto the third and fourth generation, so long as they repent not and hate me, saith the Lord God. * * * * *

And this I make and example unto you, for your consolation, concerning all those who have been commanded to do a work, and have been hindered by the hands of their enemies, and by oppression saith the Lord your God." Some five or six years after this revelation, the Saints were hindered by their enemies from completing that house. This was nothing more than what might have been anticipated from the intimation given in the revelation. Previous to the period in which this revelation was given, and for some time afterwards, the Saints enjoyed peace and tranquility in Nauvoo, and in the regions round about, and to all human appearance there were no fears to be entertained that they would be hindered from building until the Lord indicated it by revelation. Therefore the martyrdom of Joseph Smith and the persecutions of the Saints, instead of weakening the evidence of the truth of the revelation, are confirmatory of its divine authenticity.

The author of the "Remarks" seems to exert every power of his mind in misrepresenting our doctrine, in order to deceive the public. He says, that the in Doctrine and Covenants, sec. viii., par. 15, "indisputable evidence is given of a fact which the Mormons uniformly deny, viz, that the Scriptures are of no estimation in the opinion of a true Mormon."

The clause from the revelation reads thus:—"And again verily I say unto you, let no man pay stock in the quorum of the Nauvoo House, unless he shall be a believer in the Book of Mormon, and the revelations I have given unto you, saith the Lord your God: for that which is more or less than this cometh of evil, and shall be attended with cursings and not blessings saith the Lord your God." We see nothing in this passage to prohibit the Saints from believing in the Scriptures, but directly the reverse, they are in this very quotation, required to believe not only in the Book of Mormon, but "in the revelations which God had given them." Now what "revelations" has the Lord given unto his Saints? I answer, the Scriptures, together with the Book of Mormon, and many other revelations. As a proof that the Scriptures are included among the revelations which God has given for the government of the Saints, we further quote:—"Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received which have been given unto thee in my scriptures for a law, to be my law to govern my church." (Doctrines and Covenants, section xiii. 16.) Hence, "that which is more or less" than a belief in the scriptures, and at all other revelations which God has given to the Saints, "cometh of evil and shall be attended with cursings and not blessings."

The death of Mr. Smith is next referred to by this author. The cruel, cold-blooded martyrdom of Mr. Smith and his brother, by an armed mob, who had painted themselves black for the occasion, is a circumstance two well known to need any comment here. Joseph Smith died a noble martyr for his religion,—innocent of any crimes against the laws of his country: and in all cases, where he received a trial before the courts of his country, he was honorably acquitted. The various crimes alledged against him by his murderous persecutors were never sustained. His murderers, knowing him to be innocent, had not the most distant hope of condemning him by the law,—they merely issued their perjured writs against him for the purpose of dragging him into the midst of his enemies, where they could murder him with impunity, and where he had no friends to protect him. Mr. Smith never escaped from any former prison, as this author pretends; he was taken by a band of heartless murderers in Missouri, who had just imbrued their hands in the blood of many of the Saints, and who had dragged little children from their hiding places, and murdered them, with the most horid oaths. By this fiendish band, he, with many others, were thrust into prison, where they were kept many days, and were offered "human flesh" to eat, and threatened with death constantly. At length, however, they took them from the prison and escorted them several days' journey over the country, still saying that they intended murdering them. The most of the guards became beastly drunk, while the balance, being a little more humane, were unwilling to have them murdered, therefore they advised the prisoners to leave for the State of Illinois. Thus Mr. Smith escaped from this blood-thirsty banditti. Mr. Smith was not endeavoring to escape from Carthage prison, as this author insinuates, at the time this painted mob first made their appearance in the distance. They had rushed upon the building—burst open the door—shot dead his brother Hyrum, and severely wounded elder Taylor, one of the twelve before he (Mr Smith) went to the window, where he leaned partially out, as if to shield himself from the shower of balls which were pouring through the door; in which position he was shot by the mob without, and his body fell to the ground. Before he expired he was taken by the mob and placed against a well-curb, after which four of the gang simultaneously raised their guns and shot him dead. This is according to the testimony of eye witnesses to the whole scene.

This author proceeds to quote the words of our Savior:—"It cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem." And concludes that Mr. Smith could not be a prophet because he perished out of Jerusalem. But we ask, Where did Peter and Paul perish? At Rome. Were they prophets? Yes. Paul declares, Ephesians iii. that God had made known to him a certain mystery, by revelation, "which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy apostles and PROPHETS by the Spirit." Christ promised all of his apostles the spirit of prophecy, and expressly told them that the Holy Ghost should show them things to come. Look at the numerous prophecies contained in the writings of the apostles, all of which prove to a demonstration that they were great prophets, and yet the most of them perished out of Jerusalem! It is very evident from the adjoining passages that our Savior only intended to convey the idea of the wickedness of Jerusalem, compared with other cities, and not that no prophets should, in time to come, perish out of Jerusalem. We do not wonder at this author using such flimsy, ignorant, and foolish arguments, for there are none other that can be used against the truth. Gross slanders, foul misrepresentations, and persecutions, are the only weapons that the devil or any of his emissaries ever used to overthrow the work of God.

The next effort of this unknown author is, to quote a sentence from my tract ("Divine Authority") and then, with all the cunning that he possessed, endeavor to misrepresent its meaning.

The sentence which he denounces, reads thus:—"How could an impostor so far surpass the combined wisdom of seventeen centuries as to originate a system diverse from every other system under heaven, and yet harmonize with the system of Jesus and his apostles in every particular!" What! an impostor discover the gross darkness of ages, and publish a doctrine perfect in every respect, against which not one scriptural argument can be adduced! The idea is preposterous! The purity and infallibility of the doctrine of this great modern prophet is a presumptive evidence of no small moment in favor of his divine mission." "What does this amount to," inquired this deceptive author, "but that Smith has invented a more perfect system than that of Jesus Christ?" And further, this author assumes that, "the system introduced by Christ has been on the earth under heaven these eighteen hundred years." But this is his own assumption without proof. Indeed, it is a false assumption; for the system of Jesus Christ includes inspired apostles and prophets, and all the miraculous gifts of the Holy Ghost which Christ promised. Now we ask this author if all these have been on the earth during "these eighteen hundred years!" If not, then the system of Christ has not been on the earth during that time. It is true, we have the history of that system as it once existed on the earth. But where is the system now? Fled from under heaven, leaving only a history by which mankind understand that it once had place on the earth. The system introduced through Joseph Smith which embraces inspired apostles and prophets, and all other powers, gifts, and blessing, is diverse from every system under heaven, and yet it harmonizes and agrees in every particular with that system which Jesus once had on earth, but which has not, because of wickedness existing among men for many centuries past. Indeed, it is the same system renewed—the same offices, gifts, and powers restored, that mankind may once more have the system of Jesus among them preparatory to his second advent.

On page eight of the "Remarks" the author pretends to quote a revelation contained in the fourth section of the Book of Covenants, purporting, as he falsely pretends, that the New Jerusalem should be built in this generation, and that it should be dedicated by the hands of Joseph Smith, jun. Now, every one who has read the Book of Covenants, knows that there is no such declaration in the Book, and that this author has quoted falsely to deceive. Mr. Smith, in the year 1831, dedicated by commandment the temple lot; but there is no revelation that says he shall dedicate the New Jerusalem; neither is there any intimation in the revelation that the New Jerusalem should be built in this generation. These are falsehoods of this wicked author's own invention, which he has endeavored to palm off upon the public as though they were in our books. It is difficult to conceive how "clergymen of different denominations" could approbate such wilful and barefaced falsehoods as are contained on almost every page of the "Remarks" unless they were of the same spirit as its author. With regard to the New Jerusalem, we believe that there will be such a city built by the direction of the Almighty, in the place that he has appointed, and that it will be built between this and the expiration of the Millennium—that it will be preserved when the earth passeth away—that it will afterwards come down out of heaven upon the New Earth, and that it will be the abode for ever of immortal and glorified beings. We also believe that the old Jerusalem will be built upon the land of Palestine—that it will never afterwards "be plucked up nor thrown down." (Jer. xxxi. 38, 39, and 40.) but will be preserved when the earth passeth away, and will also come down upon the New Earth after the New Jerusalem has descended, and that both cities will be occupied from thenceforth with glorified and immortal beings who will inherit the earth for ever and ever.

The dimension of this last city that John saw descending, are given in the twenty-first chapter of his book. John says, (verse 16,) "And the city lieth four-square, and the length is as large as the breadth: and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs," which is 1500 miles; now it is rather improbable that the city should be 1500 miles in length and breadth, but it is not improbable that it should contain 1500 square miles; for 1500 square miles could all be contained in a city less than thirty-nine miles in length and breadth. Therefore, the measurement of the angel, no doubt, had reference to the superficial contents. John further says, "The length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equal." Does this mean that the height of the city is to be nearly 39 miles, or equal to the length and breadth, or as our Scottish author says, "a perfect cube!" We think not. The expression was, no doubt, used to represent the great equality that existed in all parts of the city, as for instance, the length of parrallel lines running in one direction (as north and south) should all be equal; and parrallel lines running at right angles (as east and west) through any part of the city should also all be equal; while the height of the buildings in one part of the city should be equal to the height of the buildings in any other part of the city. A perfect equality seems to characterizes every part of the city, that is, the length in one place is equal to the length measured in parrallel directions through any other place: the same equality characterizes the breadth, and the same equality characterizes the buildings. We have no idea that the buildings will be 39 miles in height so as to form "a perfect cube." Indeed, we very much doubt whether the buildings will be as high as the wall: for John says, the city "had a wall GREAT and HIGH." How great and high was this wall! Only "an hundred and forty and four cubits." Now, if the height of this city was to extend up 1500 miles, or even 39 miles, this wall could not be called "great and high" when compared with such huge building. The wall would be immensely lower than the houses, and therefore would be very ill-proportioned to the city; but from the fact that the wall is called "great and high" we may draw the conclusion that these splendid mansions were lower than the high wall with which they were surrounded.

As this Scottish author has, for reasons best known to himself, kept his name in the dark, in the remainder of our reply we shall, for the sake of convenience in reference, call him Joseph Paton. We do not pretend that this is the author's real name, but only assumed as a convenience for the time being.

Mr. Paton finds fault with a revelation which speaks of a priesthood conferred "upon Aaron and his seed throughout all their generations, which priesthood also continueth and abideth for ever with the priesthood which is after the holiest order of God." He supposes it altogether unscriptural for God to restore again to the earth the Aaronic priesthood. But what says the scripture upon this subject? God commanded Moses to anoint Aaron and his sons, and he says, expressly, that "their anointing shall surely be an EVERLASTING PRIESTHOOD throughout their generations." (Exodus xl. 15.) The same covenant of an "everlasting priesthood" was made with Phinehas, the grandson of Aaron, "and his seed after him." (Numbers xxv, 13,) The same priesthood existed among Israel before Aaron and his sons received their anointing, and before the law of Moses was given. (Exodus xix, 22—24.) The same priesthood administered not only the ordinances of the law, but also the ordinance of "Baptism for the remission of sins," which is one of the ordinances of the gospel. For instance, John the Baptist, who was a literal descendant of Aaron, inherited the "everlasting priesthood" by virtue of his birthright, and the covenant of priesthood made with his fathers; yet he officiated in a gospel ordinance. John, and the seven churches of Asia were not only washed from their sins by the blood of Christ, but were also made here in this life. "Priests unto God and his Father." (Rev. i. 6.) That the priesthood of Aaron will again officiate on the earth is clearly predicted in numerous passages of scripture. The Lord says (Isaiah lxvi 20) that Israel shall be brought as an offering to the Lord out of all nations, upon horses, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon swift beasts, to his holy mountain, Jerusalem." * * * * *

And I will also take of them for PRIESTS and for LEVITES saith the Lord."—(Verse 20 and 21.) And in the 22d and 23d verses he declares that the seed and name of the Levitical priesthood should remain as long as the new heavens and the new earth should remain, and that "from one new moon to another, and from one sabbath to another, all flesh shall come to worship before him." Thus we see that the Aaronic Priesthood will not only exist when Israel is restored from all nations but will continue to exist after all wickedness is destroyed out of the earth, and under its administrations "all flesh will come and worship before the Lord." And as the New Heavens and Earth will have no end, neither will this Priesthood have an end, but shall abide for ever with the greater priesthood, which is after the order of the Son of God.

(To be continued.)

For the Frontier Guardian.

AN EXTRACT,

FROM THE JOURNAL OF V. H. SMITH.

Sleep on dear mother, years have fled,
And manhood crowns thy offspring's head;
His childish wants have passed away,
Since in the grave you silent lay—
Sleep on I say, I would not call
Your spirit back into that wall,
That mouldering wall it once did know,
In tears and sorrow here below,
Sleep on awhile—forever, not
For trembling soon shall seize the spot
And Space, where strewn your ashes lay,
And you shall 'wake to endless day—
Shall 'wake in resurrection morn,
A purer body to adorn;
And purer life and joys to see—
The keys are known—it sure shall be,
Shall 'wake dear mother, and will know
Your children dear, again below.
With Christ, we then a thousand years
Shall reign, in kingly—queenly spheres.
And, when millennial reign is past,
Death and the grave shall never blast
The glorious hope of endless day,
Of crowns, and thrones, and princely sway.

PRIESTCRAFT IN DANGER

A DRAMA.

BY WILLIAM M'GHIE.

(Continued)

Act II. Scene I.—A Field.—Enter Saunders Snoddem walking quickly—Enter Lord Aimwell.

L. A.—Ho: Saunders, Ho.

Saun.—(Turning back.) What's your will, my Lord.

L. A.—Have you any particular business calling you away? You appear to be in a hurry.

Saun.—I'm gaun tae a preaching at eight o'clock, and gin I get my supper, and the dirt off mysel, it will be weel eer. But I hae plenty o' time tae tak ye're lordship's commands.

L. A.—I wanted to see you by yourself, to inform you, that Dr. Clamour has written me a note, stating that you are unworthy of receiving my employment. He charges you with no specific crime, but means to leave the impression that you are a bad character. I have always taken you for a steady, industrious, right-minded man, and I thought it proper to let you know this, and give you an opportunity of clearing yourself, if you can do so.

Saun.—I doubt yeare lordship has laid a gay hard task on me; I dinna see how I can clear mysel, when there is naething laid to my charge.

L. A.—That is very true, Saunders, I never thought of that. But perhaps you could form some idea of the reason. Had you ever any intercourse with the doctor?

Saun.—I was honored wi a visit frae him this morning, the first I ever had, and I think its likely to be the last: I hae but half guess o' his errand, for he never got it tell't yet. Ye see, I had been hearing a Latter-day Saint minister the night afore, (the same I mean to hear the night,) The doctor sought my opinion of their doctrine, I own'd candidly I believed their doctrine to be true, and themselves to be sent of God. At this he fell into a rage, and though I offered to reason the thing from scripture, it only served to add fuel to the flame; he raged in a very uncivil manner about my delusion and ignorance, &c., and when I saw that, I spoke my mind very freely, for I had smelt as much he wanted me to gang out and persecute them openly. This is the only thing, please ye're lordship, ever past between the doctor and me.

L. A.—Your have told me a very surprising story, but from what I know of the doctor's mind, I have reason to believe it to be true. I highly commend the course you adopted. I assure you it has risen you a good deal in my estimation. But, Saunders, are not these the people termed Mormons, that so much is said against both from pulpit and press?

Saun.—The very same fouk, ye're lordship.

L. A.—You say, you offered to reason the thing from scripture. Now I have heard that they don't believe our scripture.

Saun.—They're the only sect I ever heard o' in Britain that believe our scripture, A' the rest believe in their favorite commentators, and no' in the scripture at a'.

L. A.—That last remark is certainly true; and you hear them preach to night!

Saun.—In the Temperance Hall, at eight o'clock. Wad ye're lordship no' think on gaun down! Prince and pensant have a' alike need o' the salvation they have to offer, and I can assure you, if ye heard them ance, ye wadna count it labor lost.

L. A.—I confess I should like to go. And yet, I—could I not disguise myself!

Saun.—Come awa down to the cottage, and I'll gie your lordship claes, 'ill make ye a perfect ploughman in five minutes.

L. A.—No, I shall go, but I shall not disguise myself: I may not be a wise man, but I shall for once use my privilege of hearing for myself before judging. Come, I shall go down along with you, and you shall tell me more about them by the way. [Exeunt.

Scene II.—A room in Tythington Manse.—Dr. Clamour attired in his magisterial wig, and a clerk seated at a table with papers before him.

Dr. C.—(Taking his chair at the table.)—Now Mr. Scrimp, I have to request you, in taking down the depositions, to use the strongest possible language, and make them out in the fullest manner. Ho, there; let the prisoner be brought in.—(Enter Heber C. Kimball, handcuffed in charge of an officer.)—(To the officer.)—You may retire, but be sure to remain within call.—(To Heber C. Kimball.)—Sir, I have had information of a very serious nature lodged against you. I am truly sorry that a man can be found so abandoned in wickedness, as to assume the guise of religion for such purposes as you are charged with. Sir, you are charged with having (under the garb of religion) convened a meeting, and there, by base, wicked, and blasphemous speeches, incited the people to acts of riot and confusion, to the serious disturbance of the peace of our quiet town. What say you; guilty or not guilty!

H. C. K.—I am not guilty. Nor can the worst invention of the devil, aided by all your influence, prove me so.

Dr. C.—I'll advise you, sir, to speak more respectfully to your superiors, otherwise it it shall be all the worse for you.

H. C. K.—And I, sir, shall advise you to deal out justice impartially and without prejudice, otherwise you shall be entangled in your own net, and shall not be able to escape.

Dr. C.—Sir, this insolence shall be recorded in your favor, (Ho, there; let the witnesses be brought in.)—(Enter Dick Devilish and Billy Blaster.)—Well, Richard, what have you to say in this case, were you at this meeting last night?

D. D.—We was, sir.

Dr. C.—Who got up that meeting!

D. D.—Why, I heard it said, it was that 'ere man.

Dr. C.—What sort of a meeting was it?

D. D.—It was such an uproarous confusionary meeting, you never se'ed the like on't.

Dr. C.—Who caused the confusion?

D. D.—It was caused by that 'ere man speechifying about blapenemy, I thinks they call it.

Dr. C.—Speaking blasphemy, I suppose, you mean.

D. D.—Ay, ay, ye're honor, I had forgot.

Dr. C.—Well, William, what have you got to say?

B. B.—Why, I says as he says.

Dr. C.—You mean, that your testimony is the same as his, word for word. That will do, both of you sign your depositions, and then retire.—(To Heber C. Kimball.) You hear what these witnesses say against you. I am astonished (after such infamous conduct) you were allowed to escape with life. But our citizens are a law-abiding people, and I am rejoiced they have rather chosen to throw you into the justice of the law.

H. C. K—Shall I be allowed the common privilege of the meanest criminals, to cross-examine these witnesses, and produce witnesses in my own behalf?

Dr. C.—We have already had too much of your lingo; I shall allow you sufficient time to study your defence in jail. Clerk, make out his mittimus. Ho, officer.—(Enter officer.)—There's your prisoner, you are responsible for him till you lodge him safely in Bridewell.

[Officer seizes H. C. K., and exit Lord Aimwell.

L. A.—I beg pardon, doctor, but I just heard by accident that you had a case of some importance, and I thought that as you knew me to be at liberty; you would have called in my assistance.

Dr. C.—(In evident confusion.)—W—we—that is to say—I would not think of giving your lordship any unnecessary trouble. We have got through with it, however. Officer do your duty.

L. A.—(To the officer.)—Remove these handcuffs, and retire until called for.—(To Dr. Clamour.)—Doctor I want to inquire into the case a little.—(Lifts the depositions and reads them.) These are charges of a grave nature, surely. And signed I see by two very respectable witnesses, old acquaintances of mine, too. I have had the pleasure of sending them alternately to Bridewell and the stocks every little while, for a long time back.—(To H. C. K.)—I am truly sorry, to see a gentleman of your appearance in such a situation. Are you satisfied this case has been legally made out against you.

H. C. K.—Sir, I am an entire stranger in Britain. I know not who you are, but if you have the will (as I perceive you have the power) to judge righteous judgement, and will be pleased to enquire into this case, you will find that a grosser piece of humbug (under the name of justice) was never acted in any nation under heaven, much less in a civilised nation such as Britain is reported to be. I throw myself entirely into your hands. I have been denied the privilege of cross-questioning these fellows brought up against me, and of producing witnesses in my own behalf.

(To be continued.)

For the Frontier Guardian.

A LEAF

From an old Manuscript found in the Gold Diggins.

CHAPTER XII.

1. And lo, it came to pass in the first year of the reign of Zachary, whom the people chose should rule over them, that he would not hearken unto the wise men who had always stood near unto the king, but chose unto himself whom he would to be counsellors, and to stand near unto him.

2. And it come to pass that these wise men began to say within themselves on this wise; "go to, have we not seen this our nation rise up in majesty and glory; and have not we long desired to be king over this goodly land! Now lo, and behold! is not he whom we thought the people knew not of, even he who has fought the battles thereof! Him have the people delighted to honor.

3. Now these wise men said within themselves, even as this people will not have us to rule over them, let us get to ourselves a kingdom, even a kingdom in the midst of this goodly land. Let us therefore go to, and stir up the people, that there may be division in the land, and lo, we surely know that which has ever been the cause of fear in the hearts of those who have ruled in the land before us.

4. Now there was one John, who lived in the land South; and he was a mighty man in the councils of the nation. Now this John of the South was a very wise man, but he was also a fiery headstrong man, even that before he had fallen under the displeasure of a former king, because of his great love of the people of the South, and because he was a turbulent man.

5. Now these people of the South were called cotton growers. And these wise men with the king had often an occasion to restrain this man when he would fain stir up the people. Therefore they said in their hearts, even as this people will not have us to rule over them, we will even let him do whatsoever he lists, and then will he not cause divisions among the people! And lo, and behold! will not the North be divided against the South, and the East against the West!

6. Now there was one in the North, a wise man, whom the people called Daniel, and he was like Daniel of old for his great wisdom; for he had long stood in the councils of the nation, and in the midst of kings, and of the wise men of the earth.

7. And Daniel had great love for the people of the North. Now these people of the North were called cotton spinners" and there was a noted man among them whose name was Abotaran, and he was a man of much wealth, and influence among the cotton spinners.

8. And it came to pass that in the cogitation of his mind did Daniel remember this man, for Abotaran was friendly unto Daniel, and with his friends, had oftentimes much comforted the heart of Daniel when surrounded by his enemies.

9. Now Daniel was vexed that the people should choose another to rule over them, therefore he sent for Abotaran and said unto him, now surely the time has come when this nation will be divided one against another; for, has not this John of the South been crying aloud against the North, and the people stood and listened!

10. Now behold this John would even rule over the South. And Daniel said unto his friend, "thou knowest that there is one, even one who is called Martin who would fain rule over the North. But the people will surely not have this man to rule over them, for behold he has deceived them.

11. Therefore let us council together. Go to, let us gather together all the spinners of the North and we will have a kingdom even greater than that of the South, and then Abotaran shall be next the throne. Now the heart of Abotaran was made to rejoice that day, for he desired much to be exalted over the people.

12. Again did Daniel speak unto his friend, saying, surely, there is much land, and many people in the West, which also we would have, but I know that there is one Thomas a wise man who pleaseth the people, and he desireth to get unto himself a kingdom, therefore has he said we will cast up a highway, from the great waters on the west even to the waters that divideth the land, that we may get the gold, and the silver, and precious things even from distant lands. Now behold, this gathereth together the hearts of the people unto him. Now, therefore, this Thomas would rule over all the West even though there be many languages, tongues and people. * * * * *

CHAPTER ——.

1. And it came to pass after many days when the spinners of the North were gathered together, and when the great highway had been cast up from the waters of the West even to the waters that divideth the land. And a great city was laid out in the South, for their rules to gather together, and wherein their King should dwell.

2. That the wise men of the South saw that the armies of the North were great in number even as the sands of the sea.

3. And they counseled together, saying, our valient men are few, even that we fear this people of the North, even that they come and take away our name that we be not a kingdom.

4. Therefore let us counsel together, if here be not a people to help us, even a people who desires our cotton!

5. And lo! behold they sent unto a king whose realm was afar off even beyond the great waters, saying, come help us against these spinners of the North that we may even prevail against them, and we will give thee of our cotton even all that thou do'st crest.

6. Now this pleased the king of the realm afar off, even that he called together his chief men and nobles and spake unto them saying this is that which we have long desired, even the division of that goodly land. Now, therefore let us go forth and take of the spoil, even that which the king our father before held.

7. And the chief captains and nobles said amen, for so it seemeth good in thy sight Oh king live forever.

8. And the king commanded his chief captains and nobles that they should gather together all his valient men in ships, that they should go down to this goodly land and possess it, even to the chief things of the ancient mountains, and the precious things of the lasting hills.

* * * * *

9. Now this grieved, the chief rulers, and mighty men who dwelt near to this King, even that they sent ambassadors, saying we would not that thou shouldst make war upon that goodly land, for we have also received of her merchandize; of gold and silver, and precious stones, and wood, and fine flour, and wheat and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots.

10. But the king * * * *

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

House Room.

No person or family need come here with the expectation of renting a house or a room, for we do not know of one to be had in that way. Any place can be bought if price enough is paid for it. But emigrants should generally calculate to build themselves houses when they get here.

It would be far better if many of our friends living on small claims here, and too often contending about them, would sell out or even give them to the poor, and branch out North and East and take claims of three hundred and twenty acres, the full extent and limit of the law. Your claim can be made in two seperate and distinct places, so as to have prairie and timber both if you wish.

Our friends coming from the East by land would mostly do well to stop on the Nichtenabotany in the vicinity of Indian Town. If your claim is run out and designated by posts and blazed trees, you can hold it to the extent of three hundred and twenty acres, though you should not have more than one acre enclosed by a fence. But be prudent and saving of the timber, and cut none unnecessarily, even though you may have plenty. When you cut a tree for rails, boards or for any mechanical purpose, be sure and remove the entire top for fuel, and let none go towaste.

Some valuable claims remain yet not taken up in the neighborhood of Lieut. Geo. W. Oman, about fifteen miles West of Indian Town.

Election.

Through a misunderstanding, there was an opposition to the successful candidate for sheriff at our last election. We have considered that both the candidates were men qualified to discharge the duties of that office; and we are sorry to see good men suffer any feelings to arise against one another on account of a difference of opinion. It is always well to be united if we can be in every good thing; but we should ever avoid harsh disputes, wrangling and every thing like vindictiveness, if every one does not see just as we do. Let no strife or animosity arise in your breasts; but let it be your pride and ambition so to order your course that the officers of the law will have but little to do with you in their legal capacity, whether they are the men of your choice or of the choice of your neighbor.

Thos. H. Benton.

This distinguished Senator from Missouri is making no small bustle in the Democratic ranks. He has awaked the Lion of the South from his lair. He roars like the Lion coming up "from the swelling of Jordan" in days of old. This great rise of the Locofoco waters will, most likely, like ancient Jordan, empty its angry current into a Dead Sea.

We hear, from a reliable source, that Mr. Benton says the Mormons are a very bad people—that they do not believe the scriptures—that they are enemies to the constitution, &c. If the Hon. Senator would come up to Kanesville and take a twist with some of our plough boys on the scriptures, he might not only be satisfied that we believed them, but that we understood them likewise. He may think that we ought to repeat the evidence that we are friends to the Constitution, before he can believe we are, by sending five hundred more men to California just after being banished and exiled from our home by the permission and kind indulgence of a sovereign Democratic State. We think that we are as good friends to the Constitution as Mr. Benton himself, and we believe the bible just as strongly as we do not believe he will ever be the President of these United States; and as to our being a bad people, we freely confess that we have not much goodness to boast of, and must therefore join with the poor publican who smote upon his breast in the presence of the proud and haughty Pharisee, and say: "God be merciful to us sinners."

Steamer Dahcota.

We have understood that the above steamer is to be raised on Friday, the 31st inst., and the owners of property on board, can have it by being present and proving their right to it.

Mr. Daley on Musquito, and Mr. Benn, can tell all about it. We hear that the owners of the boat are on the ground making preparations to raise her.

Music.

We are about to build a Hall in this place for the cultivation of the science of Music. It is much needed here for the above and other purposes. It will cost about $500—such an 'one as we contemplate building, and it will be built solely at the expense of the Editor of the Guardian, unless some of his friends are disposed to forward him something for the above object. Any donation for the above purpose will be duly acknowlged through the columns of this paper. The hall will be entirely under the control of the present presiding officer of the Church in Pottawatamie, and should there be any income arising from it at any time, it will be devoted to defray any contingent expenses to which the presiding officer may be subject.

Dry Times for News.

Our Eastern mail is not yet properly established, and because of rains, high water and sickness, as we are informed, our Desmoines mail, has failed one or two of the last trips. The papers that come by our Southern mail are barren of interest.

The cholera has nearly done creating excitement; but disasters, fires, murders, thefts, and robberies, continue about as usual. Missouri is a good deal agitated by the voice of her Jupiter who makes no little shaking among the dry bones of Democracy in the Valley of Decision. That matter is going off right. We wish none of them harm, but are willing that both divisions of that party should be successful. It rains here almost every day, besides an extra thunder shower nearly every night. We have very heavy thunder, even "Western Thunder," and lightning so constant and vivid that one can walk in the night without stumbling. Some of our farmers complain that the storms have been so frequent and penetrating that their stacks of wheat are wet in almost to the centre on the weather side. Much grain, it is thought, will be injured in the stack by the continued rains. The health of this section remains good.

Public Conveyance.

We learn that our old friend, Mr. Mower, is making arrangements to put some good four horse passenger teams on the route between this place and Saint Joseph Missouri. We wish him abundant success, and hope he may get the mail contract to help defray the expenses of the line. This is an enterprize that cannot fail to meet the approval of the citizens on the entire route.

The following letter addressed to Mr. Wicks by Mr. English, we publish at the request of Mr. W. who claims that the Indians have paid for the mill and he, therefore, had a just right to sell it to Mr. Harris or to any one else.

We have no interest whatever to subserve in the matter, neither do we wish to forestall the operations of Government; yet we wish for every man to have his rights duly and properly set before the community that no unmerited prejudice may arise against a neighbor.

AUSTIN, IOWA, August 15, 1849.

DEAR SIR: I have just seen an article in the Frontier Guardian, respecting the Pottawatamie Mill.

The mill stones have been paid for by the Indians and receipts are on file in the Sub-Agent's office of the above Indians. The Mill was paid for by the Indians when J. B. Luce was Sub-Agent, and I was present when it occurred.

I am acquainted with every particular respecting your right if you are in possession of said mill.

I am, sir, &c., &c.

W. R. ENGLISH.

To S. E. WICKS, Esq.

It is understood that the Mormon settlements in the Great Basin, will send a Delegate to Congress in December, with the design of procuring, if possible, the organization of a government in the Great Basin as a separate territory, with the view of ultimately asking its admission into the Union as an Independant State. There are some five thousand Mormons, now there, and it is expected that this number will be constantly doubling for several years, in arithmetical progression. If this should prove to be true, but a few years will elapse before there will be a population of 60,000 in the territory—which number heretofore has been deemed sufficient for establishing a State Constitution and conferring the privileges of a member of the confederacy.—[St. Joseph Gazette.

For the information of the Gazette, and others, Dr. John M. Burnhisel, the Delegate from Salt Lake City, with a petition for a Territorial Government, is now on his way to Washington. We saw the petition in his possession, and it was very numerously signed by the citizens of that place.

Nearly two thousand years ago, the apostle of the Highest proclaimed that evil could be overcome only with good.

ST. JOSEPH, Aug 6, 1849.

FRIEND O. HYDE: In your paper of the 25th of July, I observe, in giving a notice of "The Last Train," you say, among other things. "There was to be seen the Southerner with his colored attendant," &c., &c. Now I would like to know, whether you mean to say the Southerner went with his slave to our American Piedmont? If so, I would ask of you if Slavery is going to be established in the Valley? Many of the Saints here yet, I assure you, are mightily averse to the establishment of human slavery in the Valley, especially such of us who came from England, and intend going at the first convenient opportunity. Will you answer us through the Guardian?

You will excuse me for not giving you my real name now. You will get to know it any how.

Yours, &c., ——

The unknown writer of the above letter is referred to the fourteenth number of the Guardian for his answer. There he will find the information that he seeks. He has our thanks for late papers.

WANTED ON SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE GUARDIAN.

10,000 good hard wood rails, ten feet long, at $1 25 per hundred.

10,000 18 inch shingles at $3 per thousand if good.

10,000 pounds best fall wheat flour at $2 50 per hundred, or the market price.

10,000 feet good lumber at $2 00 per hundred.

100 cords good fire wood, four feet long, well split and corded at or near this office, (hard wood,) at one dollar a cord.

Besides cheese, eggs, chickens, fresh beef, mutton, veal; and even gold and silver or good current paper in quantities to suit the subscriber. Also three feet clabboard.

SHINGLES, BOARDS AND LUMBER!—Whoever wishes the Guardian in exchange for the above, must bring them soon.

Letters from the plains bring news from Gen. Wilson's party, dated 60 miles beyond Fort Laramie. It was almost impossible to count the graves along the route.

News by telegraph gives rather unfavorable accounts from California. There is much distress among the miners. Business is dull at San Francisco. A strong effort is being made to organize a State Government.

From the Glasgow Times.

STEAM BOAT ALGOMA,
FORT LEAVENSWORTH, July 25, 1849.

MR. GREEN:—I have just had an interview with Mr. A. L. Johnson, just in from South Pass and Fort Laramie, express to this post, with about 350 pounds of letter mail, which was put on board this Boat for the Post Office Department at St. Louis.

Mr. Johnson informs me that he left the South Pass on the 13th June, and on the 18th July arrived at this port, having been thirty days on the route, during which time he has laid by ten days, at various places on account of high water, &c.

Mr. J.-spent the 4th of July at the Camp of Gen. John Wilson, suite and escort, at Brady's Island, on the Platte river. The General was getting along very well, but said that he thought he might winter at Salt Lake.

Col. Loring with his regiment, left Fort Laramie for Oregon, on the 23d of June.

Mr. Johnson will start for Fort Laramie on to morrow, determined if possible, to perform the trip (640 miles) in fifteen days saying at the same time, that somebody else must bring in the next mail—people here were too thick for him—too much cholera—none in the mountains, and closing with the observation, that he had not been in the States since '41, and that he should spend the remainder of his life in the mountains, where he felt himself at home.

Mr. J. had only an Indian to accompany him in with the mail bags and necessary baggage.

I send you a Santa Fe Republican of the 9th ult., handed me by Mr. Washington Knox, of Rocheport, just in with a train to Independence.

J. T. CLEVELAND,
Captain of the Algoma.

CURIOSITIES OF THE EARTH.—At the city of Modena, in Italy, and about four miles around it, wherever it is dug, whenever the workmen arrive at the distance of sixty-three feet, they come to a bed of chalk, which they bore with an augur five feet deep. They then withdraw from the pit before the augur is removed, and, upon its extraction, the water bursts up through the aperture with great violence, and quickly fills this new made well, which continues full, and is affected neither by rains nor droughts. But that which is most remarkable in this operation, is the layers of earth as we descend. At the depth of fourteen feet are found the ruins of an ancient city, paved streets, houses, floors, and different pieces of mosaic. Under this is found a soft, oozy earth, made up of vegetables; and at twenty six feet deep, large trees entire, such as walnut trees, with the walnuts still sticking on the stem, and their leaves and branches in perfect preservation. At twenty-eight feet deep a soft chalk is found, mixed with a vast quantity of shells and this bed is eleven feet thick. Under this, vegetables are found again with leaves and branches of trees as before, and thus alternately chalk and vegetable earth to the depth of sixty-three feet.

A Gambler Sold at Auction.

A good story is told in the Dayton (Ohio) Transcript, of a gambler who once attempted to fleece the green ones of Alexandria Va. After setting his game, he at last caught a man of whom he won about $3,000. The gentleman feeling that he was tricked and yet unwilling to resort to legal redress and believing that thrashing the gambler would pay but poorly, began to cast about for some mode of punishment which might prove effectual in its influence on the gambler and of some public utility. He at last bethought him of the old colony laws in regard to vagrancy, which authorized the selling into servitude all persons who could not exhibit ostensible means of procuring a livelihood. The complaint was entered, and in due time the gambler was condemned in accordance with the laws. Supposing that their could be nothing very serious in the matter, as no person would be likely to bid for his services, he suffered himself to be brought under the hammer. The gentleman was there ready to carry out his plan. Ten dollars was bid—the gambler doubled it. The bids went on by degrees to $1500, when the gambler began to manifest symptoms of alarm by begging his persecutor to desist, as he had already bid to the full amount of his purse—onward and upward went the bids, however, until the sum reached $3,500, at which the poor gambler was knocked of to himself—he paid the amount and vamosed. The corporation took the proceeds of the sale and added a steeple and bell to their Town Hall. Thus was the goodly city of Alexandria furnished with those very important appendages to its improvements.

A guard was detached to protect the steamer Rowena, at St. Louis on Monday evening, 31st ult., from a threatened attack of the Irish.

Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publisher may continue to send them till all arrearages are paid, and subscribers are responsible for all the numbers sent.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodical from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible till they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and their periodicals are sent to their former direction they are held responsible.

5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the office, or removing and leaving it uncalled for until arrearages are paid, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

Advertisements handed in without the period of their continuance distinctly noted, will be continued until forbid; and charges made accordingly.

The above will be our guide, and no paper will be discontinued until notice is given and arrearages paid, except at the discretion of the Editor.

On dit at Washington, that Senator Bentons' youngest daughter will soon be espoused to Signor Sanchez, a young Mexican.

"There are two things," says Mrs. Puttington, that should be at home every evening at dark—cows and women—especially if there are nursing babies in the house.

Of the seven millions comprising the entire population of Brazil, three millions are estimated to be negro slaves.

The Collision and Loss of Life.

We find in the European Times full particulars of the collision between the steamer Europa and the bark Charles Bartlett, of Plymouth, Mass., by which the latter, with one hundred and thirty-four of her passengers and crew, was sunk in three minutes;

The Charles Bartlett, Capt. Bartlett, was an American ship of four hundred tons burthen, chiefly loaded with lead and chalk, and having one hundred and sixty-two steerage passengers, one cabin passenger, and a crew of fourteen men, outward bound for New York, and at the time of the collision was going at the rate of about five knots an hour, close hauled on the wind. The Europa was sailing at the rate of eleven and a half or twelve knots per hour. At the time of the collision both vessels were enveloped in a dense fog, which prevented those on board of either vessel seeing beyond a few yards. At about half-past 3 o'clock, the look-out of the Europa suddenly perceived the ship through the mist, and had just time to announce the discovery, when a dreadful collision took place, the Europa striking the Charles Bartlett amidships and cutting an awful chasm in her side, killing several persons on board. The bark immediately began to settle down, and in a few minutes sunk. The scene during those few minutes was appalling in the extreme. A crowd of suffering wretches, maimed and broken by the collision, lay dead or dying at the spot where the bows of the Europa had entered.

Some of the individuals who crowded the decks appeared panic-stricken, others ran to and fro in despair, while some rushed forward and eagerly seized upon the opportunities which were presented for giving them a chance of safety. The most strenuous exertions were made on the instant by all on board the Europa for rescuing from the eminent peril which pressed upon them as many individuals as possible. Hand buoys and ropes were thrown over, boats were lowered, and every man was busied in those few fearful minutes in rescuing the struggling sufferers from the waves. Yet with all the exertions that could be used, only 44 individuals were saved out of 177, who had recently been alive on board the unfortunate ship. Among those preserved were the Captain of the Charles Bartlett, the second mate, and seven seamen. Of forty women who were on board only one was rescued.

It is a remarkable circumstance that the second mate of the Charles Bartlett, and all the men of his watch, who were below at the time of the collision, were saved, whilst the whole of the watch on deck, with two exceptions, perished. The boats of the Europa, which had been lowered immediately on the collision taking place, and which had been actively engaged in picking up the unfortunate sufferers, were near being engulphed in the vortex which the sinking of the barque created. No blame whatever can be imputed to those in charge of the Europa. The collision was purely accidental; no human foresight or prudence could have prevented it; and on the unfortunate circumstance taking place, every exertion was made to save the crew and passengers of the sunken vessel. The damage sustained by the Europa was very trifling.

Cholera.

The cholera at St. Louis has almost entirely disappeared, only two deaths occured on the 3d inst, from cholera. The journals say that the citizens again begin to assume their accustomed activity.

The cholera at Quincy Ill., still continues to an alarming extent.

The Cincinnati Times of the 26th ult., says that the cholera was raging at Sandusky, Ohio. In thirty-one hours previous to the 25th, thirty-one deaths had occurred.

BELLEVILLE.—There have been two hundred and thirty-six deaths from cholera, in all, at Belleville, and twenty-seven for the week ending July 30th.

ALBANY, N. Y.—During the first forty days of the prevalence of cholera in Albany, in 1832, there were two hundred and eighty-seven deaths—for the same period in 1849, but seventy eight.

NEW YORK.—The total number of deaths from cholera, in New York city, for the week ending July 22d, was six hundred and seventy; of these there were

Natives of the United States,	201
" " Ireland,	329
" " Germany,	80
" " England,	21
Other foreigners,	24
Unknown,	15

This gives a proportion of foreigners to that of native born as nine to four nearly.

Fourteen physicians have died in Cincinnati, since the appearance there of the cholera. Sixteen we believe, have died in St. Louis.

SLAVES CAPTURED.—Captain Fox, of the ship Batavia, at Boston, July 22d, reports that a Brazilian brig, with 250 slaves on board, and another brig with 500, had been recently taken to St. Helena as prizes of a British-man-of-war.

The Lowell (Massachusetts) Advertiser reports a case of cholera in that city—the subject was a young lady—which from first to last excited alarm and solicitude. The Advertiser says "without waiting for the premonitory symptoms to fully develope themselves, several learned physicians who were called in, after consultation, concurred in the opinion that it was genuine Asiatic cholera—the real asphyxia. About an hour afterwards the disease took the shape of a fine boy, and the lady was relieved. The reputation of the doctors is rising to a climax. Nobody will hereafter liken them to "old women."

The old Postmaster at Bloomingdale, Michigan refused to deliver the Post Office to the newly appointed incumbent for some reason, and Mr. Sedgwick the new Postmaster opened another.

COST OF THE CREVASSE.—We see it stated by the municipal authorities of New Orleans, that the expenses incurred in stopping the Sauve crevasse exceed $90,000.

The Emperor of Russia has presented Mr. Joseph White, of Cowes, the eminent ship builder, with a splendid gold snuff-box, set with brilliants, in recognition of his services in designing the alteration of two line-of-battle-ships to admit the application of auxiliary screw steam-power. The vessels are now in the course of alteration at the imperial factory at Constradt.—[Washington Republic.

From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

SOUTH CAROLINA AGAIN.—The drollest people on earth, decidedly, are the folks of the palmetto State. No other plunge so deeply and constantly into the "luxury of sorrow," or take such delight in making themselves miserable by the contemplation of their wrongs and sufferings. They luxuriate eternally upon the very verge of a "crisis," and cheer each other from morning till night with a never ceasing cry "to arms."

On the fourth of July, when every body else in this blessed Union of ours was giving himself up to the gusto of such pleasure as his patriotic emotions and his particular tastes suggested, the good folks of Orangeburgh, and we dare say of other localities in palmettodom, gathered themselves together for the solemn refreshment of a regular talk over South Carolian afflictions. By way of beginning they listened to the famous "address of the Southern members of Congress," which has been forgotten as fast as possible every where else; then an "orator of the day" regaled them with a long exposition, narrative and prophetic, of the wrongs and insults heaped by the attrocious "North" upon the "chivalry" and the "institutions," and of the deeds that must be done in consequence; and then the mourning multitude proceed to dinner and drink, the latter of which they enlivened by a hot fire of toasts and sentiments such as the following—which, with many others, we find duly paraded in the Charleston Mercury:

Regular Toasts.

2. The Constitution of the United States—Designed by its framers to secure equal rights to the members of the confederacy, it has been rendered to the South an instrument of oppression and a curse.

3. The Union—In its purity we would cling to it with filial devotion. As now corrupted, it is not worth preserving.

By Edwin De Leon, Esq., editor of the Telegraph:

The Southern Address—The first step toward a second "Declaration of Independence."

3. The orator of the day—In his able address on this occasion, the eloquence of a true Southern heart has lent its aid to the wisdom and ability of the statesman.

12. Thomas H. Benton—Whenever a Southern man intends to play traitor to the South, he always commences by abusing Mr. Calhoun. (three groans.)

Volunteer Toasts.

By W. Huston, Esq., vice-president—South Carolina: While solicitous of the co-operation of her sister States having similar rights to protect and similar wrongs to redress, she yet feels that her honor and her interests are in her own keeping, and if need be, she will act alone in their defence.

By Dr. J. H. Morgan—Resistance to aggressions upon Southern rights, by the whole South if it will; but by South Carolina any how, at all hazards, and to the last extremity.

By Mr. S. G. Jamison—The separation of the Union:—The sooner the better for the South.

By S. Clark—South Carolina and her institutions, if the rest of the world go crazy.

FROM FORT LARAMIE.—We have received a letter from Allen M'Lane Esq., dated Fort Laramie, June 17th. The emigration were making fine progress. The cholera has steadily in the foot-steps of the gold hunters, raging violently after wet weather, and at times ceasing entirely. Probably three hundred of the present years emigration have been swept off by the fell disease. The emigrants are generally in fine spirits, and full of hope. Mr. M'Lane advises that the next years emigration bring light strong two horse wagons with four yoke of oxen to each. Plenty of hard bread, and half the bacon usually carried—plenty of woolen clothing—wagons not to carry more than 1700 weight—these are suggestions made by Mr. M'Lane as facilitating the emigrants travel. He advises that fancy sheet iron stoves and other useless trumpery be left behind. Horses for riding have stood the trip well, and there has been abundance of grass. Numbers of wagons have been left at Laramie by the emigrants, and the route near that point is strewed with bacon, old stoves, &c. Mr. M'Lane promises to open a regular correspondence with us on his arrival in California.—[Argus.

General CHARLTON, of the British army, died recently at the advanced age of ninety-four years, seventy-seven of which he spent in the military service of his country, which he entered as a cadet, saw much active service, hard fighting included, and had the good fortune to be "gazetted," as they say in England, in every grade.

FIRE IN CHICAGO.—A destructive fire occurred in Chicago on the 18th inst. It broke out in the warehouse of Neely & Lawrence, adjoining that of Raymond, Gibbs & Co. on South Water street. This building, as well as that of Raymond, Gibbs & Co., was consumed. In the warehouse of Neely & Lawrence merchandize to the value of $10,000, and 20,000 bushels of wheat, were destroyed—upon which there was insurance amounting to $6,500. The warehouse was worth $6,000, and was owned by H. R. Wilcox, of New York city. No insurance.

The other warehouse was the largest and best in the city, and was owned by J. Wadsworth. Insured for its value, $10,000. Merchandise to the amount of $2,000, and 1500 bushels of wheat were contained in the warehouse. The loss of R. & G. does not exceed $3,000, and is covered by insurance. There is no doubt that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

A party of about fifty Texans some time since left the frontier for the purpose of exploring the recesses of the Wichita mountains, amid which there were said to be immense deposites of gold. One of the editors of the Texas Times accompanied the party, and states that there is no appearance whatever of any precious metals in the whole range, though the earth is covered with the glittering mica, tinged with the carbonate of iron. The yellow appearance of this mineral probably gave rise to the report of the existence of gold. At Little Rock a party is now being organized to examined the same location.—[Washington Republic.

HOMŒOPATHY.—The Homœpathic Journal, just published in St. Louis, by Dr. Temple, has the following as the result of their system of practice in cases of Cholera, which certainly shows a result of astonishing success. We should be glad if we had the means of comparing it with the result of Allopathic practice for the same disease:

Total number of cholera cases treated by three Homœopathic physicians in St. Louis, up to the 13th of July 1849, is,	1,567
Died,	51
Gone into Allopathic hands,	46
Cured,	1,470

An engagement is reported to have taken place in Venezuela, between Paez and Monages, favorable to the former. A fight has also taken place in Honduras, between the Mexicans and Indians. Mexican loss, 500.

The New York Sun estimates the damage done to the trade and business of New York, by the "prevailing epidemic," at ten millions of dollars.

JEWISH SABBATH.—The reformed Jewish Communion, of Berlin, have decided that the Sabbath shall be celebrated from henceforth on Sundays and not kept as a holiday on Saturdays.

John D. Buck, clerk of the Susquehanna and Copper Smithing Works, was murdered in his office, at Baltimore, the night of the 16th. The murderer was unknown.

SUSPICIOUS.—A removed postmaster still affixes P. M. to his name—he says it means post mortem.

KANESVILLE MARKET.

WEDNESDAY, Aug. 22, 1849.

Our market has been well supplied with all kinds of produce, groceries, &c., since our last report, for the most articles for home consumption the market has been steady. The recent heavy rains have in a great degree, sustained the price of flour, which we now quote at $2 25 @ $2 50 ₩ hundred. Corn—the market is entirely bare of (old) corn. Bacon—demand steady with a very little in market. We quote 7 @ 8c., for sides; 8 @ 9c. for hams. Groceries continue unchange'd, and holders firm.

The following prices is the range of the market:

Flour, per hundred,		$2 25@$2 50
Beef,	"	$1 00
Sugar, ₩ lb.		9@10c.
Coffee,	"	10c.
Rice,	"	6c.
Salt, ₩ sack,		$3 50
Pork,	"	none.
Bacon, ₩ lb.		7@8c.
Green Hides, ₩ lb.		2½c.
Dry do.	"	4½c.
Iron, (tire,)	"	6c.
" assorted,	"	6½c.
Potatoes, ₩ bushel, (new,)		10@50c.
Corn,	"	none.
Wheat,	"	60c.
Flaxseed,	"	35c.
Tallow, ₩ lb		8c.
Butter,	"	8@10c.
Cheese,	"	6@8c.
Beeswax	"	16@20c.
Honey, ₩ gallon,		50c.
Eggs, ₩ dozen,		5c.

DIED

In Davis' Camp, on the 6th inst., of dropsy on the brain, ROBERT, son of John and Sarah Murray, aged 7 years—short 4 days.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

GOLD PLATE.

DR. H. P. SWAIN, respectfully informs the ladies and gentlemen of Kanesville and its vicinity that he is now at the UNION HOTEL and will remain there for a few days to practice his profession as Surgeon Dentist.

He is prepared to perform all operations essential to the beauty and preservation of the Teeth: also to insert incorruptible artificial teeth, mounted on gold plate, from one to a whole sett.

Kanesville, Aug. 22d,

STRAYED OR STOLEN.

One tall bay horse, thin in flesh, about seven years old, and one dark brown mare also thin in flesh, and adjudged to be six years old. A rope halter on the horse and a braded lariett on the mare when they left. They strayed or were taken from their usual range near Kanesville, on Saturday, the 18th inst. Whoever will return them or give information as to their whereabouts, shall be suitably rewarded.

ABRAHAM DAY.

Kanesville, Aug 22, 1849.

A LARGE IMPORTATION OF ENGLISH & FRENCH Dry Goods, Hardware and Cutlery,

BROUGHT DIRECT, and this day opened for sale to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Kanesville and other inhabitants of Pottawatamie county by BROWN & BARHAM.

GROCERIES, sugar, tea, coffee, salt, soap, &c.
PRINTS—English and American, and domestics.
BLANKETS—quilts, carpets, rugs, woolens.
CALICO—shirting and shirts of all colors.
FLANNELS—muslins, jaconets, gauze;
RIBBONS—satin; sersenet, galloons, binding;
CLOTHES—velveteens, cords, moleskin and cloth;
SHEETING—tick, diaper, towelling;
HOSE—woolen and cotton, gloves, socks and stockings;
LADIES Alapacca, Merino, Coburgh and French dresses;
LACES—French and English, silk and cotton th end, nets, quilling and flowers;
SEWED MUSLIN—collars, braids, thread, needles, pins and thimbles;
SILK AND SATIN—bows, ties, neckcloths, h'k's and eyes;
SMALLWARES—buttons, glass, steel, gilt, silk and satin;
THREADS—silk, linen, and cotton of all colors;
SHOES—ferretts, edging, binding, caps and bonnets;
IRISH LINEN—Union check;
TOOLS—double and cut plain irons, chisels, gouges and augers of all sizes, drawing knives;
SAWS—taper, pit and mill, ripping, compass and hand saws, also turning webs, pit and hand saw sets and tillers;
FILES—bastard, horse rasps and flat wood files;
GIMBLETS—shell and spike, turnscrews;
NAILS AND GLASS;
STEEL—knives, forks, pocket and pen knives, screws, door hinges, Scissors and spoons of good, and common quality, door locks;
SALERATUS—spices, oils, paints, varnish, saltpetre, olive oil, camphor;
LIQUORS—rectified whisky, gin and cognac brandy, by the Gallon.
HAMS—barley, rice, dried apples and peaches;
RAISINS—currants, almonds, allspice and pickles;
TOBACCO AND SNUFF—Ginger, tartar, wax and candles;
POWDER—lead, vinegar, tinmans solder;
TARTANS AND PLAIDS—a good selection from Scotland, for ladies and gentlemen's dresses—all offered CHEAP for cash, by

BROWN & BARHAM.

Kanesville, Aug. 22, 1849.

FOR SALE.

A VALUABLE improvement situated in the North part of Fremont county, adjoining Mr. Maggards on the South, consisting of thirty-five acres under good fence, and in a good state of cultivation. Two good cabins and other valuable improvements. Plenty of good timber, and directly in the neighborhood of the rushes. Place formerly occupied by Charles Allen. Enquire at THIS OFFICE.

Kanesville, Aug. 22, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscribor wishes to inform the citizens of Kanesville and Pottawatamie County, that he has opened a shop in Kanesville where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

Shop opposite the Bluff House, Main Street.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Kanesville, Aug 22, 1849.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

NOTICE is hereby given, that a special meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Pottawatamie County, will be held at the County Commissioners Clerk's Office, in Kanesville, on Monday the 27th day of August, A. D. 1849.

T. BURDICK,
Aug. 22 1t. Clerk, Board of Co. Comm.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1849.

FOREIGN NEWS.

ARRIVAL OF THE EUROPA.

St. John, (N. B.,) Wednesday, 1 o'clock.

The Europa arrived at Halifax last evening. She brings 123 passengers.

England and Ireland.—The crops throughout England and Ireland are very promising. The potato disease has appeared in a number of places in Ireland. The Irish papers contain the most distressing accounts of intense suffering, particularly in the southwestern districts; the workhouses are filled to repletion and thousands of persons are actually without the means of keeping life and soul together.

France.—The Elections to fill thirty-five vacancies are going forward quietly, and the result favor the Moderate candidates. In Paris the ministerial candidates are all returned; in the provinces, Lamartine and a few other Socialists have secured their elections. On Thursday their was a rumor in Paris that a difference existed in the Cabinet—some said that Barrot and the Dufaure would retire. A doubt was expressed whether the English had, as previously reported, remonstrated with France on the subject of Rome. Mons. D'Huys has been despatched as Ambassador Extraordinary to the Court of St. James with apparent haste; the object is, as has been conjectured, to neutralise Lord Palmerston, decided or apprehended intervention in favor of the Romans. In reference to this subject, the London Sun says: "Lord Palmerston has demanded an explanation in regard to the intentions of France towards Rome—how long it is intended that the French army shall occupy Rome, or the Roman territory—whether it is resolved to support Pope Pius." The Legitimist and Jesuit journals are setting up a cry for the absolute and unconditional restoration of his Holiness, but the correspondent of the Times says, that no such folly is intended by the French Government.

Several committees of the Legislative Assembly suggest a prorogation from the 15th August to 1st October, without any detriment to the public business. A committee was appointed forthwith to consider the proposition. The difficulties which beset the French Government, particularly regarding the Italian question, occasion a great fluctuation in the funds. The Moniteur contains a dispatch from Gen. Oudinot, giving an elaborate description of the final assault made on the 20th June. The Romans fought desperately, leaving 400 killed and 125 prisoners. The French admit only 9 killed and 110 prisoners. In consequence of the surrender of Rome, the order received at Toulon for embarking reinforcements was countermanded, and a steamer, already at sea, will be ordered back.

The total number of deaths in Paris and suburbs, since the commencement of the epidemic, has been upwards of 20,000.

Italy.—The Roman Assembly, at its last sitting, adopted a constitution, and ordered it to be deposited in the capitol, as an expression of the unanimous wish of the people. It is to be engraved on marble. Funeral services have been ordered for those who fell defending the Republic. The full entrance of the French took place on the evening of the 3d. The Assembly recommended abstinence from revenge, as useless and unworthy the dignity of Republicans. Garabaldi succeeded in escaping from Rome with 10,000 men. He was loudly cheered as he passed through the city by the people. It is probable that he would fall in with a detachment of the forces of the Neapolitans or Spaniards, to whom he might give trouble. His intention is said to be to invade the Kingdom of Naples. A division of the French expedition has set out in pursuit of him. The Roman Government is composed of three individuals, two French and one Roman. The latest accounts state that the Roman municipality had proclaimed that no Convention had been made with the French. The Pontificial arms had been razed; the tri-color remained. Venice holds out against the Austrians, making a vigorous resistance; but they labor under severe inconveniences for want of provisions. It is said that Lord Palmerston has sent a dispatch to the Sardinian Government, expressing a wish that Sardinia would not negotiate a peace with Austria, England wishing to save Italy from its present abyss.

Denmark and the Dutchies.—A signal victory has been gained by the Danes over the Holsteins at North Rutland, and announced to the Minister of Copenhagen in the following telegraphic dispatch: "From Commander of Danish squadron—The commandant at Fredonia demanded transport vessels for upwards of 800 prisoners, 30 of whom are officers—expect they will arrive at Copenhagen to-morrow—the enemy totally defeated—our victorious army is in full pursuit of the enemy—all their battering guns were taken."

Austria and Hungary.—The Hungarians continue carrying on an unequal struggle with indomitable energy and courage. Advices from Vienna of the 7th have been received. The former statements of the victory won by Baron Jellachich, prove altogether unfounded. The Baron is still in the back countries. The Imperial troops on the right bank of the Danube, after leaving Raab, followed the Hungarians, and appear to have obtained some advantages at Acs, where, it is said, 500 Hungarians were made prisoners. The Austrian headquarters have been removed to Babylona, where the Emperor was.

Intelligence has been received by the Belgian journals, that on the 1st and 2d July, Bombashi, with a corps d'armes of reserve of veteran troops drawn from the army operating in different parts of Hungary, and numbering 30,000, had attacked the Russian army, of 110,000 men, commanded by Prince Paskevitch in defiles between Miscolti and Othen. The attack took place in flank, so as to drive the force commanded by the Prince, in person, into the marshes of Iss. No details of the battle had been received, but the Hungarians were seen marching the next day with 40,000 men en route to reinforce Georgey. Dembriski, with 55,000 men remains pursuing Paskevitch. Kossuth issued a proclamation on the 27th of June, at Breslau, calling on the people in the most emphatic language to rise in arms against the invaders. Kossuth left Pesth on the 2d, for Pzeghin. Iadstadt was fearfully bombarded no the 7th, but, according to the last accounts, held out. The garrison hoisted a black flag; token—"would rather die than surrender."

ANOTHER CONFLAGRATION AT ST. LOUIS—FIVE STEAMBOATS BURNED—TERRIBLE RIOT.

Another of those terrible steamboat conflagrations for which of late, that city is noted, took place about three o'clock on Sunday morning July 29th, the steamer Algoma was discovered to be on fire. The flames spread with fearful rapidity, and the wind being from the north east, soon carried them over to the Phœnix, the next boat below, and almost simultaneously with this the Mary, the next boat above the Algoma, took fire. The next boat above the Mary was the San Francisco, great exertions were made to run the boat out into the stream but proved unsuccessful. And then the Dubuque took fire and consumed all her upper works. The following is the value of boats and the insurance. Most of the boats had cargoes, the Mary's cargo was valued at $30,000

	VALUE BOATS.	INSURANCE.
Algoma,	$12,000	$6,000
San Francisco	18,000	14,000
Mary,	14,000	13,000
Dubuque,	10,000	8,000
Phœnix,	8,000	6,000

The books and papers of the Algoma, except those in the safe, which were afterwards recovered were destroyed. Two mails from the South Pass and Fort Laramie, brought down from Independence, were also in the office, but about a barrel and a half, being a part of the letters, was afterwards recovered in a burnt and wet condition. Two boxes of specie, containing $3,920, brought down by Mr. Smart, and consigned to P. Chouteau, Jr. & Co., were also in the office and have not yet been recovered. The officers and hands on board saved nothing of their clothing or property. The boat was consumed to the waters' edge, and the wreck sunk at the landing.

The loss in this last calamity, must not have been less than $150,000.

The Riot.

The St. Louis Union gives the following account of a riot which occurred while the fire was carrying on its work of destruction:

Shortly after daylight while the fire was raging, two dogs commenced fighting on the Levee, when a Mr. Kyler who happened to be passing at the time, and without knowing to whom the dogs belonged, stooped and patted one of them saying to him: "go it my little fellow." At the moment he engaged in this act, he was struck on the back with a piece of iron, then on the head, by one of the firemen, and before his friends could rescue him he was pretty severely handled. A police officer at once arrested the fireman, but his friends rescued him, and declared that he should not be taken to the calaboose.

By this time, a number of the friends of the man who had been struck, gathered around, and attempted to flog the fireman. Other members of the Franklin now rushed up, and drove this party into a groggery near by where the man who commenced the disturisance was severely beaten, until the police made their way in, rescued and took him to the calaboose. The Mayor, Lieut. Cozzens of the city guard, and Lieut. Molair, of the star police, being on the ground with a pretty strong police force, promptly restored order. When this was effected, the Mayor started to go to the Ferry Landing for the purpose of requesting one of the Ferry Boats to come up and tow out the San Francisco, and the Lieutenants and police scattered about among the crowd, firemen and spectators attending to their duty. This gave the beligerant parties an opportunity of coming together again, which they done some half hour after their separation. The difficulty now assumed the character of a regular riot—both parties commenced throwing stones. Directly a man issued from a house and fired a gun at the firemen; then those firemen who happened to have pistols with them, commenced firing in return, but probably at too great a distance to do any injury.

The two parties now greatly augmented; the firemen coming up from the other companies and their opponents being joined by their friends, who came to their aid. And now commenced one of the bloodiest and most awful scenes we ever witnessed. Men with their clothes besmeared with blood, their faces gashed and torn, haggard with fright, and red with gore, were to be seen running hither and thither, followed by a crowd of intoxicated and infuriated men, who, at almost every step hurled with fierce vengeance sharpe angular stones at some affrighted wretch, as he fled for his life; and not unfrequently some well aimed stone, would take effect upon the head of a poor fellow, who would fall as though shot dead.

At length the firemen succeeded in driving their opponents into two different houses. One at the corner of Morgan street and Commercial alley called the New Orleans House; the other into a house on the Levee, between Green and Morgan street, where most of them boarded, kept by Mr. John O'Brien. Both these houses were tippling shops. The firemen entered and riddled them, tearing and breaking their contents to pieces, and scattering their fragments in all directions.

At the back of the house on Morgan street, a most bloody scene was witnessed. The firemen surrounded the house, and their victims took refuge in the extreme back room; this they soon forced, and there a fight commenced that was truly awful to witness. Men were beaten until their heads were almost a jelly, and so bloody that they could scarcely have been recognized by their most intimate friends; but the firemen drove the other party from the house, and here ended the fighting. During all this time the Mayor was to be seen moving from point to point, trying to allay the storm, and restore order; and that truly meritorious and brave officer, Lieut. Cozzens, and his men, were making arrests, and seconding the efforts of the Mayor.

The Mayor called on the Greys to turn out and assist in suppressing the riot, but the few who responded to the call, came too late to render aid. Notwithstanding there were a great number of shots fired by both parties, during this riot, we believe no person was killed, or, with one exception, very seriously injured, though quite a number were slightly wounded.

Had the riot occurred at a later period of the day, when a much larger number of persons would have been present, or had muskets been placed in the hands of the firemen—which would have been the case later in the day, and which was the case at the close of the riot—we doubt not the whole band of those who opposed the firemen, would have been shot down or cut to pieces, to a man.

The Greys were called out by the Mayor on Sunday evening, and were on duty during the night.

On Sunday the Mayor sent to the Arsenal, and procured a quantity of ball cariritges, which were to have been used in case of a difficulty on Sunday night.

At a late hour Sunday night, the Missouri Fire Company repaired to the Levee with a cannon for the purpose of battering the houses down where the riot commenced, but the timely interference of the Mayor and police prevented.

William Mackenzie, lately surrendered to the Canadian authorities as a refugee from justice, under the Ashburton treaty, was not the person known in the annals of the troubles of 1837-8, (the name of whom is William Lyon Mackenzie,) but William Mackenzie, accused of forgery. W. L. M. is, we believe, a citizen of the United States.—[Wash. Rep

Calhoun's Speech.

Calhoun's speech occupies eight long columns of fine type in the Missouri Republican, it is too long for any body to read. We published his opening and closing remarks:

To the People of the Southern States:

Several reasons would have prevented me from taking any notice of Col. Benton, if his attack in his late speech, delivered in the Capitol of Missouri, had been directed exclusively against me. The line of conduct I have prescribed to myself, in reference to him, is to have as little to do with him as possible; and I accordingly never notice what comes from him, even in his character as Senator, when I can avoid doing so consistently with my public duties. I regard him in a light very different from what he seems to regard me, if we may judge from the frequency and violence of his attacks on me. He seems to think I stand in his way, and that I am ever engaged in some scheme to put him down. I, on the contrary, have never for a moment thought of raising him to the level of a competitor or rival, nor considered it of any importance to me whether he was put down or not. He must think he has something to gain by assailing me; I, on the contrary, feel I have nothing to gain by noticing him, and when compelled to do so, am satisfied if I escape without some loss of self-respect. I have another reason for not desiring to notice him on the present occasion. All his charges against me, with few and trifling exceptions, are but the reiterations of those often made heretofore by himself and others, and which I have met and successfully repelled in my place in the Senate. That they made no impression against me either in the Senate or community, there can be no better proof than is afforded in the labarious and tiresome effort he made in his present speech, to revive and give them circulation.

Under the influence of these reasons I would have remained silent, had I alone been concerned. But such is not the case. His blow is aimed much more at you than me. He strikes at me for the double purpose of weakning me in your confidence, and of striking at you and your cause through me, which he thinks can be done more effectually indirectly, than directly. Thus regarding his attack, I feel it to be a duty I owe to you and your cause to repel it. * * * *

To close he says:

I notice, in the progress of this communication, that Col. Benton evinced unusual solicitude to confound the Missouri compromise, and all other compromises of the kind, with the Wilmot proviso. I attribute it, in part, to a desire to screen himself from the odium of having voted for the Wilmot proviso, by confounding it with other measures that were far less offensive; but I said that there was another more powerful reason, which would be explained in the sequel. That reason was to shelter himself, if possible, against the charge of violating instructions, which he acknowledged to be above exception. If he could possibly establish, that the Missouri compromise and the Wilmot proviso were identical, as he would have his constituents believe, to obey the one would be to obey the other. But I have shown that was impossible, and thus he is left without the possibility of escaping the charge of disobeying them.

With a few additional remarks I shall close this long communication.

Col. Benton assigns devotion to the Union as his motive for taking the course he has; and, by implication, charges yours as being the side of disunion, and his and the abolitionists that of the union. In this he but follows the example of all who have betrayed you, or intend to betray you. It is so common that it has become notorious, that a strong profession of attachment to the Union, and condemnation of what is called the violence and ultraism of the south, accompanied by a volley of abuse to me, and the absence of all censure or condemnation of your assailants, are certain signs that he who utters them is ready to seize the first opportunity to desert your cause.

To these designs may be added another—an appeal to that portion of the Farewell Address of the Father of his Country, quoted by Col. Benton, under circumstances which makes its application apply to you and not to those who assail you. I respond to every word it contains with a hearty amen. It is indeed deeply to be deplored that parties should be designated by geographical position, and I regard whatever party or individual may have caused it, as deserving of public reprobation. But, to avoid geographical designation of parties, it is indispensable that each section of the Union should respect the rights of the others, and carefully abstain from violating them. Unless that is done, it will be impossible to avoid it; aggression will and ought to lead to resistance on the part of those whose rights are trampled upon and safety endangered. Sectional assault on one side, and sectional resistance on the other, cannot fail to lead to sectional designation of parties. The blame and responsibility rightfully falls on the section that assaults. Which that is, in the present case, admits of no doubt.

The South has been on the defensive throughout, and borne indignities and encroachments on its rights and safety with a patience unexampled, and yet she is basely charged with disunion, and the North lauded as its advocate. We must learn to disregard such unfounded and unjust charges, and manfully do our duty, to save both the Union and ourselves, if it can be done consistently with our equality and our safety; and if not, to save ourselves at all events. In doing so we should but follow the example of our Washington in the great struggle which severed the Union between the colonies and the mother country, He was ardently attached to that union, struggled hard to preserve it by resisting the encroachments of Parliment on the old established rights and privileges of the colonies, but the folly and infatuation of Parliment, and the vile machinations of tories among ourselves, rendered all his efforts and those of the patriots of his day unavailing. The world knows the consequence. My sincere prayer is that those who are encroaching on our rights—rights essential to our safety, and more solemnly guarantied than those of the colonies—may, as well for their sakes as ours, profit by the example.

JOHN C. CALHOUN.

Fort Hill, June 5, 1849.

Funeral of Mrs. Madison.

Yesterday the funeral of the lamented Mrs. Madison, so long one of the brightest ornaments of the society of Washington and of the nation, took place from St. John's church. From ten o'clock in the morning the body was exposed in the church, and was visited by numbers anxious to take a last look at her who had been so long the observed of all observers, and who had, after occupying as exalted a position as a woman may in America, showed in private life that she had cast dignity on, not received lustre from it. At the hour fixed for the funeral the church was thronged, the President and most of the Cabinet being present, with almost every one connected with the Government in an official capacity. The beautiful service of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. Messrs. Pine and French, after which a procession was formed according to the programme published yesterday, under the direction of the Marshal of the District and the Clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States. The cortege moved from St. John's to Pennsylvania avenue, the different bells of the city tolling the while, and then proceeded to the Congressional Cemetery, where the body was deposited for the present, until arrangements shall have been made for removing it to its final resting-place, the cemetery at Montpelier, Orange county, Virginia, the family seat where Mr. Madison was buried. Mrs. Madison was the last survivor of the immediate families of those of our Chief Magistrates who participated in the strife and councils of the Revolution.—[Requiescat.

At a recent meeting in New York, by sympathizers of all nations with the Hungarians, two flags were displayed, one designed to be sent to Kossuth, and another to the Red Republicans of France.

The Hungarian flag was tri-color—green, white, and crimson—with the Goddess of Liberty in the centre, and on one side the inscription "Washington, the Liberator of America;" on the other, "Kossuth, the Liberator of Hungary." At the foot were the words "Unity, Liberty, Glory." On the obverse side was the following: "The free Hungarians in America to the liberated Hungarians in their native land." The second flag was very handsome, though plain. The ground was scarlet, and the inscription in black letters. It contained the following words: "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite, Solidarite;" and in the centre, in large letters, the words "Union Socialiste."—[The Republic.

The gold medal ordered by Congress to be prepared for General Taylor, as a testimonial of his services at Buena Vista, we learn was received at Washington yesterday. The cost of the medal, which was struck at the United States mint in Philadelphia, was three thousand dollars.—[The Republic.

The proposition to attempt the naturalization of camels into the Western Prairie seems to meet with general favor. There is no reason why the plan should not succeed, as these animals, originally natives of the temperate regions between southern Siberia and the mountains of Thibet, have been diffused over the whole of Asia and Africa. They are yet used in Turkey, and during the Arab domination were common in Spain. There is said to be no difference of characteristics between the Tartar steppes and the Western deserts; at all events, the experiment is worth a trial.—[The Republic.

The St. Domingians have asked the aid of France against the Haytiens, and an agent of the French consul has gone to Paris to get assistance. The consul assures them that aid will be granted.

The New York Express relates the following melancholy cholera incident:

"Two young ladies, beautiful and accomplished—Maria Louisa and Virginia Star, one 19 and the other 21 years of age—were both engaged to be married on Monday last. On Saturday night previous, both went to Hoboken, and there imprudently partook of the ice-creams, straw berries, and other fruits. The hour appointed for the wedding found both of them in cold death, with their bridal garments for a winding sheet."

Money Buried.—Mr. David Dunlap recently died at Portland, Callaway county. Not being able to find his money, of which he was known to have a considerable sum, and suspected that it was in his pocket in his under-shirt, his friends several days after he was buried disinterred him and found, in his shirt $2,225. It is said he died of Cholera.

A Sign of the Times.—The Montreal Courier contains the prospectus of a new journal to be established in that city "intended to advocate the peaceable separation of Canada from Imperial connection." The tone of the prospectus is explicit and decided, yet temperate, and the paper itself will be in charge of a committee, in whose hands ample funds have been placed.

Destructive Fire—University Buildings Burned.—The Pittsburgh Commercial Journal gives the following particulars of a destructive fire in that city on the 7th:

Three or four frame buildings and one brick, formerly used as cabinet factory by the late firm of Kane & Roberts, took fire and were consumed. Finally, in spite of every effort, the University took fire, and that splendid structure is now a mass of unsightly and blackened ruins. So speedy was the work of destruction that it was found impossible to save the books and apparatus. The total loss may be estimated at $18,000, of which $13,000 were covered by insurance. Mr. Booth's loss is stated at 700,000 feet of boards, partially covered by an insurance of $4,500. The loss of the University is about $10,000, of which $8,500 were covered by insurance. The insurance losses are as follows: Western Insurance Office, Pittsburgh, $3,000; North American, Philadelphia, $8,500; Franklin, $1,500; total, $13,000. Of the insurance on the University, $500 were on the philosophical apparatus, and $8,000 on the building.

New York, July 28, 5 P. M.

The steamer Crescent City arrived last night, bringing one month's later news from California. The steamer Panama, from San Francisco, arrived at Panama on the 11th of June, with $500,000 in gold. Gold is still found in California in great quantities, but such persons only, as are accustomed to hard work, can stand the fatigue of digging it. The number of persons at the mines is estimated at twenty or thirty thousand, of whom about half are foreigners. Business at San Francisco was very dull; dry goods and provisions were selling below the original cost; lumber was still in great demand and selling for $350 per thousand.

Our Consul at Panama would not assume the responsibility of sending the California mails by the Crescent City.

The British frigate Constance was at San Blas, bound to Mazatlan, with $2,000,000 of specie.

The greatest efforts are making in California to organize a state government and demand admittance into the Union. A mass meeting for the purpose of considering the propriety of electing delegates to a convention for the formation of a government for California, took place on the 12th of June. The object of the meeting having been briefly stated by the President, Peter H. Burnett, Esq., addressed the people assembled and concluded by introducing the Hon. Thomas Butler King, of Georgia, who responded to the call with his accustomed eloquence and ability.

The Crescent City has over $200,000 in specie on board.

Princeton, N. J. Aug. 2.

The locomotive ran into the canal, one passenger car was crushed to pieces, 2 men were killed and 16 wounded, some mortally. Three of the injured persons will probably die in the course of an hour, the accident was occasioned by the switch being left off.

Lightning—Fire.—We learn from a gentleman, from Oregon, Holt county, that during the storm on Monday the 6th inst., a building in that town owned and occupied by Mr Dozier, as a dwelling, and by Mr. Ballard as a drug store, and post-office, was struck by lightning and burned, together with nearly all the contents. Mr. Dozier lost all his furniture, clothing and about three hundred dollars in money; his family, escaped with nothing but their night-clothes; his daughter was badly, but not dangerously burned. Mr. Ballard saved a very small part of his stock and all the post-office papers and letters. No insurance. Loss estimated at $3,000—St. Joseph Adventure.

Santa Anna's god-son has run off from Kingston, Jamacia, with a large sum of money and jewels belonging to the Mexican hero. The General, though famous for running, could not overtake him.

Verplank Van Antwerp, a politician of some celebrity in Iowa, has taken charge of the Editorial department of the Keokuk Dispatch.—[Quincy Whig.

Statue of Clay.—It will be remembered that soon after the defeat of Mr. Clay for the Presidency in 1844, the patriotic Ladies of Virginia resolved to honor the great Statesman with a full-length marble Statue, and raised a fund by voluntary contribution for that purpose. They also employed Joel T. Hart, a Kentuckian, and a young Sculptor of great promise, to do the Statue. We learn from the Cincinnati papers that Mr. H. has finished a plaster cast half length, which is now in that city, where it is much admired by Mr. Clay's friends as a spirited and faithful likeness, and that the artist contemplates departing in a few days for Italy, where he will reproduce the Statue in marble.—[N. Y. Tribune.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

JESSE HOLLADAY.
St. Joseph, Mo.,
Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY,
Attorney and Councillor at Law.
Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

BLUFF HOUSE.
Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.

Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.

Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness and Bridle Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

NEW STORE
AT COUNCIL POINT.

JAMES NEEDHAM has opened a store at Council Point, where can be found a choice assortment of Dry Goods and Groceries. Those wishing cheap and good goods would do well to favor him with a call.

Council Point, July 25, 1849—tf

S. F. POULTERER—General Engraver on wood, brass, copper and jewelry. Orders left at the Printing Office, or at the Union Hotel will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, July 25th, 1849—tf

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at July 25th. C. VOORHIS'.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEAS—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate artilce at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [j25] VOORHIS.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

STILL THEY COME.

NEW GOODS
AT NEEDHAM & FERGUSON'S
STORE,

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON has just received a choice selection of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARD-WARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

Mr. Ferguson residing most of his time in St. Louis, we are enabled to watch the market, and select the goods at the best possible advantage. We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident we have one of the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

WANTED—The subscriber wishes to purchase a good TURNING LATHE fitted up for turning and drilling iron and steel. Any person having such an one and wishes to dispose of it will please to leave information at this office or inform the subscriber eight miles South of Kanesville, on Musquito Creek.

JONATHAN BROWNING.

August 8th, 1849.

MACKEREL—Just opened, a choice article, by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

HERRING—A few boxes of good dried herring, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MOLASSES—Several bbls. good Sugar House Molasses, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PAINTS—White and colored paints, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TIN WARE—A variety, just rec'd by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SCYTHES, trace chains and cow bells, at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BONNETS—An assortment of Tuscan and Leghorn bonnets, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CURRANTS—A large lot of dried currants at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

RICE, Peaches and apples at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot, just rec'd at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HATS—Ill'k silk and Gen. Taylor hats—a variety, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Sattinetts, Tweeds, Jeans; &c., for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of Trading Point.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!
JOHN MARTIN,
North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets
St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds, liquors at all prices, crackers, &c. &c.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, May 16, 1849

Straw Bonnets and Gentlemens' Hats Cleaned and Pressed.

MRS. CROMBIE, (formerly of Boston,) most respectfully informs the Ladies of Kanesvillo and vicinity that she will attend to the above, and also to Dressmaking and Milinery, and she hopes by assiduous attention to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her. All orders left at Mr. Needhams store, will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, June 27, 1849.—1t

MRS. BOND, (Late from England,) respectfully informs the inhabitants of Kanesville, and vicinity, that she has commenced business as Vest Maker, near the Printing office; and she hopes by cheapness, punctuality and dispatch, to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her.

Children's clothes made, and gentleman's clothes repaired.

Kanesville, June 16th, 1849.

C. CARBRY,
St. Joseph, Missouri.

WHOLESALE and Retail Grocer, Dry Goods and Provision Merchant. Cash paid for Produce, and sold at the lowest price of the day.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.—6m

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any busines in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, May 16, 1849.—3m

WINDOW GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

QUIDO!!
S. M. BLAIR
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

POETRY.

For the Frontier Guardian.

The bright spot that Shines in the Home where I Dwell.

BY ELIZA TERRILL.

Widowed and childless 'mong strangers I wander,
Away from my friends and my kindred I dwell,
With none to caress me to sooth me or bless me,
If 'twere not for one bright spot my home were a hell.

I kneel me down lowly my tears are fast streaming,
I pour out my soul as my sorrows I tell,
And there comes a sweet spirit my sad heart consoling,
And that's the bright spot in the home where I dwell.

I once had a husband, he loved me sincerely,
My home was a heaven lit up with his smile,
once had a son and I cherished him dearly,
And they were the bright spot that lightened my toil.

But the storm has swept o'er me in wild devastation,
The mil-dew and blight on my bright hopes have fell,
To live for the future is all that is left me;
That's the bright spot in the home where I dwell.

Kanesville, July 21, 1849.

Thank God for Summer.

BY ELIZA COOK.

I loved the Winter once with all my soul,
And longed for snow-storms, hail, and mantled skies;
And sang their praises in as gay a troll
As Troubadors have poured to Beauty's eyes.

I deemed the hard, black frost a pleasant thing,
For logs blazed high, and horses' hoofs rang out;
And wild birds came with tune and gentle wing
To eat the bread my young hand flung about.

But I have walked into the world since then,
And seen the bitter work that cold can do—
Where the grim Ice-King levels babes and men
With bloodless spear, that pierces through and through.

I know now, there are those who sink and lie
Upon a stone bed at the dead of night,
I know the roofless and unfed must die,
When even lips at Plenty's Feast turn white.

And now whene'er I hear the cuckoo's song
In budding wood, I bless the joyous comer;
While my heart runs a cadence in a throng
Of hopeful notes, that say—"Thank God for Summer."

I've learnt that sunshine bringeth more than flowers,
And fruits, and forest leaves to cheer the earth;
For I have seen sad spirits, like dark bowers,
Light up beneath it with a grateful mirth.

The aged limbs that quiver in their task
Of dragging life on, when the north wind goads—
Taste once again contentment, as they bask
In the straight beams that warm their church-yard road.

And Childhood—poor, pinched Childhood—half forgets,
The starving pittance of our cottage homes,
When he can leave the hearth, and chase the nets
Of gossamer that cross him as he roams.

The moping idiot seemeth less distraught
When he can sit upon the grass all day,
And laugh and clutch the blades as though he thought
The yellow sun-rays challenged him to play.

Ah! dearly now I hail the nightingale,
And greet the bee—the merry-going hummer—
And when the lilies peep so sweet and pale,
I kiss their cheeks, and say—"Thank God for Summer."

Feet that limp, blue and bleeding, as they go
For dainty cresses in December's dawn,
Can wade and dabble in the brooklet's flow,
And woo the gurgles on a July morn.

The tired pilgrim, who would shrink with dread
If Winter's drowsy torpor lulled his brain,
Is free to choose his mossy Summer bed.
And sleep his hour or two in some green lane.

Oh! Ice-toothed King I loved you once—but now
I never see you come without a pang
Of hopeless pity shadowing my brow,
To think how naked flesh must feel your fang.

My eyes watch now to see the elms unfold,
And my ears listen to the callow rook,
I hunt the palm-trees for their first rich gold,
And pry for violets in the southern nook.

And when fair Flora sends the butterfly
Painted and spangled, as her herald mummer;
"Now for warm holidays," my heart will cry,
"The poor will suffer less!—Thank God for Summer!"

MISCELLANY.

From the New York Tribune.

The Czar's Allocution.

The readers of the last Foreign News will have observed that the Autocrat Nicholas, following the bad example set him by some prelates, has found time to turn aside from his legitimate duties, and devote his energies to the diffusion of Christian Faith, which he finds lamentably deficient—out of his own dominions. The account we publish says that the Czar, having assembled the Catholic Bishops of Russia and Russian Poland at St. Petersburg, made them the following speech:

"I do not wish for a new religion; a new sort of Catholic creed has been invented abroad, and I desire that it may not be introduced into my empire, because these innovators are the worst agitators, and without faith it is impossible that anything can subsist. The West at this moment offers a fair specimen of what men come to if they have no faith—how great are the follies and absurdities which they commit! Look at Rome; I predicted all that would happen there. Faith has entirely disappeared in the West. The manner in which the Pope has been treated is a plain proof the true faith exists in Russia alone, and I hope (making the sign of the cross) that this holy faith may be maintained here—I told the late Pope Gregory XVI. things which he had never heard from anybody else. The present Pope is a good man, his intentions are excellent, but his principles savor too much of the spirit of the age. The King of Naples is a good Catholic; he has been calumniated to the Pope, and now the Pope is compelled to have recourse to him."

Bishop Hollowinski replied—"Your Majesty, the Holy Father was obliged to yield to circumstances and the spirit of the age."

The Emperor.—"Very possibly; but all these disorders arise from want of faith. I am not a fanatic, but I have firm faith. In the West they have run to two extremes—fanaticism and impiety." Addressing the Polish Bishops, the Czar continued—"You are the near neighbors of these misguided men; let your example be their guide. If you encounter obstacles, address yourselves to me. I will employ all my power to stem the torrent of impiety and revolt, which is spreading more and more, and threatens even to penetrate even into my dominions. A revolutionary spirit is the result of impiety. In the West there is no longer any religious faith, and the evil will increase still more." Addressing himself to the Metropolitan Bishops, and kissing his hand, the Czar concluded by saying—"We have always understood each other, and I trust that it will always continue so."

—We suspect the Autocrat is not so far wrong as many at the first blush may be inclined to pronounce him—that there is a good deal less faith in Western Europe than the Czar and his 'order' would naturally consider wholesome. There was a time when 'the Western Nations' had strong faith in the early French Revolution and its Heir Napoleon; but 'the spoiled child of Fortune' proved as selfish and ignoble a tyrant as any of the base herd so kings into which he so perfidiously crawled. Next the oppressed, indignant nations rallied as one man to dethrone the usurper, incited by solemn promises from the Allied Kings of Constitutions and Liberties as a recompense for their devotion and bravery. The 'legitimates' proved as faithless as the usurper; they forgot their promises as soon as the danger had been averted, and punished with dungeons and death all who dared demand the Freedom they had promised. The Czar alone kept clear of perfidity—his subjects had asked nothing, and of course he had promised them nothing. Hence, you see, they alone have still lots of faith.

HUNGARY has completed three full centuries of abounding Faith. Every few years brought a crisis of Kingly necessity and a new flood of promises of amendment and respect for Popular Rights and Liberties—to be violated and scouted the moment it could be done with impunity. At length, wearied out with Imperial perfidities, leading at last to general rapine, anarchy and murder, the Hungarians here resolved to trust no more in Kingly lies or Courtly fraugs, but in their own hearts and arms. —'Dreadful decline of faith!' says in substance the Autocrat; 'Marshal Paskewitch! forward with two hundred thousand of my soldiers and six or seven hundred cannon! Let us see you inspire the infidel Hungarians with the Orthodox Faith!"

GERMANY heaves and surges like an ocean in a storm; her people have trusted kingcraft to the bitter end, and these are its results: Two Hundred Millions of Taxes per annum for the support of thirty or forty royal families, while skillful workmen toil in manufactories fourteen hours per day for seventy-two cents per week, and keenly struggle to find employment at such starving rates. The experiment of famishing Thirty Millions of people by misgovernment to the point just outside starvaton, and pampering useless dignitaries with the great bulk of their just earnings, has been carried in parts of Germany to high perfection. It could hardly go farther without reaching the climax attained by the wiseacre who undertook to teach his horse to live on nothing, and would have succeeded, only "just as he got him almost learned to live without eating, the ——— fool died." The Germans, not being quite so docile, are making up their minds to live, and to that end would dispense with flocks of vultures which have so long eaten out their substance. They no longer believe it a Divine Ordinance that Millions shall perish in order that thousands should live in luxurious idleness. Many say, "If we must die, we will die not as dogs, but as men"—and they appeal against the injustice to the strength in their arms, and the courage in their hearts. "'All these disorders arise from want of faith.' Forward, my Prince of Prussia! and silence their Socialist blasphemy with volleys of grape and musketry! Give the democratic infidels a taste of the true Aristocratic Faith!"

—And ITALY, too—("thou, Brutus?")—grows restiff under Imperial and Sacerdotal domination! Her millions of beggars, wandering aimless in their rags between the most fertil earth and the balmiest sky that earth was ever blessed with, cease to contemplate adoringly the ancient mysteries while they cogitate on this the darkest mystery of all—that tyrants and butchers should be eulogised in high quarters as exemplary Christians, while the People they have so long enslaved and starved are execrated for not obeying with due humility and meek submission—that Kings and nobles are allowed from year to year to eat out the substance of their subjects in lavish luxury and wasteful ostentation without incurring a word of clerical rebuke or remonstrance, while every effort of those people to secure a more equal and just distribution of the comforts of life is denounced in pulpit harangues and Pontificial Allocutions as impelled by scepticism and devilism. Nay: even the Pope himself does not escape the Autocratic censure—"He is a good man, his intentions are excellent, but his principles savor too much of the spirit of the age." Spare, O spare the penitent, stern censor! and let present devotion atone for past indiscretions! Forward there, Saint Radetsky and Legate Oudinot! and let the crumbling towers of Venice, the shattered fanes and shrines of Rome, bear witness to your loyal zeal against "the two extremes, fanaticism and impiety!"

Ho, trusty Hetman of the Cossacks! muster your gaunt, ferocious myrmidons for a general foray against the seats of Civilization, the homes of Art, the vantage-grounds of Progress, in the Old World! The Toiling Millions believe less blindly than they did, for they think more. They begin to talk of their Right to Live on earth, not as beggars or spaniels, but as men! Haggard Aristocracy stands aghast at the murmuring, and startled Royalty sends its emissaries creeping to the footstool of the Autocrat for instant aid. Spur fiercely, old Hetman! gallop fast and untiringly, ye blind, obedient devastators! for if your myriad hoofs do not ring speedily on the Rhine as well as the Danube, the Great Revolution cannot be subverted or stayed! Ah! if there were no Russia, with its Sixty Millions of boors and slaves, blindly obeying the nod of their despot, what would become of human docility and King-protected Faith?

Grammer Lessons at Home, with practical illustrations by a spoiled child. (At supper.)

Old Man.—Tom, what did you say last night about this yearth?

Tom.—Why? it went buzzing around like the nation, and warn't it for the centre fry pun [centripital] traction, it would fly to yattom.—[Breaks a mug and plate in explaining.]

Old Lady.—I lay your head will tract my fist directly.

Tom.—Oh, that was the traction of gravey-tater-ation (gravitation) operating upon de mug which caused it to attack the plate in hostile manner.

Old Man.—Now, parse plate for me, Tommy.

Tom.—Plate is a neuter noun, third person, broken number, nominative case shivered—do you understand?

Old Lady.—Now parse hostile manner for me, you little brat.

Tom.—Hostile manner is a compound noun, first person, devil of a gender, and governs the verb (seeing the coffee pot coming at his head he gets up and puts for safety.)

When Mrs. Partington got home from the concert, the question was eagerly asked how she liked it—"Oh, it was delightful!" said she, "it was a full cord, good measure, of sweet sounds, and the gentleman on the trumpet did run up the rheumatic scale most beautifully. Why the music of the old Cornute Band wasn't no comparison to it." She didn't like some of the foreign singing exactly, and wondered why they would sing things that nobody could understand, and went into a dissertation on singing English words to music—expressing an opinion that the word should be as much regarded as the note.

SANITARY MEASURES.—A child of highly educated parents went into a drug-store, the other day, and said:

"What is the price of your sanitary measures, sir? Mamma wants to take some sulphur and lasses, and she aint got nothing to measure it in."

Of the 15,000,000 persons who inhabit Great Britain, there are about 108,000 who keep men servants, 152,000, who pay duty for horses, 26,000 who possess the luxury of a four-wheeled carriage.

The editor of the Philadelphia North American and United States Gazette has written the following long editorial in regard to the "Mormons at the Salt Lake." The editor is very fearful that the Mormons will form a hostile colony against the United States which if not attended to immediately, will overthrow the government of this country. He asks the question "whether that people is to be allowed to grow up with the feelings of Americans or those of enemies and foreigners?" We answer, so far as American citizens are disposed to sustain the constitution and laws of the country—the Mormons are with them. So far as Americans adhere to justice and equal rights—they are with them. So far as American citizens will sustain all, in the, privilege of worshipping God according to the dictates of their consciences—the Mormons are with them. So Mr. Guzette, there is not so much cause of alarm as you apprehend. No! you need not fear that they will "override all the necessities and obligations of equal republican institutions." The Mormon people can be led and governed by a silkon thread if they believe a benevolent hand has hold of it. The hand of overbearance, tyranny and oppression can trouble, distress, and kill them; but it can never inspire them with a love or a zeal to support that hand. In most cases, the Mormon religion takes away the fear of death, and a little liberalty extended towards them would greatly tend to oil the wheels of friendship and effectually prevent the Mormon carr from squealing rebellion or nullification. The love of their religion excluding fear from their hearts, and being assured of the kind disposition of the Government towards them, they are ready to face any danger for their country's sake The Editor of the Gazette will find it difficult to persuade any other people to settle in that country while the re are yet so many other sections of the country so much more fertile and productive. None but the Mormons, that have been forced into an acquaintance with new countries, compelled to seek an assylum in the lonely retreats of the valleys of the mountains, accustomed to fatigue, hardship and privation, will desire to make that county their home.

The Mormons at the Salt Lake.

Recent advices from the Far West inform us that the Mormons, who have found their promised land and laid the corner-stone of their second temple on the banks of the Timpanozoo, or the Great Salt Lake, are already preparing to send a delegate to Washington, and to ask of Congress the advantages of a regular Territorial government.

This is a circumstance of interest in itself, as showing the extraordinary rapidity with which in American hands and under the tramp of American feet, the desert suddenly blossoms into life and cultivation; but the fact has an additional and very grave importance, springing from the character of the settlers, and of the country in which they have founded their colony, which ought to give it the attention and careful consideration of the national authorities.

We know as yet but very little as to the real state of things at the Salt Lake, the extent and progress of the settlements, and the number of Mormons now seated there. We are merely aware that they have been perfectly successful in establishing their colony; that their lands are fertile and extensive, capable of supporting a considerable population; that their religious policy is one of concentration, aiming to bring all their people together into one chosen home; that they are already numerous enough to feel the want of a Territorial organization; and that is within their power,—within a year or two, perhaps, if they choose,—to bring together such a population as will entitle them to demand admission into the Union as an independent, sovereign State.

In our view of the case, this is a consummation more to wished than dreaded. We are desirous that the Mormons should enjoy all the benefits and feel all the restraints of Territorial government as soon and as effectually as possible. The bridle should be upon the neck of the colt, that the grown steed may be accustomed to it. Considering the somewhat Ishmaelitish character of the Mormons—fanatical and persecuted zealots, with whom it is a point of faith to shun and repel, as it is a point of feeling to hate, the world—and the nature and position of the country they have seized upon, to make of it their Holy Land, it is clearly the interest, as it ought to be the duty, of the National Government, to extend the laws and authority of the United States over them without delay,—to accustom them, from the first, to restraint and obedience,—and, above all, to prevent their growing up in a state of quasi independence, natural to their remote and wild situation, which might be productive of some serious difficulties, if not actual calamities, hereafter.

Between the 102 deg. of west longitude, where the wild sage land, or proper prairie desert begins, to the Sierra Nevada, the western limit of the great Shoshoco Desert, or Great Basin, as it is now properly called, is a distance of nineteen degrees of longitude, or about 1000 miles. The Salt Lake is situated nine degrees, or 475 miles east of the fertile regions of the Mississippi Valley; or nearly midway between the two portions of the republic. It forms the Great Oasis of the western desert; and the various smaller oases, the different habitable regions of mountain land around it, are so placed as to be dominated by it. In fact, this Valley of the Salt Lake, besides commanding the roads to Oregon and California, may be said to command nearly the whole country West of the Mississippi Valley. It cuts the continent in twain, and separates from the Union the growing States beyond the Sierra, on the borders of the Pacific. It forms the nucleus of an Alpine state, which, once peopled with corageous rebels, might maintain its independence against the Federal Government, or the world, impregnable within its mountain barriers, behind the immense glacis of prairie desert. Such a State would naturally, from its military position, extend its influence eastward, over the Three Parks, and down, in fact, to Forts Laramie and St. Vrain and the regions at the foot of the mountains,—northward, over all the glens of the Wind River Mountains ahd the upper valleys of Lewis's River,—westward, over the entire Basin, with its various known and unknown reclaimable nooks,—and southward, to the head waters of the Colorado and Rio Grande, the fertile lands of the Moquis and Zunis, and, in fact, all the Northern portions of New Mexico.

Such a hostile state must, of course, never be allowed to grow up in that wild but all important mountain country. There must be a State of the Union there, filled with patriotic and zealous citizens with no thoughts or feelings but those of Americans. The Mormon settlement should, therefore, be fostered and cared for in every proper way by Government and Congress; which should expect the rapid progress of its Territorial, or even State existence; and so prepare, in view of both, the whole scheme of State and Territorial division of the continent. The Mormon colony can never be brought under the jurisdiction of Calfornia, Oregon, or New Mexico. Nature forbids it, and the attempt to disregard the natural law can only lead to, and indeed compel mischief. A Salt Lake State, which, under mismanagement by Government and Congress, might be made a barrier and cause an eternal separation between the Pacific States and those of the Mississippi Valley, may be also made, and is necessary as, a bond of connexion, a firm link of interest and amity, between the dissevered portions. It is now certain that a people—the Mormons, too—will grow up in that commanding region in the heart of the Rocky Mountains. The question is whether that people is to be allowed to grow up with the feelings of Americans, or those of enemies and foreigners.

There is another circumstance connected with the subject of this Mormon settlement, to which we have not alluded, although it is worthy of serious consideration. Whatever the wishes, the objects, the supposed interests even of this people, who have been the occasion of quarrels, leading to persecutions, in other places, it can scarcely be deemed politic to suffer this State to grow up as a Mormon one merely, with a Mormon constitution and laws, a Mormon government, and Mormon fanaticism, as a vital principle, overriding all the necessities and obligations of equal republican institutions. Fanaticism should be weakened by dillution. The intersets of the country require that the government should encourage emigration of all kinds into the Salt Lake Valley as actively and rapidly as possible, so as to prevent the overwhelming preponderance of the one dangerous sect, and the unlimited increase of a dangerous superstition.

An Irish Letter.

Tallymucclescrag, Parish of Ballyragget,
Near Ballyslachguthey, Jan. 22d, 1839.

MY DEAR NEPHEW:—I hav'nt cent you a letter since the last time I wrote to you, because we have moved from our former place of living, and did'nt know where a letter would find you; but I now wid pleasure take up my pin to inform you of the death of your own livin' uncle Kilpatrick, who died very suddenly last week after a lingering illness of six months. The poor man was in violent convulsions the whole time of his sickness, lying perfectly quiet and spacheless, all the while talking incoherently and crying for wather. I had no opportunity of informing you of his death sooner, excipt I wrote you by the last post, which wint off two days before he died and thin you'd had the postage to pay.

I am at a lost to tell you what his death was ackasioned at, but I fear that it was his last illness, for he was never well tin days together durin' the whole time of his confinement, and I believe his death was occasioned by his atin' too much of rabbit stuffed with gravy and pays, or pays and gravy stuffed with rabbits, I can't tell which, but be that as it will, as soon as he brathed his last the doctor gave up all hopes of his recovery. I need not tell you anything about his age, for you well know that in March nixt he would have been twenty-five years owld lackin' tin months, and had he lived till that time he would thin have been six months dead. His property now derolves to his nixt heirs, who all died some time ago; so that I expect it will be divided betwane us, and you know his property was very consitherable, for he had a fine estate which was sowld to pay his dibts and the remainder lost in a horse-race; but it was the opinion of every body at the time, he would have won the race if the horse he run against hadn't been too fast for him. I niver saw a man, and the docthors all say so, observed directions and tuck medicine better than he did. He said he would as lave take bitther as swate, if it only had the same taste, and ipicackiana as whisky punch, if it would only put him in the same humor for fighting.

Your own lovin' Uncle,
SHANE O'FLATHERTY.

[Phil. Dispatch.

SPECULATIONS IN CALIFORNIA.—There are a good many excellent stories in circulation brought over from California by the passengers on the Crescent City, illustrative of the very peculiar state of affairs in California. One of the best we have heard, is as follows:

A naval officer had just landed on the wharf at San Francisco, and seeing a ragged, dirty looking fellow lounging around, hailed him, saying:

"Halloo, my good fellow if you'll lay a hand, and take this trunk to the hotel, I'll give you two dollars."

'Two h—ls," exclaimed the indignant lounger, "why stranger, I'll give you an ounce of gold to carry it up yourself."

"Agreed," replied the officer, who' shouldering his own heavy trunk, took it to the hotel, followed closely by his ragged employer, who promptly handed over to him the ounce of gold, thus enabling the officer to pocket sixteen dollars very easily.

The best speculation, however, of which we have heard, was that of a loafer, who stole a hen, and invited four returned miners to dine upon her, at the reasonable rate of five dollars each. In preparing the hen for cooking, our loafer found in her craw two ounces of gold. After partaking freely of the hen, the loafer found the following to be the profits of the transaction:

For four guests at $5 each,	$20
For two ounces of gold, found in hen's craw,	32
Total profits on hen,	$52

IMMIGRANTS AT BOSTON.—The traveller has a Statement of immigrants who have arrived at that port from Europe within the last quarter from April 1 to July 1. The whole number of vessels conveying them was 407—of immigrants, 14,334. Of this number, 6,670 were from England, principally Irish; 3,327 from Ireland direct; and 3000 more from British provinces. Nearly 8,000 paid head money.

The Utica Observer calls Fitz H. Warren, "General Taylor's journeyman butcher."

From the bleating among the goats, he occasions, we presume.

A Gentle Whisper to the Wife.

"The head of the woman is the man."

1. Let your husband be your dear friend the dearest.

2. Beware of the first dispute—many a noble ship has been lost by a single leak. Is there a spark of discontent or petulence rising? Stop, stop, retire to your closet. "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth."

3. Make the home of your companion pleasant—delightful. Is he absent? greet his return with a sweet smile.

4. Delicacy and modest are the highest ornaments, the brightest jewels; keep them polished highly. Modesty, emanating from a sanctified heart, is sweeter far than the perfumes of Arabia.

5. Let your husband think, that you think him to be a good husband. This is half the battle in making it a reality.

6. Is your husband in trouble, bowed down? pour in the healing balm of consolation, be cheerful and good humored;—these graces will be to him, like the sun, bursting from a dark, wintry cloud!

7. Be neat, very neat, in your dress—personal appearance and culinary pursuits. Nothing so surely and speedily sinks the wife, in the estimation of her husband, as neglect of personal neatness. If a woman will be loose, slack, or go slip-shod, let it be any where rather than in the presence of her husband.

8. In your costume, consult the taste of your husband. Dress neatly, plainly, modestly, simply. Away with bustles, gewgaws, and butterflies—away with them.

N. B. Many of the above whisperings are equally applicable to the husband, for whom they are also intended—"And they two became one flesh."

The Seamstress.

BY J. R. LOWELL.

Hark, the rustle of the dress,
Stiff with lavish costliness;
Here comes one whose cheeks would flush
But to have her garments brush
'Gainst the girl whose fingers thin
Wove the weary broidery in;
And in midnights chill and murk,
Stitched her life into the work—
Bending backward from her toil,
Lest the tears her silk might soil;
Shaping from her bitter thought
Heart's-ease and forget-me-not;
Satirizing her despair
With the emblems woven there!

DEFINITION OF A DRUNKARD.—A drunkard is the annoyance of modesty, trouble of civility, the spoil of wealth, the destruction of reason. He is the beggar's companion; the constable's trouble. He is his wife's woe; his children's sorrow; his neighbor's scoff; his own shame. In fine, a spirit of sleep; a picture of a beast; a monster of a man.

EXCELLENT ADVICE.—We find the following in an exchange—Don't wear your pantaloon so tight that you can't kneel down to say your prayers.

NEWSPAPERS.—Every subscriber thinks the paper is printed for his special benefit, and if there is nothing in it that suits him, it must be stopped—it is good for nothing. Some people look over the deaths and marriages, and actually complain of the editor if but few persons in the vicinity have been so fortunate as to get married the previous week, or so unfortunate as to die! An editor should have such things in his paper, whether they occur or not. Just as many subscribers as an editor may have, so many different tastes has he to consult.—One wants stories and poetry; another abhors all this. The politician wants nothing but politics. One must have something smart; another something sound. One likes anecdotes, fun and frolic, and the next door neighbor wonders that a man of sense will put such stuff in a paper. We only wish that every man, woman, and child who reads a paper, were compelled one single month to edit one, they would find that it is not quite so easy a matter as they at first supposed it to be.

It Won't Do.

It won't do for a man when a horse kicks him, to kick back in return.

It won't do to take hold of a hair trigger pistol during a fit of blues.

It won't do for a politician to imagine himself elected to the gubernatorial chair, while "the back counties remain to be heard from."

It won't do to crack jokes on old maids, in the presence of unmarried ladies, who have passed the age of forty.

It won't do for a chap to imagine a girl is indifferent to him, because she studiously avoids him in company.

It won't do to plunge into a law-suit, replying wholly on the justice of your cause; and not equipped beforehand with a brimming purse.

It won't do to be desperately enamored of a pretty face, until you have seen it at the breakfast table.

It won't do for a man to bump his head against a stone post, unless he conscientiously believes that his head is the hardest.

It won't do to imagine a Legislature, fed at the public crib, will sit but six weeks, when two thirds of the members have not the capacity to earn a decent living at home.

It won't do for a man to fancy a lady is in love with him, because she treats him civilly, or that she has virtually engaged herself to him because she has always endured his company.

It won't do to be so devoted to a tender-hearted wife, as to comply implicitly with her request when she asks you, "now tumble over the cradle, and break your neck, my dear—won't you?"

An Industrial Congress is now in session in Cincinnati, and the peculiar object of it appears to be to discuss all sorts of reform, possible and impossible. Anti-Slavery, Temperance, Land Reform, the rights of Labor, etc., are among the subjects discussed; but how some of them bear on the topic of industry it will puzzle some brains to ascertain.

IS THERE A GOD?—The eccentric John Randolph once ascended a lofty point of the Blue Ridge, to see the sun rise. The scene was one of great sublimity, and it overwhelmed him with the sense of a present Deity. "Jack," said Randolph to the servant who accompanied him, "If any body hereafter says there is no God, tell him he lies."

ADVERTISEMENTS.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds, Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, July 11th, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFIED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the man opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Jeosph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

NEW GOODS AT LINDEN, MISSOURI,

THE undersigned has just received per steamer "Mustang," 65 tons assorted merchandise—which makes his stock of goods the largest and most complete, ever brought to this country—among which may be found every description of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Iron, Queensware, Hardware and Cutlery, Saddlery, Boots and Shoes, Sole and Upper Leather, Calf Skins, Tin Ware, Stone Ware, Medicines and Dye Stuffs, Ready Made Clothing,

And every thing else usually kept in stores in this country. My terms are CASH or TRADE in hand. And I pledge myself to sell every description of goods as low as they can be bought in St. Joseph or elsewhere in the Platte purchase.

Call at the sign of the CHEAP CASH STORE
S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June, 1839.—3m*

60 sacks best Rio coffee;
6000 lbs N. O. Sugar;
6 bbls S. H. molasses;
3 " vinegar;
100 " Cinn. whisky;
50 " Kanawha salt;
110 sks G. A. salt;
80 bush dried apples;
20 bxs soap;
10 " raisins;
10 " candies;
10 " G. P. and Imperial teas;
16 " tobacco;
10 kegs powder;
15 " nails;
600 lbs cotton batting;
3 coils manilla rope;
1 box clothes pins;
1 cask log chains;
10 Jewett plows;
12 grindestones, &c.

FOR SALE AT LINDEN, Mo.
S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June 27, 1849—3m*

LAND WARRANTS WANTED—20 Land Warrants wanted—for which I will pay the highest price in Cash or Goods.

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June 27, 1849.—3m*

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;
" Light do
" Black Kid Slippers;
" Fancy do do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;
" do do Buskins;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;
" do Gaiter Boots;
" do Grane do;
" half Gaiters;
" do Cloth buskins;
" do Monroe boots;
Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" pump-sole do;
" gaiter do;
" Monroe slippers;
Mrs. calf p'g'd Brogans
" do Pumps
" seal do;
" kip do;
Boys' calf Brogans;
" kip do
" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the BIG BOOT, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 5, 1849. VOLUME I.---NUMBER 16.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

Elder ISAAC BULLOCK, is our authorized traveling Agent throughout the United States.
Dr. JOHN M. BERNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnat Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
DAVID JEW, Mackinaw, Tazwell county Illinois.
BENJ. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

From the Millennial Star.

Reply to a Pamphlet Printed at Glasgow, with the Approbation of Clergymen of Different Denominations, entitled "REMARKS ON MORMONISM."

BY ORSON PRATT, OF ENGLAND.

(Continued from our last.)

We will now proceed to quote a few more passages in relation to Priests in the latter times. (Isaiah lxi, 4, 5, 6.) "And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations." "And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and the sons of the alien shall be your ploughmen and your vine-dressers. But ye shall be named the Priests of the Lord. Men shall call you the Ministers of our God: and, ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory shall ye boast yourselves."

(Jeremiah xxxi. 8, 12, 13, and 14.) "Behold, I will bring them from the North country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child, and her that travaileth with child together; a great company shall return thither." * * * "Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow together to the goodness of the Lord, for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flock and of the herd: and their soul shall be as a watered garden: AND THEY SHALL NOT SORROW ANY MORE AT ALL. Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together; for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow. And I will satiate the soul of the PRIESTS with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the Lord." Thus it may be seen, after Israel has returned and repaired "the desolations of many generations," and their sorrow has forever ceased, that still they have "PRIESTS" among them. The prophet Malachi (chapter iii, 1—4,) when beholding the glory of the Lord, and the majesty of his second advent, when he should "suddenly come to his temple," explains "But who may abide the day of his coming! and who shall stand when he appeareth! for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap. And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of LEVI, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old and as in former years."

At the second advent of our Savior, the "sons of LEVI" will be purified and purged as gold and silver. At the first advent, the "sons of LEVI" rejected the Messiah, and their offerings were no longer accepted; but when he "suddenly comes to his temple," then shall that priesthood offer pleasant offerings unto the Lord in righteousness, as in the days of old. For further testimony concerning the existence of the Levitical priesthood and their ordinations in the temple in the latter times, see Jeremiah xxxiii from the 6th to the 26th verses, also Ezekiel xx, from the 33d to the 45th—Ezekiel from the beginning of the xl to the end of the xlviii chapter—Zechariah xiv—Joel ii.

The establishment of the Aaronic priesthood again on the earth, preparatory to the second coming of our Lord, is an event so clearly predicted in the scriptures that had Mr. Joseph Smith failed to incorporate that priesthood with the Melchizedec in his organization of the Latter-day church, it would at once have proved him an impostor. But, sir, the very fact that Mr. Smith has not followed the false traditions of the religious world, but has, in direct oppsition to vast variety of erroneous creeds and doctrines with which he was surrounded, restored the Aaronic and Melchizedec priesthoods, shows that he was endowed with a wisdom far superior to that of the millions of false teachers who have disgraced the name of Christianity during the last seventeen hundred years. The prophets have clearly predicted the existence of the Aaronic Priesthood, at the times of the restitution of Israel and the Second Advent. The Lord, by Mr. Smith, has fulfilled the prediction, and established its existence among men. This, then, is one more testimony in favor of Joseph Smith's divine mission.

Mr. Paton next quotes a passage from a revelation in the Book of Covenants which reads thus—"Verily, verily, I say unto you, they who believe not on your words, and are not baptized by water in my name, for the remission of their sins, that they may receive the Holy Ghost, shall be damned, and shall not come into my Father's kingdom, where my Father and I am." Mr. Paton considers this very "dogmatic," presumptuous," and "at variance with the teaching of scripture." But we ask Mr. Paton and all our readers to compare the above passage with Jesus's teachings to his apostles (Mathew x, 14, 15,) "And whosoever shall not RECEIVE YOU, nor hear your WORDS, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet. Verily I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgement than for that city."

On the 10th page Mr. Paton supposes that there is "no infallible standard" but the scriptures. Now nothing can be more absurd than such an idea. Every truth is an infallible standard, whether it is contained in the bible or in any other book. Wherever truth is found, or by whatever process it is obtained, it is infallible in its nature and becomes a standard of comparison for certain other truths which are closely connected with it; hence by the aid of truths already known, other truths are brought to light, which, in their turn also become standards of comparison. Thousands of truths in modern times have been discovered by the aid of reason and observation, which can never be proved true nor false by the scriptures alone. Newton did not establish the truth of his doctrine of universal gravitation by the scriptures—Mr. Paton's only "infallible standard;" neither did he demonstrate his doctrine of fluxions by the scriptures; neither did Kelper demonstrate his eliptical theory of the planetary orbits by the scriptures. Mr. Paton's only infallible standard never would have detected the heresy of the Ptolemaic system of the universe, which was so successfully overturned by Copernicus and his followers. If there is no infallible standard but the bible, by which to judge between truth and error, and condemn heresy, we hope that Mr. Paton will come forward speedily with his only standard, and by it decide whether the undulatory theory of light, or the corpuscular theory be true; for the learned world have for a long time been oscillating between these two theories, not knowing which to condemn as heresy. According to Mr. Paton, there is no way to condemn either as heresy, only by the scriptures. We ask, could not the antediluvians receive Noah as a phophet or condemn him as a fanatic without the aid of the scriptures? How could Jeremiah prove to the Jews from any previous revelation that he was sent of God? What former scripture could prove the truth or falsity of Ezekiel's prophecy? If scripture is the only guide into truth, will Mr. Paton tell us what part of said volume justifies himself and the "clergymen of different denominations" in doing away as unnecessary in this age, inspired apostles and prophets, and the miraculous gifts of the spirit? We should like to have chapter and verse upon so important a subject. The Holy Ghost is a far more universal standard of truth than the scriptures. The Holy Ghost will guide the servants of God into ALL truth: the scriptures without the Holy Ghost, will only guide into a few truths. The Holy Ghost can unfold the grandeur, majesty, and glory of heavenly worlds, while Mr. Paton's only "infallible standard" can give no such visions. The Holy Ghost can waft the servant of God to the third heavens, and show him things not lawful to be uttered by man, while the scriptures have no such power and can impart no such knowledge. The Holy Ghost can heal the sick—can speak with tongues, and can perform many other mighty works; while the scriptures, without the Holy Ghost, can do none of these things. The Holy Ghost is greater than the scripture, for by him the scriptures were given; hence the Holy Ghost is an infallible standard as well as the scriptures. The Holy Ghost being a universal standard of truth, while the scriptures are a very limited standard; yet both standards agree in one, and never contradict each other. That which contradicts any known truth is not of the spirit of truth, but is false. A false doctrine cannot always be detected by the scriptures; but when referred to that universal standard—the Holy Spirit, it can always be detected; for the Holy spirit deceives no one.

In my remarks upon the evidences in favor of Joseph Smith's divine mission, ("Divine Authority," page 13.) I have, among numerous other evidences adduced, referred to the late discoveries of Catherwood and Stephens in Central America, as confirmatory evidence to the truth of the Book of Mormon. Mr. Paton considers this as no evidence at all, and refers to the discoveries of Baron Humboldt and many other antiquarians, long before Mr. Smith translated that book. Now no one will dispute the fact that the existence of antique remains in different parts of America was known long before Mr. Smith was born. But every well informed person knows that the most of the discoveries made by Catherwood and Stephens were original—that the most of the forty-four cities described by him had not been described by previous travelers. Now the Book of Mormon gives us the names and location of great numbers of cities in the very region where Cartherwood and Stephens afterwards discovered them. This, therefore, taking into consideration all the circumstances, is an additional evidence, of a very positive nature, in favor of the divine inspiration of this unlearned and inexperienced young man.

With regard to the old Spaulding story concerning the origin of the Book of Mormon, we remark, that it has been exploded by the most incontrovertible testimony years ago, and its lying propagators have been made ashamed of their corrupt glaring falsehoods. (See P. P. Pratt's Reply to the Rev. C. S. Bush; also Taylor's Answer to the Rev. Robert Heys.)

Mr. Paton next refers to the 29th chapter of Isaiah, and to my remarks upon it, and falsely pretends that the metallic plates of the Book of Mormon are represented in my tract ("Divine Authority.") as being Ariel, the city where David dwelt. He says, "If the metallic plates be, as Mr. Pratt pretends, this Ariel," * * * * * then they are "cursed of God." Mr. Pratt, sir, has made no pretensions: it is only another of your misrepresentations. Now if our readers will turn to the 29th chapter of Isaiah, and carefully read the first four verses of that chapter, they will discover that the prophet predicts, first, the distress that should come upon Ariel, and, secondly, predicts another event that should be unto the Lord as Ariel. This last event is expressed in these words, "And it shall be unto me AS Ariel." How was it with Ariel? Her people was to be distressed and afflicted with "heaviness and sorrow." How was it to be with the people or nation who should be "AS ARIEL!" Its distress, of course, was to resembly that of Ariel, or else it could not be "as Ariel." The distress of the nation that the Lord says "shall be as Ariel," is clearly portrayed in the 3d and 4th verses, "And I will camp against thee round about, and will lay seige against thee with a mount, and I will raise forts against thee; and thou shalt be brought down, and shalt speak out of the ground, and thy speech shall be low out of the dust, and thy voice shall be as of one that hath a familiar spirit, out of the ground, and thy speech shall whisper out of the dust." Now, we ask. What nation upon the earth has been visited with a distress resembling that of Ariel or Jerusalem? We answer that the Book of Mormon informs us that the nation of Nephites who were a remnant of Joseph inhabiting ancient America, were brought down to the ground by their enemies. Hundreds of thousands were slaughtered in their terrible wars. Their distress truly may be said to be "as Ariel." Ariel was sorely distressed from time to time, and forts and other fortifications raised against her—similar judgements happend to the remnant of Joseph. Isaiah does not say that Ariel shall speak out of the ground, but he clearly shows that the nation which should be distressed as Ariel, after being brought down, should speak out of the ground. The words of the prophets of Jerusalem or Ariel, never spoke from the ground, their speech was never "low out of the dust." But the words of the prophets among the remnant of Joseph have spoken from the ground and their written "speech" has whispered out of the dust. Isaiah declares, that it shall be "as the voice of one that hath a familiar spirit." It was not to be the voice of a distant, vague, uncertain spirit but "as a familiar spirit," one that could be familiarly understood, and that too, by the most ordinary capacity. The term familiar does not necessarily imply evil, as Mr. Paton would have the public suppose. There were may corrupt persons in ancient times who had not only a familiar but constant intercourse with evil spirits and were possessed by them; and because of the constant familiarity of these spirits with those persons, they possessed, they were frequently termed "familiar spirits." As was remarked above, the term "familiar," does not always imply evil. Jesus was familiar with his disciples, while to the world he was more distant and spoke to them in parables. The Holy Ghost is a very familiar spirit in the tabernacles of his servants, sometimes making familiar to them things that are not lawful to be uttered or written. The voice of the ancient prophets of America has familiarly whispered from the dust in the ears of the present generation, simply and familiarly revealing the ancient history of that continent—and in a very familiar manner portrays the wonderful works of God among a nation whose history was before unknown. What a marked contrast between the definite, plain, and "familiar spirit" in which the Book of Mormon unfolds the ancient history of America, and the wild, vague, and distant conjectures of learned antiquarians! It is as the voice of the dead proclaiming repentance to the living. It is the voice of those who have slumbered low in the dust, sounding an important and solemn warning in the ears of a corrupt, wicked, apostate race of Gentiles who have made "lies their refuge," and "under falsehood have hid themselves."

Isaiah not only speaks of the overthrow and utter abolishment of "the multitude of all the nations that should fight against Mount Zion," but also very clearly describes the wickedness and gross darkness in which all these nations should be involved. He declares they should "be drunken, but not with wine,—they should stagger but not with strong drink;" "For," continues he, "the Lord hath poured out upon you the spirit of deep sleep, and hath closed your eyes: the prophets and your rulers, the seers hath he covered. And the vision of all is become unto you as the words of a book that is sealed, which men deliver to one that is learned," &c. Here we perceive, that the multitude of all the nations who fight against Zion were to be so completely enveloped in darkness, that they would be drunken and stagger, their eyes should be closed, and they should be in a deep sleep; the prophets and seers were to be covered, or not acknowledged among them: and finally, "THE VISION OF ALL" were to be as the words of a sealed book. The vision of all the prophets and seers who had spoken since the world began, was to be uninteligible—not understood by those corrupt benighted nations. It is true they have multiplied millions of copies of the Bible. But so great is their wickedness, that the powers, gitts, and blessings of the Bible are unknown among them. Having closed their eyes in a profound, deep, and drunken sleep, the vision of all, or the inspired writings of all the prophets and seers with which they are acquainted are not understood,—they are not the words of a sealed book, but as the words of a sealed book which are given to a learned man who is unable to read them. So the vision of these inspired prophets and seers contained in the Bible has been presented to the nations, but they are unable to understand it. As Professor Anthon, though a learned man, was not able to comprehend or read the words transcribed from the sealed book of Mormon, so the present generation, though learned as to the wisdom of the world, are, in consequence of wickedness, unable to comprehend "the vision of all." As well might Professor Anthon undertake to translate unknown Egyptian characters by his learning, as for a wicked generation who are in a "deep sleep," to undertake to understand "the vision of all," without the aid of inspired men.

Mr. Paton asserts, that "Isaiah says, the sealed book was given to the learned." We wish Mr. Paton to understand distinctly, that Isaiah says no such thing! Isaiah speaks of the "WORDS" of a book being presented to the learned, and not the book itself. Mr. Paton enquires, "Why did not he (Smith) give the book, or plates, (to the learned) as he ought to have done, to fulfil the terms of the prophecy?" I answer that if he had sent the book to Professor Anthon, instead of some of the transcribed words it would not have been a fufilment of the terms of the prophecy; for Isaiah expressly says the "words," and not the book, were to be delivered to the learned. And Isaiah also says, the "BOOK," (not the words of a book, "is delivered to him that is not learned, saying, Read this I pray thee, and he saith, I am not learned." To the learned is presented the "words of a book:" to the unlearned is delivered the "book" itself. The former says, "I cannot" read it: the latter says, "I am not learned;" Mr. Paton says, that neither could read it. But Isaiah says that, "In that day, shall the deaf hear the words of the book," consequently, it must be read by some one. And as the Lord declares in the same connection that he would "proceed to do a marvellous work and a wonder" which should "cause the wisdom of the wise to perish," we have every reason to believe that he causes the unlearned to read it, which would indeed be a marvellous work and a wonder, and a very effectual way of causeing the wisdom of the wise to perish.

(To be continued.)

For the Frontier Guardian.

California Song.

BY LUCIUS N. SCOVIL.

The light of God begins to shine,
On this benighted soul of mine;
I'll raise my voice in solemn prayer
That in his blessings I may share,
And go to California.

The chosen Twelve they hold the keys,
To loose and bind just when they please,
For unto them the power is given,
To seal on earth and bind in Heaven,
They've gone to California.

The mantle which our Joseph wore
It has been sought by half a score,
The Lord he knew the very man,
Therefore it fell on Brigham Young.
Who's gone to California.

Oh, may the day soon hasten on,
When scater'd Israel will go home,
And all the Saints they might be free,
And taste the sweets of liberty
In Upper California.

Then we could raise our voice and sing,
And make the upper regions ring;
And call on God by night and day,
To help us on our heavenly way,
To Upper California.

That is the land that Moses blest,
Where Joseph's seed should be at rest,
And Israel he was not behind,
Though many years had made him blind,
He fix'd on California.

A Temple there will soon be rear'd,
The Law of God will be rever'd,
And many will the Priesthood gain,
For which so many have been slain,
Ere' went to California.

That land will blossom like the rose,
As God his blessings he bestows,
And all who will his precepts keep,
They surely can the blessings reap
In Upper California.

FRIENDSHIP.

Say, shall we forever mourning
Wander o'er the Earth's wide waste;
Fortune, fate, and sin deploring,
Friendship's pleasures never taste!
No. As life is but a bubble
Fading like a morning dream,
Let us sooth each others trouble
With a ray from friendship's beam.

We have no tears for those doomed by a turn of the Political wheel to go out of office. We never could squeeze out a tear of compassion for the sorrowing "victim" who, after having enjoyed the emoluments of a public station for some years, is made to give place to another. If the office were desirable, he has had at least more of its advantages than his equal share as one of the People. If to hold it involve a sacrifice, he has endured his part, and ought to be relieved. If there is any crying to be done in this case, let him do it himself—at all events, he can have no help from this quarter.—[N. Y. Tribune.

Be kind to your relations, obliging to your friends, and charitable to all, and never permit your bills with the printer to run over a year. This is very good advice "of the kind."

WORTH REMEMBERING.—He who is passionate and hasty is generally honest. It's your cool, dissembling hypocrite, of whom you should beware. There is no deceit about a bulldog. It's only the cur that sneaks up and bites you when your back is turned. Again, we say, beware of the man who has cant in his looks.

From the Millennial Star.

Keep a True and Faithful Record.

The servants of God in the last days are entrusted with a measure of the spirit of wisdom, knowledge, and power, and are accountable to God for the use of the same. The heavens will record their acts; and this record will be reserved unto the judgment of the great day, to appear as a witness in favor or against them. Jesus told the Nephites that "all things are written by the Father," and he also commanded his twelve disciples to "write the works of that people; for out of the books which shall be written shall the world be judged." Jesus has also commanded the elders and officers of his Church, in the last days, to keep a record of their doings. Have the servants of God been faithful in this thing? If we were weighed in the balances concerning this matter, we fear that many of us will be found wanting. "He that loveth me" says Jesus, "keepeth my commandments." Dear brethren, if we have been slothful heretofore, and neglected to keep this commandment of our Lord, let us be slothful and negligent no longer. Let each of the officers of the Church procure a small blank book, and record theirin their own labors and every important incident connected with the work of God that passes under their observation.

If every Elder had, during the last nineteen years, kept a faithful record of all that he has seen, heard, and felt of the goodness, wisdom, and power of God, the Church would now have been in the possession of many thousand volumes, containing much important and useful information. How many thousands have been miraculously healed in this Church, and yet no one has recorded the circumstances. Is this right? Should these miraculous manifestations of the power of God be forgotten and pass into oblivion? Should the knowledge of these things slumber in the hearts of those who witnessed them, and extend no farther than their own verbal reports will carry them? This negligence on the part of the servants of God ought no longer to exist. We should keep a record because Jesus has commanded it. We should keep a record because the same will benefit us and the generations of our children after us. We should keep a record because it will furnish many important items for the general history of the Church which would otherwise be lost. Every case of healing, and every miracle which Jesus shall perform through any of his children should be faithfully recorded without any coloring or misrepresentation. The plain simple facts should be given, not from hearsay or report, but from actual knowledge. The names of the persons healed,—the persons present who witnessed the same,—the nature of the complaint, disease, or sickness,—the time, the place, and all the important circumstances connected therewith, should be entered on record.

Let the president of each conference see that the most important and noted cases of healing are forwarded for publication in the Star. If this method be observed we shall soon have an invaluable amount of testimony that will shut the mouths of infidels, and put to shame the advocates of the corrupt powerless systems of modern Christianity.

Only six persons, viz., Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Paul, and Peter, have testified as eye witnesses to the miracles wrought in the first age of Christianity. No unbeliever or person out of the church has handed down a record of any miracles of which he was an eye witness. We believe the testimony of these six writers to be true; they alone have testified as eye witnesses. If this church presents the testimony of thousands of living eye witnesses who have seen, and felt, and heard, who will not be able to see that the Latter-day Saints have a thousand fold more evidence in favor of miracles in these days than what can possibly be brought to prove the miracles of the apostles' days? Who will be so blind as not to see that the testimony of six thousand living witnesses who have seen miracles with their own eyes, is far more weighty and powerful than the testimony of six dead witnesses? How do we believe that the lame man who sat at the beautiful gate of the temple was healed? We believe it because Luke the writer of the Acts says so. He alone has recorded the fact. As a question of the same kind,—how shall the people of future generations believe that a man in Wales, who was perfectly deaf and dumb, was restored in a moment to his hearing and speech by the power of God through his servants. They will believe it because some servant of God like Luke has made record of it. The lame man of whom Luke speaks, has given the world no record of the miracle wrought upon him: but the deaf and dumb man who was healed in Wales is preaching to multitudes. No man out the Church has handed down a testimony to the miracle wrought upon the lame man: but the editors of papers, and persons unconnected with our Church, all acknowledge the remarkable occurrence which happened to the deaf and dumb man in Wales, but they are unable to account for it; the same as Luke says, the Jews were unable to account for the notable miracle wrought on the lame man.

The proofs which this church exhibit in favor of the divine authenticity of the New Testament are far greater, and more convincing to the infidel, than all the historical evidences brought forth by Paley, Lardner, and the most learned men of the age. Miracles wrought in our day is a proof to the infidel that the promises of our Savior in the New Testament are true. If miracles are wrought now, says the infidel, they might have been wrought in ancient days, as the six writers of the New Testament testify. When Jesus actually fulfils his promise which he made to believers, and causes the signs to follow them, the sectarians must be blind indeed to cry out that "the day of miracles is past." The fulfilment of our Lord's words unto the believer will show to the honest in heart, of all nations, the difference between his church and the Papist and Protestant churches, who do away with these signs and have a form destitute of the powers.

Let the Saints purify their hearts before the Lord, and learn his commandments and do them, and seek diligently after the Holy Spirit with meek and humble hearts, that the power of his kingdom may be more abundantly made msnifest unto the confounding of false doctrines and the exposing of priestcrafts which now reign so universally throughout this land. Seek to know the will of God, and then do it; and you will increase in faith and power until the nations shall tremble at your presence

From the Times and Seasons.

What Is To Be.

As a matter of every day reflection, all people, good, bad and indifferent, are more concerned about what is to be than anything else that appertains to life. This may be one reason why so much jealousy, hatred and persecution are manifested towards any man, men, or people, that profess to be guided by revelation

Notwithstanding the word of the Lord, having out-lived all the speculation of the ancients, and frustrated the philosophy of the moderns, shines like diamonds among the rubbish of six thousand years, to guide the way of human beings, still every age has its own blind leaders of the blind, and the result that has been is now, and willbe,—"both fall into the ditch."

We have said this much for the consideration of the saints; if the world pays any regard to it, may God bless them accordingly. We profess to be governed by revelation and shall we, while fire, storm and vexation trouble the world, be lulled to sleep in false security? Shall we calculate our warfare over, and our salvation safe when the war elements hath hardly commenced? "He only is saved that continues faithful to the end."

"Pray without ceasing," says an old apostle, and so says a later one. The troubles to come are more grevious than what have been; so be ready.

Jo eph Smith, our martyred prophet left the following prophecy to be fulfilled:

"Verily, Verily, I say unto you, darkness covereth the earth, and gross darkness the minds of the people, and all flesh has become corrupt before my face! Behold vengance cometh speedily upon the inhabitants of the earth; a day of wrath; a day of burning; a day of desolation; of weeping; of mourning and of lamentation; and as a whirlwind it shall come upon all the face of the earth, saith the Lord.

And upon my house it shall begin; and from my house shall it go forth saith the Lord. First among those among you saith the Lord; who have professed to know my name and have not known me, and have blasphemed against me in the midst of my house saith the Lord."

From the above it is evident that after the church suffers the world has to come in for its share of woe: and now after fourteen years' suffering, who does see not the Lord begin to pour a "little vengance" like a whirlwind?

Be faithful and patient, then saints, and He that said to the flood "come," and make an end of wickedness, will say also "go," to the elements, and sweep the earth with the besom of destruction till it is fit for Paradise again, and then my people shall inherit the the kingdom. Watch and pray.

Bonnparte's Opinion of Christ.

A foreign journal lately published the following:

"I know a man," said Napoleon, "and I tell you that Jesus is not a man! The religion of Christ is a mystery which subsists by its own force and proceeds from a mind which is not a human mind. We find in it a marked individuality, which originated a train of words and actions unknow before. Jesus borrowed nothing from our knowledge. He exhited himself a perfect example of his precepts, Jesus is not a philosopher, for his proofs are miracles, and from the first his disciples adored him. In fact, learning and philosophy are of no use for salvation; and Jesus came into the world to reveal the mysteries of Heaven and the laws of the Spirit.

"Alexander, Cæsar, Charlemagne, and myself, founded empires, but on what foundation did we rest the creations of our genius? Upon force! Jesus Christ alone founded his empire upon love; and at this hour, millions of men would die for him.

"It was not a day, or a battle, that achieved the triumph of the christian religion in the world. No, it was a long war—a contest for three centuries—begun by the Apostles, then continued by the flood of Christain generations. In this war, if all the kings and potentates of the earth were on one side—on the other I see no army but a mysterious force, some men scattered here and there in all parts of the world, and who have no other rallying point than a common faith in the mysteries of the cross.

"I die before my time, and my body will be given back to the earth, to become food for the worms. Such is the fate of him who has been called the great Napoleon. What an abyss between my deep misery and the eternal kingdom of Christ which is proclaimed, and adored, which is extended over the whole earth! Call you this dying!—Is it not living rather? The death of Christ is the death of God!"

Napoleon stopped at the last words, but Gen. Bertrand making no reply, the Emperor added—

"If you do not perceive that Jesus Christ is God, I did wrong to appoint you General!"

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important:—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

WANTED ON SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE GUARDIAN.

10,000 good hard wood rails, ten feet long, at $1 25 per hundred.
10,000 18 inch shingles at $3 per thousand if good.
10,000 pounds best fall wheat flour at $2 50 per hundred, or the market price.
10,000 feet good lumber at $2 00 per hundred.
100 cords good fire wood, four feet long, well split and corded at or near this office, (hard wood,) at one dollar a cord.

Besides cheese, eggs, chickens, fresh beef, mutton, veal; and even gold and silver or good current paper in quantities to suit the subscriber. Also three feet clabboard.

A Stew.

The counterfeiters in Pottawatamie are stewing over a hot fire, it would seem from the fact that some of them are charging us with being accessory to the running away of a negro slave to the Salt Lake, and we hear that one of the gang has confessed that he contributed a blanket to the negro to aid his escape, and would feign hold out the idea that he gave the blanket at our instance.

Would you not look well to attempt to get that "villainous Hyde" arrested on a charge of this kind in order to punish him for breaking into your money making arrangments? Moreover he is not a Locofoco, and he must be punished in some way for presuming to think and act in the character and capacity of a freeman.

Go forward and arrest for aiding away the negro slave, and then see how nicely he will prove an alibi by your own Miss-conduct. Send your emmissaris and co-workers whom you boast of in a written document in our possession from under your own hand and signature that you say have asked for stock in your press—don't squirm, its over your own signature remember, and you say they are from St. Joseph and Missouri: send these auxiliaries back to Missouri and get them to declare that Hyde is in the counterfeiting business and only makes this show of opposition to divert suspicion from himself—then get some one that is interested in your welfare to write him a most insulting letter, and full of bloody threats, and if that won't stop his noise, get some faithful ally to go the Governor of Illinois, and get a demand upon the Executive of Iowa for him to be delivered up as a fugitive from justice. And as you claim, to be Locofocos of the first water, perhaps you indulge the belief that you can prevail upon those functionaries to remove the great obstacle and bar to your prosperity in the issuing of Mexican dollars, in these secluded bluffs. Talk about bribery! Gracious suz! We have had hints and feelers thrown out to us in the shape of many thousands of dollars if we would only be still and not persecute the fraternity with our press.

It may be that Gov. French will consider you in your low estate and take measures to have us removed for your special accommodation, because some of your fraternity went to Springfield and swore against us to get us punished for the crime of saying that any man that would make bogus money ought to be compelled to drink it melted, and thereby enable you to go on and coin money without any to molest or make you afraid: But the Guardian will keep an eye on and about the Frontier.

We will make a confession frankly and publicly, that we did flee from all the justice there was in Illinois, but not till months after we were charged with crime by one of your companions in tribulation, and we spake for months afterwards, also, on every Sabbath day to more than three or four thousand people, and also on week days in the presence of Major Warren and the Governor's troops that were stationed there to keep order, and if justice had any demands on us, we were within its reach, surrounded by his Excellency's forces; and we came away in the day time, but not without giving three month's public notice of our intention. Oh! aint we a fugitive from justice! But if we had muzzled our press and consented to take about five thousand dollars for the job of being silent, oh, what a fine fellow we should have been in the estimation of some of these men! If all these projects fail, get some of your gang to say that Hyde called Dr. Clark a horse thief, and then make him responsible for that slander. Well gentlemen, cook up the stew to suit your own appetites. But remember, if you boil the devil you must drink his broth.

We don't know Dr. Clark from a side of sole leather, but from the insulting letter he wrote us we should judge him to be as full of honor as the sound of a ram's horn is of the taste of a half ripe persimmon.

When we give a blanket to aid the escape of a runaway slave, the public or the owner may know whom to arrest as an accessary or a principal. But we defy the whole tribe of "black legs" in Pottawatamie that have followed the Church as a shark follows a ship, to prove that we knew anything about the runaway slave till Mr. Jackson, and others from Missouri, came up in pursuit of him. It would seem that some men are so steeped in crime that they are not satisfied with counterfeiting the currency of the land, but must aid the escape of runaway negroes by giving them blankets, &c., and then charge it upon others.

We confess that we have scored the bogus makers rather hard, and they will most likely want to reply. Our remarks cannot touch any innocent person, or provoke any reply only from the black leg ranks in our opinion, or from some who are friends and allies to them. Now we will lay low and keep dark for a while and just see what we can hear, and ascertain the source from whence it comes.

We do not wish the imputations in the above to be extended to any honorable man, either Whig or Democrat.

GEN. TAYLOR.—We learn by the telegraphic news that the Gen. was taken with the cholera while receiving his friends at Carlisle, Pa., he is said to be recoving at last accounts.

COUNCIL POINT, Aug. 28, 1849.

MR. HYDE: Will you be so good as to give your oppinion, through the Guardian, of the propriety of Hon. Francis Springer of this State, receiving the appointment of Surveyor General of the North-Western district of Iowa and Wisconsin.

By granting this indulgence, you will confer a favor upon an old friend, and much oblige many citizens. Most Respectfully, D.

We can cheerfully comply with the above request, though we have never had the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with the gentleman referred to; but his speeches prove that he possesses a powerful talent, an elevated mind, a patriotic heart and a whole soul. We should judge him perfectly ready, like percussion, to ignite on the spur of the moment, and go off without waiting long enough to tremble and thereby miss his aim. If the administration has no better station to assign him than that of the Surveyor Generalship of this North-western country, we consider him duly and truly prepared,—worthy and well qualified to receive that appointment, or any other one still more important.

The prosperity of our free institutions is suspended upon the fostering and encouragement of such spirits as his. When a successful resistance of the oppressor's arm is impossible, a servile obedience is extorted, and the curses of the oppressed are cheerfully rendered with that obedience; and their curses will open the way for some power to palzy the tyrant's grasp and make his strength weak like water. The elements of nature have made this eternal decree, and Nature's God has placed the Royal Signature and seal to the document. "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." While a generous, patriotic and liberal spirit comes over the oppressed like the breath of the Almighty over the dry bones of the slain in the Valley of Jehossophat. Life and joy are diffused, and every one is eager to force his way through floods and flames, through blood and carnage to excel in loyalty to his country's cause, when conducted by a high-minded policy whose end and aim is the amelioration of man's condition and his elevation to brighter hopes and sublimer joys. A noble and generous spirit can never be damned, neither one who succors the oppressed. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto these, ye have done it unto me." We remember to have read, when a small school lad, some lines written on the death of Lord Nelson, killed at the battle of Trafalgar. We have not seen them since that time; but they made so deep an impression upon our mind at the time that it is not yet erased, and we deem them not ill-appropriate here.

"In death's terrific icy arms,
The brave illustrious Nelson lies,
He's free from care and wars' alarms;
Sees not our tears nor hears our cries.

Cold is the heart where valor reigned,
Mute is the tongue that joy inspired,
Still is the arm that conquest gained,
And dim the eye that glory fir'd.

Too mean for him, a world like this
He's landed on the happy shore
Where all the brave partake of bliss,
And heroes meet to part no more."

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., August 20, 1849.

DEAR BR. HYDE: Sir it is with shame and regret for one of the faith of yourself to address you in the following language. Your face I never saw, but have often heard of you, and have had the gratification of perusing your papers. Now comes the strange news. James Hillman and Allen Stout has been living here three or four months past. They have not done a days work during the whole time to the knowledge of any person. About one week ago last Thursday, I had one hundred and forty dollars in gold taken from where I reside out of my trunk in the night. And it is supposed by all candid thinking people in this place, that James Hillman and Allen Stout get the money. The money has evidently been passed by Hillman and Stouts wife, at least I have seen a five dollar piece that she passed, and supposed by the person that changed it that it was my money. The same night the money was taken Hillman was gambling at a beer house in this town until about twelve o'clock at night. And then he came out into the bar-room and told the bar keeper, that he was broke and consequently retired. He was gone for about the space of an hour, and returned with plenty of gold, he then offered to bet fifty dollars and out with the money, which consisted of eagles, half eagles, &c., which was the exact description of the gold that I lost. I was informed by this gentleman that he spent thirty dollars of this money this same evening. And very early in the morning I was informed by Stouts wife that Hilman and Stout had left their residence very early the same morning for the Bluffs, and have not been seen openly since. I have been informed that they have been seen skulking about here. It is my request and the citizens in general that you should attend to them and fasten them for you cannot trust them a moment.

Send them down here as quick as possible if you should be so lucky as to get hold of them, and have them tried according to law.

I remain your sincere friend,
JOHN GALLUP, Jr.

The above letter is published as a warning to the community here and in every other place, not to receive or harbor the men therein named—not to employ them, nor neighbor with them in any way, unless they submit themselves first to a proper examination before the authorities of the law at St. Joseph, Mo., where it is supposed they committed the offence. We have heard considerable about this Hilman's operations heretofore; and if half is true that we have heard, he is a very bad man. Of Stout's character we know nothing of late until we received this letter. Let every good citizen hold these men at a respectful distance until they can bring evidence, satisfactory that they have not shunned examination, and let them produce satisfactory reasons that they are innocent; but if they are guilty, whether it is known to man or not, let the wrath and curse of the Almighty be upon them, till they confess and restore four fold, and let this be an ensample unto the person or persons that stole Stewart's money out of his wagon while he was in Missouri last year, and let all Israel say, Amen, when they read it, and it shall be done.

Postage.

It will be remembered by our friends that Elder Felt, of St. Louis, has no particular income or salary, and is situated where many write to him on business, both from the East and from the West. He complains, and not without just cause, we presume, that his postage bill is too heavy a tax upon his purse. Our friends may expect that their letters addressed to him on business hereafter will not be attended to unless the postage is paid. But if you would encourage a worthy man, you should not only pay your postage, but a few dollars enclosed to him as a compensation by way of commission for his services would not be ill-timed.

HUNGARY.—The intelligence from Hungary is favorable for the Hungarians and they continue to fight fiercely with their enemies for freedom. Bem, a Polish General is gaining victory at every onset that he has had with the Russians and Austrians. The Emperor of Russia has offered a reward of 40 rubles (27,600,) to whoever shall capture Bem.

Since writing the above we learn by the arrival of the America that Bem and Georgoy have routed the Russians in each engagement.

CHOLERA.—The cholera is still on the decrease in the Eastern cities. At St. Louis there is but very few cases occurring 13 in the week ending Aug. 13th, and nearly all disappeared in the towns along the river.

THE MAIL ARRIVED FROM THE SALT LAKE,
On Monday Evening, Sept. 3d.

A. W. Babbitt, Esq., arrived here on Monday evening last thirty-six days from the Valley of the Salt Lake, having been water bound on the route eight days. He came safely through with one man and seven horses and a light wagon in which he brought the mail.

News from the Valley is quite encouraging. The crickets entirely disappear where fowls and swine are permitted to range. They have suffered comparatively none this year by those insects. Their wheat crops are good, corn looks prosperous—beets, carrots—squashes, pumpkins and other vegetables are excellent. The health of the citizens there was good, and great activity in business prevailed. About twelve or fifteen thousand California emigrants passed through the Valley, and about three thousand calculated to winter there. Many of the Californians have been baptized and intend to make that place their home—some of the first class of them for wealth, character, and influence. No difficulty occurred between our people and the California emigrants, and the Indians are all friendly and seem anxious to learn and to become civilized. They wish to learn to cultivate the soil, so that they can have plenty of bread &c.,

Our people celebrated the 24th of July instead of the 4th, for two reasons:—one was, because that was the day on which Br. Young and the Pioneers first entered the Valley; and the other was, they had little or no bread, or flour to make cakes, &c., that early, and not wishing to celebrate on empty stomachs, they postponed it till their harvest came in. A full description of the feast and celebration may be expected in our next. We are only able to sketch the heads of the news this week for want of time and space, but we intend to pour out the whole flood in our next number. The Valley has been a place of general deposit for property, goods, &c., by Californians. When they saw a few bags and kegs of gold dust that had been gathered and brought in by our boys, it made them completely enthusiastic. Pack mules and horses that were worth twenty-five or thirty dollars in ordinary times, would readily bring two hundred dollars in the most valuable property at the lowest price. Goods and other property were daily offered at auction in all parts of the city. For a light Yankee wagon, sometimes three or four great heavy ones would be offered in exchange, and a yoke of oxen thrown in at that. Common domestic sheeting sold from five to ten cents per yard by the bolt. The best of spades and shovels for fifty cents each. Vests that cost in Saint Louis one dollar and fifty cents each, were sold at Salt Lake for three bits, or 37½ cents. Full chests of Joiners' tools that would cost one hundred and fifty dollars in the East, were sold in that place for $25. Indeed, almost every article, except Sugar and Coffee, is selling on an average, fifty per ct. below wholesale prices in the Eastern cities. Would it not be a grand speculation for Kanesville and St. Joseph Merchants to go to the Salt Lake to lay in their fall stock of goods? They can buy plenty of wagons there for less than one half what the iron cost in Saint Louis, and any number of cattle to haul them back. This kind of operation has put the people on their legs in the valley, but when the alcohol was brought forward and sold, it threw some of them off their legs, not having had any for a couple of years or so, and being rather exhausted by digging gold all the time, they were not wise to hazard a contest with so potent an enemy, more to be dreaded than the mobs of Illinois. The people there think more of their wheat crop than of the Gold Mines. They know, because they have been made to feel its superior worth. Many of the emigrants would pay no attention to the warnings of our people not to let their cattle drink of the water so strongly impregnated with saleratus. They said it was all a "Mormon humbug" about the alkali being strong enough to kill their cattle, and the consequences were that more than 2000 dead carcasses of oxen lay strewed along the way, and the very offensive smell caused thereby, rendered it almost impossible to travel near the road. The cholera has been very fatal among the Indians. In one place Mr. Babbitt mentions as having passed ten deserted lodges wtih many dead Indians lying about, and their bodies torn and half eaten by the wolves.

He met Livingston & Kinkade's company, commanded by William Miller, about 200 miles west of Laramie, then all well. Met Egan at Weber River—Hickman and Hatch beyond the South Pass—Perkins' and Taylor's company this side of Laramie. They had one stampede; about a hundred and fifty teams hitched up took fright in the day time, and ran with their loads like wild buffalo. One lady was killed, (Mrs. Hawk,) and several others badly bruised and injured. George A's and Ezra,s company were all well, but getting along slowly on account of high water and constant rains. Gully, McCarty, and Kellogg died of cholera out of the first company. But four of our people died of cholera on the road.

Mr. Babbitt certainly deserves our thanks and praise or his perseverance in swimming rivers, and towing over his wagon on rafts made with a hatchet and tied together with larrietts. It cannot be a very pleasant job to freight a rude sort of raft with a wagon and push off into a rapid currrent and poll out about one quarter of the distance across, then take one end of a rope in your teeth while the other end is attached to the raft, and plunge into the stream like a spaniel and swim over with craft and cargo in tow, being swept down stream over snags and sawyers for a quarter or half a mile as Mr. B. informs us has been his lot in two or three instances. But, Oh! the sacrifice of property thrown out and left by the road side by the Californians, between Laramie and the Valley is beyond calculation as Mr. B. informs us. Gen. Wilson is getting slowly on; he will have to remain in the Valley this winter most likely, and not visit the diggins until spring. Mr. B. thinks that Livingston & Kinkade will be broken Merchants because of so many goods getting to the Valley before theirs and having been sold for less than prime cost. The market is glutted.

As we have no more space, we reserve particulars for the next Guardian.

We learn by Mr. B. that Major Simonson has established the Government post at Smith's Fork of the Bear River, about fifty miles from the Salt Lake City. We learn from the same source that the citizens of the Great Basin have organized a provisional Government, called the "State of Deseret" under which the civil policy of the nation is duly administered, and will so continue until Congress shall otherwise provide by law.

Indian Troubles.

Mr. Reed, a gentleman connected with the Missionary Station at Bellevue, being desirous of recruiting his health and also of acquiring a knowledge of the habits and customs of the Indians—of their character and language, indulged in the luxury of going out into the North-western country, some three or four hundred miles, with the tribe of Omaha Indians on their Summer's hunt. This distance brought them into the range of another tribe, called Punkas. After being very successful in their hunt, having killed and dried and nicely packed away about sixteen or twenty tons of Buffalo meat. The Punkas surprized and killed two of their young men that had been separated from their tribe. This was a warning to the Omahas to prepare for action. They formed a circular breast work of their skin bags of dried meat and entrenched themselves as well as they could. Just at sun-rise, the war-yell broke the silence that had reigned, and it was seconded by a shower of bullets. The action lasted until 8 o'clock, A. M., Aug. 4th. When the Punkas retired, having killed and captured 42 of the best horses of the Omahas, and friend Reed's horse among the captured. It was supposed that some 15 or 20 of the Punkas were killed and their head chief also, yet but two scalps were taken, of the Punkas, the others being removed by their friends. Four Omahas were killed and 8 or 9 wounded, but not mortally. The Omahas lost about one quarter of their dried meat. This attack was to punish the Omahas for stealing four horses two years ago from the Punkas.

Friend Reed had to foot it all the way home, and appears much worn down with exposure and hardship. Rather a dear and unpleasant school to learn the ignorance of the savage in: yet when their ignorance is once learned, there is hope of aiding them to be wise.

The Ottoes are said to be expected in from their hunt in about ten days.

The cholera, we believe, has been very fatal among the Pawnees this season. The Sac and Fox Indians, and we hear the Crows also, are about to make war on the remnant of Pawnees that have escaped the cholera.

DIALOGUE.—The Dialogue entitled Priestcraft in Danger has to be postponed again on account of the delay of the mail. We expect, however, that we shall receive the remainder so as to be able to give it to our readers in succession.

Signs of the Times.

Political changes, political intrigues, wars and contests at home and battles fierce and bloody abroad; conspiracies, defalcations, thefts, robberies, murders, incendiarism, insurrections and rebellions, are fast driving the true spirit of light and intelligense from the world; then mortals will be left in darkness. Nation rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom. Blood and fire and pillars of smoke will throw a gloom over all things, and men, frightened will become sick of life, and wearied and worn out with constant excitement, will desire to die and death will flee from them: the hearts of rulers will sink with weakness, and their knees tremble like Belshazzer.

Political matters will wheel round, and break out in so many new forms that the wisest and ablest politicians and statesmen cannot keep pace with them. When the anchor is weighed and the cable cut, it is difficult to tell where the ship will be driven to.

Pic Nic.

BR. HYDE, why did you not attend the Pic Nic party on Friday? Because we thought that we should be called upon to sanction and participate in that which it was known and publicly understood, our counsel had been given against. Some men are slow to exert an influence to preserve order in the church, but swift to take a responsibility to urge a movement that they know is not sanctioned by them that alone have the right. From this very move, the word will most likely go abroad, that dancing is the order of the day.

Shame on the mean hypocrisy that professes so much goodness, and yet is ready to violate any principle of counsel that may be given!

When it is considered a proper time and season for dancing, the council will say so, and will signify it in a way that there can be no misunderstanding. The wise virgins will most likely wait until that time.

This is only designed for such as knew the order of the church in regard to these things and have violated it.

THE MISSOURI WAR.—The war in Missouri between the Bentonians and Anti-Bentonians is still raging. It is not decided yet which party will obtain the laurels of victory.

Emigrants, be not Hoaxed.

Emigrants for this place from St. Louis and from other parts should remember that they had better land at Saint Joseph than to land at any place above, unless they come all the way to the Bluffs by water. There are facilities at St. Joseph for coming here by land that are not to be found in the woods a little above that place. Steamers will promise to land emigrants within thirty miles of this place, and then leave them in some lonely desolate wilderness a hundred miles distant from this, where, perhaps, unprotected females are subject to the insults of beings whose form and features would disgrace the dignity of the outang outang.

We would say to our friends: be particular and ship for the Bluffs, or only to St. Joseph, so that when you land, you may be in a civilized community.

Fort Desmoine Mail Route.

Why is it that we get no mail from the East by this route? We judge that there must be many letters and papers collected at Fort Desmoine for this office from the fact that we get not one quarter our usual quantity by the Southern mail. One or two failures on the part of the contractor may be reasonably accounted for, sickness or high water or both might be rendered as an apology for a season: but a continued delay excites our surprize, and subjects us and the community at large to great embarrassments. We hope that mail bags will be provided and a good lock and key upon them, and placed in the hands of some one that will bring them through on the days specified in their contract.

Northern Colony.

We are informed that our friend Mr. Cooley is about making arrangements to build a grist and saw mill about forty-five miles to the north of this town. This is a great and good undertaking. We wish him abundant success. We also learn that many familes are speedily going into that section from these parts. Success to the Northern enterprize. It has the approval and sanction of the Council and friends here, and we bid the enterprize, God speed. Carry virtue, integrity, honesty, charity, brotherly kindness and truth with you; and plant the standard of your settlement in the holy soil of justice, humanity and the fear of God.

We would say to our friends who have located hereabouts on small pieces of ground, leave them and make your claims to the north and East in goodly places to the full extent of the Laws of Iowa, and be not narrow contracted in your feelings; and wait till your chance is gone by. Now is the time, and now is the accepted time to make your claims. Be prudent of the timber wherever you go; neither as the Legislature of the State have made it the privilege of a neighborhood to make your own laws and regulations as to claims, &c., be wise in your locations, prudent and economical of the timber; and do unto others as you would that others should do unto you, and ever cultivate a spirit and and principle of Union with your brethren who may be appointed in the order of Providence to preside over you.

Fall Wheat Again.

The constant heavy rains have prevented our farmers from ploughing their ground for wheat as early as they desired; but they will remember the old maxim, "better late than never." Every farmer should consider that his real wealth and prosperity are embodied in the bountiful harvest which this soil can be made to produce. This is a point where flour will always command a liberal price. Outfitting for the Mountains, for the Valley, for the Indian country, and for the Gold Regions will be carried on here in a greater or less degree for a long time. Much may also be furnished to the Government for various purposes. Put in fall wheat then in abundance; and our millers will do well to add the necessary machinery for making the wheat perfectly clean before grinding, to their already excellent mills. Can we not turn out as good an article of flour here as can be made in New York, Virginia, Illinois or Missouri? We have had already, from good clean wheat of our own raising, flour manufactured in Pottawattamie that would pass in any market in the world for superfine. This is saying a good deal for mills in this new country—reared by men whose only capital was the decree of their hearts and the nerve of their arms: but it is nevertheless true. Raise wheat, and fall wheat Sow it early if you can; but if you cannot sow it early, sow it.

Saturday Last

Was one of the happiest days of our life. To see three schools meet at the Tabernacle, one from Council Point, taught by Mr. Brown and two at this place, taught by Mr. Grant and Mr. Poulterer, and undergo a rigid examination, after forming into ranks about a quarter of a mile distant, and marching to the place after a splendid band of music, with beautiful banners and various and appropriate inscriptions thereon, was gratifying beyond description. A fine dinner for about two hundred scholars was prepared in front of the Tabernacle, and also for spectators. Several short, but most happy orations were delivered; and then to hear some of the little misses but just out of their mothers' laps, walk into the dissection and analasys of the compound personal and relative pronouns without confusion or embarrassment, and then to hear a whole school sing off the names, boundaries and capitols of every country on the globe in regular time, was gratifying in the extreme. We sometimes laughed for joy and sometimes wept for joy during the exercises and performances of the day. This is but a brief notice; we hope to say more upon this subject when time and space will permit: but we are satisfied that any mans' respect for himself, for his children, for his country and his God may be correctly told by the respect that he has for education and improvement. Be not deceived by any spirit that would make education a minor or secondary pursuit: but remember that your money can never be more profitably spent than when paid to good teachers for the educaiion of the youth.

Why does not the Guardian Come!

We can hardly answer the question. We know that it has been mailed to all subscribers, and in no case has it been an hour behind the time of starting from here. We can say no more than this, that the Guardian is regularly sent to all our subscribers, and if it is not regularly received the above question would be more appropriately addressed to the Postmasters.

Our subscribers in Canada, in England, Scotland and Wales; in Texas, in the Eastern and Southern States, and in California and at the Salt Lake, will remember that it takes some little time to get returns from here. Be patient, for we do not know that your great anxiety can make "one hair white or black." We will try always to do our duty, and punctually at the time.

Election in Fremont County.

We have received the returns from Fremont County. It is a new county, lately organized, out of the southern portion of this county, and that portion of Missouri which has lately fallen to this State. We understand that the officers of the county are generally Whigs or liberal minded men that were elected. The election took place on the 1st., and resulted as follows:

	Precincts.
	Franklin	Fulton	Henry	Total.
County Commissioners.
David Jones,	53		17	70
Rob't. Russell,	35	1	2	38
Wm. McKissick,	80	26	32	138
John Boleware,	18	11		29
Isaac Hunsaker,	53	22	18	103
Wm. Rector,	5	17	7	29
Elias Finley,	41			41
Sheriff.
D. M. English,	86	25	33	144
Coroner.
Thomas Greenwood,	80	22	28	130
County Recorder.
A. H. Argyle,	73	3	27	103
Wm. M. Lovelady,	19	19	5	43
Recorder and Treasurer.
T. L. Buckhaw,	81	25	29	135
Judge of Probate.
Wm. R. English,	58	4	19	81
John C. Scott,	35	21	14	70
Surveyor.
J. D. Blanchard,	5	25	3	33
Thadeus Williams,	76		22	98
Com. Clerk.
A. H. Argyle,	78	3	27	108
Wm. M. Lovelady,	21	21		42
District Clerk.
Benjamin Rector,	21	92	6	39
Milton Richards,	63	1	18	82
Ins. Weights and Measures.
S. T. Cromwell,	71	7	30	108

Seed Corn.

Our farmers will not forget what trouble they had because their seed corn would not grow last spring after it was planted. The severe frosts in the fall before it was fully ripe, was thought to be the cause why it would not germinate. Would farmers not do well to gather the largest and finest ears that are the nearest ripe, and braid them up in bunches by the husk or shuck, and hang them away in a dry and secure place before there is much frost? Look well to your seed corn in due season and, thereby save yourselves disappointment and trouble.

INCENDIARIES—BURGLARIES—ROBBERIES, &c.—In looking over our exchanges we find them filled with so many accounts we are at a loss to find room to notice them. The incendiaries are busy at St. Louis, given notices of their vile intentions. Robberies and murders are occurring daily, and the country is nearly flooded with these midnight assassins. In addition to the above, the god of this world is worshipped on a large scale by those who can get near his majesty's throne.

We have received a lengthy letter from Geo. A. Smith and Ezra T. Benson when they were near Fort Childs. They were all well, and nothing serious had occurred with them. They passed the grave of Sam'l. Gully who died of cholera; the report of the deaths of Messrs. McIntire and Kinkade are not confirmed. The letter will appear in our next. It came too late for insertion in this number.

MARRIED,

At Austin, Fremont county, on Monday, August 27th, at the residence of Judge English, by James Cunningham, Esq., Mr. STEWART DICKSON, of Peoria Illinois, to Miss MARY JANE CHAMPLIN, daughter of Wm. S. Champlin, of this county.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.

Strayed or was taken from near Big Spring Lake about 14½ miles from Kanesville, a sorrel mare about 14 hands high, 7 years old, a light sorrel main and switch tail—no marks recollected except a small light spot on the right hip. Any person returning or giving information of the horse shall be suitably rewarded by the subscriber, or giving information at this office.

SOLON FOSTER.
Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

STRAYED.

STRAYED from Israel Caulkins' place, near Centerville—2 yoke of cattle—1 yoke brown cattle with white faces, one of the oxen has a small bell on, tied with a rope. The other yoke, one of them is a red ox with white face, horns very short and turn in; the other is mostly white with black spots about his shoulders and head, and one side of his hip is dark brindle. Any person giving information or returning the cattle to Israel Caulkins will be suitably rewarded for their trouble. WM. J. JOLLY.
Centerville, Sept. 5, 1849.—1t

LAND WARRANTS WANTED.

MR. C. P. BROWN of McKissick Grove, Fremont county, Iowa, will give $125 each, for eight Land Warrants, to persons that will lay them, and he, Mr. Brown, will pay the expenses of the person laying them.
Fremont county, Iowa, Sept. 6, 1849.—1t

WHEAT WANTED.

I AM prepared with a six horse power Thrashing Machine, to thrash any quantity of wheat. Apply to the subscriber at the Union Hotel.

TERMS: Five cents a bushel, or one seventh part of the wheat, delivered at Kanesville.
THOMAS WILLIAMS.
Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

IN conformity to an order of the Atchison County Court, made on the 21st day of August, 1849, I will on the 29th day of September, inst., at the East Bank of the Nictenabotna river, where the South line of section No. 2, T. 66, R. 42 intersects the same proceed to let the building of a bridge across said Nictenabotna river to the lowest bidder. Terms will be made known at the letting of said bridge, at which time and place a plan of said bridge with specification can be seen.
JOHN WOERLEN, Com'r.
Atchison co., Mo. Sept. 5, 1849.—2t
N. B. Any person wishing to see the Bridge Commissioner can find him at Woerlens Ferry.

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.
REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Lebee.
Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—4t

WANTED.

FIFTY WAGONS AND TEAMS to haul freight to Fort Kearney near the head of Grand Island, for which $2 per hundred pounds will be paid and all Ferryage. Apply to Wm. Boleware at the Ferry opposite Old Fort Kearney.
Kanesville, Sept. 3, 1849.—1t

ONLY LOOK HERE.

1200 Bushels of Potatoes Wanted.

I will give thirty cents per bushel for one or twelve hundred bushels of potatoes delivered to me at the Ferry, opposite Old Fort Kearney, between the 20th and 25th of this month. W. R. ENGLISH.
Sept. 5, 1849.—1t

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.
Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1849.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.—Under the above head we shall publish all the important European news, also from different portions of the United States which is received by telegraph at St. Louis.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CAMBRIA.

England and Ireland.

Parliament is to be prorogued on the 9th. During last week there were 339 deaths of cholera reported in London, being more than double the number of the the preceeding week. Along the whole Southern Coast it is raging in a very malignant form and the mortality is very great. At Liverpool the disease is rapidly increasing. Ireland continues to be exempt from the scourge. On the 12th a very serious riot took place between the Orangemen and the Catholics in county Down. The Orange party having celebrated the day at Fullimore, and being on their home, while passing a defile called Dollit's Brae, found their path waylaid, all the passes and surrounding hills occupied by an immense number of Roman Catholics, provided with forks and firearms, and plainly contemplating a general massacre. The Protestants aided by a small party of police and military, stood upon their defence and succeeded in forcing their way through the pass after a short struggle, in which 40 or 50 persons are said to have been killed or wounded on both sides; much the greater proportion being of the Catholic body. Thirty-eight Ribbonmen had been taken prisoners. On Friday two medical gentlemen drove through the country round about the scene of action with the view of administering relief to those who were found, but they were refused admittance at every house where they called.

France.

The national announces that Prince Canino, son of Lucien Bonaparte, and ex-President of the Roman Constituent Assembly, had been arrested at Orleans by the order of Government on his road from Marseilles to Paris. It is said that having a claim on his cousin, Louis Napoleon for money loaned in aid of his election; the prince was coming to France to demand it, the conduct of his cousin against Rome having stirred up his ire. It is said that the Prince will not be imprisoned, but that he will be forced to embark for England or America. A change of Ministry is considered an event most certain to occur in a very short time.—The questions openly discussed are the constables for life, the Empire, Henry V, and the Count de Paris. The Pope has addressed an autograph letter to Gen. Oudinot on the occasion of his having received the keys of Rome, his Holiness congratulates the general in the tiumph of order in Rome, and expresses his hope in Divine Providence will avert the difficulties that may exist. He adds, that he does not cease to direct his prayers to Heaven for the general, the city, and the French nation. Cardinal Ricolli and the Marquis Cacchetti arrived in Rome from Gaeta on the 8th. Preparations are making at Rome which lead to the belief that Pius IX, is expected to return to the Quirinal. The French are doing all they can in distributing money to get up a cry in his favor, but in vain. The Roman troops who had agreed in the first instance to do duty conjointly with the French are all leaving, and the whole force now remaining is less than 1,000 men. Garibaldi has succeeded in making his escape from the French division, who were put upon false scent, and he is now in the mountains of Abruzzi; previously to his departure from Rome he had received ammunition and military stores. Another account states that Garibaldi is on the Neapolitan frontier, where he has been joined by another body of troops and is forming a body of 20,000 men.

Austria and Hungary.

From reports of General Haynau to the Emperor of Austria, it appears that a very sharp conflict took place on the 11th before Comorn between the combined armies and the Magyars. The Hungarians fought fiercely, but the Austrians claim the victory. Another account states that 180 pieces of cannon were brought to the field by the Hungarians. Nothing could be more complete than the defeat of the united Russian and Austrian armies under Haynau, he was obliged to fall on Raab, which city is filled with wounded; he had been obliged to send 9,000 men to Pressburg, but for the timely arrival of the Russians to cover his retreat, Haynau and his staff would have been taken. The Turkish Ambassador had announced that Bem had again completely defeated the Russians in Transylvania, and that the latter had been obliged to take refuge in Wallachia. Advices from Vienna state that Buda and Pesth had surrendered to the Austrian and Russian troops on the 14th inst. without resistance.

Austria.

4,400 sick and wounded Austrians had been brought into Vienna in one day. The loss of life among the Imperialists, from war and cholera, is immense.

General Summary.

General Oudinot has dismissed all persons in office under the Republican Government and even under Pius IX, himself, and put in their places all persons he could find, who had held office under Gregory II.

The papers have a report of a victory over the Russians by Bem as being mentioned on all the diplomatic circles of Paris, also that the Hungarians had obtained further advantages before Comorn. An agent of Schleswig had arrived at Berlin to protest against an armistice in Germany.

Several principalities and duchies had given in their adhesion to the treaty concluded on the 26th May between Prussia, Saxony and Hanover.

A decree of the Grand Duke of Baden prorogues the state of siege for one month.

By the Arrival of the America we find but very little news but what is confirmed in the news received by the Hibernia, which arrived at Boston the 14th inst.

ARRIVAL OF THE HIBERNIA.

Two Weeks Later.

Austria and Hungary.

The Hungarians continue successful. They had defeated and out-manœuvred the enemy, placed the Austrians in peril and cut off the Russians from their base of operations. The three great Generals are now in communication with each other, ready to act together if necessary, their respective positions being rendered secure by the nature of the country, while there is nothing to prevent their emerging from their fastnesses when an occasion may present itself. The whole population serve them heart and hand, bring food for their horses and intelligence of the enemy's movements.

The London News, of Aug. 3, has dates from Vienna, to July 28th. General Georgey having beating the Russians at Tapes, entered Naschau, crossed the Theiss, and reached Vienna. Already there were rumors of intentions to negotiate for peace. Lenswar is reported to have surrendered to the Magyas. The Ban Jellavich was continuing his retreat toward the South. General Bem announced his victory to Kossuth in these words: Bem, Ban, Boun. In a later despatch he says; "Our army requires now to conquer only two generals more, Julius and Augustus."

Letters from Cracow, of 23d June, state that a number Russian troops who were on the point of leaving the above city for Hungary, received counter-orders. Seventy railway wagons recenily arrived at Cracow, filled with wounded Russians from Hungary.

On the 15th July a desperate battle was fought at Waetzen between the Russian General, Paskievitch, and the Hungarians, commanded by Georgey, in which the former were defeated; the army of Georgey having broken through the enemy's lines marched north, and effected a junction with the main. A letter from the seat of war says: "The attack of the Hungarians upon Paskievitch was tremendous; the Russians were borne down and compelled to leave before the terrible onslaught of the Magyars, who fought with unexampled courage and daring.

Italy.

Although the French have restored the Government of the Pope at Rome, they have not been able to persuade his holiness to return to the Vatican. Oudinot has been himself at Gaeta in hopes of persuading the Pope, but with what effect has not been ascertained.

Austria.

The Piedmont Treaty is not settled; both parties have expressed a determination to make no concessions, and it is said that under these circumstances Sardinia had demanded the support of France.

The Milan Gazette, of the 22d, states that a rumor was current on the Neapolitan frontiers, that Garibaldi had embarked for America under favor of a disguise, and that the bands in the Apennines merely pass up his name as a sort of prestige. Charles Albert, Ex-king of Sardinia, died at Lisbon on the 26th July.

Turkey.

Advices from Constantinople state that an army of 30,000 men had been ordered to assemble on the Hungarian frontier between Gunswar and Lemlins, to protect the Turkish territory, and to disarm all who may be driven across the frontier.

Canada.

The city of Montreal has again been thrown into a state of great excitement, owing to the supposed recent Government arrests of persons implicated in the late riots. Our dispatches represent the city as almost in a state of siege. Last night a riot took place, fire arms were used and one man killed.

More Fighting in Florida—Retreat of Militia—Plantations Deserted—Requisitions for U. S. Troops.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 4, 1849.

Further information was recieved on Wednesday in Savannah, of Indian outrages in Florida. They attacked some settlements lying between Tampa Bay and Charlotte harbor, murdering six or seven negroes. Troops from Tampa Bay immediately started on the Indian trail. They pursued them to a stream, on the oppsite banks of which one hundred warriors appeared, shouting the war-hoop, and daring the troops to cross. The number of the latter being small they retreated. The plantations are all deserted. The frontier towns along the St. John's and Lake Monroe, have been placed under military discipline. It is rumored that other Indians have arrived from Alabama. The Governor of Florida, has made a requisition for a large number of troops. The war will be prosecuted rigorously.

The American Flag Insulted by French Troops at Rome.

After the French troops had possession of Rome, a band of soldiers entered the house of Mr. Cass, Charge d'Affairs of the United States, having the American Flag flying before the house, and forcibly made prisoners of two men who were in the house of the Charge, for the purpose of obtaining passports. This disregard of the presence and protection of a neutral and friendly flag, is equally a violation of the laws of nations, and an indignity and insult to our flag and nation. The present French government, conduct their affairs, as if they had been trained in the school of Guizot. They show a decided penchant for interfering in the affairs of other nations, and an especial hostility to Republics. It is to be hoped that our government will promptly require and compel an ample apology and atonement for the wrong done to our national honor. A neutral flag is always held as a protection, whether it be on the national or a foreign soil, or at sea. And its violation by invading the threshold of the representative of our country in a foreign country, is an equal wrong to the invasion of our own soil. Mr. Cass wrote a note to Gen. Oudinot, demanding an apology. This note was written on the 6th July, and up to the 9th, no answer had been received. The American flag has been taken down from the houses of the Charge and Consul, and it is said, in the letter from which this information is derived, that, if an apology should not be made, Mr. Cass will leave the city.

A Proclamation by the President of the United States.

There is reason to believe that an armed expedition is about to be fitted out in the United States with an intention to invade the Island of Cuba, or some of the provinces of Mexico. The best information which the Executive has been able to obtain, points to the Island of Cuba as the object of this expedition. It is the duty of this Government to observe the faith of treaties, and to prevent any aggressions by our citizens upon territories of friendly nations. I have therefore, thought it necessary and proper to issue this proclamation to warn all citizens of the United States who shall connect themselves with an enterprise so grossly in violation of our laws and of our treaty obligations, that they will thereby subject themselves to the heavy penalties denounced against them by our acts of Congress, and will forfeit their claim to the protection of their country. No such persons must expect the interference of the Government in any form in their behalf, no matter to what extremity they may be reduced in consequence of their conduct, in an enterprise to invade the territories of a friendly nation, set on foot, and prosecuted within the limits of the United States, is in the highest degree criminal, as tending to endanger the peace, and compromise the honor of this nation, and therefore, I expect all good citizens, as they regard our national reputation,—as they respect their own laws, and the laws of nations—as they value the blessings of peace, and the welfare of their country, to discourage and prevent by all lawful means any such enterprise; and I call upon every officer of this Government, civil or military, to use all efforts in his power to arrest for trial, and punishment, every such offender against the laws providing for the performance of our sacred obligations to friendly powers.

Given under my hand this 11th day of August, in the year of our Lord, 1849, and 74th of the Independence of the U. S.

By the President of the U. S.
Z. TAYLOR.

J. M. CLAYTON, Sec. of State.

The Republic says, "the above proclamation was received yesterday at the Department of State, on communications from the President at Harrisburg. Information has been for some time in possession of the Government to the effect that bodies of men were in course of being levied and drilled, in New Orleans, New York and other cities of the Union: that money to considerable amounts had been contributed—that arms had been provided and arrangements made on a large scale with a view to some military expedition. Their movements have been conducted with great secrecy, and the object of the enterprise has been concealed even from the individuals who have embarked in it. Sufficient evidence has, however, been obtained to satisfy the President, that the design of the expedition is an invasion of Cuba, and that the intervention of the Executive was necessary to preserve our neutral obligation, and to keep unsullied the honor of the American people.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.

NEW ORLEANS, July 29, 1849.

Highly Important Movement in New Orleans—An Invasion of Mexico Threatened—Secret Expedition—Men and Arms on Hand, &c.

Having seen no mention in any of the public journals, at either the North or the South, or even an intimation of an important movement which has been going on in this city for some time past, and which is at this moment being conducted in a secret way, I cannot do better than detail to you its origin, progress, and prospect—pledging myself that startling as it is, and important as it will be at no distant day, on our relations with the neighboring Republic of Mexico, what I shall state may be relied upon as true and authentic. Now for the facts.

For some time past, several men, calling themselves agents of an expeditionary enterprise, have been enlisting men in this city with the understanding, private and secret, that they shall perform duty in any service in which their aid may be required when the expedition shall have arrived at its destination. Immediately after the enlistment of each man, he is made acquainted with certain secret signs by which he can recognize his fellow associates, agents or officers; and, as I also learn, each man binds himself to keep the fact of such an expedition being in process of formation to himself, and to reveal it to no one. Another stipulation which those who enlist in this enterprise are obliged to enter into, is that the destination of the expedition is not to be made known to them until the vessel in which they are to embark shall have reached a certain latitude and longitude. When that particular point shall have been reached, the object and intent of the expedition, as well as the point of debarkation, will be fully made known to them, and they will be expected to obey their officers, and perform the military service which they entered into in this city. Fifteen hundred men, or more, have at this time announced their readiness to embark in this enterprise, and the number is increasing every day. A formidable quantity of arms has also been secured, consisting of fifteen or twenty thousand muskets, which were purchased of government contractors in New York, Philadelphia, and other places, and they are safely secured in the place appointed for the expedition to land at. The active men in this affair, the leaders, who command and are now carrying it on, will visit the northern cities, where (in New York particularly,) they expect to be able to get all such additional recruits as they desire.

I have as yet said nothing of the object of this great movement, nor the point at which the expedition will debark. You recollect very well, that, for some time past, there have been rumors of a revolutionary character in the northern part of Mexico, and that it has been expected by the Mexican government that an attempt would be made to establish an independent republic in the Northern States, to be called the Republic of the Sierra Madre. The subject caused a great deal of anxiety to the central government in Mexico; the troops were sent there some months ago, and other measures adopted to nip it in the bud. Now the object of this expedition is to carry out the formation of the Republic of the Sierra Madre, to separate that territory from the Mexican Republic, proclaim its independence, and maintain it by force. It was in this way that the separation and independence of Texas was brought about; and the scheme in that instance having succeeded so well it will be tried now in Sierra Madre. The place of debarkation and rendezvous, is Tampico, in the State of Tamaulipas, which, you are aware, is very accessible from New Orleans.

A great many of the soldiers and officers in the late war with Mexico, have joined the movement; and I am credibly informed that it has received the approbation, if, indeed, it has not emanated from, some of the leading citizens of the South.

Some of these statesmen think that the time has arrived when not to resent in a way often threatened, the continual encroachments of the North on the rights of the South, and their repeated and incessant attacks on the institution of slavery, ought justly to be considered cowardly and craven hearted. A dissolution of the Union has been frequently threatened, and this movement is the commencement of a train of events, that will lead to such a consumation, on the part of the South, under the guidance of the leading Southern politician. The expectation is, that the Sierra Madre would, of course, in due time be annexed to the United States; and as soon as that is accomplished, the South will recede from the Union, and, with the Sierra Madre, form a separate and independent republic, leaving the North to act as it plesses. With such a vast increase of cotton, rice, tobacco, and sugar-producing soil, the new Southern republic, it is thought would be able to control the markets of the world, as far as those staples are concerned.

I believe I have not left any point of consequence connected with this secret expedition, its objects and purposes, untouched. You may use them or not, as you may think proper, but that they are strictly true, I will pledge my existence. I shall write to you again, in a few days, or sooner, if anything important concerning this expedition, not already detailed in this letter shall reach me.

The speech of Thomas Butler King to the people of San Francisco appears, from the imperfect sketch given of it, to come directly to the point.

The speedy formation of a State Government there is, certainly, a wise and prudent measure of the present administration; and a more gentlemanly, agreeable and pleasant man could hardly be found as an agent to further the wishes and designs of the Government in this respect, than this same Mr. King, of Georgia. When a State Government is there organized, the question of the Extension of Slavery into California will be decided by the lords of that soil, and thereby happily relieve the Home Government from a most vexed, intricate and embarrassing question,—a question on which the domestic peace and happiness of the country and the fate of the nation have been suspended.

We really hope Mr. King may return with the laurels of success to which his known ability, kind and gentlemanly address, and his most powerful eloquence justly entitle him:

Speech of T. Butler King, at San Francisco, California.

The New York Herald contains reports of several speeches made at a public meeting in San Francisco, relative to the organization of a State Government, Judge Burnett first addressed the people, and then introduced the Hon. T. Butler King, a member of Congress from Georgia.

He expressed his thanks for the high honor conferred upon him, in calling on him to address so important a meeting of the people, who were to make the solemn decision whether they would sustain the movement in favor of a State Government. He complimented the people of San Francisco on the hospitality they extended to them; spoke eloquently of the beautiful Bay before him, which would soon have the flags of all nations floating upon it. He said he was delighted with this country, about which he had written much and thought more. Mr. King unfortunately felt himself called on by the severe remarks by Judge Burnett, in denunciation of Congress, to take up the defence of that body, which was evidently not his intention when he arrived at the meeting. He went into the history of the division that now so unhappily exists in the United States on the slavery question, and explained the Wilmot Proviso. He then proceeded in an eloquent manner to appeal to the people of California to settle that question forever, by forming a State Government. Said he, we cannot settle it on the other side of the Rocky mountains—it must be settled here. The North are as one man in favor of the Wilmot proviso; the South equally unanimous against it. There are fifteen free States, and the vote on the question will be equal in the Senate. The South were willing to leave the question of slavery to you, to settle it in your own country in your own way; but the Northern members considered themselves instructed by public sentiment at home to attach the Wilmot proviso to every bill brought to provide a government for this territory. Thus Congress was paralysed, and will be until you take the question from their hands and settle it. With the North it is a sentiment—with the South a point of honor; and those of you who are familiar with the history of the Pilgrim fathers who landed on the rock of Plymouth, and the Cavalies who settled the South, must know that their descendants will never give up positions taken with such determination. We look to you to settle the question, by becoming a State. The people of the old States ardently desire it. "I speak knowingly when I say the administration desire it; and from extensive intercourse, with the members of the last Congress, I am convinced they are most anxious for the question to be settled in this way. You will have no difficulty in being admitted as a State. I pledge myself to it, and I pledge the administration, and I think I may speak equally confidently for the next Congress.

Form a State government, send on your senators and representatives, and then admission is certain. You had reputation in that body. Immense appropriations have to be made for public purposes here. Millions of dollars will be readily voted by Congress for public buildings and to improve your rivers and harbors. You should have advice in these appropriations, and in selecting sights for their expenditure." He then commented, in a playful mood, for sometime upon Judge Barnett's denunciations of Congress for passing the bill extending the revenue laws over this country. He said Uncle Sam had paid twenty millions of dollars for the country. He was informed by the collector that the revenue amounted to about a hundred thousand dollars a month, just six per cent. upon the purchase money paid; and when the millions that would be made out in appropriations was taken into consideration, the government was likely to be the loser so far as dollars and cents were concerned. But that did not weigh a feather with the government. It was that great bay, which would command the trade of the Pacific, that caused the purchase of the country. If the country had been a barren waste, the government would have paid the same to secure the harbor. He then alluded in eloquent terms to the mineral resources of the country, and its future destiny—said we would soon have a railroad completed from the great father of waters to this bay, that within ten years we would go in six days to St. Louis, sleeping all the way, and in eight to New York, and in eight minutes, in less than ten years, we would, through the lightning rods, talk with our brethren on the Atlantic ocean. He closed with a glowing eulogy on the flag of our country, which was hung aloft in the square where the crowd were assembled. [My sketch of Mr. King's speech is imperfect, from the fact that I was crowded and unpleasantly situated for hearing and taking notes, but made myself more comfortable afterwards.]

Table of Interments in the several Public Cemeteries attached to St. Louis, from the 23d day of April, to the 6th of August, 1849.

		Total.	Cholera.	under 5 yrs.
For the week end'g	April 30,	131	41	50
" "	May 7,	135	78	28
" "	May 14,	273	185	46
" "	May 21,	192	127	24
" "	May 28,	186	115	44
" "	June 4,	144	75	24
" "	June 11,	283	191	72
" "	June 18,	510	304	106
" "	June 25,	163	589	164
" "	July 2,	903	619	230
" "	July 9,	773	591	192
" "	July 16,	867	639	197
" "	July 23,	442	269	140
" "	July 30,	225	93	94
" "	Aug. 6,	152	34	72
		5,989	4,060	1,493

Great Defalcation.

The St. Louis papers have much to say about the Bank of Missouri being minus about $121,000. The money is supposed to have been embezzled by some of the attaches or officers of the bank. Much speculation appears to be afloat in regard to it: but all is mystery at present. A vigorous examination is now going on by the legal officers, and it is hoped that the result of their labors will exhibit the guilty party. Mr. Childs, one of the tellers, is undergoing an examination which, it is thought, will lead to a full development of the roguery.

Thompson and Barnett the men that robbed Nisbets' Banking House at St. Louis were sentenced on the 15th inst., to ten years imprisonment in the State Prison.

Elections.

Tennessee has elected seven Locofoco, and four Whig Congressmen, being a loss of one Whig when compared with the last delegation. In the State Senate, there is a Whig majority of from one to three. The House is yet doubtful.

KENTUCKY.—Six Whigs and four Locofocos have been elected to Congress, making no change in the delegation from this State. In the State Convention to amend the Constitution the Whigs have a small majority. Both Houses of the Legislature contain Whig majorities, though not so great as last year.

The election returns from Alabama indicate that the delegation to the next Congress will stand the same as the last two years, five Democrats.

In Indiana the Democrats also have succeeded in electing their Governor.

IOWA.—The returns come in very slow only a few counties have been heard from. As far as heard from for Board of Public Works is as follows:

Counties.	Whig maj.	Dem. maj.
Pottawatamie,	546
Dubuque,		300
Jackson,		maj.
Clayton,		maj.
Delaware,	a tie.
Lee,	250
Desmoines,		175
Muscatine,	maj.
Henry,	200
Jefferson,		35
Van Buren,		maj.
Wapello,	80

ADVERTISEMENTS.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

A LARGE IMPORTATION OF ENGLISH & FRENCH

Dry Goods, Hardware and Cutlery,

BROUGHT DIRECT, and this day opened for sale to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Kanesville and other inhabitants of Pottawatamie county by BROWN & BARHAM.

GROCERIES, sugar, tea, coffee, salt, soap, &c.
PRINTS—English and American, and domestics.
BLANKETS—quilts, carpets, rugs, woolens.
CALICO—shirting and shirts of all colors.
FLANNELS—muslins, jaconets, gauze;
RIBBONS—satin, sersenet, galloons, binding;
CLOTHES—velveteens, cords, moleskin and cloth;
SHEETING—tick, diaper, towelling;
HOSE—woolen and cotton, gloves, socks and stockings;
LADIES Alapacca, Merino, Coburgh and French dresses;
LACES—French and English, silk and cotton thread, nets, quilling and flowers;
SEWED MUSLIN—collars, braids, thread, needles, pins and thimbles;
SILK AND SATIN—bows, ties, neckcloths, h'k's and eyes;
SMALLWARES—buttons, glass, steel, gilt, silk and satin;
THREADS—silk, linen, and cotton of all colors;
SHOES—ferretts, edging, binding, caps and bonnets;
IRISH LINEN—Union check;
TOOLS—double and cut plain irons, chisels, gouges and augers of all sizes, drawing knives;
SAWS—taper, pit and mill, ripping, compass and hand saws, also turning webs, pit and hand saw sets and tillers;
FILES—bastard, horse rasps and flat wood files;
GIMBLETS—shell and spike, turnscrews;
NAILS AND GLASS;
STEEL—knives, forks, pocket and pen knives, screws, door hinges, scissors and spoons of good, and common quality, door locks;
SALERATUS—spices, oils, paints, varnish, saltpetre, olive oil, camphor;
LIQUORS—rectified whisky, gin and cognac brandy, by the Gallon.
HAMS—barley, rice, dried apples and peaches;
RAISINS—currants, almonds, allspice and pickles;
TOBACCO AND SNUFF—Ginger, tartar, wax and candles;
POWDER—lead, vinegar, flannens soldier;
TARTANS AND PLAIDS—a good selection from Scotland, for ladies and gentlemen's dresses—all offered CHEAP for cash, by

BROWN & BARHAM.

Kanesville, Aug. 23, 1849.

FOR SALE.

A VALUABLE improvement situated in the North part of Fremont county, adjoining Mr. Muggards on the South, consisting of thirty-five acres under good fence, and in a good state of cultivation. Two good cabins and other valuable improvements. Plenty of good, timber, and directly in the neighborhood of the rushes. Place formerly occupied by Charles Allen. Enquire at THIS OFFICE.

Kanesville, Aug. 29, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Kanesville and Pottawatamie County, that he has opened a shop in Kanesville where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Fine Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

Shop opposite the Bluff House, Main Street.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Kanesville, Aug 29, 1849.

BLUFF HOUSE.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.

Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.

Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness and Bridle Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

S. F. POULTERER—General Engraver on wood, brass, copper and jewelry. Orders left at the Printing Office, or at the Union Hotel will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, July 25th, 1849—tf

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at July 25th. C. VOORHIS'.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEAS—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate artilce at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

NEW GOODS
AT LINDEN, MISSOURI,

THE undersigned has just received per steamer "Mustang," 65 tons assorted merchandise—which makes his stock of goods the largest and most complete, ever brought to this country—among which may be found every description of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Iron, Queensware, Hardware and Cutlery, Saddlery, Boots and Shoes, Sole and Upper Leather, Calf Skins, Tin Ware, Stone Ware, Medicines and Dye Stuffs, Ready Made Clothing,

And every thing else usually kept in stores in this country. My terms are CASH or TRADE in hand. And I pledge myself to sell every description of goods as low as they can be bought in St. Joseph or elsewhere in the Platte purchase.

Call at the sign of the CHEAP CASH STORE.

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June, 1849.—3m*

FOR SALE AT LINDEN, Mo.

60 sacks best Rio coffee;
6000 lbs N. O. Sugar;
6 bbls S. H. molasses;
3 " vinegar;
100 " Clon. whisky;
50 " Kanawha salt;
110 sks G. A. salt;
80 bush dried apples;
20 bxs soap;
10 " raisins;
10 " candles;
10 " G. P. and Imperial teas;
16 " tobacco;
10 kegs powder;
15 " nails;
600 lbs cotton batting;
3 coils manilla rope;
1 box clothes pins;
1 pask log chains;
10 Jewett plows;
12 grindestones, &c.

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June 27, 1849—3m*

LAND WARRANTS WANTED—20 Land Warrants wanted—for which I will pay the highest price in Cash or Goods.

S. F. NUCKOLLS.

Linden, Mo., June 27, 1849.—3m*

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Calfers;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Well Ties;	" galter do;
" do do Buskins;	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Galter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Galters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the mammoth boot on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING.

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the best opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

STILL THEY COME.
NEW GOODS
AT NEEDHAM & FERGUSON'S
STORE,

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON has just received a choice selection of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARD-WARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

Mr. Ferguson residing most of his time in St. Louis, we are enabled to watch the market, and select the goods at the best possible advantage. We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident we have one of the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

CHILDHOOD HOURS.

BY CHARLES S. BAILEY.

How sweet to every feeling heart
The memory of the past;
To think of days when love and joy
Around our hearts were cast;
To let our thoughts swift take their flight,
O'er days when life was new---
Roam through the haunts of pleasant youth,
Those scenes again review.

The old oak tree whose spreading limbs
Threw round a fragrant shade,
Is waving forth his branches yet,
In lovely green arrayed.
The little rill with flowery banks
Is flowing on the same;
Sweet days of childhood, they are past—
They will not come again.

Methinks down near the wood I see
The school-house standing yet;
The flowery lawn, the grassy glade,
The winding rivulet.
Methinks I hear my play-mates call
Now, sounding o'er the plain;
But 'tis a dream—those days are past—
They will not come again.

Where are the comrads of my youth,
Whose voices were so gay,
Whose hearts were pure and motives good
In childhood's happy day?
Alas! I see them now no more,
For some are in the grave;
Others are sailing on the deep,
Upon the foaming wave.

Time changes all—we all must die,
And sink at last to rest;
This life is but a fleeting dream
When taken at its best;
But ah! We have that joyful hope,
The sweet assurance given,
That when we part from tedious life,
We hope to meet in Heaven.

The Wayfaring Man.

A poor wayfaring man of grief
Hath often cross'd me on my way,
Who sued so humbly for relief
That I could never answer Nay:
I had not power to ask his name,
Whither he went or whence he came;
Yet there was something in his eye
That won my love, I know not why.

Once when my scanty meal was spread
He enter'd; not a word he spake;
Just perishing for want of bread;
I gave him all: he bless'd it, brake
And ate, but gave me part again;
Mine was an angel's portion then,
For while I fed with eager haste,
The crust was manna to my taste.

I spied him where a fountain burst,
Clear from the rock; his strength was gone,
The heedless water mock'd his thirst,
He heard it, saw it, hurrying on;
I ran and raised the sufferer up,
Thrice from the stream he drain'd my cup,
Dip't and returned it running o'er;
I drank, and never thirsted more.

'Twas night, the floods were out, it blew,
A winter hurricane aloof;
I heard his voice abroad, and flew
To bid him welcome to my roof:
I warm'd, I cloth'd, I cheered my guest,
I laid him on my couch to rest,
Then made the earth my bed, and seem'd
In Eden's garden while I dream'd.

Stript, wounded, beaten, nigh to death,
I found him by the highway side;
I roused his pulse, brought back his breath,
Revived his spirit, and supplied
Wine, oil, refreshment; he was heal'd;
I had, myself, a wound conceal'd,
But from that hour forgot the smart,
And peace bound up my broken heart.

In prison I saw him next,—condemn'd
To meet a traitor's doom at morn;
The tide of lying tongues I stemm'd,
And honor'd him mid'st shame and scorn:
My friendship's utmost zeal to try,
He ask'd—if I for him would die;
The flesh was weak, my blood ran chill,
But the free spirit cried, "I will."

Then in a moment to my view,
The stranger started from disguise;
The tokens in his hands I knew,
My Savior stood before mine eyes;
He spake—and my poor name he named,—
"Of me thou hast not been ashamed,
"These deeds shall thy memorial be;
"Fear not, thou didst them unto me."

MISCELLANY.

From the Republic.

A Phase of City Life.

Passing along Fulton street this morning, my eye happened to catch the following brief and singularly emphatic announcement, written in a good, bold hand, and pasted on an awning-post, opposite Alderman Stoneall's famous cabaret:

****
"WANTED,
A GOOD DINNER!"
****

This significant advertisement excited a train of reflection. It struck me as a veritable instance of the true sublime. There is no unnecessary, circumlocutory mode of expression about it, unless the adjective may be obnoxious to severe criticism. There is a pathos about the address which no one can resist who really deserves a "good dinner." No meek modesty—no false delicacy—no bending of the suppliant knee are here. Webster or Brougham never condensed more lofty eloquence in one brief sentence. The epithet "good" to which I have supposed some rigid rhetoricians might possibly object, rather increases my admiration of this literary production. It discovers that the author is no common candidate for favor. He does not seek the frigid charities of the world in the hope of "cold wittles." He magnifies the office of mendicancy. He asks a "good dinner," and tacitly promises that he will do justice to it. But he gives no clue to his whereabouts. He is as inscrutable as "Junius." Who can he be? But ah! inscribed on how many awning-posts, and doorways, and crumbling hoveles in this great city might we not read far more startling and pathetic announcements than that. All along many a street, and lane, and alley we might, had we clearer vision, read, "For God's sake give me a dinner"—"give me bread"—"give me one morsel of bread!"

Is it any wonder that the pestilence should now be smiting down its thousands in our great populous cities? Could you come with me into some of those regions in this crowded metropolis in which hundreds of human beings are crammed into filthy tenements, reeking with pestilential vapors, you would be ready to exclaim that that does indeed look like just retribution, when swiftly destructive disease breaks forth amid these awful abodes of desolation and despair, and carries death and terror into the palaces of the rich, who care not for their suffering bretheren. I do not believe that people at a distance form any thing like a correct estimate of the amount of physical destitution which exists in this metropolis. Rents are so enormously high that it is impossible for great masses of the poor to obtain more than a single apartment for a large family, and that, too, in a filthy and unhealthy portion of the city. Often one hundred and fifty human beings will be found crowded together in a house not fit for the accommodation of more than thirty persons! Imagine the result. The stench is overwhelming. There is of course no moral government or dicipline, and the noise, blasphemy, disorder, quarreling, and all manner of evil which prevail, are indescribable.

Probably about one hundred thousand human beings in this city live in the manner which I have described—that is, in filthy, unventilated, crowded tenements. They consist of the lowest class of artizans, who are dissolute and earn only three or four dollars a week—of chiffoniers or rag-pickers, who collect refuse of all kinds thrown into the streets, bones, rags, and the sweepings of the stores—of pickpockets, thieves and prostitutes of the lowest character—and of German and Irish immigrants, who are induced to linger in this city, destitute of means and unable to obtain any thing but the most precarious employment, and filling the principal streets with beggars. In proportion to its population there is as much poverty and destitution, as much abject and revolting pauperism in New York, as in any other city on the globe. Strangers do not know this, and vast numbers of the better class of our own citizens cannot imagine, as they walk the chief thoroughfares, that such a lamentable state of things exist. But they who have the means of examining the obscure regions of the metropolis know better.

How can any one be surprised, then, that a pestilential visitation should tell with fearful violence on such a population, embracing in its limits such masses of putrescent and decaying humanity? As I left my house this morning, I saw a miserable creature—a poor, famished, ragged being, that was once a full-grown man, gnawing a raw turnip which he had picked from the gutter! He was a German.

"Bad! bad!" I exclaimed, and motioned to the wretched man to cast the poisonous morsel from him.

"Oh! nein, nein!" he replied, still eagerly biting the turnip; "das ist sehr gut!—es ist suss! Ich habe hunger!" ("Oh! no, no! This is good—it is sweet! I am hungry!")

I beckoned to him to come with me, and said I would give him something better. Still retaining his dangerous prize, and looking as if half suspecting my good intentions, he followed me to my house; and it was only when he received a piece of bread and meat that he threw the turnip away.

How long is all this to last? When, oh! when will the rich and pious awake to the conviction that it is not enough to build churches that cost half a million a piece, and send scores of missionaries to Burmah and Seringapatam?

RULES FOR THE JOURNEY OF LIFE.—The following rules, from the papers of Dr. West, were, according to his memoran dum, thrown together as general waymarks in the journey of life:

Never to ridicule sacred thongs or what others may esteem such, however absurd they may aprear to be.

Never to show leveity when people are professedly engaged in worship.

Never to resent a supposed injury till I know the views and motives of the author of it. Nor on any occasion to retaliate.

Never to judge a person's character by external appearances.

Always to take the part of an absent person who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.

Never to think the worse of another on account of his differing from me in political or religious opinions.

Not to dispute with a man more than 70 years of age, nor with a woman, nor an enthusiast.

Not to affect to be witty or to jest so as to wound the feelings of another.

To say as little as possible of myself, and those who are near me.

To aim at cheerfulness withhout levity.

Not to obtrude my advice unasked.

Never to court the favor of the rich by flattering either their vanity or their vices.

To speak with calmness and deliberation on all occasions; especially in circumstances which tend to irritate.

Freq ently to review my conduct and note my failings.

On all occasions to have in prospect the end of life and a future state.

"AWFUL CALCULATIONS."—One of our exchanges says—"An ingenious, authentic and valuable statistical work, published a few years since, states that the number of inhabitants who have lived on the earth, amounts to about 36,627,843,275,075,846;" and that, supposing the earth to be one vast burying ground, and the dead to have been equally distributed over its surface, it must have been "dug one hundred times over to bury its inhabitants." Now, we do not profess to be particularly "good at figering, as Major Downing would say; but it appears to us, that if the estimate of the author of the authentic publication above noticed is correct, this globe of ours must be incomparably more ancient than chronologers have generally believed. For, supposing that about thirty-six millions die annually—which is probably a liberal estimate—it would require one thousand millions of years to make up the total of the "awful calculation."

THE ART OF SHOPPING.—"What's the price of this article?" inquired a deaf old lady.

"Seven shillings!" said the draper.

"Seventeen shillings!" she exclaimed, "I'll give you thirteen."

"Seven shillings," replied the honest tradesman, "is the price of the article."

"Oh! seven shillings," the lady sharply replied, "I'll give you five."

Razor Strop Man's Logic.

"Some folks say that it is right to drink alcohol, because it is a good creature of God. Well, grant that is, so is castor oil and so is vinegar a good creature of God; but is that a sufficient reason for a person to drink it three, four or a dozen times a day! A dog is a good creature of God; but suppose a dog gets mad, and bites a man or woman, would you let him alone because, as you say, he was a good creature? Would you be satisfied with cutting off his ear or tail; or would you knock him on the head, and pitch him headlong into the street!—Now alcohol is more dangerous than a mad dog, for a bite from a mad dog only destroys life, while a bite from alchy destroys reason, reputation, and everything else, besides dragging down the family of the bitten man to poverty and want.

But alchy doesn't bite a mouthful at first. When he first snapped at me, he only tickled me a little. I liked it first rate, and was anxious to get another, and still another bite. The old rascal of a tyrant kept a nibbling away at my heels, as though he didn't mean to harm me, while I, like a poor fool kept coaxing him on, until at last he gave me a 'snap' in earnest, and took the elbows right out of my coat! Next, he took the crown out of my hat, the shoes off my feet, the money out of my pocket, and the sense out of my head, until at last I went raving mad through the streets, perfectly a victim to alchiphobia. But I signed the pledge and got cured; and if there is any man who has bren bitten as I was, let him take this teetotal medicine, and I'll warrant him a speedy cure.

But allowing alcohol is a good creature of God, are there not other good creatures too, such as beef, pork, puddings, pies, clothes, dollars and fifty others of the same sort!" Now, shall a man cling to the one good creature, and leave the ninety and nine untouched! Shall a man drink whisky because it is a good creature of God's, and go without good food, a good home, a good hat, a good fat wallet, a good handsome wife, and good, well-dressed children? No sir-ree! As for me, give me good beef and pudding, good pork and sausage, good friends, a good bed, good clothes, a good wife, and good children, (or bad, rather than miss, and I'll try to make 'em good,) and old king alchy may go to —— Texas, for all I care.

Some say that wine is a "good creature" because our Savior once turned water into wine. Very good! but then he didn't turn rum, gin, whisky, logwood, coculus-indicus and cockroaches into wine, like some people do. He turned water into wine—Now, if any wine-bibbling apologist will take a gallon of pure water, and by praying over it, or in any other way, will turn it into good wine, without mixing any other stuff with it, I'm the boy as will go in for a wag of it! Such wine must be good and I go in for that kind and nothing else. But as for your nasty, filthy, drunken stuff, which is sold in your grog-shops, it's a base counterfeit, and it's a blasphemous libel on our blessed Savior to liken it to the pure beverage he made.

Now, you, such as prefer one good creature of God's to all the rest; go and drink rum or whisky until you get picked as bare as a sheep's back, after it has crawled through a briar patch; but you as prefer the ninety and nine good creatures, go right and sign the pledge. Thousands have been saved by putting their names to that precious document, and still there is room for a "few more of the same sort."—[Nashville Christian Advocate.

HUNTING FOR SUNKEN TREASURES.—Some young men from Boston recently took it into their heads to pass their summer vacation in testing the availability of a new sub-marine apparatus, by visiting the spot where his Majesty's brig Plumper was lost in 1812, and searching for some of the dollars and doubloons lost on that occasion. The spot lies between Dipper harbor and Point Lepran, about forty-four miles from Eastport, Maine, in a northeasterly direction, at the foot of an almost perpendicular cliff, some seventy or eighty feet in height, and where the depth of the water is about sixty feet. The operating party use an apparatus of India-rubber on the plan of Taylor's sub-marine armor. The diver is supplied with air by tubes, into which it is forced by an engine. Nearly $2,000 have been recovered by this enterprising party; some in gold, but the greater part in silver. The amount of specie lost in the Plumper was £74,000.

It would be a curious sight to see all the babies in the United States, under five years of age, they would be a pretty little collection of 2,400,000. What a squaling there would be should they all be spanked at the same time, and what a great heap of sugar plums it would take to quiet them!

"If you don't give me a penny," cried a young hopeful to his mamma, "I know a boy that's got the measles, and I'll go and catch 'em, so I will."

Gumbo whar you lib now?" "I dosen't lib no whar—I gib up resid'n tree weeks ago, and moved off on account ob de ceedin inhumidity ob de wedder.

The climax of human indifference has arrived when a lady don't care how she looks.

"Some years ago a chap in a town of Maine, having played the "gay gallant" a little too freely to a distiller's daughter—quite over-stepping the modesty of nature—he was called to account by the old gentleman, who demanded sharply "what excuse he had for such conduct?"

"Nothing," was the reply, "but exuberance of spirits."

"Is that all, you graceless?" rejoined the old fellow, as he brought down his cane upon the floor with terrible emphasis; "then let me tell you sir, the sooner you get them rectified the better.—[Yankee Blade.

WOMEN ARE RARELY CONFUSED.—A young gentleman who was in the act of popping the question to a young lady was, interrupted by the father entering the room, enquired what they were about.—"Oh," replied the fair one, "Mr——was just explaining the question of annexation to me, and he is for immediate annexation." "Well," said Papa, "if you can agree on a treaty, I'll ratify it."

BEAUTIFUL SKETCH.—The character of the Indian, the majesty of the forest in which he roams and the perfect freedom he enjoys from all restraints of civilization, naturally inspire the mind with poetic conceptions, when pondering on his race and destiny. At least such an effect seems to have been produced on Mr. Bancroft, our Minister to London, if we may judge from the following beautiful description which he has given of the Indian mother and her babe:

"How helpless the Indian babe, born without shelter, amidst storms and ice; but fear nothing for him. God has placed near him a guardian angel, that can triumph over the severities of nature—the sentinel of maternity is by his side, and so long as his mother breathes he is safe. The squaw loves her child with instinctive passion, and if she does not manifest it by lively caresses, her tenderness is real, wakeful and constant. No savage mother ever trusted her babe to a hireling nurse, or ever put away her own child, to suckle that of another. To the cradle, consisting of light wood, and gaily ornamented with quills of the porcupine, and beads, and rattles, the nursling is firmly attached, and carefully wrapped in furs; and the infant thus swarthed its back to the mother's back, is borne as the topmost burden, its eye now cheerfully flashing light, now accompanied with tears, the wailings which the plaintive melodies of the carrier cannot hush. Or, while the squaw toils in the field, she hangs her child, as spring does her blossoms, on the bough of a tree, that it may be rocked by the breezes from the land of souls, and soothed to sleep by the lullaby of the birds. Does the mother die, the nursling—such is Indian compassion—shares her grave."

"What's that?" asked a schoolmaster, pointing to X. "It's daddy's name." "No, you blockhead it is X." "Tain't X nuther! It's daddy's name, for I have seen him write it many a time."

A clergyman in sprinkling an infant who had been used to cold water, kept dashing the Croton in its face until asked what this was for? "Sin doth not depart," said the parson, "until the child crieth!"

JOURNALS SUPPRESSED.—The six journals suspended by the decree of the President of France, are the Peuple, Bevolution Democratatique et Sociale, La Vraiel, Republique, Democratic Pacifique, Reforme, and Tribune des Peuples.

The Republique, Estafette, and Liberte, whose publication was suspended from other causes, have reappeared.

INTERESTING TO BACHELORS.—A boarding house keeper in Baltimore advertises to furnish "gentlemen with pleasant and comfortable rooms; also, one or two gentlemen with wives."

Treasures.

He that neglects time, time will neglect.
By the character of those whom we choose for our friends, our own is likely to be formed.
Has one served thee? Tell it to many
Hast thou served many? Tell it not.
Some are unwisely liberal, and more delight to give presents, than to pay debts.
Ignorance is the curse of God; knowledge the wing whereby we fly to heaven.
As the sweetest rose grows upon the sharpest prickle, so the hardest labors bring forth the sweetest profits.
Narrow-minded men who have not a thought beyond the sphere of their own vision, recalled the Hindoo saying, "the snail sees nothing but its own shell, and thinks it the grandest place in the universe."
One of the hours each day wasted in trifles and indolence, saved, and daily devoted to improvement, is enough to make an ignorant man wise in ten years—to provide the luxury of intelligence to a mind torpid from lack of thought—to brighten up and strengthen faculties perishing with rust—to make life a fruitful field, and death a harvest of glorious deeds.
To superiors, true politeness appears in a respectful freedom of manner—no greatness can awe it into servility, and no intimacy can sink it into a regardless familiarity. To inferiors it shows itself in an unassuming good nature; its aim is to raise them to your standard, not to lower yourself to theirs. To equals, it is everything that is charming; the just medium between form and rudeness—it is the consequence of a benevolent nature, which shows itself to general acquaintance in an obliging and unconstrained civility, as it does to more particular ones in distinguished acts of unostentatious kindness.
As the horrors of the grave affect only the living, so the miseries of poverty exist, principally, perhaps, in the imagination of the affluent. The labor of the poor man relieves him, at least from the burden of fashionable ennui, and the constant pressure of physical inconveniences, from the more elegant, but surely not less intolerable distress of a refined and romantic sensibility. Even those superior intelectual advantages of education, to which the more opulent are almost exclusively admitted, may, in some cases, open only new avenues to sorrow. The mind, in proportion as it is expanded, exposes a larger surface to impression.—[Dr. Reid.

THE THUNDER-CLOUD AND THE DEW DROP.—We tremble when the thunder cloud bursts in fury over our heads—the poet seizes on the terrors of the storm to add to the interest of his verse. Fancy paints a storm-king, and the genius of romance clothes his demons in lightning, and they are heralded by the thunders. These wild imaginings have been the delight of mankind—there is subject for wonder in them. But is there anything less wonderful in the well authenticated fact, that the dew drop which glistens on the flower—that the tear which trembles on the eyelid—holds locked, in its transparent cells, an amount of electric fire equal to that which is discharged during a storm from a thunder cloud.

NEW ENGLAND'S FAIR DAUGHTERS.—The Boston Post says of them: "Industry and virtue being their inheritance, they blush on being kissed by the rising sun in the morning; and are not ashamed of being kissed by the sitting son in the evening."

"Look here, Pete," said a knowing darkey, don't stand dar on de railroad!"—"Why, Joe?" "Kase, if de cars see dat mouf ob yours, day tink it am de depo', and run rite in.

SEASONABLE HINTS.—A cotemporary gives the following advice for those whom it may concern.

TO THE BOYS.—Never marry a gal who is fond of being always in the street—who is fond of running to night meetings—who has a jewelled hand and an empty head—who will see her mother work, and toil while she lays in bed and reads novels or feigns sickness—who is ashamed to own her mother because she dresses plain, never learned grammer or was accustomed to the etiquette of the drawing-room—who is always complaining that she cannot get money enough to dress like Miss So-and-so, or go to parties like Such-a-one, who wears her shoes slipshod or has a hole in her stocking and is too lazy to mend it. Should you get such a one, depend upon it, you will have a dirty, untidy, miserable home and life of it. You will be kept poor all your life. But the kind, affectionate, tidy girl who helps her mother, is always anxious to accommodate mother, father, brothers and sisters; who is kind to the poor; who dresses neatly, and according to her means; who is always cheerful and fond of accommodating others; who is kind to all: you may marry if you can get such a treasure, and your home will be a paradise. "Boys do you hear that?"

TO THE GIRLS.—You are all in want of husbands as soon as you can get suitable ones, and that is all right and perfectly natural. But we think (contrary to the old lady's opinion) a poor one is worse than none. In choosing observe the following rules: Never marry a fellow who is ashamed to carry a small bundle, who lies in bed till breakfast, and until his father has opened his shop, store, or office; and swept it out; and who frequents taverns, bowling saloons, prize fights, &c., &c.; who owes his tailor, shoemaker, washerwoman, jeweller, barber, printer and landlady, and never pays his debts, who is always talking about his acquaintances and condemning them, whose tongue is always running about nonsense, and who thinks he is the greatest man in the neighborhood and yet who every one dispises and shuns. We say never marry a fellow with all or any of these qualifications, he will be sure to treat you badly or desert you after the honey-moon.

HEBREW LEGEND.—"You teach," said the Emperor Trajan to a famous Rabbi, "that your God is everywhere, and boast that he resides among your nation. I should like to see him."

"God's presence is indeed everywhere," the Rabbi replied, "but he cannot be seen, for no mortal eye can look upon his splendor."

The Emperor had the obstinacy of power, and persisted in his demand.

"Well," answered the Rabbi, "suppose we begin by endeavoring to gaze at one of his ambassadors."

Trajan assented; and the Rabbi leading him into the open air, for it was the noon of the day, bade him raise his eyes to the sun, then shining down upon the world in its meridian glory. The Emperor made the attempt, but relinquished it.

"I cannot," he said, "the light dazzles me."

"If then," rejoined the triumphant Rabbi, 'thou art unable to endure the light of one of his creatures, how can thou expect to behold the unclouded giory of the Creator."

"Do you know Mr. ————?" asked one friend of another, referring to a gentleman who was famous for his fondness of liquor.

"Yes sir, I know him very well."

"What kind of a man is he?"

"Why, in the morning when he gets up he is a whisky barrel, and in the evening when he goes to bed, he is a barrel of whisky."—[Brunswicker.

CHOLERA ANECDOTE.—One cannot but be struck with the great disproportion in the number of whites and blacks carried off by the cholera at the south, and the Richmond Republican says that at least five blacks die to one white; and gives the reason, that they do not control their appetites and live prudently. In addition to this, they neavly all believe that a man's time is fixed, and that it is scarcely worth his while to try and avoid it. The Republican relates the following:—

What is amusing even in so serious a matter as an attack of the cholera, is the uniform pertinacity with which its colored subjects will deny to their medical attendants that they have eaten anything which could make them sick. An eminent physician of our city informed us that on being called to a negro suddenly attacked with cholera, he asked him whether he had been eating fruit or vegetables.

"Oh, no, sir," was the reply, "nothing of the kind."

"What, have you eaten no apples or cherries?"

"No, no," said the negro, "I never eats 'em any time of the year."

"Well, I believe you have," said the Doctor, "and I'll prove it in a short time."

The physician administered a vomit, the result of which was the ejection of about a quart of apples, stems, seed and all!

"Well," said the Doctor, "I thought you told me you had not been eating apples. Look at those. Are they not apples?

"They does look like 'em, sir."

"Are they not apples?"

"Yes, sir, they are, that's a fact."

"Well, how did they get into you, if you did not eat 'em?"

"Please God, Massa, I don't know, but I never eat anything of the kind."

The conclusion to which our medical friend came was that "the only way to get the truth out of a negro is to vomit it out of him," and that, even then, he won't own it.

JOHN'S SHARE.—"Dad," said a hopeful sprig, "how many fowls are there on the table?"

"Why" said the old gentleman, as he looked complacently on a pair of finely roasted chickens, that were smoking on the dinner table. "Why, my son there are two."

"Two!" replied the smartness, "there are three sir, and I'll prove it."

"Three!" replied the old gentleman, who was a plain, matter-of-fact man, and understood things as we saw them: "I'd like to see you prove that."

"Easily done, sir, easily done!" An't that one? laying his knife on the first.

"Yes that's certain," said his dad.

"And aint that two?" Pointing to the second, "and don't one and two make three."

"Really!" said the father, turning to the old lady, who was in amazement at the immense learning of her son, "really, wife, this boy is a genius, and deserves to be encouraged for it. Here old lady, do you take one fowl and I'll take the second, and John may have third for his learning."

RARE ARTICLES.—A razor to shave notes with. The vehicle wherein ideas are conveyed. Some filings from an iron ear infirmary. Two buttons from a coat of paint. Pin with which you pick a quarrel. One of the jewels from memory's throne, thought to be the only one that will ever be seen.—[Boston Post.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds, Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

WINDOW GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

Straw Bonnets and Gentlemens' Hats Cleaned and Pressed.

MRS. CROMBIE, (formerly of Boston,) most respectfully informs the Ladies of Kanesville and vicinity that she will attend to the above, and also to Dressmaking and Millinery, and she hopes by assiduous attention to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her. All orders left at Mr. Needhams store, will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, June 27, 1849.—tf

MRS. BOND, (Late from England,) respectfully informs the inhabitants of Kanesville, and vicinity, that she has commenced business as Vest Maker, near the Printing office; and she hopes by cheapness, punctuality and dispatch, to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her.

Children's clothes made, and gentleman's clothes repaired.

Kanesville, June 16th, 1849.

C. CARBRY,

St. Joseph, Missouri.

WHOLESALE and Retail Grocer, Dry Goods and Provision Merchant. Cash paid for Produce, and sold at the lowest price of the day.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.—6m

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any busines in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets.

St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardward, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds, liquors at all prices, crackers, &c. &c.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, May 16, 1849

MACKEREL—Just opened, a choice article, by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

HERRING—A few boxes of good dried herring, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MOLASSES—Several bbls. good Sugar House Molasses, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, for for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PAINTS—White and colored paints, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TIN WARE—A variety, just rec'd by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SUNDRIES, trace chains and cow bells, at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BONNETS—An assortment of Tuscan and Leghorn bonnets, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CURRANTS—A large lot of dried currants at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

RICE, Peaches and apples at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot, just rec'd at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HATS—Bl'k silk and Gen. Taylor hats—a variety, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Sattinetts, Tweeds, Jeans; &c., for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

NEW STORE AT COUNCIL POINT.

JAMES NEEDHAM has opened a store at Council Point, where can be found a choice assortment of Dry Goods and Groceries. Those wishing cheap and good goods would do well to favor him with a call.

Council Point, July 25, 1849—tf

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 19, 1849. VOLUME I.---NUMBER 17.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

Elder ISAAC BULLOCK, is our authorized traveling Agent throughout the United States.
Dr. JOHN M. BERNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
DANIEL JOY, Mackinaw, Tazwell county Illinois.
BAZ. B. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

From the Millennial Star.

Reply to a Pamphlet Printed at Glasgow, with the Approbation of Clergymen of Different Denominations, entitled

"REMARKS ON MORMONISM."

BY ORSON PRATT, OF ENGLAND.

(Continued from our last.)

Mr. Paton thinks it very strange, that none of the inspired writers of the Old or New Testaments should predict any thing about the Urim and Thummim by which the Book of Mormon was translated. On the same principle we ask, why did none of the inspired writers predict, that the Lord Jesus Christ should appear to Saul of Tarsus; or that a great vision should be shown to John on Patmos? Why did not Isaiah or Ezekiel predict that a "white stone" (not "specs") should be given to those who overcame with a new name written in it? (See Rev. ii., 17.) When Mr. Paton has satisfactorily answered these questions, we presume that he will be perfectly able to understand why the prophets did not mention every minute circumstance connected with the coming forth of the Book of Mormon.

On the 7th and 8th pages of the "Divine Authority," I have referred to the prophecy of Ezekiel, c. xxxvii., in relation to the two sticks upon which that prophet was commanded to write. I need not here repeat my remarks again; but refer the reader to what I have there said. Mr. Paton very confidently asserts that "All the WRITING that was on the two sticks, was merely the title of each." But how does Mr. Paton know that it "was merely the title of each?" Has he ever examined the writing which Ezekiel inscribed upon them? If not, by what authority does he make this unfounded assertion! The scriptures have no where intimated that the "title" was the only thing writing upon them. Ezekiel was commanded to write upon two sticks; upon the one he was to write "for Judah," and upon the other "for Joseph." What amount of writing he was to inscribe upon them we are not informed. Neither are we informed of the nature of the writing. Mr. Paton says, it "was the title," but what kind of a title he has not told us. We will suggest to Mr. Paton the following titles until he can find something more in accordance with his views, viz:—"THE SACRED WRITINGS FOR JUDAH." "THE SACRED WRITINGS FOR JOSEPH." Titles something similar to these would surely be something very interesting, and would naturally excite an enquiring spirit among the Israelites, especially when they saw them united in one, in the hands of Ezekiel. We think, however, that these inscriptions would be rather short, inasmuch, as Ezekiel was commanded to include in the two writings for Judah and Joseph something "for all the house of Israel," which should be respectively associated with them as "their companions."

Mr. Paton enquires, "How can two sticks represent two books?" We answer, that we see no impropriety in two sticks written upon, representing two books. There would be an impropriety in sticks without writings representing books. But both of the sticks in Ezekiel's hand had writing upon them; and therefore would be a beautiful representation of two books. Is Mr. Paton so ignorant, that he does not know that the Jews anciently wrote many things upon parchment, and rolled the same upon sticks? This is a practice that is still prevalent among modern nations, as is exemplified in many maps, and large documents, which for convenience, are rolled upon sticks. These rolls of writing were called books in the days of Jeremiah. All the prophecies of Jeremiah, from the days of Josiah down to the fourth year of Jehoikim were written in one of these ROLLS. (Jeremiah xxxvi. 1. 2.) This "roll" is called a "book" in the 6, 10, 11, and 13 verses; hence, the terms roll and book are synonymous. Sticks, containing writing, then, like the two sticks of Judah and Joseph, would not be a bad representation of the two books; indeed, they were the plainest and best representations of books of any thing that could have been exhibited before the Jews; for they were far better acquainted with books in the form of rolls than in any other form. Mr. Paton says, "two sticks may represent two nations." What authority has he for this supposition? There is no example in scripture, as we recollect, where a nation is represented by a stick. Nations are frequently represented by trees, branches, and vines; and by beasts, birds, and serpents. But sticks, we believe, are never used to represent nations. Sticks, containing writings, are far better representations of books than of nations.

Mr. Paton carries the idea that the record of Joseph "did not exist, even in its metallic state, at the time Ezekiel wrote." Now the last nine chapters of Ezekiel were written 25 years after the remnant of Joseph left Jerusalem for the great western continent; hence many of the writings of Joseph were in existence at the time Ezekiel spoke of the two sticks. (See Ezekiel xl. 1; also the beginning of the first book of Nephi.) In the interpretation of the two sticks, God says, "Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in mine hand." In this quotation, the word "is," in Italics, is a substitution of the translator according to his own opinion, there being no word in the Hebrew from which it was translated. The translator would have had the same license to have substituted the words "shall be," placing it in the future tense, as he had to substitute the present tense. The passage would then read thus: "the stick of Joseph which shall be in the hand of Ephraim." This we concieve to be the true rendering of the passage. We are not particular, however, whether the present or future tense be used; for every one knows that many of the prophecies relating to things hundreds of years in the future were written in the present tense, and others in the imperfect or past tense, as though they had already been fulfilled. (See Isaiah liii, 3—9.)

This author further remarks, that "Mr. Pratt's assertion as to the two sticks is a positive falsehood: the two sticks spoken of by Ezekiel neither are, nor can be, the Scriptures and the Book of Mormon." We ask this deceptive author, why he so often falsely accuses Mr. Pratt? Is it to deceive the public? The public who have read Mr. Pratt's tract on "Divine Authority," know that he has not represented the Scriptures and the Book of Mormon to be the two sticks upon which Ezekiel wrote. It is true we have represented these two sacred books to be the two sticks which the Lord has said he would unite together, and has also said that, "they shall be one in mine hand," of which the two sticks in Ezekiel's hand were only a representation. After the Union of these two important sticks in the Lord's hand, he declares that he will gather all the house of Israel from among the heathen, no more to be scattered, which has yet to be fulfilled, and the time is close at hand.

Mr. Paton next refers to the 6th and 7th verses of the 14th chapter of John's Revelations, which read thus: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; FOR THE HOUR OF HIS JUDGEMENT IS COME: and worship him that made heaven, earth, and the sea, and the fountains of water." And Mr. Paton intimates that the "EVERLASTING GOSPEL was and is preached to all nations and people: for God is no respecter of persons; and whoever fears him shall be accepted of him." But we ask Mr. Paton, was the everlasting gospel, which he says "was and is preached to all nations and people," brought by an angel and preached by an angel, as he asserts that it must be, on the 15th page of his "REMARKS?" The everlasting gospel which "was preached to every creature which is under heaven," in Paul's day, (see Col. i, 23.) was not brought from heaven by an angel, but was introduced by the person of Christ himself. The second preaching of the same gospel to all nations was placed in the future by John. It was said to him, I will shew thee things which must be hereafter." (Rev. iv, 1.) Mr. Paton cannot point out any time since the prediction of John was uttered, that an angel had brought the gospel from heaven and preached it himself to all nations declaring that "THE HOUR OF GOD'S JUDGEMENT IS COME." If no such event has ever taken place, he must admit, according to his own assertions, that it is still in the future. But he says, the gospel which "the angel brought with him and preached" * * * "was and is preached to all nations and people." Now, what does this mean? Does it mean that the clergymen of different denominations are the other angel that John saw fly in heaven? If they are, they have very much perverted their message since they left heaven, and will surely come under the curse of Paul for preaching another gospel. The message that they bring us at the present day scarcely bears one feature of the gospel preached anciently. One thing is certain, that if ever they preached the everlasting gospel, they do not preach it now. It is true, the nations have had the history of the gospel as it was anciently preached, but its powers, gifts, blessings, and authority to administer its ordinances and establish the church of Christ, they have not had, neither they, nor their fathers, nor their fathers' fathers, for many generations past. When we say that the nations have been destitute of the everlasting gospel for centuries, we mean not destitute of its ancient history, but destitute of its powers, gifts, blessings, authorities, and church. Now, the history of hungry men feasting upon loaves and fishes anciently will not satisfy nor save hungry men in these days: neither will the history of the ancient church, with its ordinances, gifts, powers, and blessings, satisfy nor save the nations now.

Before the everlasting gospel can be preached in such a manner as to put man-kind in possession of its blessings and powers, men must be authorized to administer its ordinances. If John's angel were himself to preach the everlasting gospel to every nation, it would be of no benefit to any man, until some one was authorized to administer baptism for the remission of sins, and the laying on of the hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost; for without the remission of sins and the gift of the Holy Ghost, what benefit would the gospel be, though John's angel himself proclaimed it? Now, it is not to be expected that an angel from heaven is to come down, and go forth upon the earth from multitude to multitude, and from nation to nation, preaching, baptizing, confirming, administering the Lord's supper, and all other ordinances and blessings which are included in the everlasting gospel. This angel was to fly, "having the everlasting gospel to preach," not that he himself should preach and administer its ordinances, but he introduces it to the knowledge of faithful men that with which he is entrusted, and they, being authorized, carry it to all nations. Whether this everlasting gospel, with which the angel was to be entrusted, was to be on parchment, plates, tables of stone, or paper, John has not informed us: he only informs us that he should have such a gospel for the benefit of all nations. Mr. Smith and others, who were eye-witnesses of the angel as well as John, testify that it was recorded on plates. And where is there a man in the present generation that can disprove it? Can any man prove that Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, David Whitmer, and Martin Harris, did not see the plates in the hands of the angel, and that those plates do not contain the "everlasting gospel?"

There is one grand event connected with the preaching of the "everlasting gospel to all nations," which the angel has not yet fulfilled. He is yet to cry "WITH A LOUD VOICE, SAYING, FEAR GOD, AND GIVE GLORY TO HIM; FOR THE HOUR OF HIS JUDGMENT IS COME," &c.—(Rev. xiv, 7; also see Doctrine and Covenants, sec. vii. par. 31.) This part of his message he will not fulfil until the everlasting gospel, which he has introduced on earth, shall first be preached unto all nations; after which the "loud voice" of the angel will be heard, proclaiming that "the hour of God's judgment is come," &c., immediately followed by the cry of another angel, saying, "Babylon is fallen," &c.

Mr. Paton enquires, "How could this (Christ's) Church become extinct?" We reply, that it has not become extinct; for it still exists in heaven with the twelve apostles whom Jesus said he would be with "always even unto the end of the world." Mr. Paton quotes the words of our Savior, "upon this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." But we ask, does this convey the most distant intimation that Christ's Church should always continue on the earth? No; for the powers on the earth made war with the saints and overcame them, and destroyed the last vestage of the church from among the nations; but though they were destroyed and martyred, the gates of hell did not prevail against them; they survived the destruction of the body, and will reign triumphantly in the presence of their Great Redeemer. Since the church was taken to heaven men have built upon sandy foundations, and the Lord has never promised that the gates of hell should not prevail against such; the promise is only to his church which should be built upon the rock. Those who slide from the rock by apostacy, or who build upon any other foundation, have no right to claim protection from the gates of hell. Mr. Paton well knows that Christ has had no church on the earth for many centuries organized according to the New Testament pattern, with inspired apostles, prophets, and other officers, administering all the ordinances of the gospel with its miraculous gifts and blessings. If, then, such a church has not been among the nations for many centuries past, the Church of Christ has not been among them; and they are in "gross darkness," "tossed to and fro, and carried about by every wind of doctrine," invented by uninspired men, without revelations, visions, angels, or the Holy Ghost which guides into all truth. Such was to be, and such is, the awful condition of the inhabitants of the earth at the time the angel introduces the "everlasting gospel" again among men, through the preaching and administering of which the church or kingdom of God should once more appear on earth, according to the pattern of former ages.

Mr. Paton seems to think that Moroni, who lived as a prophet in ancient America, about 400 years after Christ, and deposited the sacred records of his nation, could not be the angel that John saw while on Patmos; for he (Moroni) was not then born. What are we to understand by this assertion of this author? Are we to understand that John could not see in vision a person until he was born? John says he "saw the dead small and great stand before God, and the books were opened," and the dead were judged, &c. According to Mr. Paton's ideas, the dead of all future generations could not be be seen by John, for they were not yet born. But we think, if John could see the shipmasters and sailors before they were born, casting dust on their heads, and weeping and wailing over the downfall of Babylon, (Rev. xviii., 17, 18, 19), then it would not be impossible for him to see the angel Moroni upwards of seventeen hundred years in the future, returning again to the earth to reveal the records of Joseph, containing the everlasting gospel for the benefit of all nations. If Moroni had charge of those sacred records, when his nation were destroyed, and by the command of God deposited them in the ground, with a promise that they should be revealed in latter-times,—why not also be entrusted with the charge of bringing them forth in the capacity of the ministering angel, of whom John speaks! Surely there is nothing impossible, unreasonable, nor absurd in all this; neither is there anything unscriptural.

This pious lover of falsehoods says, that "Mr. Pratt also speciously insinuates that the young man, spoken of by Zachariah, ii., 4, is Joseph Smith, whom the angel Moroni was to speak to." Now Mr. Pratt has never said any such thing, neither in public, nor in private, nor in any of his writings. But what more can be expected from an author like Mr. Paton, who delights in falsehoods and misrepresentations.

We have followed this Scottish author through his "REMARKS ON MORMONISM," and have found that he, like many of his contemporaries, is not particular as to the weapons he uses against the doctrine of this Church. Glaring falsehoods and the most wilful misrepresentations, seem to be the principal weapons of his choice. A semblance of reason and argument occasionally manifests itself for a moment, but it is of short duration; he discovers that reason and argument are not the weapons to be used against what he calls "Mormonism." Truth cannot be brought to bear against truth. Falsehoods, with a plenty of denunciations, mixed with the old popular cry of "delusion," "deeply damnatory doctrines," "blasphemy," and a host of other evil epithets, are considered the most successful means of blinding the eyes of the public, and covering up the truth from their gaze for a season. And then this is the most popular way of protecting priestcraft. "Clergymen of different denominations" will lend their influence, and will approbate anything that will save their rotten, crumbling systems from speedy ruin. But poor, Mr. Joseph Paton! What could he do more? It was in vain to attack the Saints with truth. He has done the best he could, considering the hard task he has undertaken. But Mr. Paton will find "Truth is mighty and must prevail," notwithstanding the mighty efforts of himself and associate clergymen to hinder its progress.

Truth is eternal— truth is divine,
Truth like the Sun in splendor shall shine.
Truth is the armor—truth is the shield,
Truth is the weapon—error shall yield.

15, Wilton Street, Liverpool, April 30th, 1849.

From the Times and Seasons.

THE SEER.

Written for the dedication of the Seventy's Hall, and dedicated to President BRIGHAM YOUNG.

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

TUNE—The Sea.

The seer;—the seer;—Joseph the seer—
I'll sing of the Prophet ever dear:
His equal now cannot be found,—
By searching the wide world around.
With Gods he soared, in the realms of day;
And men he taught the heavenly way.
The earthly seer! the heavenly seer,
I love to dwell on his mem'ry dear:—
The chosen of God, and the friend of men,
He brought the priesthood back again,
He gazed on the past, on the present too,—
And ope'd the heav'nly world to view.

Of noble seed—of heavenly birth,
He came to bless the sons of earth:
With keys by the Almighty given,
He opened the full rich stores of heaven,
O'er the world that was wrapt in sable night,
Like the sun he spread his golden light.
He strove,—O, how he strove to stay,
The stream of crime in its reckless way—
With a mighty mind, and a noble aim
He urg'd the wayward to reclaim:
'Mid the foaming billows of angry strife—
He stood at the helm, of the ship of life.

The saints;—the saints; his only pride,
For them he liv'd, for them he died!
Their joys were his;—their sorrows too;—
He lov'd the saints;—he lov'd Nauvoo.
Unchanged in death, with a Savior's love
He pleads their cause in the courts above.
The seer—the seer—Joseph the seer!
O how I love his memory dear;
The just and wise, the pure and free,
A father he was and is to me.
Let fiends now rage in their dark hour—
No matter, he is beyond their power.

He 's free;—he 's free;—the Prophet's free!
He is where he will ever be,
Beyond the reach of mobs and strife,
He rests unharm'd in endless life,
His home 's in the sky;—he dwells with the Gods,
Far from the furious rage of mobs.
He died—he died for those he lov'd,
He reigns—he reigns in realms above;
He waits with the just who have gone before
To welcome the saints to Zion's shore;
Shout, shout ye saints—this boon is given,
We'll meet our martyr'd seer in heaven.

What has he been!

What is that to you? It is of no consequence if he has been one of the most wicked and abandoned of men? He is not so now. We care not what evil a man has done, providing he has heartily repented and now strives to live an upright, consistent life. Instead of looking back a dozen or twenty years to know what a person is, you should inquire, what is he now? What is his present character? If you find that his reformation is sincere, and that he laments his past errors, take him cordially by the hand and bid him God speed in his noble pursuit. We are no friends to those who would rake up past sins and vices, to condemn one who is resolved to be upwright and virtuous. Many a person is driven back to the paths of vice, who might have become an ornament to society, but for the disposition, too common among men, to rake up and drag to the light, long forgotten iniquities. We always admired the reply of a daughter to her father, who was asked respecting a young man of her acquaintance: "Do you know where he comes from?" "No," replied the girl, "I do not known where he comes from, but I know where he is going, and I wish to go with him." That is right. If we see a person on the right track—exerting a good influence—it is sufficient, without inquiring what has been his character heretofore. If he has reformed what more can we desire? And what benefit will it be to us to uncover and expose to the light, deeds of which he is most heartly ashamed and of which he has repented in dust and ashes.

PRIESTCRAFT IN DANGER.

A DRAMA.

BY WILLIAM M'GHIE.

ACT II.

(Continued)

L. A.—How is this, doctor, surely you would not so pervert the law, as to deny a prisoner, however criminal he may be, this common privilege.

Dr. C.—My lord, I assure you, it was quite superfluous, as you may see from the depositions, the evidence is of too clear a nature to admit of doubt.

L. A.—The British constitution wisely and justly provides, that every criminal shall have the power, (either by himself or his counsel) to cross-examine any witness brought up against him, as well as to produce exculpatory evidence in defence; and you and I, doctor, are placed here as the administrators, and not as the perverters of the law. I insist on having these witnesses re-examined. I have a particular reason for it, and shall conduct their re-examination myself. Ho, there.—(Enter officer.)—Let these witnesses come in again.—Enter D. D. and B. B.)

L. A.—(Showing them the papers.)—Are these your depositions, and are these your marks!

D. D.—Yes, please your lordship

L. A. You have testified to the prisoner being guilty of blasphemy. Now will you tell me, what is blasphemy?

D. D.—(Hesitatingly.) It is a—a—, we don't know what it is.

L. A.—How can you know a man guilty of a thing that you are ignorant of! Do you perceive that this is a flat contridiction? Now recollect yourself a little, I wish to give you a chance.—(Pauses a little.)—You cannot tell; then that part of the testimony falls to the ground. Now tell me who bred the disdisturbance in said meeting.—(Waits for an answer.)—Why don't you speak! Is it true that you and your comrades were put out of said meeting for disorderly conduct!

D. D.—It is, my lord, we cannot deny it, and if you wont punish us, we'll tell you the whole plot.

L. A.—I shall promise you nothing, only, whatever you please to disclose, let it be strictly true, and it shall be the better for you.

D. D.—Well, my lord, the truth, my comrade there, and I, were hired by Dr. Clamour, to go to the meeting and kick up a riot, and then bring up this charge. We were to get a guinea each upon conviction, and we got a half crown on hand, to drink. We hope your lordship will order him to pay us. That there paper is of his making. We put our mark to it, but we don't know what's in it.

L. A.—This, if true, is astonishing. Why doctor, the case appears to take a different turn. Have you anything to say to this?

Dr. C.—Before God, it is false. I have only to complain that your lordship should credit the testimony of these fellows in this thing, and think them unworthy of credit before. I beg your lordship to be consistent. Reject their testimony altogether and let the gentlemen be discharged.

L. A.—I do not understand you, doctor. I take it, their testimony was clearly refuted by themselves before it was rejected. And as to letting the case drop, it is my distinct duty to sift it to the bottom, that we may know the really guilty party.—To H. C. K.)—Have you any witnesses in defence.

H. C. K.—I had a note put into my hand this morning, stating that witnesses would be in attendance in my behalf. Would your lordship be pleased to enquire if any such are here.

L. A.—Ho, officer.—(Enter officer.)—If any witnesses are there on behalf of the prisoner, let them be brought in.—Exit officer and enters Saunders Snodden.)—Well, Saunders, have you anything to say in this case!

Saun.—I ha'e to say, my lord, this is a scandalous wicked plot, to say the least o't, got up to persecute a righteous man; and Dr. Clamour, there is the author o't. I'll tell you how it is in few words. Last night, I was gaun daun, in company wi' anither person, to hear this gentleman preach; and being rather late, we took the near cut by the manse. Gaun by the back o' the garden hedge, we heard somebody in conversation. Drawing near cannily, we discovered it to be the three worthies, Dr. Clamour, Dick Devlish, and Billy Bluster. The doctor was hiring the ither twa, tae gang down to the meeting and raise a riot, to break the peace, and then bring up a charge against this gentleman. They were to get a guinea a piece, and when Dick insisted on something in hand to drink, he gied him half a crown. And I'll tell ye, if they hae failed in their diabolical purpose, it wasna for want o' plenty o' guid instructions how to proceed. But we rather took them by the nose in the Hall, and turned them out afore they were weel begun, and there never was a quieter or mair respectable meeting in Tythington. This is the truth as short as I'm able to tell ye't.

L. A.—Where is the person who was in your company!

Saun.—Ye're lordship maun produce him at ye're ain leisure.

L. A.—And in producing him, I introduce myself. I am the person who was in company with Saunders at the time referred to. I saw his reverence and these two together, and overheard the bargain made between them. I was in the meeting from first to last, and a more orderly assemblage could not come together, after these scoundrels were turned out, which was done by my orders. In short, I could not rehearse the particulars more correctly than Saunders has done before me. Now, doctor, it becomes my duty to charge you with willfully and deliberately breaking the peace of the country; and I must order you three in to confinement until you can be tried by a commission appointed for the purpose, as I am only a witness.

H. C. K.—My lord, if I might speak, I would plead that these, my enemies, may be left to God, and the stings of a guilty conscience; as my innocence has been established, and the justice of the law completely vindicated. Assuredly God will sufficiently punish all who persecute his servants or oppose his work.

L. A.—And don't you believe my dear sir, that a part of that punishment, may be inflicted by a law based upon the principles of justice. You say truly the justice of the law has been vindicated, but the justice of the law is not satisfied. I dare not grant your request, but this far I will accede to it. You, Dr. Clamour, you Dick Devilish, and you Billy Bluster are at liberty until you are legally summoned to answer to this charge; and you have reason to thank the gentleman for your present liberty.

(Exit the three,—Dr. Clamour slinking thievishly out, the other two following.

L. A.—Mr. Scrimp, you are now at liberty to gather up all your papers, and be sure to have them in order, so that you may produce them at any moment—(To H. C. K.)—Now my dear sir, as this ugly business is settled for the present, you would gratify me much by spending the night at my residence, I wish to have some private conversation with you.

H. C. K.—My lord, I am altogether at your service, and most gratefully—

L. A.—(Interrupting him.)—Not a word of compliment. If you will oblidge me, Saunders, would you walk over to the castle, and inform Emily that she may expect a stranger. We shall go along by the Hawthorn Bank, and you can meet us on the walk.

SCENE III.—The Fields.—Lord Ainwell and Saunders Snodd'em in close conversation.

L. A.—Indeed, brother, you have spoke my feelings in this respect. O! what a flood of light and intelligence the gospel brings to man; but still our circumstances have been far different in the world. I have been brought up in the lap of ease and luxury, and almost without religion, while you have been, from your earliest infancy, inured to poverty and toil, by which your mind has been fitted to think and reason.—(H. C. K. overtakes them and walks behind them unperceived.)—Besides, you have still been endued with religious feelings; so I think it evident I have most cause of thankfulness.

Saun.—Weel, I dare say, my lord, if the puir hae a better faculty and thought than the rich, they're crushed into its exercise, whether they will or no, through oppression. As far as my religious feelings go, ye seem to hae forgot that they might hae been the means o' clogging up my heart against any upstart system, as we might ca't, and as has been the case wi' thousands about us, wha seems to cherish bigotry and prejudice for true godliness. But we hae little cause o' dispute, far we hae baith great cause o' thankfulness.

L. A.—We have, we have. But, brother, you would oblidge me much, if, in addressing me in future, you would merely call me Brother. I wish those earthly titles by which one man is distinguished above another, and which unjustly keeps one man in poverty and distress, and another in the opposite extreme of luxury and wealth. I have learned little as yet, but this I have learned, that though formerly we have had lords many and gods many, yet to us there is but one God. We are all his children, and he loves us with an impartial love, and we cannot please him by showing partiality to one another. From henceforth you are my brother, but not my servant. 'Tis high time your toil-spent life was rendered more comfortable, and it is high time that I who have been bred in ease and idleness, began to be useful to my generation. But how our future lives are to be disposed of shall be best determined by that excellent man Heber C. Kimball. We shall take the first opportunity of laying this matter before him.

Saun.—Truly, my lo—, that is to say, my brother, my heart is o'er fou for utterance. O! how exalted is that wisdom that cometh from God; it kens nae sacrifice o'er great in the cause of truth. For mysel, my greatest wish on earth is, to spend the remainder o' my days in spreading the gospel to my fellow-man. My bairns are a' up and doin' for themselves, and Janet will no be ill to keep.

L. A.—Oh! that the Lord would count us both worthy to engage in such a good work. Were my dear sister Emily one with us in the gospel, then while you and I were abroad in the world, Janet and Emily, by living together, would be a mutual support to each other.

Saun.—Ha, ha, ha! I doubt the cottage and the castle baith wadna be big enough to haud them. But look—(They discover H. C. K, and, rushing forward, shake hands.)

H. C. K.—I have not willingly played the eve's-dropper, my brethren, but you were too serious to be easily disturded.

L. A.—My dear brother, we are delighted to see you, especially at this time, when we wanted you to place our resolves on a permanent footing. We want to place our future lives at your disposal, andare determined to abide by your decision. I here dedicate myself and all I possess to the service of God; and it now belongs to you to dispose of it and me as your wisdom may direct.

H. C. K.—And I, in the name of my Master, accept of this dedication to his service. I re-appoint you steward of these vast possessions, to manage them for the upbuilding of Zion; and I trust that your great influence, with faithfulness and humility, will have a salutary effect upon the minds of the nobility of this great nation.

L. A.—The wisdom of God is greater than the wisdom of men, and I bow with all humility to its dictates.

Concluded next number.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,...Printer.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

WANTED ON SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE GUARDIAN.

10,000 good hard wood rails, ten feet long, at $1 25 per hundred.
10,000 18 inch shingles at $3 per thousand if good.
10,000 pounds best fall wheat flour at $2 50 per hundred, or the market price.
10,000 feet good lumber at $2 00 per hundred.
100 cords good fire wood, four feet long, well split and corded at or near this office, (hard wood,) at one dollar a cord.

Besides cheese, eggs, chickens, fresh beef, mutton, veal; and even gold and silver or good current paper in quantities to suit the subscriber. Also three feet clabboard.

Our Editor has left us for a season, and we have to manage the paper till he returns. It's rather out of our line to take the Editorial Chair; (more used to setting types;) but we will do the best we can, and ask a little indulgence of our readers.

EPISTLE.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
July 20th, 1849.

To Elder Orson Hyde, and the Authorities of the Church in Pottawatamie County, Iowa.

DEAR BRETHREN: Since our last letter of April last, some matters have transpired which we consider worthy of your attention. The weather has been favorable for the farming interest generally, and our crops so far, bid fair to realize the common expectations; and we feel confident, that if strict economy is used, grain enough will be raised to meet the wants of the Saints here; but let it be understood by those expecting to immigrate to this valley, that they depend not upon the people here for a supply of provisions, but to bring their outfits with them. This refers to this season if any wish to start this fall, though our counsel is, not to start after this arrives.

On the 16th of June the Gold Diggers began to arrive here on their way to the gold regions of California; since which time our peaceful valley has appeared like the half way house of the Pilgrims to Mecca, and still they come and go, and probably will continue to do so till fall. As many quit their wiggons and pack at this point, and as many of their animals become worn down through fatigue, horses and mules are commanding high prices to complete the journey to the land of gold dust.

From all appearance many will have to stop here late in the fall, and tarry with us through the winter. Goods and groceries are already beginning to stop and are sold at fair prices.

The health of the Saints is as good as we can ask, and we feel thankful to our Father in heaven for so great a blessing. The council house, our roads, bridges, bathing house, &c., are progressing as fast as we can spare time from our agricultural labors to do them.

We are preparing to celebrate the 24th of July as the anniversary of the entrance of the pioneers into the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, in a manner that shall charactize the Saints as the true sons and daughters of liberty.

We have already erected a shade or building (on spiles or posts) measuring 100 feet by 60, for that memorable day, and for the purpose of meetings hereafter.

The weather has been steady, with few exceptions. The warmest day we have noted the thermometer at 2 P. M. stood at 104 deg. in the shade.

Elder C. C. Rich to the Bay of San Francisco, and Elder Addison Pratt with some two or three of the Seventies to the Islands in the Pacific, will start across the Desert immediately after our celebration. We can truly say that the Saints live up to the old Mormon Motto and "Mind their own business" by which the Valley of the Great Salt Lake is bursting into a City of habitations, where, if humility and love continue to increase, with industry and economy, plenty and union will crown the efforts of all that the Lord designs to bless. Law suits and mobs are far from this valley of peace, and may they ever remain so.

The Brethren in Pottawatamie County, Iowa, Missouri, Nauvoo, and vicinities must remember, pause, and reflect, that we came to this Valley when there was no house, nor fence, and no corn nor wheat, save what we brought with us; and that our every nerve and all our energies will be exerted to sustain ourselves, to build houses, fences, and raise grain, which, from all appearances must command as high a price as from $5 to $10 per bushel for wheat, and from $2 to $6 for corn, and other things in proportion.

When these small matters of journeying more than a thousand miles over the sage plains, and settling, and preparing to live, and sustain ourselves with the common necessaries of life are overcome, then the poor shall feel our helping hand to assist them to remove to this Valley.

In the Bonds of the New and Everlasting Covenant, Dear Brethren, we remain,

Yours, Truly,
BRIGHAM YOUNG.
HEBER C. KIMBALL.
WILLARD RICHARDS.

Statutes of Iowa.

Thanks to the Superintendent of Public Instruction, for a copy of the School Laws and Regulations It is just the book we have wanted.

Short Letters.

We have so many letters, papers, documents, &c., wise and unwise, trash and nonsense, presented to us for examination that it is very difficult for us to determine many times whether the writer had any design at all only to tax our time and patience.

We do again most earnestly entreat our friends to have mercy upon us, and shorten their communications. We have to read sometimes two or three whole nights in succession to keep pace with the long yarns that are spun.

We have concluded that persons who are so conspicuously favored with the gift of continuance, will be in great danger of being lost at last. For the strong man of the house might rise up and shut too the door before they finish their long letters, and if we should stop to read them all, we fear we should be shut out also: We are compelled, therefore, to lay many aside, because their length will not admit of a perusal by us.

Do our friends think that the scriblings and barefaced falsehoods of corrupt men that have been excommunicated long since from the church for crimes that would make decency blush to name, are matters of edification and comfort to us? Or do they send them to us for fear we should get four hours of a night to take rest in sleep? Or do they want us to prove that the devil is a liar, or that a putrid carcass will send forth an ill-savor? Do they not know that it would be a disgrace to a common scoundrel for the lying tongue of Wm. Smith to be employed in his favor? Go to the East, West, North or South, or to any place where this self-styled President of the Church has been, and they will find that he is loathed by all people except by a few who have no characters to lose, neither any that they hope to gain.

When we stand in need of any more such trash, we will send for it without troubling any one to send it to us. We are thankful for good will which we hope to merit when it comes from a pure and virtuous source, but we cannot feel greatful for the productions of the greatest liars, and most profligate and abandoned villians that wish to destroy our reputation because we had the boldness to stand up and give our voice in favor of their expulsion from the church years ago.

We make no pretence to presidency or power; but if the villain that accuses us of joining a negro or an Indian to a white lady in marriage, and of importing German silver at the expense of the church to stock a bogus factory, does not die of a disease engendered in his own corruption before he slays our reputation with his vile slander, the Lord has not spoken by us.

Counsel.

Those persons who bring poor people with them must expect to provide for them till they can provide for themselves; and not think to throw them off upon the hands of others who already have all they can do.

New Stage Line.

Messrs. Mower & Sandford, have nearly completed their arrangements for a semi-weekly line of coaches between this place and St. Joseph, for the accommodation of persons going to and from the above places. The coaches will go via. Trading Point, Austin, Linden, Oregon and Savannah, to St. Joseph, through in three days. Persons hereafter will find no trouble in getting conveyance from St. Joseph to this place or to any point on the route. Mr. Mower is and old friend of ours, and we will guarantee to those that may patronise the line will find in him an honest, gentlemanly and trustworthy man; although not personally acquainted with Mr. Sandford, we are happy to learn that he is a man of correct and exemplary character. And now we say to our friends at home and abroad to patronize Messrs. Mower & Sandfords' line of coaches. They have been at great expense in fitting up their line of coaches, and we hope that they will meet with the encouragement that this enterprize merits. We also hope that the government will give to them the contract for carrying a semi-weekly mail from Savannah to this place, through the above named towns.

Sentiment From the Valley by last Mail.

"In regard to the Wilmot Proviso, Slavery, &c., we wish you to distinctly to understand that our desire is to leave that subject to the operation of time, circumstances, and common law; that we wish not to meddle with this subject, but leave these to their natural course. Political parties that a breath creates and a breath destroys cannot effect us, particularly when we are so far from those scenes of strife. It cannot be expected that we, in this distant region, should as fully participate in mere local divisions as you, however much our interest may be effected: but we are happy in knowing that in you we have an able advocate, and one that is willing to bring to bear all his talent, wisdom, energy, perseverance and influence in the accomplishment of those things most beneficial for our common cause. We now rely, principally upon you to direct the helm in such a manner as will be best calculated to secure the object of our wishes.

"May the God of peace be with you and bless you with every desire of your heart, is the ardent wish of your friends and brethren in the

"New and Everlasting Covenant."

The Editor of the Cincinnati Commercial, it would seem, is ready to give publicity to what must be evident to him and to every reader, is a most wicked and barefaced libel; the very dregs of revenge issuing from a heart, mad with disappointment, festered in its own corruption, and anxious to destroy one whose voice and influence were directed against a notorious libertine and profligate, who years ago, was most righteously expelled from the Church.

Highly Important to Us.

We have sent the Guardian to many of our friends in various parts of the country upon their writing to us for information upon subjects duly set forth therein, and have left it to the honor and punctuality of those friends to remit to us the pay. It is true that it is expected the funds will be forwarded at the risk of the person or the persons sending, unless paid to our agents: but the risk is not great. We should be very glad, if persons to whom the Guardian has been sent, without the payment in advance, would forward us the cash with as little delay as possible; and if they do not wish it at all, let them be returned to this office by mail. We want our money to buy stock and to pay printers with.

Tabernacle.

We learn that there has been nearly enough subscribed to repair the Tabernacle, all the branches subscribed liberally for this object with the exception of one or two—this is as it should be. The workmen are now busily engaged in making the necessary repairs. Persons who have subscribed abroad are requested to bring or send in the amounts they have subscribed immediately to Bishop Johnson.

A Day of Rejoicing.

On Saturday week there was a great day of rejoicing and gathering among the inhabitants of this town and vicinity, occasioned by the arrival of A. W. Babbitt, Esq., with the United States' Mail from Salt Lake, and the intelligence brought of the good harvest at that place. And also manifested their gratification in regard to the formation of a State Government at Salt Lake; and the new State of "Deseret" was welcomed with smiling faces and gladdening hearts.

The day was beautiful in the extreme, being one of the balmiest days of the season. Soon after the dawn of day the note of preparation commenced, and all seemed to delight in what was about taking place. The Committee of Arrangements were also busy in completeing the arrangements to ensure the order which is so characteristic among the Saints. About eleven o'clock, A. M., the procession commenced its formation under the direction of J. E. Johnson, Chief Marshal; David Candland and T. Williams as aids, on horseback, with blue sashes and white badges, "Truth and Liberty," with the American eagle in the centre as relief.

The banner for the occasion was designed and painted by Robert Cambell, of this town, which was magnificent. The design was the Stars and Stripes, in the centre was a rising star represented, and in the centre of that was a bee-hive with flowers for relief, in the two side points were the bees all busily engaged, and on the upper point was an eye, made to represent the all-seeing eye of Jehovah. The whole decorated with an excellent display of blue tassels. In the white stripes of the flag, was the words, "The Constitution of the United States, may it live forever and ever," "Liberty and Truth will prevail." This was carried at the head of the procesion; next in order was our splendid band of martial music, under the direction of Mr. Pitt, which done great honor to the occasion. Immediately after was the President of the day with his Vice Presidents, with red sashes trimmed with white, badges with "Truth is Liberty," and "Zion is our Home," inscribed, next in order came the Committee of Arrangements with purple sashes, and badges "Truth is Liberty," next followed the members of the High Council in citizens dress; next came the ladies with their smiling countenances, three abreast, which gave a complete charm to the occasion; and next followed the gentlemen, three abreast, preceded by a beautiful banner; and at twelve o'clock the procession commenced marching in the following order: marching and counter-marching on Tabernacle street, thence down Race street, up Hyde street to Main street, thence down Main street, and after marching some distance countermarched to the stand erected for the occasion in the public square, when Mr. Babbitt was introduced upon the stand by Col. C. M. Johnson and Dr. Andrews, and was received in behalf of the vast assembly by Henry Bishop, Esq., in a very neat and appropriate speech, welcoming him upon his safe arrival to this place, and as a member of Congress from the new State of Deseret. After which Mr. Babbit, made a most eloquent and heart stirring speech, of considerable length, in substance as follows:

Mr. Babbitt said, had I the vanity to believe that these marked attentions from my fellow citizens were heaped upon me in consequence of some great work or exploit of my own; nature would be too weak to respond; but believing it to be the rejoicing of the soul in behalf of the rising State of Deseret. I shall respond. I look upon the inhabitants of the County of Pottawattamie not as a detached portion; but as an integral part of the people of the Valley of the Salt Lake: a part in feeling and in destination. I believe that the rejoicings of this day eminates from the dispersal of the cloud which has broken from the Valley. It makes the hearts of all rejoice. I shall adopt the circumstances of the day for my subject, I see the motto of your banner is "Liberty and Truth." I might ask, what is Liberty and Truth? The question, what is truth, was asked by one of the ancients. Many would follow truth, if they knew it. I answer. Liberty is the enjoyment of truth, I know our land is boasted as the Land of Liberty, that feeling is what has brought us here to-day. That has sent our friends to a distant land; it has carried me through much toil and many privations and shall still bear me on. Some here are well read in the history of the past; but you are not fully apprized of what has passed among our brethren who have emigrated to the Valley; and knowing that you desire a knowledge and that your feelings are, to join with them, I shall give you the knowledge and also my views, concerning their moves. Our brethren have organized in a State Policy, and are acting under the same; and will act until further provided for, by Congress, and under this act your humble servant has been appointed a delegate to Congress. You will ask, Is not this premature? I answer it is not, the Bay Country and New Mexico have done the same. A Governor has been appointed by the President and he has instituted his Government; and it is revered, no law to that intent notwithstanding. It is on common law principle and to be handed to Congress for their approval. The eye of Government has been upon us; and why? Because we were reported to not be Republicans. Where is the man that ever heard the Prophet Joseph Smith condemn the constitution. The constitution originated by the spirit of God. But as says Judge Story it may perish through the negligence of its keepers. The Constitution is good, it emanated in the bosom of eternity and those who signed it have sworn to protect our citizens, &c. I do not say here, what I would not say, were I in the Halls of the Republic. It is not to advocate any particular form or party, but to present these things to you, and wish to call your mind to these points. I am glad to be able to lay before you the degeneracy of those who seek the posts of honor. We wish to restore true liberty, &c. Dr. Franklin at the Declaration of Independence delivered a political prophecy, and if people will not hear the ancient prophets, I will quote to them a modern prophet. He objected to a fixed salary being given to the president. He said let him be an honorable man, and the people will take care of that; but you fix the post of honor and profit, and it opens the door to all who are disposed to set themselves up at auction, and it will be bid for by many; but it will be bold and avaricious men, that through that channel will thrust themselves upon you; and when it is so, comes the decline of our Government, &c. What should be the law of the State of Deseret? Their laws should be those of Jehovah, and their rulers should be those who can judge in equity and not after the hearing of the ear. We want to build up the Kingdom of God—that object has carried our brethren to the Valley. I was present on the 24th of July, when they held the Anniversary of the entering of the Pioneers into the Valley, it was like the landing of the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock, they arrived there destitute, and when they had raised bread enough to satisfy the demands of nature, they rejoiced, and I rejoiced with them; they rejoiced and shouted "Hosanna;" and my soul rejoiced exceedingly. I rejoiced in view of the future. The Lord has opened unto us the windows of Heaven and bestowed bountifully the fruits of the earth. Two tables were spread one mile and a half in length, and seven thousand persons sat down to the feast. The Liberty Pole was raised one hundred and sixty-five feet in the air, and the Banner floated sixty-three feet. I report then a place where the honest can live in the enjoyment of truth, &c. I might say much on the storm that has bursting over the nations for the two years past. You that are acquainted with ancient history, look back, can you show any time of such general revolution, when has there been so much blood and carnage? Trace the revolutions of Rome, what has caused that holy See to move its quarters. I now call upon you to sustain the little State of Deseret, that it may be added a star on the Banner of the Union.

This is neither a political or a religious speech; but such an one as the circumstances of the day call forth. This people has given the greatest proof to our Government of their truly Republican feeling in their sacrifices, having offered fathers, sons and brothers upon the alter of duty, who after having gained for their country, a territory highly important both as to wealth and commerce; many have again re-inlisted to support the American Flag in that country. I hope to hear from your honorable committee. And may God bless you is the prayer of your humble servant. A. W. BABBITT.

Prest. Orson Hyde remarked, friends and brethren I shall not long detain you, but I cannot withhold my hearty response to the moves of our brethren in the Valley—peculiar has been the incidents leading to these movements and the formation of the Government in the State of Deseret. Which in accordance with our feelings we also feel to hail our brother who has bourne news to that distant Valley and back. We have a good day and all is right and we feel to rejoice before the Lord, &c., may God add his blessing. Amen.

After the several speeches the mass were formed as before, and marched to the bountifully filled tables, near the Tabernacle, which after a blessing was asked of our Heavenly Father upon the food, all partook till satisfied. Several spirited toasts were given which we were not able to procure—the following toast struck our attention so forcibly, we cannot refrain from giving it:

"May the new Star Deseret, be as the Star of Bethelem, a guide to the wise of all nations."

Immediately after the dinner was over, those who were disposed, both old and young, entered the merry dance together, and enjoyed themselves till near 11 o'clock at night, when the dance broke up. The President of the day delivered a short and pleasing speech, after which, all went home rejoicing, for the blessings they had enjoyed during this day. Nothing occurred to mar the harmony and peace of the occasion, and will be a day long to be remembered by those who participated in its enjoyments.

Good News from England.

The work of the Lord is progressing very rapidly in England and Wales. Since Capt. Jones left Wales, there have been over eight hundred baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ, and the sick healed by the power of faith, and many believing. By the Millennial Star, we learn that the Cholera is cured, the dumb made to speak, the deaf made to hear, the blind made to see, devils cast out, fevers rebuked, leprosy cured, and many of them after they had been attended by physicians who could not effect a cure, and even then cured almost instantly, by the laying on of hands and the power of faith.

Letters.

We take this method to inform the community that the post-office is the place to deposit letters. We do not want to be troubled with any except our own; and instead of many being addressed to the care of Br. Hyde, let them be addressed to the care of Br. Green, the legal postmaster.

Foreign letters unpaid, are frequently left with us to be mailed. Persons leaving letters in this way are only deceiving themselves. They cannot be forwarded unless delivered to the postmaster and the postage duly paid.

We shall henceforth take charge of all letters deposited with us and advertise the same in the Guardian and charge ten cents on each letter for the very purpose of turning them to the post office where they belong. We do not want to be troubled with them.

BEM.—The Paris papers give a strange piece of gossip about Bem. While he was at Paris, he dined one day with the American minister. The subject of conveasation was presentiments, the possibility of which the envoy ridiculed. Bem, however, declared that three times in the course of his life he had seen a tomb, on which was carved the date of his decease in 1850. In Transylvania he received many wounds; and, having discovered that his surgeon was uneasy, said calmly that he had yet another year to live. Full of confidence in this presentiment, Bem again threw himself into the contest, and said that he was confident he would live until 1850. May he do so.

The Rev. Simon Swan, a Mormon elder at New York, has issued a proclamation against General Taylor's for a National Fast of a most infamous and blasphemous character.—[Exchange Paper.

The Reverend gentleman above referred to, we never had the mortification of knowing that we recollect: but some of our printers say that he was long since expelled from our church and has joined his lot with Wm. Smith, who like his companion, seeks to blacken every thing he touches. No christian or gentleman would speak against Gen. Taylor's proclamation for a National Fast, in our opinion. It was highly proper, and the circumstances of the case loudly called for it; and he must be a graceless and unprincipled wretch that would speak against it, whether he be an excommunicated Mormon Elder, or the editor of a popular newspaper.

Conference.

The Annual Conference will be held on the 6th of October, at the Log Tabernacle in this town, it is expected that the county will be well represented, —and persons wishing to see their friends from the different branches, this occasion will afford them a good opportunity—besides the much valuable instruction that will be given.

We are requested to say that the Bishop will be ready to receive and store produce that is brought in on tithing.

The person who received money from Olive Thompson, of Kirtland, Ohio, will please leave the same at this office. If not forth-coming soon we shall publish his name. Persons abroad are requested to be cautious to whom they pay money for the Guardian, if they cannot pay it to any of our authorized agents, pay only to persons of known honesty —a great deal better to send it by mail done up in a good envelope directed to "Orson Hyde,—Kanesville, Iowa," with the postage paid. We would notify Olive Thompson, and all others concerned, that we cannot account for money unless paid to us or our authorized agents,—whose names we publish on our first page every number. Persons who have money for us from abroad are requested to deposit it at this office immediately on their arrival, so that we may send the papers by return mail.

Mud Hole!

Between this place and Council Point there is a large mud hole, which should be filled up by the inhabitants in that vicinity. We have had several complaints entered to us in regard to this place—even by strangers. Some of the citizens in this town propose assisting to fix it, and make it passable. It all can be done in one day if the people are disposed to attend to it.

Extra Copies.

We have printed a large edition of extra papers this week containing highly important news from the Valley. Persons wishing to send this number to their friends, can now have a good opportunity.

We have received an answer to the following question, which was proposed in the Guardian a few weeks since: "If a man is too poor to take a newspaper, how many dogs can he afford to keep," has been ascertained by one of our subscribers to be from two to four; and those that cannot possibly take a paper for poverty can keep four dogs; and thinks it would be a good idea to dispose of some of these dogs, and thereby, he might possibly be able to take a newspaper, and not be under the necessity of wearing out, or having his dogs tear up his neighbors paper.

ELOCUTION.—We learn that Mr. S. F. Poulterer is about to give an Elocution Entertainment in this town, in a day or two, which will be a rich treat to the lovers of good and effective speaking. He will be assisted by the following talented gentlemen who have kindly volunteered their services: Messrs. Basset, Green, Campbell, Candland, &c.

Indians.

We learn by a gentleman from Bellevue that the Ottoes when they were coming in from their hunt had a battle with a band of Pawnees, who were out on a plundering expedition. The cause is said to be, that this party of Pawnees had robbed some soldiers of their horses, whereupon they informed the Ottoes, and offered them a reward if they would make the Pawnees give them up. The Ottoes sent one of their men to demand the animals, and whilst approaching near the band he was shot with an arrow, though not killed, which was a signal for a battle. The Ottoes killed twelve Pawnees out of fourteen, and took all their animals. Several of the Ottoes were badly wounded, but none killed.

The Ottoes have had a very successful hunt, and brought in a large quantity of meat and skins. Their corn crop was very light. The land that the government ploughed for them last Spring was old ground, and the weeds got the master of the corn.

Weather.

The weather has been delightful for the last month, and our farmers faces shine with gladness, for the bountiful mercies of a kind and merciful creator. All our farmers have been very busy in cutting and storing large quantities of good hay this season. The prospect for a heavy crop of corn is now good. The potatoes as we have said before, will be nothing more than an average crop, we find that the Potatoe Rot has entered some fields and destroyed nearly all, and will hardly pay for digging—which will cause them to command a good price during the Winter and Spring.

LADIES SACKS.—The fashions this summer have been for ladies sacks—a little short bob-tailed coat with no buttons on. What next?

Letter from G. A. Smith and E. T. Benson.

Camp of Israel, from Winter Quarters, Spring Creek, 345 miles Aug. 21, 1849.

BR. HYDE: We wrote you on the 5th inst, giving you a brief description of our journey up to that date, and sent the same to Fort Childs to be forwarded on to you. Another opportunity favors us this morning, of writing you, by Br. Babbitt, who came into camp a few hours ago, twenty-six days from the Salt Lake, the news he brings from there is flattering, and cheering are the prospects before the Saints, as he and the documents he bears, will inform you. As it regards the health of our camps, it has been quite good, no serious sickness with the exception of Br. Benson, who has been quite sick, for some ten days with an attack of his old complaint,—the bilious cholic—however, he is getting a great deal better, and bids fair for a speedy recovery at present. We have sustained no losses, no serious accidents of any kind, the destroyer has not lain any of us low, but indeed in every thing we have been blessed and prospered, and the Angel of peace, and mercy, it appears has been our shield, and Joseph's God our kind protector, for which we feel truly thankful to him whose we are, and who we desire to serve and obey. To be sure we have had our trials in wet muddy miry roads, sand bluffs, sloughs, rivers, &c. Also, quite frequent and heavy showers of rain, thunder, lightning, wind, and great hail. But it has caused where last year, no grass grew, and no water to be found, plenty of each for us the present year, and the Buffalo, Antelope, Ducks, &c., supplies the camps for meat, which are excellent and plenty, so you will perceive we are happy and contented, and blessed with the spirit of the Lord—we surely rejoice, and oft is the time; the camps resound with the songs of Zion, and fervent aspirations to Heaven for the mercies and blessings we enjoy and protection from the Indians—they have not molested us, indeed, we have not seen half a dozen Indians since we left Winter Quarters. The cholera it appears has frightened them, and they have deserted the path of the white man, scores of them have already died with it, and left on the Prairie, covered over with a few skins, and the wolves have come and devoured the flesh from off their bones.

Last year we requested of the Merchants in Kanesville to procure good and substantial materials for wagon covers, which was wanted by the imigrants to the Valley, and we expected they would procure it, and they assured us they had, and we purchased under that consideration, but be assured we have been deceived, as the material, (although double) will not prevent the rain from coming through and wetting our provisions, bed, &c., We would therefore counsel our brethren, that intend making purchases of material for wagon covers for future emigrating, not to purchase any such material as that sold to us, but purchase good substantial glazed cloth or bed ticking.

On the 9th inst., we passed the grave of a gold digger, and from a writing found upon the same, (a copy of which we send you) we learn that it was the grave of Edward Haggard, of Askaloosa, Iowa, (of the Hawkeye Company) who died in June last.

Copy of the writing found upon the tomb, (Verbatim)

"To any one who may read—June 7th, 1849.
"May known the cause.

"The Hawkeye Company on their journey to California, to inform any one who may read this letter, that mankind whilst journeying through this world are subject to troubles, crosses, and losses, of which we the Hawkeye Company have to say that we mourn the loss of one of our company, (to wit.,) Edward Haggard, of Askaloosa, Iowa, who departed this life June 7th, 1849,—was taken ill at Loup Fork, with diarrhœa, of which was the cause of ending his existence here below, we all mourn the loss of a friend, and particularly to be left in a desert land. We add nothing more."

JAMES McMURRAY,
J. SHRADE,
W. W. SAMPSEE,
W. G. LEE.

There was a few lines of original, (in part) poetry, on his death, which our sheet will not permit us to copy. The reason why we refer so particularly to his death the copy of the note, &c., is this, Br. Joel Terrill, last spring, purchased some ten dollars worth of ropes, and came on from the Bluffs to the Elk Horn River, with two or three others to build a raft, that the emigrants might have a way of crossing the river without being detained on their arrival. Accordingly he built his raft, exposed to the attack of the Indians far from the habitation of white man, &c. Shortly after, the before mentioned Hawkeye Company of gold hunters, on their way to California arrived at the Horn; and demanded of Br. Terrill what the fare was for conveyance over the river, he replied that as he came considerable ways—periled his life as it were, in an Indian country, and attended with considerable expense, trouble, &c., he thought he ought to have one dollar per wagon. They retired a short distance, and shortly after returned, and with guns glistening with bayonets, presented the same at Br. Terrill, and ordered him under pain of death to leave his raft, which he was compelled to do. They used the raft to cross over, and took the ropes, &c. belonging to Br. Terrill along with them, without remunerating him one cent. Br. Terrill related the circumstance to G. A. Smith, the name of the company, &c.

We have been visited with two or three severe hail storms, one took place last Friday evening, a description we copy from Elder Appleby's journal of the camp.

"Aug. 18. Last evening we experienced another heavy shower. It came on just as the camps were tying up their cattle. A dark cloud had been observed for some time before, lying off south of the Platte (near by which we were encamped,) after some time it appeared to separate, one part passed east of us, the other a short time after came over us, and saturated our canvass well, and made those that were tying up their cattle expedite the business, or else take the cold and large drops. However, it soon passed over and appeared to follow the one gone east; as if to wage a battle, as both seemed prepared. After some time they appeared to meet, and both united bent their way to give the camp a round of their artillery. On they came, riding upon the wind with the speed of the lama over the prairies, roaring and rumbling, charged with electricity, the lightnings flashed and presented their vivid glare through the darkness of the night and storm, sometimes a shaft would descend to earth, followed by rumbling and exploding peals of thunder, that caused the earth to tremble, at length they reached the camp, and as if to defeat us if we undertook to keep them at bay, they first gave us a fine drenching, (perhaps to wet our ammunition,) except those whose canvas was thick enough to repel the force of the storm. After a few minutes their batteries were opened indeed: first cannister, then grape, afterwards the half pounders, not hot shot, but cold and hard, was poured into the camp. The plains and distant hills reverbrated with the sound of the artillery of heaven. The cattle being made fast, withstood the storm, without seeking for shelter, except some horses that broke loose, and loose cattle in the carrel. The Guard in the midst of the battle, cried the hour as the hail fell upon them, sometimes striking them on the head, nearly stunning them, and cracking like shot or balls when striking the wagon bows, and sprinkling the inmates of the wagons, when striking their canvas covering, and rebounding to the ground.

However, after a while, appearing to have spent their fury, they retired, leaving the camp master of the field, and a considerable quantity of their large shot behind lying in and around the camp, which some gathered and put into some water and made a pleasant beverage. The camp after their retreat reposed in sleep, the sentinels paced the dark, and in the morning all was well; no one hurt, killed, or wounded, no cattle missing, and not an enemy lying on the battle field."

Farewell, may peace, and happiness, be and abide with you and yours, and all the Saints, and enjoy a crown of eternal life hereafter, is the prayers of your brethren in Christ,

GEO. A. SMITH.
EZRA T. BENSON.

W. I. APPLEBY, Clerk.

We are under obligations to the reporters, Messrs. Green and Campbell, for a synopsis of the speech of Messrs. Babbitt and Hyde, delivered on the 6th inst.

MARRIED,

At Kanesville Sept. 7th, by Lyman Stoddard, Mr. EVINS O. BANION, to Miss JANE BOOTH, both of Kanesville.

DIED,

At Lake Branch, August 14th, ALBERT, son of Albert and Susannah Lutz, aged 5 months and 20 days, of disease of the head.

On the 29th ult., SUSANNAH, daughter of Albert and Susannah Lutz, aged 5 months and 3 days, of canker.

On Tuesday the 11th inst., JOHN E. only son of JOSEPH E. and HARRIET JOHNSON, aged one year and five months. After a short illness of six days.

"The fairest flowers are soonest called,
The brightest dew-drop falls."

ADVERTISEMENTS.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1849.

Found on a Grave.

The following papers were found on the grave of a gold digger by some Indians, who handed them to Mr. Reed to interpret, while he was out on a hunt with them. And he politely furnished us with the orinal papers. We have published all that was deemed of any interest:

UPPER CROSSING OF THE LOUP, June 26th, 1848.

BRS. GEO. A. SMITH, AND E. T. BENSON:—My Dear Sirs: We arrived here on the 22d and 23d, all in tolerable health. Soon after the arrival of Br. Wm. Millers fifty, Br. Nelson McCarty was attacked with cholera, and died in about eight hours, and is buried at this point. The day after Br. Hydes fifty arrived I was taken quite sick by former exposure, and cold taken and settled over my system, in consequence of a hurt that I received at the Horn. I am pleased brethren to say that notwithstanding our slow move every thing seems to be right; yet we have had some feeble spirits inclined to lead off, but the prompt move made by Brs. Miller, Hyde and myself, has made all right. Br. McCarty was a good hearted man but rather too much go ahead, and I fear this the cause of this sad accident. We have waited here three days with but little prospects of crossing until to-day, about 12 o'clock, when the disposer of all good, seems to have ordered a place for us to cross at. From this point we hope to move steadily on, with due regard to our future welfare. We have found the road very heavy, yet our cattle have improved, and now appear to be in good spirits. The camp mules are generally respected, and attend too; we have lost only two cattle.

I like to have forgotten to mention that Br. Kellogg was taken with the cholera last night most severely, still we hope he will recover. Br. John Berry was thrown from a mule yesterday, and put his arm out of place but is up to-day. As yet I have not been able to send back the report of our numbers but have them ready for the first opportunity. I leave them here hoping you may receive this. I do it in short, as I am too feeble to write.

Wagons,	120	Pigs,	31
Souls,	352	Chickens,	62
Oxes,	180	Cats,	25
Cows,	315	Dogs,	25
Loose Cattle,	17	Geese,	2
Horses,	29	Ducks,	2
Mules,	12	Doves,	7
Sheep,	102	Bees, (hives,)	1

June 27th.—Since writing the within, Mr. Kellogg is better, and Br. Hudson is quite sick with cholera. Mrs. Gully had quite a severe attack last night but I took it in time, and she is well again. We are now all safe on the South side of the Loup, no accident occurred as we crossed all in about six hours, (quick time.)

When you reach the main Platte you will find another note from me.

Most respectfully,
your friend and serv't,
SAM'L. GULLY.

Died of the Cholera in the First "Camp of Israel," on the morning of the 22d of June, 1849, Elder Nelson McCarty, aged 37 years.

The deceased was a worthy member of the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints," and a faithful one of the quorum of Seventies. He was among the number of Saints that were expelled from the "City of Joseph" in the winter of 1846, to seek a home in the far west, and while on his way, upon a demand of the Government of the United States for volunteers, to embark in the war with Mexico, (though an exile in an Indian country,) he, upon the counsel of the First Presidency of the Church, unhesitatingly gave his name as one of the "Mormon battalion" and with them endured privations more revolting and insupportable than pen can describe. He returned to his family at "Winter Quarters," late in the fall of 1847, and by his own economy prepared an out-fit for the Valley of the Salt Lake and was organised as captain of the 2nd ten in the first fifty of the camp of Israel. He has left a wife and four children to mourn their loss, and in the absence of sympathizing relatives to assuage their affliction, we feel to say to them that we will mingle a tear with theirs over the grave that entombs a husband, a brother and a friend.

J. W. FOY, Clerk.

ROWES BLUFFS, May 23d, 1849.

The friend whom we have left was a member of the Mutual Protection California Company, No. 1, starting from St. Francis, Iowa. We were in camp and in search of a Ford when a number of Indians, about 100 made their appearance on the opposite side of the river, and riding in the river soon crossed over. Presuming their intention to be hostile we retreated to the camp and had our cattle brought into the carrel. The supposed enemy approached—the chief came to us, and shook hands very friendly, calling themselves Siouxs, saying they were following some other tribe and passed up the Creek. Three of our men were up the creek when they came up, they shook hands with the first and made signs for presents—receiving a handkerchief they passed on in the direction of the others,---one hid—overtaking the other, they killed him took his rifle, pistols and money. The secreted man brought the unwelcome intelligence. We sent after and brought the mangled corpse which lies here far from the abode of civilization, or relatives to bedew with tears his uncouth grave. This sad and lamentable transaction is sufficient warning to prevent individuals from leaving the train when necessary without a sufficient number to present a strong front.

The above was signed by the officers of several companies as a sufficient warning to emigrants.

Lines on the death of A. D. Graham who was drowned June 12th, 1849.

BY MISS E. T. BEACH.

Hark! a voice of grief and mourning,
Issues from the eastern sky,
To be received as timely warning,
That every one is born to die.

Beside this murdered man, another
Finds a tomb in Indian land,
Whom all regard as a brother,
A member of our little band.

And can it be that he is sleeping,
And his spirit soars above,
While friends at home are wildly weeping
On the fate of one they love.

Ye friends and kindred far away,
Remember 'tis the will of God,
Who turns darkness into day,
That he should rest beneath the sod.

Oh! then resign the gift to Heaven,
That once the Lord on you bestowed,
And think that, now to him is given,
Eternal joy—a blest abode.

The above was copied from the original, (which was written by a pencil in order that it may be better preserved, for those who came after us, that they might read these lin s written by the Poetess Miss E. T. Beach upon the death of Dr. A. A. Graham.

And we can add,

Sleep on, sleep on, ye who are resting here,
Without a mourning badge to shroud thy bier;
Without a friend to shed a farewell tear,
Ore thy lonely and silent graves.

E. B. P. P., Perry, New York.

Lines supposed to have been suggested upon reading the above.

We the Enterprise Company, came up on this rise,
Here saw a record, of which we were surprised,
Saw names registered here, of men we once knew,
And regretted to learn, their history was true.

Poor Graham, his fate, it was awful to know,
The news to his parents, will be a hard blow,
He was beloved by all who knew him, when he was alive,
The journey with his comrades, he did not survive.

And poor Parry's fate, happened some five days after,
His comrades are to be pitied, for such shocking disaster,
They all crossed the river, and looked back on the mound,
And all had to mourn the loss of those in the ground.

We were all in good spirits, when we first arrived,
But soon were cast down, when we found who had died,
And to reflect for a moment, to see where we stand,
Many miles from our friends, and death in this land.

Our minds have been wandering, for comfort and pleasure,
To shorten our journey, and thinking of treasure,
This lesson we'll heed, and lay it up in store,
As nothing transpired, to caution us before.

All who may read, will see death makes its ravages,
You are now in a wilderness, and among savages,
The merciless Indian, although no cause for revenge,
He's your worst enemy, when you think him your friend.

If our fate should prove ill, from what we expect,
We will ask for forgiveness, for what we neglect,
Our aim is to do right and justice to all,
If ill fate should attend us, be ready for the call.

July 8th, 1849. T. K.

We find in our exchanges, proclamations purporting to be manufactured by "Mormons" and that they are prime ministers of Jesus Christ, envoy extraordinaries, plenipotentiaries, and king of kings, of satan or somebody else. In the New York Herald the following proclamation by one of these worthies, Samuel S. Snow, said to be a Mormon, though we do not believe that he was ever a member of our church, if he has belonged, we are sure that the spirit of the proclamation is not in accordance with the creed and doctrine of the Latter Day Saints or Mormons. We never heard of him before, and never wish to hear from him or any man of the like stamp. As we have said before, we say again, that the proclamation of Gen. Taylor, was a document which was right and proper, and was highly necessary at the time. We hope that we shall not see any more of these proclamations against good and virtuous principles, and attributed to the Mormons, until they find them published in our own papers, and by the sanction of the authorities in the Mormon church:

From the New York Herald.

MORE OPPOSITION TO GENERAL TAYLOR—THE MORMONS IN THE FIELD.—Misfortunes never come singly. They pour upon the victim by the bucket-full. General Taylor has not been able to evade the inevitable law. To the awful howlings, and fierce assaults, and perpetual accusations of the Union; and the yells, and threats, and menaces of thousands of disappointed office-beggars, who all charge upon the President every error, and every sin of omission or commission with which the administration is chargeable, we must now add the relentless opposition of the Mormons. This desperate band of martyrs and heroes have just entered the field. They are not all engaged in digging gold in the great valley of the Salt Lake. A remnant is amongst us, and they are not disposed to give sleep to their eyes, or slumber to their eyelids, till they consign General Taylor to utter perdition. Here is the first proclamation:—

PROCLAMATION!

BY AUTHORITY OF THE KING OF KINGS!

Whereas a Document has been issued by Zachariah Taylor, the so-called President of the United States, appointing the first Friday in August next, as a day of Fasting, Humiliation and Prayer, on account of the calamities with which Almighty God, in righteous judgment, is about visiting this land of high-handed wickedness, pride, and abominable hypocrisy:—and whereas said Taylor calls on all professing Christians to suspend their usual avocations on that day, and assemble in their churches, there to beseech God to avert his threatened judgments, particularly the pestilential

SCOURGE OF CHOLERA!

Therefore I, SAMUEL S. SNOW, Prime Minister of Jesus Christ, who is King over all nations, by the authority vested in me by Almighty Jehovah, pronounce the said Zachariah Taylor a base hypocrite, a bloody robber and murderer, and a usurper of power and authority that belong not to him. I also declare that his proclamation or recommendation of

A NATIONAL FAST,
Is Null and Void,

And of no binding force or obligation whatever. And I invoke the burning curse of Jehovah upon every one who observes the day according to his recommendation.

May God speed on the war, famine and pestilence, and destroy all the wicked! Amen.

SAMUEL S. SNOW.

MOUNT ZION, July 22, 1849.

BANK OF MISSOURI.—The State Bank has published a statement of its condition at the present time by which it appears that there were in the Bank on the 30th of June last $240,653 70 surplus profits, and on the 15th of August $11,476 64 more—making in all $252,139 54. This of itself is more than sufficient to cover the late loss, without produsing any inconvenience to the Bank. According to this statement the whole amount of gold missing is $120,921 62.

THE PALMYRA TRAGEDY.—We learn from the Hannibal Journal of the 30th ult., that the arguments in the case of John S. Wise for the killing of Thomas B. Hart, were closed on Saturday before the examining Court, and on Monday the Justices terminated the trial by refusing bail and committing Mr. Wise to prison. We understand the Counsel for the defence, intend making application for a writ of "Habeas Corpus," for the release of the prisnoner from confinement.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA.

NEW YORK, August 24th.

The Canada arrived on Wednesday evening, having been delayed by heavy weather.

England and Ireland.

The English papers are filled with accounts of the enthusiastic reception of the Queen n Ireland. The cholera is on the increase.

France.

The Minister of France, in his statement of the Assembly, says that the deficit on the first of January next will be 150,000,000 francs. It is estimated that the deficit at the end of 1850 will be 320,000,000 francs. The President denies that he has any desire to change the form of government. Gen. Rostalee has been appointed Commander-in-Chief of the French army in Italy, in place of Oudinot.

Rome.

Commissioners from the Pope have arrived at Rome. They dissolved the whole army, even those who had been faithful to the Pope. It was reported that Garibaldi had beaten an Austrian force which attacked him; he had been joined by many Hungarians.

Venice.

Venice still holds out. It is said that three Armenian or American vessels had arrived with provisions for the besieged.

Austria and Hungary.

The news from Hungary continues favorable to the Hungarians. It is reported that Bem, with 40,000 men, completely defeated a Russian force of 60,000, in Transylvania, and that he had taken Hermaonstadt, and Cronstadt; it is also reported that Kalpha, a Hungarian General, had attacked and recaptured Raab, and, after seizing a large quantity of provisions and munitions of war, had fallen back on Comorn.

Additional News per Canada.

The Danish Minister of Marine has given notice that the blockade would be raised on the 11th August.

France.

Some of the French journals insist that the visit of the President to the Western Provinces, was a failure. Gen. Rostalee is to be commander-in-chief of the army in Italy, in the place of Oudinot, whose recall is said to be brought about by his inability to work in harmony with Pius, who has always looked upon him with suspicion. Rumors of a change of Ministry are very general.

Austria and Hungary.

As far as it is possible to trace the confused and conflicting accounts of the operations of the contending armies, it seems that the Hungarians still maintain their position. Some uncertainty prevails respecting Bem's operations in Transylvania. The London Daily News gives currency to the following:

"The Austrian and Russian forces, 60,000 strong, after having occupied Hermanstadt and Cronstadt, sallied forth to meet Bem, who approached with an army of 40,000, and attacked them. The battle ended in the complete defeat of the Imperialists, who fled precipitately, leaving 10,000 dead and wounded, and nearly all their artillery. 8,000 prisoners were captured by the Hungarians. Bem took possession of Hermanstadt and Cronstadt."

Under the head of "Latest Intelligence" the European Times says:

"Vienna journals of the 5th inst. supply us with news from Hungary, of great importance, if true. It appears that the Hungarians stole a march and surprised the garrison of Raab; a sharp conflict ensued which ended in the Hungarians capturing the Fortress, and city, with an immense amount of provisions, together with two companies of Austrian Infantry. Kalpha, the commander of the Hungarian troops, afterwards quitted the city, and took up his abode in the Fortress, where they seized the Vienna mails."

Latest Intelligence from Rome.

ROME, July 30.

Upon final action it has been decided on, that things should remain in the same state as when Oudinot entered. There is a report in France that Garibaldi, after defeating the Austrian corps had entered the little republic of San Marino, and claimed its protection. The Austrian commander refused and sent a large force to put him down. Garibaldi, having been joined by many Hungarians, declared his intention of affording protection to Venice.

The "Siecle" says that three American vessels entered Venice with money and provisions for the Venetians.

SECOND DISPATCH.

Latest Intelligence from France.

Oudinot's return to Paris is hourly expected. He is not to be replaced. Orders have been issued prohibiting leave of absence being granted to military officers, men, &c., at Rome. It is expected that the Pope will return to Rome about the 13th inst. Gen. Rostalee is to replace Oudinot as a Military Governor only. The Commissioner and three Cardinals are to form the ministry, with the exception of the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, which is to remain in the hands of Cardinal Antoneli. No terms as to the nature and extent of the new Constitution have been concluded with the Pope.

Hungary.

A late letter received from Presburg, states that when the capture of Raab, by the Hungarians, became known, the most intense excitement prevailed; that fugitive officers, who have reached that city, stated that the greatest consternation existed, and that the troops fled in all directions, leaving it perfectly easy for Raab to be taken, and with it an enormous amount of stores, &c. Accounts state that the Austrian General finds the greatest difficulties—his march being almost impossible; that his soldiers have suffered more than any other army ever did; and that, should the Hungarians attack him, the general opinion was that but few Imperialists would escape. Among the battalions sent by railway to Presburg, was a rifle corps composed of mere lads, who mourned and wept on the way, crying aloud that to march against the Hungarians was certain death, and, addressing dense crowds at the stations, bade farewell, saying, 'we shall never return.'

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention. There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute al he varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

C. CARBRY,

St. Joseph, Missouri.

WHOLESALE and Retail Grocer, Dry Goods and Provision Merchant. Cash paid for Produce, and sold at the lowest price of the day.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.—6m

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any busines in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

MACKEREL—Just opened, a choice article, by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

HERRING—A few boxes of good dried herring, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MOLASSES—Several bbls. good Sugar House Molasses, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, for for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PAINTS—White and colored paints, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TIN WARE—A variety, just rec'd by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SCYTHES, trace chains and cow bells, at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BONNETS—An assortment of Tuscan and Leghorn bonnets for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot, just rec'd at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HATS—Bl'k silk and Gen. Taylor hats—a variety, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Sattinetts, Tweeds, Jeans; &c., for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

IN conformity to an order of the Atchison County Court, made on the 21st day of August, 1849. I will on the 29th day of September, inst., at the East Bank of the Nichtenabotna river, where the South line of section No. 2, T. 66, R. 42 intersects the same proceed to let the building of a bridge across said Nictenabotna river to the lowest bidder. Terms will be made known at the letting of said bridge, at which time and place a plan of said bridge with specification can be seen.

JOHN WOERLEN, Com'r.

Atchison co., Mo. Sept. 5, 1849.—2t

N. B. Any person wishing to see the Bridge Commissioner can find him at Woerlens Ferry.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

A LARGE IMPORTATION OF ENGLISH & FRENCH Dry Goods, Hardware and Cutlery,

BROUGHT DIRECT, and this day opened for sale to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Kanesville and other inhabitants of Pottawatamie county by BROWN & BARHAM.

GROCERIES, sugar, tea, coffee, salt, soap, &c.
PRINTS—English and American, and domestics.
BLANKETS—quilts, carpets, rugs, woolens.
CALICO—shirting and shirts of all colors.
FLANNELS—muslins, jaconets, gauze;
RIBBONS—satin, sersenet, galloons, binding;
CLOTHES—velveteens, cords, moleskin and cloth;
SHEETING—tick, diaper, towelling;
HOSE—woolen and cotton, gloves, socks and stockings;
LADIES Alapacca, Merino, Coburgh and French dresses;
LACES—French and English, silk and cotton thread, nets, quilling and flowers;
SEWED MUSLIN—collars, braids, thread, needles, pins and thimbles;
SILK AND SATIN—bows, ties, neckcloths, h'k's and eyes;
SMALLWARES—buttons, glass, steel, gilt, silk and satin;
THREADS—silk, linen, and cotton of all colors;
SHOES—ferretts, edging, binding, caps and bonnets;
IRISH LINEN—Union check;
TOOLS—double and cut plain irons, chisels, gouges and augers of all sizes, drawing knives;
SAWS—taper, pit and mill, ripping, compass and hand saws, also turning webs, pit and hand saw sets and fillers;
FILES—bastard, horse rasps and flat wood files;
GIMBLETS—shell and spike, turnscrews;
NAILS AND GLASS;
STEEL—knives, forks, pocket and pen knives, screws, door hinges, Scissors and spoons of good, and common quality, door locks;
SALERATUS—spices, oils, paints, varnish, saltpetre, olive oil, camphor;
LIQUORS—rectified whisky, gin and cognac brandy, by the Gallon.
HAMS—barley, rice, dried apples and peaches;
RAISINS—currants, almonds, allspice and pickles;
TOBACCO AND SNUFF—Ginger, tartary wax and candles;
POWDER—lead, vinegar, tinmans solder;
TARTANS AND PLAIDS—a good selection from Scotland, for ladies and gentlemen's dresses—all offered CHEAP for cash, by

BROWN & BARHAM.

Kanesville, Aug. 22, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

WINDOW GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by
jy25 VOORHIS.

Straw Bonnets and Gentlemens' Hats Cleaned and Pressed.

MRS. CROMBIE, (formerly of Boston,) must respectfully informs the Ladies of Kanesville and vicinity that she will attend to the above, and also to Dressmaking and Milinery, and she hopes by assiduous attention to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her. All orders left at Mr. Needhams store, will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville June 27, 1849.—tf

MRS. BOND, (Late from England,) respectfully informs the inhabitants of Kanesville, and vicinity, that she has commenced business as Vest Maker, near the Printing office; and she hopes by cheapness, punctuality and dispatch, to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her.

Children's clothes made, and gentleman's clothes repaired.

Kanesville, June 16th, 1849.

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at July 25th. C. VOORHIS'.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEAS—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by
jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at
jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at
jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate artilce at
jy25 VOORHIS'.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by
jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [j25] VOORHIS.

BOSTON STORE.

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance, above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth buskins
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins;	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grano do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" Kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the big boot, on the top of the House, No. 236, Now Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the best opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectfully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and, adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 21, 1849—my21

STILL THEY COME.

NEW GOODS AT NEEDHAM & FERGUSON'S STORE,

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON has just received a choice selection of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARD-WARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

Mr. Ferguson residing most of his time in St. Louis, we are enabled to watch the market, and select the goods at the best possible advantage. We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident we have one of the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

BLUFF HOUSE.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.

Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.

Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness and Bridle Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

S. F. POULTERER—General Engraver on wood, brass, copper and jewelry. Orders left at the Printing Office, or at the Union Hotel will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, July 25th, 1849—tf

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Kanesville and Pottawatamie County, that he has opened a shop in Kanesville where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

Shop opposite the Bluff House, Main Street.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Kanesville, Aug 22, 1849.

RICE, Peaches and apples at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

CURRANTS—A large lot of dried currants at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS

POETRY.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Zion's Railroad.

BY L. N. SCOVIL.

The line to Zion, by Christ was made,
With heavenly truths, the rails are laid,
From here to Zion, the line extends,
To life eternal where it ends.

Faith, and repentance are the station,
And baptism, door of admission,
No fee for them is there to pay,
For Jesus he has marked the way.

The Holy Ghost, is the true ticket,
And it is given to all who seek it,
By hands laid on, as anciently;
And brings all things as formerly.

The law of God is engineer,
It points the way to Zion clear,
Through tunnels dark, and dreary here,
It does the way to Zion steer.

God's love the fire, His truth the steam,
Which drives the engine, and the train;
All you who would, to Zion ride,
Must come to Christ, in him abide.

If in first class, you wish to ride,
A law celestial must you abide;
And if not valiant in the cause,
You must abide terrestial laws.

And if you do the whole reject,
Telestial laws, you may expect;
Where thieves and liars are found,
And whosoever loves the sound.

Come on all people, now's the time,
At any station on the line,
If you do wish to turn from sin,
The train will stop, and take you in.

And you must call at the wicket,
And be sure you have a ticket,
If not the Porter, will detect,
And from the car will you eject.

Kanesville, September, 1849.

For the Frontier Guardian.

24TH OF JULY,

AT

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY.

July 24th being the Anniversary of the arrival of Prests. Young and Kimball with the Pioneers, in the Valley, the inhabitants were awoke by the firing of cannon, accompanied by martial music, the brass band and martial music were then carried round the city, in two carriages, playing their music alternately; and returned to the bower by 7 o'clock. The bower is a building 100 feet long by 60 wide, built on 104 posts, and covered with boards; but for the services of this day a canopy, or awning, was extended about one hunderd feet from each side of the bower, to accommodate the vast multitude at dinner.

At 7½, the large National Flag was unfurled, measuring 65 feet long at the head of our Liberty Pole, which is 104 feet high, and was saluted with 6 guns, the ringing of the Nauvoo Bell, and martial music.

At 8, a salute of 6 guns and martial music, to call the multitude together; the Bishops of the several wards arranging themselves in the sides of the aisle with the banners of their wards unfurled, each bearing some appropriate inscription.

At 8½, the Presidency of the Stake, Twelve, and bands, went to prepare the escort in the following order: at the house of Prest. B. Young, under the direction of Lorenzo Snow, J. M. Grant, and F. D. Richards:

Horace S. Eldridge, Marshal, on Horseback, in Military Uniform.
Brass Band.
Marshal Music.

12 Bishops bearing the banners of their wards.

24 young men, dressed in white, with white scarfs on their right shoulders, and coronets on their heads; each carrying in their right hands the Declaration of Independence and Constitution of the United States, and swords sheathed in their left hands; one of them carrying a beautiful banner, inscribed on it, "The Zion of the Lord."

24 young ladies dressed in white, with white scarfs on their right shoulders, and a wreath of white roses on their heads, each carrying the Bible and Book of Mormon; and one bearing a very neat banner, "Hail to our Chieftain."

Newel K. Whitney, Bishop, Thomas Bullock, Clerk;
John Smith, Patriarch, Willard Richards;
Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball;
Parley P. Pratt, John Taylor;
Charles C. Rich, Erastus Snow;
David Spencer, D. Fullmer, Willard Snow;
12 Bishops, carrying flags of their wards;

24 Silver Greys, led by Isaac Morley, Patriarch; each having a staff, painted red on the upper part, and a branch of white ribbons fastened on the top; one of them carrying the flag with the stars and strips and inscribed on it, "Liberty and Truth."

As the procession started from the house at 9 o'clock, the young men and young ladies sung a hymn through the street; the cannons kept up one continual roar, the musketry rolled, the Nauvoo Bell pealed out its silvery notes, and the brass band played a slow march. On arriving at the bower the escort was received with loud shouts of "Hosannah to God and the Lamb," which made the air reverberate; while Prests. Young, Kimball and Richards, John Smith, Newel K. Whitney, and Thomas Bullock were proceeding down the aisle, loud cheers were given, "Hail to the Governor of Deseret." On being seated by the committee on the stand, the escort passed round the assembly singing a hymn of praise; when they also marched down the aisle, and were seated in double rows on each side. The vast multitude were called to order by Mr. J. M. Grant, and when they were seated; Mr. Erastus Snow offered a prayer of thanksgiving to our Heavenly Father.

Richard Ballantyne, one of the 24 young men, then came forward to the stand, his coronet glittering as if with rubies, and in a neat speech presented the Declaration of Independence and Constitution of the United States, in a respectful manner to Prest. Young, which was received with three deafning shouts, of "may it live for ever and ever," led on by Prest. Young.

The Declaration of Independence was then read by Mr. Erastus Snow.

The band then played lively.

Mr. Bullock then rose, and read "the Mountain Standard," composed by P. P. Pratt.

Lo the gentile chain is broken;
Freedom's banner waves on high,
List ye nations! By this token,
Know that your Redeemer's nigh.

See, amid these rocky mountains,
Zion's standard wide unfurled,
Far above Missouri's Fountain,
Lo! it waves for all the world.

Freedom, peace, and full salvation,
Are the blessings guaranteed;
Liberty to every nation,
Every tongue and every creed.

Come ye christian, sect, and pagan,
Pope, and protestant, and priest,
Worshippers of God, or Dagon,
Come ye to fair freedom's feast.

Come ye sons of doubt and wonder,
Indian, Moslem, Greek, or Jew,
All your shackles burst asunder,
Freedom's banner waves for you.

Cease to butcher one another,
Join the covenant of peace,
Be to all a friend, a brother,
This will bring the world release.

Lo! our King! the great Messiah,
Prince of peace, shall come to reign,
Sound again ye heavenly choir,
Peace on earth, good will to men.

Which was sung by the 24 young men and the 24 young ladies.

Mr. Phinehas Richards then came forward in behalf of the 24 aged sires in Israel, and read their address, congratulating Prest. Young on the Anniversary of this day—on finishing which, the multitude rose, and shouted three times, Hosanna, Hosanna, Hosanna, to God and the Lamb, for ever and ever, Amen. Prest. Young leading, while the banners were waving by the Bishops.

The band then played a lively air.

Mr. Bullock, then rose, and read the following "Ode to Liberty"

Fairest spirit of the skies,
Fairest child of Paradise,
Now Columbia's lawful prize,
Glorious Liberty.

'Twas for thee our Fathers sought,
For thy sake our Heroes fought,
Thee our bleeding Patriots bought,
Precious Liberty.

Never, never, cease to wave,
O'er the ashes of the brave,
Shield, Oh! shield the Patriots grave,
Flag of Liberty.

While thy banner waves abroad,
All may freely worship God,
Fearless of the Tyrant's rod,
Sacred Liberty.

Should oppression ever dare,
From thy brow, the wreath to tare,
Righteous vengeance shall not spare,
Thy foes, Oh! Liberty.

Sooner than to bondage yield,
Boldly in the battle field,
Let the Sons of Freedom wield,
The sword of Liberty.

Which was afterwards sung by the 24 silver greys, in the tune of "Bruces' address to his army."

Mr. John Young, being called to the stand, said, he was rejoiced to stand before the congregation to speak a few words on Liberty and Truth. His remarks were pointed, animating and illustrative.

Mr. C. C. Rich, then rose, and reviewed the scenes of the past two years, from the entrance of the Presidency, and the Pioneers into the Valley and clearly showed that we had all enjoyed liberty and freedom, and the pursuit of happiness, as guaranteed by the Declaration of Independence.

Mr Heber C. Kimball was much edified by the performance of this day, and felt the same as John Young did, when he spoke, and related the account of Father Young going into the State of Missouri, being met by a band of robbers, who would have killed him for being a Mormon; but, on account of the uncertainty of it, they robbed him, and told him to put for Illinois; and reated the account of his persecution and death. Mr. Kimball stated that there had been some persons in this Valley, who had been boasting of their shooting Hyrum Smith and would have shot Bro. Brigham, and himself, if they could; but he thanked God that he was a free born Son of Zion.

Prest. Young rose to rejoice with those that rejoiced, and were it beneficial, could weep for those that do not weep for themselves; said he, it is two years ago this day since I arrived in this Valley; but the multitude of principles, circumstances, and ideas, that now crowd my mind, I shall have to take up lightly. Orson Pratt and Dr. Richards, with a great number of others, had been cutting the roads through the Kanyons while I was sick on the Weber River; I met with them here between 4 and 5 in the afternoon, and now we commemorate this day. Let us look back to the past, 5 years ago, most of the Twelve were in the Eastern States, and had just heard of the death of the Prophet Joseph; and when we returned to Nauvoo, thousands of men wore mourning on their arms, their head, and their hearts; and every sister was veiled in mourning, for what? why, in the boasted Republic the governor, lieutenant governor, sheriffs, officers and subjects, priests and people had succeeded in shedding the blood of Joseph and Hyrum, the Prophet and Patriarch. Did the persecution cease then? by no means! the sayings of the Prophet were verified, that when they had succeeded in killing him, they would next attempt to kill me, and my brethren. Two years ago, many of the oldest, whitest headed men now before me, and some of the young men, were bearing the flag of the United States triumphantly through the States of Mexico. We had to leave the United States because we said that Joseph Smith was a Prophet, and the Book of Mormon was true; that is the cause why we are here! it is pure mobocracy that has brought us here. Some of you, now before me, went to market in the United States to buy liberty, and you were told that your blood was the price of liberty, here's Mr Taylor, went to market to buy liberty, and he was pierced with four balls, they tried hard to get all his blood, but he has a little left this day. There is no gentleman who loves good laws, peace, or society, but loves this people. All good men delight in us as a people, and they delight in truth and righteousness. Mr. Kimball has predicted there would be pestilence, war, distress, and trouble; its true, gentlemen, its even at the door of the nations of the earth, there is the rapping at the door, and there is one foot in at the present moment. It is Mormonism that has brought us here—I will ask, why was it that Joseph Smith could collect together the highest talents in the nation! Why was it that so much mystery surrounded him? It was because God was with him, and is with us, the interests of the Saints temporally, and eternally are blending together like one man, because the Savior said except ye are one, ye are none of mine, you can not destroy the union of the Saints; there is no difficulty in the laws or constitutions; but many of the administrators are corrupt, the reason why the murderers of Joseph and Hyrum were not taken up, and hanged by Governor Ford, was, because of the wicked administrators. We worship the God that sets up Kingdoms, and puts them down, he raises up Empires, and removes them at his pleasure, and he has done as much as to make a King feed on grass, without his being questioned as to his authority. Why do we not celebrate the 4th of July? The Declaration of Independence is just as precious to me to-day as it was 20 days ago! has it not the same validity, that it had in 1776? Is it not as good to-day as it was 20 days ago? We choose this day that we might have a little bread to set on our tables; to day we can see the bread, cucumbers, and beets, that we could not have seen 20 days ago. Inasmuch as there are some strangers in our midst I want you to give them their dinner, for they rejoice to see us happy, and I say they are welcome, heartily welcome, &c.

Wm. W. Phelps related a story on Tom Ford and the mobocrats who have driven us out of the States, and using as a figure, a man building an oven on a wagon wheel so as to have the mouth turn all ways.

The band then played a lively tune.

The hour of intermission having arrived, Mr. Grant requested the escort to form in procession around the assembly, and the Bishops of each ward to collect the inhabitants of their respective wards together, and march with them to the dinner tables.

Several thousands of the Saints dined sumptuously, on the fruits of the earth, produced by their own hands, who invited several hundreds of the emigrants, even all who were in the Valley, and a company who came in during the dinner were stopped, dismounted, placed at one of the tables, and were astonished by their warm reception, and two or three score of Indians also partook of the bounty. Such a feast of the body, coupled with a feast of the soul, has not been experienced on this Continent for a length of time.

After dinner at 3½ P. M., the band, bishops with their banners, the young men and young ladies, and the silver greys were formed into the line of escort, and again promenaded round the vast assemblage singing the songs of Zion, while the Nauvoo Bell continued pealing, musketry rolling, and the cannon roaring.

Prest. Young declared he never saw such a dinner in his life. Mr. Rich said that it was almost a marvellous thing that every body was ever satisfied, and many grey headed veterans from different countries in the Old World, united in declaring they had often sat down to the festive board in the United States, England, Scotland, France, Germany, Norway and Denmark, but had never enjoyed such a day as this; not an oath was uttered, not a man intoxicated, not a jar or disturbance occurred to mar the union, peace and harmony of the day.

When the escort had passed round the assembly, singing as usual, they came into the aisle, and formed in double rows on each side, as in the forenoon.

The assembly were called to order by Mr. J. M. Grant—when the choir sung a hymn.

Mr. Grant then remarked, as the world we live in, is a world of variety, we have a variety of toasts to be read.

W. W. Phelps then read the twenty-four toasts as given by the twenty-four bishops.

Regular Toasts given at the Festival of the 24th July, Commemorating the entrance of the Pioneers into the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, July 24th, 1847.

1.—The Great Salt Lake, and the Saints in the Valley of the Great Basin of North America:—May their savor increase till all Israel is saved.

2.—The Constitution of the United States; the Mercury of American Liberty:—Patriotism, virtue, and honesty, raise it to the summer heat of happiness and prosperity; but corruption, vice, and treachery, sink it below the zero of misery and wretchedness.

3.—The President of the United, and the Governor of the several States:—Wise stewards make virtue exalt a nation, and sin a reproach to the people.

4.—Our God, our Country, and our Rights:—May we fear and love Him, honor and serve that, and merit and enjoy these.

5.—President Brigham Young:—may the wise of the whole earth learn, when the Lion roars, that the feast of the Lord is preparing.

6.—Joseph Smith the Seer, and Hyrum Smith the Patriarch:—(Two Martyrs all the people standing uncovered.)

7.—The aged fathers present:—Patriots on the domain of liberty,—pioneers in the kingdom of Heaven, and priests of the most high God; may their sons honor their grey hairs, and walk in their paths blameless.

8.—They that drove the Saints into the wilderness:—Like them that cast Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, into Nebuchadnezzars furnace, have to try the same fire: Amen.

9.—The twenty-four young men present and the Elders of Israel:—overcome the world and the world will not Overcome you.

10.—The mothers in Israel: Queens in exile;

But companions in arms,
Who conquer by charms,
Increase and be true,
While the heavens drop dew.

11.—The twenty-four young ladies present and all others in the kingdom of Heaven:—The fig-trees are leaving, the summer is near, as your mothers did, so do ye.

12.—The Presidency of the Church and the Twelve:—A union of honest men, bound for the greatest gift of God, and the greatest good to man: by truth they conquer.

13.—The State of Deseret:—Like the evening and the morning star, may the end and beginning of day be known by her.

14.—The Dinner:—The products of the wilderness; the industry of the Saints; the beauty of Zion; the glory of the Lord; the salvation of the world.—(B. Y.)

15.—The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints:—Like Moses' "burning bush," remaining unconsumed amid the worldly fire of continued persecution.

16.—The Law:—Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.

17.—The Kingdom of liberty:—Free soil, free elements, free knowledge, free religion, and free men, ad infinitum.

18.—Industry and Intelligence:—The independent fortune of man, richer than gold and more valuable than rubies; happy the people that possess them.

19.—Ensign to the Nations:—A standard to the people, the kingdom of God, and all things equal.

20.—The Wheat of the Valley:—Worth more than the gold dust of California, happy the man that hath his garner full.

21.—The Saints:

A wit's a feather, and a chief's a rod;
But an honest man, the noblest work of God.

22.—Perfect love:—He that loves the soul more than the body.

23.—The Nauvoo Legion:

"Freeman cheer the hickory tree;
In storms, its boughs have sheltered thee."

24.—The Surrounding Nations:—Come and see how good the Lord is.

Mr. Thos. Bullock then read the volunteer tonsts; many of them were sublime; while others were very witty, and caused much laughter among the audience.

Volunteer Toasts.

By Dan'l. H. Wells—The Goddess of Liberty:—We welcome her safe arrival to the Vallies of the Mountains, may she never have cause to repent her migration hither, or hide her radiant smiles from the children of the Deseret.

By Dr. Willard Richards—Brigham Young and Heber C. Kimball: Bretheren, one in all things, their lives undivided; may their latter days be as happy and glorious as their former days have been diligent and prosperous.

By Heber C. Kimball—The Presidency and the Twelve Apostles:—The pioneers of the latter days; they have led us from error and darkness to light and truth, from the rage and stern oppression of wicked men, to a resting place in the vallies of the Mountains; they have opened a highway for all the nations of the earth. Ho! all ye Saints of the Most High God, walk ye in it.

By Daniel H. Wells—The Bulwarks of Freedom, Intelligence, Virtue, Patriotism, and Eternal Vigilance:—More potent to save and preserve than the Great Salt Lake; the interminable sage plains and sandy deserts, or the everlasting hills. May the former always increase; and the latter never grow less.

By Joseph L. Haywood—The Great Salt Lake: Tipical of the office work of the Elders of Israel.

By P. P. Pratt—Deseret, Youngest Sister of the Republic: May she be a solace, strength, and comfort to the Old Lady in her declining years.

By Daniel H. Wells—The day we celebrate:—Fraught with associations painful in the past, but glorious in the future. May future generations never have cause to substitute another in its stead.

By Heber C. Kimball—The day we celebrate: May its perpetuity be as eternal, as its birth has been glorious.

By Daniel H. Wells—The Gold Mines and the Gold diggers:—As the one glitters in the earth, so may the others shine with virtuous principles, and goodness of heart.

By the Same—The Emigration to the Gold Mines:—When snakes and beasts, storms and winds, and cattle grow perverse. When these annoy and those destroy, just charge it to your purse.

By John S. Fullmer—The Constitution of the United States, and the several States:—Productions emanating from the wisdom of the Almighty; granting Universal Liberty, Religious, as well as civil, to all men. Would that those sacred principles had never been tarnished by their professed advocates; but having set with them, it remains for us to snatch them from oblivion, and plant their standard in every clime in all the world, and proclaim universal Freedom.

By John Taylor—The Ladies of the Lake; the Lillies of the Valley:—Our mothers, wives, and children; may their posterity from generation to generation, be found to emulate their noble examples of virtue, patience, industry and patriotism.

After a few moments the following impromptu to the toast was forwarded to the stand, by Miss Eliza R. Snow.

We feel ourselves honored by the sentiment, and will endeavor to prove worthy of your high anticipations, and as you have hitherto, proven yourselves patriots, and the protectors of innocence and virtue; we cheerfully commit ourselves, families, and lives, to your protection, believing that the unflinching integrity, zeal, and patriotism, that has hitherto actuated you, will be to us a safe bulwark and defence.

By N. K. Whitney—The Translator of the Book of Mormon:—His posterity innumerable, his name and true character be perpetuated, when time shall cease to be measured unto man.

By Thomas Bullock—The King's Jester:—A pair of shears so very keen. They never cut themselves, but cut what's between.

Jester's Toast—The World, the Flesh and the Devil:—The soap, the razor, and the barber. That shaves the wicked of all generations; hands off, there boys. Touch not a single hair.

The band struck up one of their most lively pieces.

John Kay sung one of his humorous Irish songs, which was much cheered by the assembly.

The band played.

Elder Parley P. Pratt then rose and addressed the audience, saying that if variety is the spice of life, we have had a spicy meeting; he doubted if the oldest States could set a larger table, or a greater variety; and spoke his feelings in a most eloquent manner. Amongst other things, he said if he had the power to act from the impulse of the moment, the shackles should be burst from every nation, kindred, tongue and people; they should all be free as the great parent has made all mankind; they should have liberty to worship as they please, but for that, every man should answer to God for his own conscience; says he, I rejoice at the Constitution of the United States, while I mourn over a corrupt administration; the principles of our fathers will stand for ever, though all the nations may fall to pieces. I am a friend of my country, and an enemy to its enemies—while his soul stretched out in language to embrace the whole world.

Prest. Young again remarked, that we have had a great variety, and enquired where is the man or woman that has assembled here this day that has sinned against God, heavenly beings, or his fellow man? and answered for himself, and thousands of others, not one! We have had a day of gladness and joy long to be remembered by our children, by the youth, the middle aged, and it will go down to the grave with the aged. I say unto this congregation, be ye blest in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Go your way, and never sin more, the anger of the Lord is only kindled against the wicked.

The Marshal read a short address to Prest. Young, in behalf of the middle aged.

The band then struck up "Home, sweet home."

The escort then passed round the assembly, singing, the band playing, and bell ringing.

The entire congregation rose and were dismissed with the benediction of Elder John Taylor.

When the assembly dispersed to their several homes and the emigrants to their wagons, every one rejoicing for the blessings which the Lord has poured out upon every soul this day.

THOMAS BULLOCK, Clerk.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Camp of Israel, near Fort Childs, 208 miles from Winter Quarters, Sunday, Aug. 5, '49.

Br. O. Hyde: While the bright and glorious luminary of day is mounting up from his Eastern temple, and the camps of Israel is carreled on the open prairie, with the canopy of Heaven for their coverings, (except their canvass,) and the herdsman is guarding the cattle with their rifle in hand, and the camps are busy in doing the duty devolving upon them by our request, our clerk has seated himself to write a hasty sketch to you, for the Guardian, and to all others whom it may concern. We received with joy the letters you sent us by Capt. Cane on the morning of the 2d inst., and we wish you to embrace every opportunity, in doing the like, and we will cheerfully return the compliment, we have had no serious accidents in our camps—all have enjoyed tolerable good health with one or two exceptions—we have met with no losses of cattle, indeed in every thing, we have been blessed for which we feel to raise our prayers and hearts of thanksgiven and gratitude to our Father in Heaven, surely the angel of mercy has gone before us, and round about the camp of Israel. We have had two or three stampedes, before we adopted the plan of chaining and tieing up our cattle, since then, none in our camp has occurred, but our cattle rest in peace and quiet ness. We carrel our loose cattle, horses, and sheep, inside, and our oxen outside, which we think the safest plan, in case of fright, or a stampede, and we find it answers well, and we recommend to every company coming to adopt the same plan, tie up, and to the Merchants in Kanesville to keep on hand a good supply of ropes, of good quality and strength for the purpose, and let none come without a supply sufficient for their cattle. In Capt. Richards company a stampede took place last Sabbath evening, but not serious, and without loss, they carreled. His company we expect is at Elm Creek thirteen miles ahead of us, on our journey thus far we have passed seven graves, some of gold diggers, others of the Saints, all but one (an infant) died of cholera, as the head-boards inform us. Among others we see the name of A. Kellogg at Praire Creek, one hundred and fifty-seven miles from Winter Quarters, died of cholera 23d of June last. Also Samuel Gully, Capt. of 100, in Br. O. Spencers Company of Saints, lies one hundred & eighty-five miles from Winter Quarters, in the open prairie, his grave neatly turfed over, died of cholera July 5th, 1849, aged thirty-nine years. Along side of his lies another, Henry Vanderhoof, of the same Company, bound for California gold regions, died of cholera July 4th, so you perceive the destroyer is on these vast Plains as well as in the cities and towns.

We found a note from Capt. Allen Taylor, left on the grave of a gold digger, a few days ago, informing us, that his company had found a few miles below the Fort, fifty-one head of oxen and steers and four cows, and from some men that has been from the camp to the Fort we further learn this morning, that between the Fort, and where they found the first cattle, they, found some fifty head more. The company stopped opposite the Fort, sent over for the officers, to come and see if the cattle belonged to them, ie. the Government, the officers said they did not, and they proceeded on with them. In the note Capt. Taylor wishes "we had a few yoke of them to help us" we have accordingly sent on Capt. Patten with three on four others to get a few yoke, as our wagons are heavily laden, with Church property, &c., and the roads has been very heavy, muddy, and miry, rendered so by the incessant rains we have had on the Plains. Yesterday morning we experienced a very heavy shower of thunder, lightning, wind and rain, mingled with hail, some was supposed to be one and a half inches in diameter.

Capt. Richards Company discerned a new ford across the Loup Fork, about 6¾ miles below the upper ford, opposite to an old Pawnee Village. The ford is a good one, we think, far superior to either of the others, we crossed upwards of one hundred wagons in a little over half a day, together with our cattle, sheep, &c., laboring under the disadvantage of a high wind, all safe,—a good place for camping on the opposite side.

Since we wrote you concerning our organization at the Elk Horn, we have had a reorganization at the Platte Liberty Pole, which we deemed advisable. The rules of the Camps are the same as those adopted by Prest. Young's Company last year. The camps are denominated G. A. Smiths' including the Welch Company, and E. T. Bensons', including the Norwegian Company. It was thought proper to divide thus on account of numbers, and so separate the camps, but keep close to each other. The officers are as follows:

Isaac Clarke, President of both Camps,

In G. A. Smiths' Company.

W. I. Appleby, Wm. Draper, } Counsellors.
Elisha Everetts, Captain of 100.
William Patten, Captain of 50.
Asael Thorn, Captain of the guard.
Capt. Dan. Jones, Marshal.
Thomas Jeremy, Daniel Daniels, Lysander Gee, Gashum C. Case, Miram Tanner, } Captains of tens.
Cable Tary, Clerk.

In E. T. Bensons Company.

Charles Hopkins, Captain of 50.
Samuel Malin, Captain of the guard.
James Cragan, Marshal.
Azael T. Talcott, Elisha Wilcox, Sherman Gilbert, Christian Hyer, Henry Boley, } Captain of tens.

W. I. Appleby, General Clerk of both Camps and Journalist.

The reason why we are anxious for all companies coming this way to tie up their cattle, is because of loss and danger. Indeed, there are but few that can comprehend the terrors of a stampede, picture to yourselves, there or four hundred heads of frightened oxen, steers, cows, &c., running, bellowing, roaring, foaming, mad and furious, the ground shaking beneath their feet like an earthquake, chains rattling, yokes cracking, horns flying, and the cry of the guard, "every man in camp turn out." Horses mounted, and in the darkness of the night, through high grass, sloughs, mud and mire, pursue the bellowing and furious herd, leaving the women and children frightened with a few guards with rifles, to guard the camp. After an hour or two perhaps, the cattle will begin to get weary and quieted, and if luck and good fortune attends, the horsemen will head them and drive them back to camp, except those that sometimes swim the rivers, &c. The terrors of a stampede are not soon forgotten, with good chains and ropes to tie up will prevent all this.

We close by saying, may peace and the blessings of Heaven attend you all, and let your prayers ascend to Heavens' throne for our welfare, and not only us but all the camps. Send us on some newspapers whenever you can, and other intelligence. May we meet again in the Valley of the Mountains of Joseph, is the prayers of,

Your Brethren in Christ.
GEO. A. SMITH,
EZRA T. BENSON.
W. I. Appleby, Clerk.

Late from California.

Stanislaus Diggings, Jamestown,

Gentlemen: I believe my last date was up to the 14th May, and I take advantage of a rare opportunity to address you again relative to the El Dorado of the age. The mining has been rather discouraging, but I resume my data.

Monday, 14th May.—I have earned to-day only $12, and the prospects among the workies are rather disheartening. Three Americans, however, below Jamestown, took out of piece of gold worth $278!! The news flew like wild-fire. Twelve California carts, with four yoke of oxen each, passed this valley last eve, and it was a scene of rural beauty I have never seen surpassed.

Wednesday, 16th.—Still digging with only mediocre success, as are the majority about me. The imigration for the past two days has been less than usual. Now and then, a party appears on its winding way, composed principally of Mexicans with their lances and red flags. A party of them encamped near Jamestown and hoisted a small red flag over their tent, but a deputation of Americans waited upon the gentlemen, and soon gave to understand that such a proceeding would be looked upon as a national insult and challenge direct, and they instantly hauled the offensive banner down. This afternoon the line of march seemed to be resumed, and the apparently interminable array is again in motion. One may well ask "where do they come from? and what country is likely to be depopulated?" for some parts of the world must be thinning their ranks very rapidly.

A large party from Tepic have been hard at work for several weeks, with rather poor success till yesterday, when they struck a vein, yielding the first day three pounds, and to-day two and a half pounds. Their woe begone countenances have assumed a smiling appearance, though they fear their good luck will be of short duration.

Thursday, May 17th.—The wind last night blew fiercely from the Sierra Nevada, and at daylight I found the water in my "bateo" skimmed with ice! Reports of good success among a few diggers below are current. One man is said to have taken $1,200 in one day from the "Arroyo" though it is probably exaggerated. In this immediate vicinity, others were doing little.

Saturday, 19th.—It is six weeks since I reached the mines, and they have been rendered memorable by the hardest work I have ever undergone; and what is more vexatious, it has been without its reward. Three Mexicans, however, near Wood's camp—11 miles below—took up yesterday—(Keep your hat) $2,200!!!. Adjacent to their mine, others were gathering their "little ounce."

Tuesday, 29th—Scores of dispirited looking objects, are wandering up and down the Arroyo to-day, with their pans and picks upon their shoulders, showing plainly that their labors have not been blest with success. One would imagine that the mantle of good house-wives had fallen upon the sterner sex, and that they were all hurrying to some grand "clam blake," to which all the world except his wife, had been invited, to see the pan-armed array moving to and fro, only their looks more surely indicate a famine than a feast. Slowly the waters are still rising—they must fall before successful operations can be thought of.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 3, 1849. VOLUME I.----NUMBER 18.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

Elder ISAAC BULLOCK, is our authorized traveling Agent throughout the United States.
Dr. JOHN M BERNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
DAVID ROY, Mackinaw, Tazwell county Illinois.
BASIL B. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

PRIESTCRAFT IN DANGER.

A DRAMA.

BY WILLIAM M'GHIE.

ACT II.

(Concluded.)

Saun.—I hae naething but mysel to offer, but I'm willing to spend and be spent in sic a glorious cause. Oh! that God would now accept me for his services while life remains.

H. C. K.—The Lords stands in need of thy services. Unto thy hands I commit the presidency of Tythington, and the regions around, to be assisted by Brother Aimwell's labors and means, as wisdom may direct.

L. A.—Never was man's hopes better realized, and never was I as proud as at this moment. Under such a leader we shall mount the breach and scale the citadel of Satan with astonishing rapidity.

Saun.—What am I, or what was my father's house, that such honor is put upon me all at once. But the same God who raised David from a shepherd's crook to a throne, and supported him there, can support me also in the high position to which I am raised. O God grant me wisdom, faithfulness, and humility for this purpose.

H. C. K.—Now, brethren, we are almost at the cottage; compose yourselves, therefore, and prepare your minds for greater joy.

(Exeunt.)

SCENE IV. Saunders Snoddem's Cottage, in which are seated Lady Emily Aimwell, Lucy Lappet, and Janet Snoddem in conversation.

Janet.—It was at that very time, ye're ladyship, for the sooner had our Saunet's delivered his message to your ladyship, than he wheeled about and met them comin up the walk; and they turned down to the wast, and his lordship and Sauners were baptised thegither. But dearsake dinna be letting on that I was telling ye ought about it, for it come out in its ain time, and trouth tell ye the truth, I'm a wee proud to be first to han, for I kent it wad please ye're ladyship.

Emily.—You could not have taken a more effectual method, I must say, this is the happiest moment of my happy life.

Lucy.—And O! what a wonderful fulfillment of prophecy. Does your ladyship recollect your meeting Mr. Kimball in the Glen.

Emily.—Indeed I do, and I thank you for putting me in mind of it. Yes, he told me there, the time was at hand when both my brother and I would rejoice together in the gospel. At that time there was not the least probability of such an event. But two short days are not passed, and behold it is accomplished.

Janet.—I declare its past a comprehension, your Sauners says. And it pits me in mind o' what Sauners was telling me yesterech, about Mr. Kimball being taen afore that tilly body, Dr. Claber, or Glamour, or Clamour or whatever they ca' him. He tell't us, if he dinna judge righteously he would be catch'd in his own trap. And how truly it happened we a ken; and the base scoundrel himsel kent better than any o us.

Emily.—Indeed, it is very remarkable, if not more so than the spirit of inspiration leads us to expect. You expect brother Kimball here this evening.

Janet.—That's true. And his lordship he's to be here, and he has sent afore him a braw sample o' eatables, just look here what wi har gotten down frae the Castle. Every body's visitors wad come at their ain cost, as mine does, there wadna be sae muckle grumbling while's.

Emily.—At what hour do you expect them?

Janet.—They may be in at any minute, they're out rambling among the fields, and Sauners is wi them. I'm a wee doubtful if his gamblin fashion o the gentry 'ill do wi Sauners, wha has his bread to earn by the sweat o his brow.

Emily.—I am half disposed to abide their coming, 'twill force mutual disclosures of these secret doings, and bring all to light. What think you Lucy?

Lucy.—Ah't, please your ladyship, you may never get a better opportunity, I am sure its what you ought to do.

Janet.—And what else wad ye do, my lady; na, na, ye'se no lea the house afore they come wi my guid will, if ye can condescend till't, we'se hae ae happy night a thegither.—(Looking out at the window.) Ye'll need nae coaxing now lass, there they're amaist at the door; na, but only look at that, there's our guidman atween the twa, as if he was their equal and mair. Gude guide us! I dinna ken what's taw come o't, but he's started guy and fairish, I'm thinkin.

Enter H. C. Kimball, Saunders Snodd'em and Lord Aimwell.

H. C. Kimball (steps forward, and shakes hands with Emily and Lucy, while Lord Aimwell steps back in astonishment.) My dear sisters, I am so delighted to see you, we shall have the pleasure of your company this evening. I hope,—(turning to Lord Aimwell)—allow me to introduce you to two sisters, with whom you appear to be unacquainted.—(Lord Aimwell still stands riveted to the spot in silence.) Why, my dear brother, you appear awkward a little. Perhaps I have not been explicit enough, this is sister Emily Aimwell, and this is sister Lucy Lappet.

L. A.—Pardon me, dear brother, but I, surely I must be dreaming. Can it be that I hear and see realities!

H. C. K.—Quite possible, I assure you; you are not soaring aloft amidst the mysteries of unseen worlds, but witnessing a substantial, earthly reality. These are also my adopted children, and as such I am endeavoring to make you recognize them.

L. A.—Oh! joy upon joys! and is my dearest sister also a member in the Kingdom of God.—(Rushes forward and catches her in his arms.)—Now the highest wish of my heart is accomplished. But how comes it, my dear sister, you kept all this so private from me!

Emily.—(Patting him on the cheek.)—How comes it my dear brother you kept all this private from me. But woman's not to be outdone, you see, I have had my revenge!

L. A.—You have, and richly too. You have brought it upon me all at once in a flood of joy.—(Salutes Lucy.)—And you, too, have embraced this delusion, which is causing us all to run mad.

Lucy.—If all delusions are so joyful in their nature, I dont want to be soon done with them; particularly, if I am still blessed with an angel to lead me on.

Saun.—Aye, and a fairer ne'er was veiled in mortal form, I'm sure. Come guidwife, ye hae forgot the company ye hae to entertain, let us get sittin down and gie us something to eat.

Janet.—(Aside)—I declare he's fairly beside himsel, he's actually turned i the head wi the company he's keeping. I canna for the life o me tell what to do first.—(To Saunders.)—Dear me, Sauners, hae you lost a the gumption e're ye had, can ye no gie me a bit han to pit things to rights.

L. A.—Put yourself under no concern sister Snodd'em. Why, our entertainment is of the very rarest description, for my own part, I must say, I never got the like all my life.

Emily.—Unto us women shall belong the task of making the company comfortable. We only stipulate for our just share of the conversation, as we get along.

L. A.—(Playfully.)—And that will be two words for our one, I suppose, ah!

H. C. K.—And while our sisters are preparing something for our bodily appetite, I have something here yet for our spiritual appetite. I have this day received letters from almost all parts of England, where the gospel has yet penetrated, giving the most cheering accounts of the spread of truth divine.

The exclamations of astonishment uttered by the Seventies of our Lord, "even unclean spirits are subject unto us," are nothing to the exclamations of astonishment contained in these dispatches.

Elder G. D. Watt, in particular, writes in such a strain I hardly know whether he is on the earth, in heaven, or somewhere between the two, I pray God that excellent man may remain humble under the great power with which he is endowed. O brethren and sisters! practice humility, 'tis a precious virtue.

The devil, says my correspondents, is filled with rage, and his emissaries the hireling clergy, have everywhere raised the cry of "Priestcraft in Danger," the craft from which we obtain all our wealth, is like to be overthrown, &c. But just as their rage increases, so in like proportion, increases the work of God; forcibly verifying that saying of our prophet "if they let us alone we'll regenerate the world, and if they persecute us we'll do it the sooner," for "truth is mighty, and must prevail."

Brethren, I feel as if I could sing. What think you to join in a song of Zion.

L. A.—I heard your chaunt a stanza or two expressive of the forth-coming of the Latter-day work. If you would favor us with the whole, I think we could join in the chorus.

H. C. K.—I presume you mean the "True born sons of Zion." Well, you shall have it, only all who can must assist me.

They sing this Hymn, after which,

EXEUNT.

A FEW HINTS TO FARMERS.—If your land appears worn out and over-worked, you may be sure you have harrowed its feelings too much.

To get the most work out of your hands, keep them out of your pockets.

The hardest pair of hars to get over are Ohio river sand-bars.

About the middle of Summer, ask your grass every morning, if it is ready to be cut. As it has no ears, like corn, it will answer, "Hay!"

How to raise geese.—Send your daughters to a fashionable boarding school. If kept at home they will be ducks or little stupids.

To raise corn.—Wear tight boots.

Father Mathew had administered at Boston up to Thursday evening, upwards of 10,000 pledges, and was still going on with the good work.

From the Nauvoo Neighbor.

One Hundred Years Hence—1945.

God, through his servants, the prophets, has given all men a clue to the future. In view of this, we were cogitating upon our bed, the other night, what would be the state of the world a hundred years hence. In quick succession the events and periods which have filled up nearly six thousand years, passed before our mind's eyes, together with the accompanying "thus saith the Lord," I will destroy the earth with a flood, after one hundred and twenty years. There shall be seven years of plenty, and seven years of famine in Egypt. Israel shall be held captive in Babylon, till the land enjoys her Sabbath's seventy years, and then came Daniel's numbers, and the exact time when the Savior should be born; his crucifixion, and second coming.

While thus looking over the "has beens," we fell into a deep sleep, and the angel of our presence came to the bedside and gently said, "arise!" Now it matters not whether we were in the body or out of it; asleep or awake; on earth or in heaven; or upon the water, or in the air; the sum of the matter is like this: Our guide, for such we shall call the angel or being that conveyed us, soon brought us in sight of a beautiful city.

As we were nearing the place, a "pillar of fire," seemingly over the most splendid building, lit the city and country for a great distance around, and as we came by, the TEMPLE OF THE LORD IN ZION, in letters of a pure language, and sparklin like diamond, disclosed where we were. Our guide went round the city in order to give us a chance to "count the towers;" and, as it was nearly sunrise, he conducted us into one, that we might have a fair chance to view the glory of Zion by "daylight." We seemed swallowed up in sublimity! The "pillar of fire" as the sun rose majestically mellowing into a "white cloud," as a shade for the city from heat. The dwellings so brilliant by night, had the appearance of "precious stones," and the streets glittered like gold, and we marvelled. Marvel not, says our guide, this is the fulfilment of the words of Isaiah:

"For brass I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring silver, and for wood brass, and for stones iron: I will also make thine officers peace and thine exactors righteousness."

Now the eyes of our understanding began to be quickened, and we learned, that we were one hundred years ahead of "common life," and we gloried. The "veil" that hides our view from the glory of the upper deep, had been taken away, and all things appeared to us as to the Lord. The great earthquake mentioned by John, and other prophets before him, had levelled the mountains over the whole earth;—the "sea" had rolled back as it was in the beginning; the crooked was made straight, and the rough places plain. The earth yielded her "increase" and the knowledge of God exalted man to the society of resurrected beings.

The melody and prayers of the morning in Zion, showed that the "Lord was there," and truly so; for, after breakfast, the "chariot" of Jesus Christ was made ready for a pleasure ride; and the "chariots" of his "hundred and forty-four thousand," glittered into the retinue of "earth's greatest and best" so gloriously, that the "show" exhibited the splendor of Gods, whose Father's name they bore on the front of their crowns.

Our curiosity excited us to inquire what day they celebrated? To which the guide replied: "This is the Feast day of the Lord to JOSEPH AND HYRUM SMITH, for being martyred for the truth, held yearly on the 7th day of the fourth month, throughout all the tribes of Israel."

Flesh and blood cannot comprehend the greatness of the scene; the worthy of the earth, with Adam at their head; the martyrs of the different dispensations, with Abel at their head; and honorable men from other worlds composed an assemblage of majesty, dignity, and "divinity," so much above the "little pageantry" of man in his self-made greatness, that we almost forgot that mortals ever enjoyed any thing more than misery, in all the pomp and circumstance, of man's power over man! This was a feast day for truth! This was the reward of integrity!—This was the triumph of "kings and priests," unto God, and was a holiday of eternity! Who could be happier than he that was among the holy throng? No one, and away we rode out of Zion among her stakes.

At the first city city out, we found the same spirit:—ALL WERE ONE. "While there the following news, by post, came from the east. It was read from one of the papers just published that morning:

"In digging for the foundation of our new Temple in the 124th city of Joseph, near where it is supposed the City of New York once stood, a large square stone was taken from the ruins of some building which, by a seam in it indicated more than the mere stone. The seam being opened, disclosed a lead box about six by eight inches square. This box was soon found to contain several daily papers of its time, together with some coin of the old Government of the United States. It will be recollected that all the inhabitants of this city which were spared from calamity, were 'slung out when the earth was turned upside down,' some forty or fifty years ago, for their wickedness."

"The account of "fires" in one of these papers was truly lamentable, destroying, as the paper said, more than twenty five millions of property, in about three months. Each contained a large number of murders, suicides, riots, robberies, and hints of war expected, with columns of divisions among the sectarian churches about slavery, Onderdonking, and the "right way." The "Archer of Paradise" remarked as these horrors of "old times" were being read, that "all that was transacted in the last days of Babylon, before Satan was bound."

Joseph Smith said, "Lord, we will put those papers and coin in the repository of relics and curiosities, of satan's kingdom of the old world;"—which was agreed to, by all, after exhibiting the coin. The silver coin contained the words "United States of America" and "half dol." round the image of an eagle on one side, and a woman setting upon the word "Liberty" and holding up a night cap, between thirteen stars, over 1845, on the other.

The only idea that could be gathered from all this was, that the government had fallen from the splendor of an eagle to the pleasure of women, and was holding up the night cap, as a token that the only liberty enjoyed then, was "star-light" liberty, because their deeds were evil.

Another coin had the "appearance" of gold, with "five dolls." upon it, but upon close examination it was found to be nothing but "fine brass."

While this was going on, the Lord said, beware of the leven of old:—Let us enjoy our day."

In a moment, this "band of brethren" were off, and what could equal the view! No veil, no vice; the heavens were in their glory, and the angels were ascending and descending. The earth was in its beauty; the wolves and sheep; the calves and lions; the behometh and the buffalo; the child and the serpent, enjoyed life without fear, and all men were one.

As we were passing to another city amid all this perfection of the reign of Jesus before his "ancients gloriously," we discovered the fragment of a hewn stone, of a lightish blue color, with an abbreviated word "Mo.," and the figures "1830" upon it. To which the "Lion of the Lord" exclaimed:—"The wicked are turned into hell and forgotten, but the righteous reign with God in glory," and it seemed as if the echo came from a redeemed world, "glory."

At about two, after five hours ride among the cities and stakes of Zion, we returned to the capitol to partake of the "feast of the martyrs."

The preparation was perfect. A table through the grove of Zion for more than three hundred thousand saints, where Jesus Christ, sat at the head of fathers and mothers, sons and daughters in Israel, was a sight, which the world, even Babylon, in its best days, never witnessed. Says Jesus, as every eye turned upon him,

"Our Father, and thine, Bless me and mine; Amen."

After the "feast" (the sentiments, words of Wisdom and other touching matters were to be published in "Zo-ma-rah," or "Pure News," and are omitted) we stepped into the news room, and the first article in the "Pure News," which attracted our attention, was, the minutes of the General Conference held in Zion on the 14th day of the first month, A. D. 1945, when it was motioned by Joseph Smith and seconded by John the Revelator. That forty-eight new cities be laid out and builded this year, in accordance with the prophets which have said, "who can number Israel? who can count the dust of Jacob? Let him fill the earth with cities." Carried unanimously.

Twelve of these cities to be laid out beyond eighteen degrees north, for the tribes Reuben, Judah and Levi. Twelve, on the east, at the same distance, for the tribes of Simeon, Issacher and Zebulon—and twelve on the west, at the same distance, for the tribes of Gad, Asher and Napthali"

The paper contained a notice for the half yearly Conference, as follows:

"The general half yearly Conference will be held at Jerusalem on the 14th day of the seventh month alternately with the yearly Conference in Zion.

It is proposed that the "high way cast up" between the two cities of our God, be decorated with fruit and shade trees between the cities and villages, (which are only eighty furlongs apart,) for the accommodation of "wayfaring men of Israel." Gabriel has brought from Paradise, some seeds of fruit and grain, which were originally in the Garden of Eden, and will greatly add to the comfort and convenience of man."

While we were engaged in reading, a strain of music from some of the "sweet singers of Israel," come so mellowly over our sensations for a moment, that we hardly knew whether the angels or saints of the millenium, were chanting a vesper to their Savior. We were so delighted with the performance, as we saw the "musical chariot" pass, filled with young men and maidens, all in white robes, that we only remember the following verses:

"Death and Satan being banished;
"And the "veil" forever, vanished;
"All the earth's again replenished,
"And in beauty appears;
"So we'll sing hallelujah's;
"While we worship our Savior,
"And fill the world with cities
"Through the 'great thousand years.'"

Our eye next caught a map showing the earth as it was, and is. We were delighted with the earth as it is. Four rivers headed a little south of Zion, for Zion is situated in "the sides of the north." The first river is called "Pasion," and runs west. The second is called "Gion," and runs south. The third is called "Hiudakal," and runs north; and the fourth is called "The Frates," and runs east. These four rivers divide the earth into "four quarters" as it was in the days of Adam, and with their tributaries give an uninterrupted water communication over the face of the world, for in the beginning the earth was not called "finished" till it was "very good" for every thing.

By the paper we were reading, we learned that rain was expected in the beginning of the seventh month, according to the Law of the Lord: for the promise is, "it shall rain moderately in the first and seventh month, that the ploughman may overtake the reaper."

Contemplating the greatness of the earth in its glory, with Jesus Christ for her king, president and lawgiver, with such wise councillors as Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses, Elijah, Peter, and Joseph, we were imperceptibly led to exclaim: "Great is the wisdom, great is the glory, and great is the power of man with his maker!"—when of a sudden our guide came in and said, "you must drink wine with the Lord in his kingdom and then return." This we did, and many things which we saw are not lawful to utter, and can only be known as we learned them, by the assistance of a guardian angel.

When we were ready to return, our guide observed, "may be you would like to look through the Urim and Thummim of God, upon the abominations of the world in the day of its sin." "Yes," was our reply, and he handed us the "holy instrument." One look, and the soul sickened. Eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of man, what folly, corruptions, and abominations, are wrought among men to gratify the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye, and the cunning of the devil. But they shall come. We returned, and awoke, perfectly enamored with the beauty and glory of Zion to be—as well as the splendor and harmony of the "feast of the martyrs;" determining in our own minds, at some future day to give a sketch of the TEMPLE wherein Jesus sat and reigned with the righteous, when their was "not a Canaanite in the land," nor anything to hurt or destroy in all the Holy Mountain—when the earth should be full of the knowledge of God as the waters cover the sea. In short, the heavenly reality of one hundred years hence.

For the Frontier Guardian.

The Seventies.

BY JOSEPH YOUNG.

Hark ye Seventies hear the whispering,
Of the spirit from on high,
Gently hovering on your vision,
Showing you the hour is nigh.

When the gospel trump of glaaness,
You will publish far and near;
And the meek who sit in sadness,
Wait to hail the Jubilo' year.

To the islands and the nations,
Lo your wayward step you'll bend,
Pouring forth your proclamations,
Sweeping earth from end to end.

Let no trifles 'ere prevent you,
Pride nor lust be-dim your light,
Go by faith in Him who sent you;
He will always guide you right.

Golden dreams and trifling trashes,
All the glittering toys of earth,
Tread beneath your feet as ashes,
Grasping things of greather worth.

Flaming heralds of salvation,
All who are faithful will return;
Gleam the wheat from every nation,
While the tares are left to burn.

Is Genius miserable? Is Genius a fatal gift? Oh, miserable philosophy that can so construe it! Genius is the faculty of creation, of admiration, of love. It creates, from the merest dross, spirits of beauty which haunt the soul through life. It peoples the world with lovely forms, exalted hopes, skyward aspirings, and everlasting joy; and because the sensibility, which is its condition, subject is to petty annoyance, annoyance unfelt, or not so keenly felt by others—because its enthusiasm carries it oftentimes from the path of prudence—and because the punishment which follows all error is not for it suspended, but falls as upon an ordinary nature—because, with the precious faculty of given an utterance to all its pains and pleasures, it sometimes breaks forth into a low plaint, or bitter agony, or wild despair, and, in those moments, curses the very source of all its greatness; because, we say, these things are found accompanying genius, like shadows of its glories—is genius, therefore, to be called a fatal gift? Is it not genius, great majestic genius, in spite of all? The sun "kisses carrion," but is not less the sun. Genius is the happiest, as it is the greatest of human faculties. It has no immunity from the common sorrows of humanity; but it has one glorious privilege, which it alone posseses—the privilege of turning its sorrows into beauty, and brooding delighted over them! The greatest that ever breathed has said—

"Sweet are the uses of adversity,
Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet a precious jewel in his head."

But it is only genius that can extract the jewel, and walk the path of life illumined by its light.

COPPER TYPES.—An exhibition of the machine for making types out of copper, before mentioned in this paper, has recently been made in London with much success. The inventor is a Mr Pettit, instead of the old and complicated processes, by which types are usually cast, a strip of copper wire, upon a revolving wheel, passes through a series of wheels, levers, pulleys and cranks, of the simplest description in reality; the type is struck or punched at the same moment that its size is mathematically determined; and after passing two other machines is ready for use. By means of a small steam engine, applied to the type-making machine, sixty per minute can be struck, or thirty-six thousand per diem. The clearness and beauty of the impression of the types thus produced delight all connoisseurs. In the new process, instead of fusing the metal, and pouring into moulds to give the necessary form, the inventor of the *copper*type machine effects this by a mechanical operation at ordinary temperatures, chiefly by means of a powerful pressure and the use of steel dies and matrices. The type thus produced possesses the utmost sharpness of outline and hardness, in consequence of the superiority of the metal employed, and the pressure to which it has been subjected.—[N. Y. Sun.

The parent who would train up a child in the way he should go, must go in the way in which he would train up the child.

Let your recreation be manly, moderate seasonable and lawful; the use of recreation is to strengthen your labor and sweeten your rest.

Conscience.

An ancient writer, Brochmand, presents us with the following description of conscience: "It is a kind of silent reasoning of the mind, whose definite sentence is received by some affection of the heart, by which those things which are decided to be good and right are approved of with delight, but those things which are evil and naught, are disapproved with grief and sorrow." In short, we may consider conscience as the judgment which mankind are constrained to pass on their own character, state, and actions, as subjected unto the judgment of a Superior Being. No one is bold enough to deny that the depravity of human nature is universal and total, extending to all mankind, and to every power of each individual; yet there is a principle incorporated with the powers of the mind—the principle of conscience—which testifies that the creator has not left himself without witness in any situation, or among any class of society. The prerogative of conscience is also great. When permitted to exercise its authority it investigates and weighs whatever takes place in which the individual to whom it belongs is an agent, and it passes its judgment accordingly, whether in reference to the actions of the life, the words of mouth, or the secret thoughts of the heart. Impartiality is the invariable rule by which it exercises its authority. It approves and censures without respect of persons or any extrinsic circumstances. It is as ready to do its office in the bosom of the prince as in that of the peasant—in reference to the tyrant who sits on his throne, as well as the slave who bends beneath his yoke. Its judgment may be rejected. Its sentence may be laughed to derision. A variety of self-deceiving excuses may be made, and many apologies may be advanced, to justify the conduct which it condemns. But these by no means destroy the impartial rigor with which it has delivered its sentence. This prerogative of judgment possessed by conscience is no less remarkable for its comprehensions than for any other quality by which it is distinguished. Its discriminating power is not confined to the passing moment. It tenaciously retains the history of the past; it solemnly anticipates the prospect of the future. The transactions of the present, indeed, are those which most succeed in defying the authority of conscience, in baffling its power, and in overwhelming its remonstrances, amid the tumultuous noise of violent and discordant passions; but though apparently overpowered—though its awful voice is drowned in this confusion—yet when the anarchy of the passions shall subside, it will resume its legitimate authority, and exercise its high prerogative, by connecting the history of past with the events of future life.

The benefice of the poor man cannot be so extensively a blessing to others as the benefice of the rich man, but it may be quite as intense a blessing to himself.

Moral Reform.

Every species of moral reform ought to begin with ourselves. We must first have done something before we can justly find fault with others for doing nothing. There is no man so low or so high but he may do something in this department. He may make some sacrifice or other, having a moral tendency. He may give up some dirty and expensive habit; he may abandon a rude and indecent manner of speech or behavior; he may adopt cleanliness of tongue if he cannot afford a cleanliness of outward clothing, and by doing so, he can begin a process of reformation which entitles him to hold from the benevolent and the public-spirited. This at least shows the will to be improved, and it also shows that the man is not so conceited as to think others alone in want of reform, and himself not. The rich have as much need of reform as the poor, but it is after a different fashion. They are often as dirty in their minds as the poor in their clothing, and dirty-minded rich will never be of much service as moral reformers. They are also as selfish as the poor. They spend all they can get upon themselves and their pleasures. They think their money given them by Providence merely to decorate their persons and pamper their appetites; and whilst they spend £50 or £60 in giving a dinner to their rich friends, they declare they will be positively ruined and brought to beggary by a yearly rate of £50 for supporting the poor. Much moral guilt of this description is contracted unconsciously by the rich, who all the while abuse the poor for their filthy and immoral habits—which habits, as they aver, render all attempts to ameliorate their condition perfectly futile. The truth is, little effort has yet been made to ameliorate the general condition of society; no great self-sacrifice on the part of rich or poor has yet been made—but each looks to the other to do, without doing much himself. Self-sacrifice is always well pleasing, and has always, if judiciously conducted, a good moral effect on the party for whom it is made. The rich can do much for the poor, as they are the governors of society and the possessors of property.

VULGARITY.—We would entreat the young again to the use of every word that is not perfectly proper. Use no vain expressions, allude to no sentences that will put to blush the most sensitive. You know not the tendency of habitually using indecent and profane language. It may never be obliterated from your hearts. When you grow up, you will find at your tongue's end some expression which you would not use for any money. It was one you learned when you was quite young. By being careful, you will save yourself a deal of mortification and sorrow. Good men have been taken sick and become delirious. In these moments they have used the most vile and indecent language imaginable. When informed of it after a restoration to health, they had no idea of the pain they had given their friends, and stated that they had learned and repeated the expressions in childhood, and though years had passed since they had spoken a bad word, the early impressions had been indelibly stamped upon the heart.

Think of this, ye who are tempted to use improper language, and never disgrace yourselves

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE.....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

WANTED ON SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE GUARDIAN.

10,000 good hard wood rails, ten feet long, at $1 25 per hundred.

10,000 18 inch shingles at $3 per thousand if good.

10,000 pounds best fall wheat flour at $2 50 per hundred, or the market price.

0,000 feet good lumber at $2 00 per hundred.

100 cords good fire wood, four feet long, well split and corded at or near this office, (hard wood,) at one dollar a cord.

Besides cheese, eggs, chickens, fresh beef, mutton, veal; and even gold and silver, or good current paper in quantities to suit the subscriber.

The lack of Editorial matter in this number must be attributed to the continued absence of the Editor, and we hope that our readers will bear with us, and pardon any neglect that may occur while he is absent. We shall endeavor to keep our readers informed of passing events until he returns, which it is expected will be shortly, when the paper will resume its former ability and talent.

What Next!

We shall now have to depend entirely upon our own resources for news; by an order from the Post-office Department, we are not likely to get any more by Uncle Sam's mail line. We learn that the Southern mail that generally comes here has been suspended, and the Fort Desmoines mail does not seem to come at all. It has not been here for more than a month. We shall be under the necessity of sending all our paper mail nearly 150 miles at our own expense, as we have heretofore done, to get our paper to subscribers. Although the Government has established a weekly mail route from this place to Fort Desmoines, it has not been here but three times since it was established—which is now over three months. The contractors, who do not care whether we get the mail or not, neglect to bring it, and that too without any reasonable excuse. We have at the present in all probability 200 exchanges laying at Fort Desmoines, and any quantity of letters, and what shall we do? Where shall, and how shall we communicate with our friends in the United States? Have the inhabitants to go to Fort Desmoines at their own expense, (150 miles,) and get the letters and papers directed to them? We should think so by the marsterly inactivity of the government in regard to the Desmoines route. We suppose that they think we are Mormons and that we have not an equal right with other people—or that we are numbsculls and therefore should not receive those rights which is guaranteed unto all American citizens. What next? probably they will let us send a mail to the Valley at our own expense—the honor of carrying it—also of carrying "free, official" letters to the officers in the employ of the Government at Fort Laramie, Bridger, Oregon and Salt Lake. Yes, they will probably permit us to carry these at four or five hundred dollars expense each trip, out of our own pockets, to fit out men to go, who will expect to receive no reward but the good will of the people, and the satisfaction that they have been the means of making many sad hearts rejoice. Oh! What a privilege this will be for an American citizen, whose forefathers fought for the Declaration of Independence, which guaranteed unto every citizen equal rights.

We can hardly tell what to advise our friends to do under present circumstances, but perhaps you had better direct your letters and papers by the way of Fort Desmoines; and if the government does not see fit to adopt some measure for us to get them, we can adopt some plan of our own without any thanks to the government.

Persons coming from below would confer a favor upon us by bringing us late papers, until there is a regular mail.

UNRULY BOYS.—There is about half a dozen boys in this town who make it a practice of acting in a riotous manner at every public assemblage, backed by three or four unprincipled men, who had better be at home attending to their own business than be seen urging on a parcel of boys to make a noise to the great annoyance of the citizens. We would suggest to the constable to arrest these boys and men and take them before the magistrate and have them fined for breaking the peace. There is law enough to do it. We should have published the names of those boys who disturbed the meeting on last Friday evening, but for the respect that we had for their parents. If there is any more disturbance of the kind we will both publish the boys names and those men who had nothing better to do than urge them on.

Conference.

Saturday next is the day that the Annual Conference commences at the Log Tabernacle, in this town, and it is expected that the people will come from far and near, this being probably the last general meeting that will be held before Spring. We understand that there are several visitors at the Mission at Bellevue, who do not like attending our Conference without an invitation—we would say to them that we should be happy to see them at our Conference, which is public for all persons who desire to attend whether they are members of our church or not—all are welcome.

EXTRA COPIES OF NO. 17.—We have on hand a large number of the 17th number of the Guardian containing all the important news from the Valley of Salt Lake. It is a good number to preserve or to send to your friends. We will mail them from this office, as they will be most likely to go direct.

LARGEST BEETS YET.—Mr. Jemison, of this place has raised the largest beets yet, he has raised one twenty-four inches in circumference, and weighing fifteen pounds.

J. H. Marshall, Esq., of Indiana, has been appointed Governor of Oregon, in place of Col. Lane, removed.

CENTERVILLE, Sept. 15, 1849.

DEAR BRO. BARNEY: I now take the liberty to address a few lines to you, hoping at the same time that you will pardon me for intruding so much upon your time. The subject that I am about to write upon I deem of great importance; especially to us who have named the name of Christ and should be one, for he hath said that unless you are one ye are not mine. My ears have often been saluted with these words—"Brighamite and Hydeite," now I would ask what is a Brighamite or a Hydeite? I know what it took to make a Rigdonite or a Strangite; Rigdon once belonged to the true Church of Christ, and was in high standing; but he sought for great power and authority to build himself up; and departed from the principles of truth and righteousness, and all those that followed after him were justly called Rigdonites—the same with the Strangites. We see then that the materials that it took to make a Rigdonite or a Strangite was apostacy and dissension.

Is not President Brigham Young striving with all his might, mind and strength to carry out the measures of our beloved Prophet and Seer, Joseph Smith, who was murdered in Carthage jail, for the testimony of the truth which he had bourne? And is he not doing all in his power, together with the Council to build up the Kingdom of God on the earth—that his will may be done here as it is done in heaven; and is not Br. Hyde following in the wake and doing all that is in his power to roll on the work of the last days? Yes, verily yes! Then let all those who truly follow after those men whom God our Heavenly Father hath placed at the head of his Church, let them be called saints of the Most High; let the name of Brighamite and Hydeite cease forever, and every one, both male and female, strive to do all that is required of them. Let us hold up the arms of Moses and Israel will prevail; the Kingdom of our God will be built up, and his knowledge and glory cover the earth as the waters cover the sea, and all will know him from the least to the greatest. Yours, respectfully,

DAVID CLUFF, SEN.

To Edson Barney.

P. S. I hope to prosecute the remainder of my journey in the coming spring to the Valley of the Mountains—if the Lord will; where I hope to enjoy the sweet society of my brethren. D. C.

Mr. Barney handed us the above private letter which we give a place in our columns, and all we can say to confirm the above is that Elder Hyde, (who is now absent,) and Brigham Young, are one, and their sentiments are one, and their policy is the same in all things, and if there is any who claim to be a Brighamite or Hydeite we do say that the spirit of the Lord is not with that man, woman, or child; and we will quote an old saying of St. Paul, when there were contentions among the corinthians, which is recorded in the (1st Cor. 3d Chap., 1st to the 10th verses:) "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Appollos; are ye not carnal? Who then is Paul, and who is Appollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? I have planted, Appollos watered; but God gave the increase. So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but god that giveth the increase. Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor. For we are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building."

This is applicable to those who claim that they are Brighamites or Hydeites, and we can say with the Appostle that it mattereth not about these, whether one planteth and the other watereth, the spirit of the Lord is in the whole matter, and he will give the increase, and bestow upon those who keep an eye single for the upbuilding of his kingdom, and his commandments a reward with the righteous.

And furthermore we will quote the saying of President Hyde, upon this same subject: "Who is Hyde or who is Brigham but your humble servants and brethren in Christ Jesus, our Lord? Those who are saved, are the disciples and followers of Jesus Christ. He is the Great Head of the Church, and after his name are the sanctified called. Brigham is the man to receive the word of the Lord for the Saints—the legitimate channel through which it comes; and Hyde is the man to carry out that word according to his best ability. How many disciples has Christ in Pottawatamie County that will receive this word through this channel? Every one will do it."

The above is conclusive proof that there is no such thing as a discordant note in their whole course. And we can further say that the same policy and counsel that has been given the Saints here, counsel to the same effect has come from the Presidency at the Valley, and this should be evidence sufficient that the Presidency of the Church in Pottawatamie County is moved upon by the spirit of God in all their actions. And all would do well to cease their contentions about the matter, for surely the spirit of Lord cannot dwell where there is contentions.

Rifles and Pistols.

Mr. Jonathan Browning is manufacturing some of the most splendid revolving rifles that we ever saw. We were inspecting one of his excellent six-shooting rifles the other day, and observed the following advantages over other revolving rifles that we have seen before: 1st, the are so constructed as to prevent the other charges from exploding while firing; Secondly, the lock is so simplyfied that there is no danger of its getting out of order; Thirdly, the moving of the revolver is upon an entire new principle which prevents it from getting rusty and thereby preventing it from revolving, and fourthly, they are afforded at one-half the price of eastern rifles. His six shooters are made upon the same principle as his rifles, and we think far superior to any of Colts or Ames' pistols. Our friends and emigrants are referred to the advertisement of Mr. Browning in another column of our paper, and any persons in want of the above articles would do well to give him a call.

Foreign News.

The Foreign news that is received by the papers is very vague in regard to the Hungarian cause. It reports that the Hungarians had laid down their arms and giving up their cause as hopeless, but we can hardly think it probable that she would in about two weeks time after conquering the forces of Austria and Russia on every hand do it. And we can only believe that if it has been done, that it was on no other ground than the interference of England as one of the allied powers of Europe. We had hoped that the Hungarians would have been more successful in their righteous cause of liberty. Russia is a most tyrannical power, and the rod should be put in the hands of the oppressed and haughty despotic Russia made to feel it.

The other news is of no great importance. The Pope has been re-instated at Rome. For further particulars we refer our readers to the Foreign news in another column.

Sioux Indians.

A party of Sioux Indians passed through our town last week from Fort Vermillion, to make a treaty of peace with the Omaha Indians at Bellevue, the party consisted of their head Chief, Ilg, (or Old Elk as he is commonly called,) and a young chief by the name of Dish, Mr. Arkins the interpreter, five braves, three squaws and one papoose; whilst entering the town they sung some songs in their uncouth Indian style; they were all dressed very neat and rich in their Indian costume.

Old Ilg the head chief said that he asked the privilege to pass through our land; that the land once belonged to them, but now belonged to their great Father in Washington; and said that they had not good sense like the white man had—but had been left by the Great Spirit to grow up on the Prairie like a wolf, without the knowledge of anything, and regretted that they had not the sense that the white men had; and he said that he was told that they would have to starve if he went through the Mormon land, he said that it was not so, they had furnished him and his young men in food, and that the Mormon people had been kind to him, and that he was pleased for their kindness. He said that he had thousands upon thousands of brave men, but he would not bring them with him, he said that he did not want to be any more trouble to us than he could possibly help; that he had come in an honorably way, bringing only a few of his young men, to try to make peace with the Omahas, but if he could not, he was going to send for all his braves and young men and slay the whole nation, &c.

From the feathers in their heads, it indicated they had taken a great many scalps, (each feather denotes a scalp taken,) in fact the young chief said that he had killed thirty-five Punka's before breakfast one morning. The Omahas had killed a relative of his, and for retaliation he had killed three Omahas and stole their horses.

While in town the citizens furnished them and their horses with food; and after singing several songs and dancing, they departed for Bellevue on their mission to the Omahas. An invitation was extended to them to tarry with us a day or two on their return.

On Tuesday week they passed through our town on their return, bearing two white flags, which denoted that they had concluded a treaty of peace, which we understand was satisfactory to both parties. They were cordially welcomed in behalf of the citizens, by S. M. Blair, Esq., in part as follows: "The chiefs and braves of the Sioux nation, you are welcomed to our land, and we are glad to see you, and greet you as brethren. We are Mormons and serve the Great Spirit according to the dictates of our conscience, even the Great Spirit that you revere; but our white brethren did not believe that we worshipped the Great Spirit right, and then did not like us, and they told us that we must go and leave the graves of our fathers, as you have had to do. Then we come to this land where the great Sioux nation once lived, and we were glad to find them, and to meet them on the half way ground and be friends with them as long as the sun sets, and when they come among us we will be their friends, and when our people cross the Plains through your land to Salt Lake and California we want you to be our friends.

In reply to the above, the Chief said: Father, we are a great deal lower in character than you having been raised up among the wolfs on the prairies, and therefore, I cannot call you brethren, but call you father. The Great Spirit has not bestowed so much sense upon me as he has upon the white man, and we have not been taught bad from good. If I am here to-day, I came here on account of my great father, in order to make peace with the red men on the other side of the river. The white man has given me the gun, and I am always ready to defend him as long as I can put one foot before the other. He said that the white man say that the red skins are alike, he believed that all were different; and said if it had not been for the lying and treachery of the red men, he should not have killed them, and there was no tribe but what he could whip. I have a large piece of land on the other side of the river, and wish it was larger, that I might have all the whites to come and settle upon it and I should be contented. He said that he had worked for the Great Father a great many years, and he had sent me a great many presents, but I never received as much as a butcher knife. He told of the treachery and lying of the Omaha's, and of the bad treatment he had received from them while over there at this time. He said that he would protect the whites this side of the Big Sioux, but beyond that he could not vouch for, on account of so many other tribes. He said he liked the whites very much for their kind treatment and should always consider them first. He said that he had not come to beg, but if we had any powder to give, he would be very glad of it, to kill his animals, (the Buffalo.)

After which some conversation in regard to their making peace with other trtbes, took place between Mr. Williams and the Old Chief. Some refreshments, powder and lead were furnished the chiefs and braves, and they immediately started for their own lands.

We learned by the interpreter that they had very good luck in hunting this season, having killed large quantities of buffalo and other meat.

The disposition of the Indians while among us appeared of the most friendly nature, and went away with the best of feelings, and with the desire to be taught in the arts and sciences. Ere long the Lamanites will blossom as a rose, and Jacob flourish in the wilderness, and all rejoice together.

ELOCUTION.—We were much pleased with the recitations given a few evenings since by some of our literary gentlemen. Some of the pieces were most eloquent and well read, and for new beginners they done well. If they would practice a little more and make a different cast of characters, we should have one of the finest Elocutionary Clubs in the country. A few of the pieces were not in strict accordance with our taste—but were well read. A few sound and effective pieces in the place of these would tend much more to the edification of their hearers: but from the short time that they had to prepare, our expectations were more than realized. We understand that the Club intends giving another public exhibition of their talents in a few weeks.

FRESHET.—The great rain that we had week before last, destroyed a large amount of property; accounts come from all quarters of the loss of crops, fences, bridges, wheat stacks, mills, hogs, sheep, &c. The creeks all through the country have been to an unusual height. And before the streams had a chance to run down, we have had two more heavy rains which has again filled them full. This season has been one of the wettest seasons that we ever before witnessed. Some of the time we thought that we were about to have a second flood, but soon remembered the words of the Lord, that he would never destroy the world again by flood.

Resources of the Country.

We publish below a report of a Committee which was appointed by the citizens of this town, to lay before the emigrants of all classes, a true statement of the resources of the country. And we further take into consideration of the large numbers that are expected here this fall and winter, have raised an abundance of corn, and cut large quantities of hay In fact, the emigrants will find every thing that is desirable to facilitate them on their journey. We would state that there has been a large amount of wheat raised, and persons coming this way with teams had better come empty, for every thing necessary to out-fit for the plains can be obtained at this point. Persons coming by water will find every thing that they want to fit themselves with for the plains—whether it be in the shape of ox, mule or horse teams. And for further particulars we refer our readers to the following circular published by the committee:

CIRCULAR.

At a meeting of the citizens of Kanesville, (Council Bluffs,) on the 15th day of September, 1849, for the purpose of putting forth to the world a statement of the resources of this place to facilitate emigrants to California, or other points west. The following persons were chosen a Committee to put forth such statements: J. B. Stutsman, T. D. Brown, C. Voorhis, H. Bishop, and John Needham. The Committe report,

That emigrants have been grossly deceived by statements, from interested or ignorant persons, as to the country, its resources, roads, &c., we would say, that the country around Council Bluffs is very well settled, that the crops of corn, wheat, potatoes, and in fact, all farming crops are abundant, the soil very fertile, and climate most healthy. At Kanesville there are now some six stores with large and unlimited stocks of goods and other stores around, two Public Houses, a Bakery and Confectionary Establishment, Drug Store, four Wagon Shops, two Blacksmith's Shops, an Establishment for making Riding and Pack Saddles, Larrietts, Packing Bags, Lashings, &c., as well as other mechanics, such as Gun Smiths, Watch Smiths, Harness Makers, &c. There are two Ferries across the Missouri River near, and probably will be more in the spring, that the range on the prairie for cattle is unlimited. The Missouri River is navigated to this point with as much facility as to any point below, and the roads leading here from the different places on the Mississippi River are generally good, being three main routes; one from Fort Des Moines reported very good by the emigrants last spring. Those from Wisconsin, Northern Illinois, Montrose, Nauvoo, Quincy, &c., the Committee advise them to take the Mormon Trace, being the best and most direct. The streams are bridged excepting the Nichnabotna, where there is a Ferry. The road generally keeps a dividing ridge. There were many emigrants here this summer that went to St, Joseph from Burlington; they report the road through the State of Missouri very much broken, with many hills, and sloughs. If you should wish to go to St Joseph, this is the best place to come, and from this place to St Joseph is a good road and thickly settled, and teams constantly passing to and from. And we would also say, that the longest distance on the Mormon Trace without inhabitants is now forty miles, that before next spring, we think there will be many more settlers on the road as the Surveyors and Commissioners are now laying out the road from Pisgah, also from Fort Des Moines, and a weekly mail established from the Fort to this place. The distance from Council Bluffs to Fort Laramie is 445 miles. Distance from Independence, Missouri, to Fort Laramie, according to Mr. Bryant 672 miles; over two hundred miles farther than from this point. Thus you see that emigrants who cross the Missouri at this point shorten the distance over 200 miles.

We have eight or ten grist and flouring mills in the county, and any number of horses, mules, oxen, cows, &c., in the market for sale. Yet it is always safe for persons to bring their own teams. We advise all to have very light strong wagons, for either oxen or horses as all with heavy wagons this year have, if possible changed them at Salt Lake, or taken to packs, but if you pack from here your wagons will generally sell well at this place. Here we have many persons offering as guides to Salt Lake, California, Oregon or the Sioux Country North, finally if our fellow citizens are disposed to take this route they will find every facility to advance them on their journey.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

J. B. STUTSMAN,
T. D. BROWN,
C. VOORHIS,
H. BISHOP,
J. NEEDHAM.
} Committee.

Council Bluffs, Pottawatomie Co., Sept. 15, 1849

DOMESTIC DRY GOODS IN NEW YORK.—The N. York Evening Post of the 29th says: There has been a considerable advance in various articles of our domestic manufactures. Fancy cassimeres have recently advanced about an eighth, and sattinets 5 @ 6c. since last spring. Some manufacturers of sattinets have exhausted their stocks. In flannels, also, a considerable advance has been obtained, and orders have recently been given, in one instance we know of, for 20 bales, for future delivery at 18c., of a quality which only brought 14c. last year.

The following extract from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants we refer to at this time, that none may be led astray in regard to the coming of our Savior. The extract clearly shows what will take place before his coming. "Watch and pray lest you be caught in a snare:"

"And again, verily I say unto you, that the Son of man cometh not in the form of a woman, neither of a man tarveling on the earth: wherefore be not deceived, but continue in stedfastness, looking forth for the heavens to be shaken; and for the earth to tremble, and to reel to and fro as a drunken man; and for the valleys to be exalted; and for the mountains to be made low; and for the rough places to become smooth: and all this when the angel shall sound his trumpet.

But before the great day of the Lord shall come, Jacob shall flourish in the wilderness; and the Lamanites shall blossom as the rose: Zion shall flourish upon the hills, and rejoice upon the mountains, and shall be assembled together unto the place which I have appointed. Behold I say unto you, go forth as I have commanded you; repent of all your sins; ask and ye shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you: behold I will go before you, and be your rearward; and I will be in your midst, and you shall not be confounded: behold I am Jesus Christ, and I come quickly; even so: Amen."

SAMUEL S. SNOW.—We learn that this personage who published a proclamation against General Taylor's proclamation for a fast, was never a member of our church, but claims to be Elijah the Prophet, who has cursed the whole world and says none have a right to preach but himself. Several Elijah's have made their appearance lately, but they are not endowed with a very large portion of the spirit of the true and living God, if we may judge by the manifesto's which they have published.

Wood and Flour wanted at this office immediately, on subscription for the Guardian.

Oh! Haste to the Valley.

BY ROBERT CAMPBELL.

Far away in the west in the Mountains high vale,
Now wave the bright banners aloft in the air,
Blest land where the truth and the virtues prevail,
And earth's greatest sons in concord meet there.

Where, where is the place, where freedom should dwell,
Where no tyrants oppress, and God's Image shall mar;
Or Heavens' frowning face with anger shall swell,
Or Earth groaning with judgments and the loud din of war.

To flourish and triumph; the wilderness—the place;
Where clear as the sun the celestial order shines,
And fair as the moon beams the gospel's bright rays;
Where the olive of peace round each bosom entwines.

How beautiful the land, how rich are her climes;
Her everlasting hills in grandeur appear;
And her sequester'd Valley with fragrance combines
All the glories of nature to attract and to cheer.

And her saline waters now earths greatest wonder;
Producing their salt for millions to eat,
And along Utah's streams, where noble hearts ponder;
The millions of Zion's sons in friendship to meet.

The stretching eye seeks in vision sublime,
To paint the vast scenes of events to transpire;
The vanishing greatness of each nation and clime;
And the refuge and rest in the Western Empire.

There shall her stately walls magnificently rise,
And proud pillars of virtue her temples shall grace;
Where science shall scale from the hills to the skies;
And the school of the Prophets in Zion have place.

And there a Repository too, in splendor shall shine,
The wise men of nations their presents shall bring;
The Philosopher search, and all nature divine;
The Painter portray, and the Poet shall sing.

The Temple of God still more grand its display;
With the pattern of Heavenly things what can compare;
The order of Melchisedec with Heavenly array,
And the blessings of God shall the Saints receive there.

Come too ye sons of Joseph there find release,
The tomahawk bury and learn war no more;
There oppressions shall cease and you dwell in peace,
And flourish delightsome as in days of yore.

Hie to the Valley, brighter scenes there await us,
While Babylon's evils warn us quickly to flee;
No false friends shall betray, no mobbers shall hate us,
But the virtuous, the just, our companions shall be.

Death comes equally to us all, and makes us all equal when it comes. The ashes of an oak in the chimney are no epitaph of that oak, to tell us how high, or how large that was; it tells us not flocks it sheltered while it stood, nor what men it hurt when it fell. The dust of great person's graves is speechless too: it says nothing, it distinguishes nothing.

THE POPE PROCLAIMED AT ROME.—A dispatch from Paris, received by the N. York Courier, announces that the French Government has received the following telegraphic dispatch:

"General Oudinot to be the Minister of War.

"ROME, July 16th, Mid-day—The re-establishment of the authority of the Pope was proclaimed yesterday in the midst of the most enthusiastic acclamation of the assembled multitude. A Te Deum was chaunted, and prayers of thanksgiving were offered up at St. Peter's. Public tranquility is every day being confirmed—the best feeling exists between the troops and the population."

If this announcement is true, the letter writers from Rome must have entered into a league to misrepresent the state of public feeling in the Eternal City.

HUNGARY.—Address of M. Kossuth.—The following eloquent address to the nations of Europe form part of a proclamation recently issued by M. Kossuth:

"The armies of the Hungarian nation have already fought out their quarrel with Austria The liberated country need only to be made to flourish. But the house of Hapsburg Lorriaine had once more petitioned the Russian despot for aid, and he broke into Hungary at the head of 12,000 Russian troops; through Cronstadt, Lemberg and Vienna; he broke into our country—the country of martyrs of liberty.

"We do not throw down our arms. We will fight the armies of the allied tyrants of Europe. God is just; his power is almighty. he hallows the battle field for the weak, and the strength of the mighty and wicked is broken.

"But we would speak a loud and solemn warning to the constitutional Governments and the nations of Europe.

"Ye Governments! ye are the official guardians of the liberty and the legitimate interests not only of your own countries, but of all Europe. A tremendous responsibility rests upon you. The punishment of every crime which you allow to be committed against liberty and the rights of man will come home to you and the lands ye govern!

"Wake up, oh ye people! at the approach of this enormous danger. The tyrant's armies are bonded together to tread under foot, and to silence every free word. They have begun in Germany, in Italy, and in this our land of Hungary.

"Thou haughty English nation! Hast thou forgotten that thou hast decreed this principle of non-intervention, that thou now sufferest an intervention directed against constitutional liberty, but thou lendest aid to the banner of tyranny by suffering this coalition of tyrants. The proud pennon of the British mast is threatened with disgrace. God will withdraw the blessing he has lent it, if it prove untrue to the cause to which it owes its fame.

"Awake, oh people of Europe! On Hungarian ground the battle of freedom of Europe is fighting. With this country the free world will lose a powerful member. In this nation a true and heroic champion will perish. For we shall fight until we spill the last drop of our blood, that our country may either become a chosen sanctuary of freedom consecrated with our blood, or shall form a damning monument to all eternity in token of the manner in which tyrants can league to destroy free people and free nations, and of the shameful manner in which free countries abandon one another!"

Signed M. KOSSUTH, Governor.
B. SZEMERE, Pres. of Council.

Young cattle are in good demand in this county and yearlings generally bring a good price. Beeves are also in good demand.

The Jews of Buda have resolved to emigrate to the United States. They are tired of forced contributions to support war, and declare themselves bankrupt.

KANESVILLE MARKET.

WEDNESDAY, Oct., 3, 1849.

The market has been active for nearly all kinds of produce since our last report. Groceries have been steady at former prices, and the market generally supplied:

WHEAT.—We quote fall wheat at 60 cts. and spring wheat 50 cts. per bushel—with a few sales.

FLOUR.—Has been very active with a scarcity in market, and commands readily 2,50 @ 2,75 cts. per hundred.

CORN.—The corn crop has been only partially gathered and none has come to market—but suppose 15 to 20 cts. per bushel will be the average price.

POTATOES.—We are unable to say what the price of potatoes will be, whether the rot will extend after the potatoes are put up is uncertain, but if it does not the prices will remain as at present 20 to 25 cts. per bushel.

BUTTER.—We can hear of no butter coming to market, and it readily commands 10 cts. per pound—we hope that our farmers will not let the people go without those things that they can supply as well as not. For further particulars we refer to our quotations.

Flour, per hundred,		$2 25@$2 50
Beef,	"	$1 00
Sugar, ℔ lb.		9@10c.
Coffee,	"	10c.
Rice,	"	8c.
Salt, ℔ sack,		$3 50
Pork,		none.
Bacon, ℔ lb.		none.
Green Hides, ℔ lb.		2½ c.
Dry do.	"	4½ c.
Iron, (tire,)	"	6 c.
" assorted,	"	6½ c.
Potatoes, ℔ bushel, (new,)		20@25c.
Corn,	"	none.
Wheat,	"	60c.
Flaxseed,	"	35c.
Tallow, ℔ lb		8c.
Butter,	"	8@10c.
Cheese,	"	6@8c.
Beeswax	"	16@20c.
Honey, ℔ gallon,		50c.
Eggs, ℔ dozen,		8c.

ST. LOUIS MARKET.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 8, 1849.

Wheat—Sales on Thursday, at 93c. for Fall, sks included; Spring 65 cts sks included.

Flour—Sales of Country brands 4 37½ @ 4 50.

Hemp—Sales of choice at $122 @ 126 per ton.

Sundries—Bacon, 5½c. for clear sides. Lard, 6¾ @ 6¾c. ℔ pound. Butter, 7 @ 8c. ℔ lb. Flaxseed, 85c. ℔ bush. Hides 7c., from store, 7½c.

Salt.—G. A. $1 40 @ $1 45 per sk. Turk's Island $1 10 @ $1 15.

Groceries—Have advanced. Fair to Prime Sugar will bring 6½ to 6¾c. Coffee has also advanced. We quote Rio at 8¼ @ 8½c.; Havana, at 8 @ 8¼c. Plantation Molasses, 25 @ 27c. S. H. Molasses, 30 @ 35c.

MARRIED,

At Macedocia, Sept 30, by Lyman Stoddard, Mr. SPICER GRANDALL, to Miss IRINDA SHAFFORD.

In St. Louis, on Thursday the 31st of May, 1849, by Elder B. Bailey, Mr. Richard Bender to Anna Saxson.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,
Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.
Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849—3m

ESTRAY NOTICE.

STATE OF IOWA, } ss.
FREMONT COUNTY, }

TAKEN up by Daniel McKissick, living in Franklin township in the county and State aforesaid, on his plantation; one dark bay mare, supposed to be seven years old, left eye out, a scar on her right hind hoof at or in the edge of the hair, supposed to be 14 hands 3 inches high, and by her side has a suckling mule colt; both appraised to the sum of sixty-five dollars.

Also one dark bay mare supposed to be 8 or 9 years old; her left hind leg has the appearance of having been corded, supposed to be 14 hands 3 inches high, has by her side a suckling colt, both appraised to the sum of fifty-five dollars.

A true copy from the Estray Book.
A. H. ARGYLE, C. B. Co. Com'n.
of Fremont county.
Fremont co., August 31, 1849.—o 3 3t

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled

J. W. COOLIDGE.
S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN,

FRESH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods: Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coatings; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves, Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo., that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1849.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE NIAGARA.

St. Johns, N. B. Sept. 5, 1 P. M.

The Niagara, Capt. Ryan, arrived this morning at Halifax at 6 o'clock. The Europa arrived at Liverpool on the 20th.

Austria and Hungary.

The intelligence from Hungary is of the most disastrous kind. The Hungarians have been defeated at all points; the cause which they upheld against fearful odds, has fallen past redemption. The precise details which led to the unfortunate and unexpected result, cannot be ascertained from the accounts within our reach; part of the main facts are that the Hungarians had been forced to lay down their arms, and submit unconditionally.

The Vienna correspondence of the London Times, says: "An official report from Colonel Dosallar, of the 8th, from Hermanstadt, gives particulars of what took place in South West Transylvania since the 4th, when Ludens was at Galfulva. After Bem's defeat of 31st ult., at Seidenberg, he proceeded toward Ledley's, which he reached on the 3d with a force of one thousand men and seventeen guns; at this place by an auxiliary force of 4,000 men and 800 cavalry, with 12 guns he proceeded towards Hermanstadt. Hasford, who had been left with 6 battalions, 8 guns and 350 Cossacks, to protect Hermanstadt, had gone to Reissnake and Lubenbach, where gained the victory mentioned yesterday, over the insurgent, General Stemall. This having been made known to General Luders, he foresaw that Bem would fall on Hasford, probably drive him into Wallachia, and take possession of Hermanstadt.

Nothing remained for him to do but to pursue Bem with all speed; before, however, that Luders could overtake him, he learned that Hasford had actually been attacked and driven from his position; and after a murderous battle in Hermanstadt, in which he had many killed and wounded, had been obliged to retreat. On the 6th, at 10 A. M., Luders' army stood before Hermanstadt, six battalions of the enemy, 500 horse and 18 guns, occupying the neighboring heights. A considerable force had been left in the city, and the remainder of the army had gone in pursuit of Hasford. A battle ensued, which ended in the complete route of the Magyars. The Russian cavalry put such fugitives as attempted to resist to the sword; the enemy lost 1,200 prisoners, 18 guns; had 1,600 killed, and 5,00 wounded. The Russians, including loss, suffered by Hasford on the 5th, had 36 killed. The battles of Seidenberg and Hermanstadt, produced the most desponding effect among the insurgents; many threw away their arms and sought refuge in the woods, while other came over to the victors.

Accounts from Vienna, by way of Warsaw, of 16th August, state, that the Hungarian Diet having surrendered their powers to Georgey, had dissolved itself. A meeting, including Kossuth, Georgey and Bem, took place at Arad, where it was determined to put an end to the war as sanguinary and useless. Georgey, addressed the council of war, protested that he had no hopes for the cause of the Hungarians—all resistance was vain—nothing but utter ruin would attend the prolongation of the struggle. The war party, headed by Bem, Kossuth, and the leading members of the Hungarian Parliament, had nothing left but to hasten to Ossova. It is stated that Kossuth carried with him the insignia of the Hungarian Empire. Georgey surrendered to Prince Paskiewitch under the condition (if condition it can be called) that the Prince should intercede with the Austrian Emperor for himself, his troops and his country.

A Vienna letter states that the number of troops that surrendered with Georgey was 27,000 men and 60 guns.

From a Vienna letter of the 17th, it appears that Kossuth is determined to hold out to the last.

The Russian papers publish the following letters from Prince Paskiewitch to the Czar.

"The Hungarians are at the feet of your Imperial Majesty. The Government of the insurgents has transfered its power to Georgey. The chief of the army of the insurgents surrenders to the Russian army. His example will be followed by the other insurgents. I have the good fortune to inform your Majesty that Georgey's only condition was to be allowed to lay down his arms to your majesty. I shall keep him at your Imperial Majesty's disposal." It is reported by some ardent friends of the Hungarians, that Georgey has proved himself a traitor and yielded to the golden arguments of the Russians.

Kossuth's wife and family, it is said, had fallen into the hands of the Imperialist troops.

England.

The official record shows a continued increase of mortality, arising from the general prevalence of cholera.

Hungary.

The Paris Friday evening "Presse" states that the capitulation of Georgey is to be attributed to the intervention of the English agent, and that terms of surrender were discussed and arranged at Warsaw, during the last journey with Prince Swartzenburg made to that city. This submission, says the Presse, "is consequently neither a coup de etat, nor act of despair, but the result of negotiations skillfully conducted by great Britain to save Hungary from the consequences of an unequal contest, and at the same time to deprive Russia of occupation, and of prolonging her stay beyond her own frontiers."

Vienna, Aug. 20th.—The Emperor returned yesterday. It was expected that further details of Georgey's surrender would transpire. Two proclamations were looked forward to with interest at Vienna, viz: Kossuth's resignation in favor of Georgey, and letters addressed to the Hungarians, in which he entreats them to lay down their arms, as it was useless to fight for a lost cause. Communication between Hungary, Moravia, and Galicia, is now open. The "Germanic Zeitung" states that a large part of Georgey's army at once enlisted into the Austrian service, and it is thought that 60,000 well appointed and efficient troops will be added to the Austrian army.

It is again stated that Kossuth, Messars and Dembrinski are safe in Turkey.

ARRIVAL OF THE EUROPA.

The St. Louis papers of the 13th inst. contain the following dispatches:

Hungarian Affairs.

The latest intelligence within our reach from Hungary is embraced in advices from Vienna of the 26th ult. The news from that quarter continues unsatisfactory, and full of contradictions as ever. The Wiener Zeitung publishes what it calls an explanation of the manner in which Georgey's surrender was brought about. The document contains so little that is new, that it does not seem advisable to quote it, for, while it carefully informs the public of all those circumstances of which we are already informed, it endeavors to throw light upon those points which are still open to the broadest doubts and suspicion.

The London News says that the general belief through the continent is, that the Hungarian General surrendered with his army to Paskiewitch on a pledge being given by the Russian commander, that his master, the Czar, would guarantee the independence of Hungary.

The latest intelligence contains nothing to raise a doubt that Clapha still holds possession of Comorn. One account affirms that an action was fought between Raab and Comorn, in which the Magyars obtained some advantage. The Ban Jellachich had arrived at Temisvar; he is said to have met with no opposition on his way, and to have found the roads covered with arms and warlike stores, which had been abandoned by the defeat of the Magyars. Bem and Guyon, surrounded by Luders, left their troops and contrived to escape. The decision of the Emperor concerning the surrender of Georgey's corps is, that it be partly enlisted in the Imperial ranks, and partly dismissed to their homes, and that the officers be submitted to trial.

It was rumored that Kossuth was captured on the frontier of Wallachia. Another account from Turkey assures us that Bem and Kossuth had arrived from Adrianople to Constantinople, where they had embarked in a British vessel. The letter from Georgey to Clapha, directing the surrender of Comorn, assignes no reason for his cause, other than that he had become convinced of the hopelessness of their cause, and that he was desirous of giving peace to his country, which was the only expedient to save it from utter perdition.

Austrian authorities state that a letter from Kossuth, before he knew of the surrender of Georgey, had been found, which contains a frank admission that the Magyar cause was irrevocably lost.

The Russian minister in France, in a formal note, has given an assurance to the French Government that the Emperor had not thought of territorial aggrandizement but that he will retire with his army so soon as the Hungarians shall have laid down their arms.

Further Intelligence by Europa.—Comorn had capitulated. The Austrian minister entered the for ress on the 29th. The country of Waal is entirely evacuated by the Hungarians. Kossuth is positively said to have left Arad, on his way to England, with the Hungarian crown jewels.

More Gold.—The Arkansas and Texas papers keep up the idea of gold in the Witchita Mountains. A good many gold seekers have gone thither, and we shall soon have accounts from them. Until then, we take from the reports which the papers contain some paragraphs which will serve to feed the appetite for the shining metal.

A correspondent of the Fort Smith Herald, writing from the Chickasaw District, Indian country, on the 26th, says:

A man came from the Witchita Mountains, a few days since, with a cactus, the dirt around the roots was washed and proved to be of such value that it fully compensated him for the trouble of his journey—it has set all north-western Texas on the gog to those mountains, in search of a few more of them cactus's "same sort."

[This is a more valuable species of cactus than our Horticultural Society can produce.] The same paper of the 22d, contains these revelations, although they look somewhat apocryphal:

"We learn from a gentleman direct from Perryville, in the Chickasaw nation, that gold is found in the Witchita Mountains, and that there are large numbers of persons with whom he was well acquainted in Texas, that have sold out entirely their farms, &c., and have gone to these mountains to dig the precious metal. Our friend came to this place to purchase articles for a company of Chickasaws who are going to the gold placer of the Wichita Mountains.

Maj. Thomas Wall and a few others will leave the Choctaw Agency about the 28th, for the Witchita gold placer. They will be joined at Perryville, Chickasaw nation, by a small company of Chickasaws, headed by Capt. Winchester Colbert."

The Bonham (Texas) Advertiser has at last "something tangible" from the reported gold regions west. Two respectable citizens had just returned to that place, who reported the existence of shining sands in the beds of rivulets issuing from a range of hills composed of sandy gravel, and succeeded in separating a small quantity of the shining particles from the sand. These grains look very much like gold. They brought in some specimens of rock, too, in all of which are veins and specks of metallic substance. They are all to be submitted to proper tests, and if it be golden sands, then they know where the placer is.

Other parties, it is said, have brought in samples of crude and of surpassing richness.

A French wag says that when the fogs hinder the working of the telegraph, the French provincials do not know whether they are governed by a King or a President.

Never stop to wish a thing done, but go and do it.

New York, Sept. 13.

Late from California.—The steamer Empire City arrived this morning with late news from California, bringing upwards of $600,000 in gold. The steamer California from San Farncisco, had arrived at Panama with $100,000 in gold.

A serious riot took place at San Francisco between a party of armed Americans and some Chilians, whose property was destroyed. Theodore Saunders and Samuel Roberts were convicted of the riot, and sentanced to ten years in the penitentiary.

The Mormon Mining Association's shares sell for $500 each.

Rich deposits of gold have been discovered on American and Feather rivers. It is reported and credited that one man alone, unassisted, gathered $6,000 worth of gold in one week; average amount gathered daily, each person one ounce.

The Sacramento valley was unusually healthy, although the weather was very hot; the thermometer at mid-day reached 105 deg. in the shade.

Provisions were plenty. Property which sold three months ago for $100, was now bringing $10,000 and 15,000.

Upwards of 300 passengers arrived at San Francisco during the month of July.

Yucatan.—The whites of Yucatan are now reduced to the direst extremities, and, unless assistance comes from abroad, they must abandon the peninsula to their ferocious and implacable foes, the Indians. So says the latest accounts.

The Merida Boletin, of August 1st, contains the memorial which Gov. Barbachano addressed to the Mexican secretary of foreign relations, with respect to the charge made against him of having sold Indian prisoners into slavery in Cuba. His explanation is, that it was imperative on the Yucatans to shoot all their prisoners, as they could not keep them, or transport them beyond the country. The Indians preferred the latter alternative, and Barbachano arranged for their passage to Cuba, and contracted on their behalf, that they should be remunerated for any labor done by them in Cuba. The Mexican government was entirely satisfied with Barbachano's explanation.

California Extravagance.—The correspondent of the Baptist Recorder, at San Francisco says:—"On the day of our arrival, a man paid $100 for ten bottles of Champagne, (the usual price,) and $30 for a large arm chair, in which he seated himself at the front of a house, drank and swore, and sung and drank, till five bottles were emptied, and then broke the remaining five upon the ground, his chair against the house, and walked off in all the glory of his liberty.

Two men by the names of Field and Thompson, were digging a well on Avery Creek, about twelve miles from Ottumwa, Iowa, and were killed by the "damp" in the well, on the 10th ult. One of the men, on descending into the well, was taken with what appeared to be a fainting fit, and fell out of the bucket; the other went down to his assistance and met the same fate. Before they could be relieved, both were dead.—[Republican.

One of the most effective and deadly weapons in the hands of the Hungarians, is that peculiar to the horseherds or Chykosz, who are now an important portion of the army. This weapon is a whip, with a handle two feet in length, a thong 20 feet long; at the end of this thong is a leaden ball, and at intervals, smaller ones, like shot on a fishing line. It is thrown with great precision and fatal effect. The Austrians could not at first make out what sort of wound those were which destroyed so many men. These horseberds muster several thousand, and act with the light hussars.

Wise Bailed.—John S. Wise who was committed to Jail in Palmyra, for the murder of Thomas B. Hart, to await his trial has been taken out, on a writ of habeas corpus, issued by Judge Reese, of the circuit court, and admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000. J. M. Wimer, of St. Louis, and a Mr. White, of Canton are sureties upon the bond. He has returned to St. Louis. It is understood that a special term of the circuit court will be ordered some time in November for his trial.—[St. Joseph Gazette.

All Dead.—A vessel was lately found in the Bristol channel, and when boarded, it was discovered that the crew, composed of four persons, were all dead. There was not the slightest clue to the cause of this extraordinary mortality.

Important Verdict.—Our readers doubtless remember that while the Rev. Alexander Campbell, President of Bethamy, Va., College, was on a tour through Scotland in 1847, he was arrested and imprisoned in Edinburg, through the agency of the Rev. James Robinson, for having, while discoursing on the subject of slavery, uttered sentiments obnoxious to that gentleman. The affair produced considerable agitation in this country and in some parts of Europe at the time of its occurrence.

After Mr. Campbell's release and return to this country, some of his friends in Scotland instituted a suit against Mr. Robinson, upon the charge of malignant persecution and false imprisonment of Mr. Campbell. This suit has recently terminated, and we learn from the Wheeling (Va.) Gazette, that the result is a decree of the Lords of Council and Session in favor of Mr. Campbell for two thousand pounds sterling, (equal to $10,000 nearly,) and costs.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars in Seven Weeks.—A California letter, of June 30th, in the New York Tribune, says:

I had a conversation with a friend of mine from Carson's creek and Stanislaus river, who told me that he and his friend struck on a place or dry gulch, seven miles from Carson's creek, and took out 7½ pounds of the prettiest gold you ever saw, in two days. They had been up there seven weeks, and had made about $15,000 between them, and were going up again in September.

The police in Rome is now directed by French officers, priests and spies. No songs containing any patriotic phrases are allowed to be sung in the coffee houses, or places of resort public.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domesties, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines; (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention.

There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT,

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute al he varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

HERRING—A few boxes of good dried herring, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MOLASSES—Several bbls. good Sugar House Molasses, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, for for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PAINTS—White and colored paints, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TIN WARE—A variety, just rec'd by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SCYTHES, trace chains and cow bells, at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BONNETS—An assortment of Tuscan an Leghorn bonnets, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot, just rec'd at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HATS—Blk silk and Gen. Taylor hats—a variety, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of Trading Point.
m2] 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Sattinetts, Tweeds, Jeans; &c., for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

IN conformity to an order of the Atchison County Court, made on the 21st day of August, 1849, I will on the 29th day of September, inst., at the East Bank of the Nichtenabotna river, where the South line of section No. 2, T. 66, R. 42 intersects the same proceed to let the building of a bridge across said Nictenabotna river to the lowest bidder. Terms will be made known at the letting of said bridge, at which time and place a plan of said bridge with specification can be seen.

JOHN WOERLEN, Com'r.

Atchison co., Mo. Sept. 5, 1849.—2t

N. B. Any person wishing to see the Bridge Commissioner can find him at Woerlens Ferry.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

A LARGE IMPORTATION OF ENGLISH & FRENCH Dry Goods, Hardware and Cutlery,

BROUGHT DIRECT, and this day opened for sale to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Kanesville and other inhabitants of Pottawatamie county by BROWN & BARHAM.

GROCERIES, sugar, tea, coffee, salt, soap, &c.
PRINTS—English and American, and domestics.
BLANKETS—quilts, carpets, rugs, woolens.
CALICO—shirting and shirts of all colors.
FLANNELS—muslins, jaconets, gauze;
RIBBONS—satin, sersenet, galloons, binding;
CLOTHES—velveteens, cords, moleskin and cloth;
SHEETING—tick, diaper, towelling;
HOSE—woolen and cotton, gloves, socks and stockings;
LADIES Alapacca, Merino, Coburgh and French dresses;
LACES—French and English, silk and cotton thread, nets, quilling and flowers;
SEWED MUSLIN—collars, braids, thread, needles, pins and thimbles;
SILK AND SATIN—bows, ties, neckcloths, h'k's and eyes;
SMALLWARES—buttons, glass, steel, gilt, silk and satin;
THREADS—silk, linen, and cotton of all colors;
SHOES—ferretts, edging, binding, caps and bonnets;
IRISH LINEN—Union check;
TOOLS—double and cut plain irons, chisels, gouges and augers of all sizes, drawing knives;
SAWS—taper, pit and mill, ripping, compass and hand saws, also turning webs, pit and hand saw sets and tillers;
FILES—bastard, horse rasps and flat wood files;
GIMBLETS—shell and spike, turnscrews;
NAILS AND GLASS;
STEEL—knives, forks, pocket and pen knives, screws, door hinges, Scissors and spoons of good, and common quality, door locks;
SALERATUS—spices, oils, paints, varnish, saltpetre, olive oil, camphor;
LIQUORS—rectified whisky, gin and coguiac brandy, by the Gallon.
HAMS—barley, rice, dried apples and peaches;
RAISINS—currants, almonds, allspice and pickles;
TOBACCO AND SNUFF—Ginger, tartar, wax and candles;
POWDER—lead, vinegar, tinmans solder;
TARTANS AND PLAIDS—a good selection from Scotland, for ladies and gentlemen's dresses—all offered CHEAP for cash, by
BROWN & BARHAM.

Kanesville, Aug. 22, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot,

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

WINDOW GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

References: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any busines in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

Straw Bonnets and Gentlemens' Hats Cleaned and Pressed.

MRS. CROMBIE, (formerly of Boston,) most respectfully informs the Ladies of Kanesville and vicinity that she will attend to the above, and also to Dressmaking and Milinery, and she hopes by assiduous attention to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her. All orders left at Mr. Needhams store, will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, June 27, 1849.—tf

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at
July 25th. C. VOORHIS'.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEAS—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by
jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at
jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at
jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate artilce at
jy25 VOORHIS'.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by
jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

BOSTON STORE.

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth busk;ns;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slip ers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
	" pump-sole do;
" Fancy do do;	" gaiter do;
" Black Kid Web Ties;	" Monroe slippers;
	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans;
" do do Buskins	" do Pumps
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	" seal do;
	" kip do;
" do Gaiter Boots;	Boys' calf Brogans;
" do Grane do;	" kip do
" half Gaiters;	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the mg boot, on the top of the House, No. 236; Now Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money

DAVID CROUK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware, queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; caiicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the man opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Jeosph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS,

THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for; if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

STILL THEY COME.

NEW GOODS AT NEEDHAM & FERGUSON'S STORE,

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON has just received a choice selection of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARD-WARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

Mr. Ferguson residing most of his time in St. Louis, we are enabled to watch the market, and select the goods at the best possible advantage. We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident we have one of the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by
jy25 VOORHIS.

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y

BLUFF HOUSE.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.

Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.

Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness and Bridle Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

S. F. POULTERER—General Engraver on wood, brass, copper and jewelry. Orders left at the Printing Office, or at the Union Hotel will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, July 25th, 1849—tf

C. CARBRY,

St. Joseph, Missouri.

WHOLESALE and Retail Grocer, Dry Goods and Provision Merchant. Cash paid for Produce, and sold at the lowest price of the day.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.—6m

RICE, Peaches and apples at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

CURRANTS—A large lot of dried currants at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS

MACKEREL—Just opened, a choice article, by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Mormon Battalion.

The Mormon Battalion came out of the West,
Through all that wild region their troops were the best,
And save their own valor they succor had none;
They traversed the desert unaided and lone;
Untarnished their glory, unequaled their fame,
And long be remembered the Mormon Campaign.

The demon of prejudice shrunk with dismay,
When the Mormon Battalion in martial array,
Trod to the wild war drum, with banners displayed,
Their friends to protect and our country to aid;
The blood of our ancestors fired their veins,
And the soldier remembered his fathers' campaigns.

We've proved to the world that we loyal remain
And the spirit of freedom still runs in our veins;
True to our God may we ever remain,
And the counsel of Heaven forever sustain;
Though in exile we wander, our rights to maintain,
We remember Missouri in her early campaign.

The land once unequaled for virtue and fame,
A blot on your pages must ever remain;
Such deeds of barbarity never has stained,
Savage or Turk, or Spanish domains,
Though for murder and blood-shed they've ever been famed,
Though never to equal Missouri's campaign.

You never attempted to wipe out the stain,
The blood of the Prophet and Patriarch slain;
You've murdered and mobbed, and taken our rights,
And called on our soldiers your battles to fight;
Though not so many of our Mormon boys there were slain,
As the mobocrats lost in the Nauvoo campaign.

We've fought for a country from which we've been driven,
The home of our childhood, our own native haven,
But memory still clings to that hallowed spot,
Where the wild flowers springing around the lone grot,
By the tombs or our fathers whose ashes are lain,
To rest from their labors and early campaign.

Come all of you Mormons both soldiers and saints,
Remember your calling and cease your complaints,
To build up God's Kingdom to you it belongs;
Forget all your sufferings your sorrow and wrongs,
And when that we martial our armies again,
May our enemies remember the Mormon campaign.

For the Frontier Guardian.

On the Death of a Child.

BY ELIZA TERRILL.

I have been to the land of the sunny South,
And breathed of its balmy breath,
And reclined me amid its orange groves,
And found therein was death.

I have plucked the sweet, and the scented rose,
In Northern winter's hour,
And gazed in loviness upon
The fresh and the blooming flower.

Far dearer to me is my northern land,
With its dark pines clothed in snow,
And I longed to hear the wintry winds,
And to mark the whirling snow.

My spirit is wild, and strong and sad,
It soars both far and high,
It cannot be lame nor idly glad,
Nor droop, nor idly sigh;

It asks for work, for work to do,
For cares in this worldly strife,
And if it finds no food to feed upon,
It wears away its life.

MISCELLANY.

Losing One's Temper.

BY MRS. MARY GRAHAM.

I was sitting in my room one morning, feeling all "out of sorts" about something or other, when an orphan child whom I had taken to raise, came in with a broken tumbler in her hand, and said, while her young face was pale, and her little lip quivered—

"See, ma'am! I went to take this tumbler from the dresser to get Anna a drink of water, and let it fall."

I was in a fretful humor before the child came in, and her appearance, with the broken tumbler in her hand, didn't tend to help me to a better state of mind. She was suffering a good deal of pain in consequence of the accident, and needed a kind word to disturb the beatings of her heart. But she had come to me in an unfortunate moment.

"You are a careless little girl!" said I severely, taking the fragments of glass from her trembling hands. "A very careless little girl, and I am displeased with you."

I said no more, but my countenance expressed even stronger rebuke than my words. The child lingered near me for a few moments and then shrunk away from the room. I was sorry in a moment that I had permitted myself to speak unkindly to the little girl, for there was no need of my doing so, and moreover, she had taken my word, as I could see, deeply to heart. I had made her unhappy without a cause. The breaking of the tumbler was an accident likely to happen to any one, and the child evidently felt bad enough about what had occurred, without having my displeasure added thereto.

If I was unhappy before Jane entered my room, I was still more unhappy after she retired. I blamed myself and pitied the child; but this did not in the least mend the matter. In about half an hour Jane came up very quietly, with Willy, my dear little curly haired, angel faced boy in her arms. He had fallen asleep, and she had, with her utmost strength, carried him up stairs. She did not lift her eyes to mine as she entered, but went with her burden to the low bed that was in the room, where she laid him tenderly, and then sat down with her face turned partly away from me, and with a fan kept off the flies, and cooled his moist skin.

Enough of Jane's countenance was visible to enable me to perceive that its expression was sad. And it was an unkind word from my lips that had brought this cloud over her young face!

"So much for permitting myself to fall into a fretful mood," said I mentally. "In future I must be more watchful over my state of mind. I have no right to make others suffer from my own unhappy temper."

Jane continued to sit with Willy and fan him; and every now and then I could hear a very low sigh come up, as if involuntary, from her bosom. Faint as the sound was, it smote upon my ear, and added to my uncomfortable frame of mind.

A friend called and I went down into the parlor, and sat conversing there for an hour. But all the while there was a weight upon my feelings. I tried, but in vain, to be cheerful. I was distinctly aware of the fact that an individual—and that a motherless little girl—was unhappy through my unkindness; and the consciousness was like a heavy hand upon my bosom.

"This is all a weakness," I said to myself after my friend had left, making an effort to throw off the uncomfortable feeling. But it was of no avail. Even if the new train of thought awakened by conversation with my friend, had lifted me above the state of mind in which I was when she came, the sight of Jane's sober face, as she passed me on the stairs, would have depressed my feelings again.

In order to both relieve my own and the child's feelings, I thought I would refer to the broken tumbler, and tell her not to grieve herself about it, as its loss was of no consequence whatever. But this would have been to have made an acknowledgment to her that I had been in the wrong, and un instinctive feeling of pride remonstrated against that.

"Ah me!" I sighed. "Why did I permit myself to speak so unguardedly?—How small are the causes that sometimes destroy our peace. How much of good or evl, is there in a single word.

Some who read this may think that it was very weak to let a hastily uttered censure against a careless child trouble me. What are a child's feelings?

I have been a child; and, as a child, have been blamed severely by those whom I desired to please, and felt that unkind words fell heavier and more painfully, sometimes than blows. I could, therefore, understand the nature of Jane's feelings, and sympathize with her to a certain extent.

All through the day Jane moved about more quietly than usual. When I spoke to her about any thing—which I did in a kinder voice than I used—she would look into my face with an earnestness that rebuked me.

Towards evening I sent her down stairs for a pitcher of cool water. She went quickly, and soon returned with a pitcher of water and a tumbler, on a waiter. She was coming towards me, evidently using more than ordinary caution, when her foot tripped against something, and she stumbled forward. It was in vain she tried to save the pitcher. Its balance was lost, and it fell over and was broken to pieces at my feet, the water dashing upon the skirts of my dress.

The poor child became instantly as pale as ashes, and the frightened look she gave me I shall not soon forget. She tried to speak and say that it was an accident, but her tongue was paralyzed for the moment, and she found no utterance.

The lesson I had received in the morning, served me for the purpose of self-control now, and I said instantly, in a mild voice—

"Never mind, Jane; I know you could not help it. I must tack down the loose edge of the carpet. I came near tripping myself to-day. Go and get a floor cloth and wipe up the water as quickly as you can, while I gather up the broken pieces.

The color came back instantly to Jane's face. She gave me one grateful look, and then ran quickly away, to do as I directed her. When she came back she blamed herself for not being more careful, expressed sorrow for the accident, and promised over and over again that she would be more guarded in future.

The contrast between both of our feelings now and what they were in the morning was very great. I felt happier for having acted justly and with due self-control; and my little girl, though troubled on account of the accident, had not the extra burden of my displeasure to bear.

"Better, far better," I said to myself, as I sat and reflected upon the incidents just related—"better, far better is it in all our relations in life, to maintain a calm exterior, and on no account to speak harshly to those who are below us. Angry words make double wounds. They hurt those to whom they are addressed, while they leave a sting behind them.—Above all, should we guard against a moody temper. Whenever we permit anything to fret our minds, we are not in a state to exercise due self-control, and if temptation comes then, we are sure to fall."

"Woman is the last and most perfect work of God." Ladies are the productions of silk-worms milliners, and dress makers.

Charles Ellett, a distinguished civil engineer says that the navigation of the Ohio river may be made permanent throughout the year, for boats drawing five feet of water, by the construction of reservoirs that would not cost over $600,000.

CURIOSITIES.—Babies to sit on the laps(e) of the year.

The woman who kneaded the dough for the crust of the earth.

A box of salve to cure the felon on the finger of a cradle.

A pair of spectacles for the eye of a lime-kiln.

One of the pups of a saw-mill dog.

Garments for the naked truth.

A cure for the heaves in a shaving horse.

Leather tanned with the bark of a dog.

A half gallon of the spirit of '76.

The bristle on the end of time.

Handles for the axes of the planets.

The nose on the face of nature.

Drops to cure the tooth-ache in a rake.

A fox caught by the hounds of a wagon.

The skin of the legislative body.

A finger-nail from the hand of a clock.

The Knickerbocker cannot for his life let "colored pussons" alone. Here he is at them again:

"A colored clergyman, preaching recently to a black audience at the south, said: "I s'pose, indeed I s'pect, dat de reason de Lord made us brack men, was, 'cause he use all de white men up 'fore he got to de brack men, and he had to make him brack. But dat don't make no odds, my bredren; de Lord look a'ter brack man, too. Don't de scripture say dat two sparrer-hawks um sold for a farden, and dat not one ob 'em soll fall 'pon de ground without deir farder? Well, den, my bredren, if your hebbenly fader care so much for a sparrer-hawk, when you can buy two ob 'em for a farden, how bery much more he care for you, dat is wu'th six or seven hundred dollars a piece!" If that argument isn't a colored "non-sequitur," we never saw a colored "non-sequitur."

Before Mrs. Farnham's enterprise was heard on that const, a merchant of St. Jago, in Chili, advertised for two hundred young, white, poor and virtuous girls, (ninas, jovenes blancas, propres y de conducta intachable,) and of average prettiness, to be taken to California, and honorably married.

The Editor of the Cincinnati Nonpariel has the following good humored reply to a communication that he received from the self styled President of the church, Wm. Smith:

Apostacy.

We have received a communication from a gentleman signing himself "Wm. Smith, President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," in reply to a few facts we gave in relation to the Mormons of Salt Lake and Beaver Islands. * * * *

We understand that this "Wm. Smith, President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," does not recognize the Mormons of the islands and the wilderness as "Latter Day Saints,"—they are "base apostates-" We would like to put the question to President Smith which was put to Rolla—"How numerous is your army?" He might reply as definitely as Rolla did—"Count the leaves of yonder forest;" but it is probable that the followers of President Smith can be numbered by those expert in mathematics. If those who remain in the "true faith" according to him should prove to be more numerous than we suspect, he should be a little modest about pronouncing the main bodies of the Mormons "base apostates." They have probably excommunicated him and his followers, and the world is left sadly in the dark as to the real "Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints."

As to the communication of President Smith, we decline publishing it because of the apparent bad temper which dictated it, and the unfounded denunciation with which it abounds. Saying nothing of the Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," we think the communication unbecoming even the humblest layman among the "saints." Though "base" heretics ourselves, we could not have written so ill-natured an article. We mention these things for the improvement of our friend President Smith, that he may adorn a godly life and dignify his exalted position with patience, humility, long-suffering and charity. We have a high regard for the honor of the "faith," and respectfully commend to President Smith the Scriptures, "which are given for doctrine, for reproof, and for instruction in righteousness".

A word now as to apostacy. There was a time when apostacy was considered next to the unpardonable sin. He who should break from the evangelical fold was branded under ecclesiastical solemnity and awe, and cast out among the vilest of the earth. For what! Because in the exercise of the mind he had—of the powers he received from the Eternal, he formed a difference of opinion between himself and those with whom he was connected, and as an honest man he could no longer profess his belief in what he thought to be erroneous. The effect was, as it still is in any similar case, that the apostate was disgraced on account of his honesty; for had he been cowardly enough to fear the power of Diets, Synods, Conventicles, and Conferences, and hypocritical enough to profess what he did not believe, he would have glided on in the "true faith" respected and beloved by his brethren.

And who are they that presume to sit in judgment upon the opinions of their fellows? They are those who are consciencious, to be sure, in what they do, but yet are in error—who know not the rights of mind and therefore cannot respect them—who believe themselves commissioned by the divine will and constantly sustained by the Almighty hand in all they do—they are, in short, individuals who may surrender themselves, soul and body, to faith and forms that have come they know not whence. They place the best impulses of the heart and the highest thoughts of the head under ban, and thus attempt to annihilate all that is great and glorious in human nature.

The only difference between the past and the present in this respect is, that apostacy is becoming honorable and is no longer a disgrace except with the narrow-minded few whose pride is wounded by the exposures of the apostate. The man of independence enough to think for himself and owe no thanks to a priesthood, and to act faithfully to his convictions of right, is now regarded as a superior person whom no ecclesiastical censures can intimidate nor no solemn gravity of self-constituted prophets and apostles can awe.

The great truth on this subject is being known—the truth that every man is his own prophet, priest, and king, and it is an insult to high heaven to interfere with the practice of this truth. No body of men have a right to restrain the mental operations of any inquiring mind, except in the individual exercise of the right that all possess, of free and candid conversation with each other for mutual enlightenment. Reader, you have as much authority to excommuniate a whole conclave of these ecclesiastical conspirators against the right of free inquiry, as they have to excommunicate you.

Little is said at the present day among respectable people, of apostacy; and this affair of President Smith and the Mormons is a rich burlesque on all efforts of the Church in the restraint of freedom of inquiry, and on its excommunication for heresy. President Smith is a benefactor of his race in rendering absurdity ridiculous.

No—every man is himself responsible for the exercise of such faculties as he has, and none can act for him. He annihilates himself in so far as he yields to others his freedom of thought and action. No sect or party can do my thinking, and I regard it as an insult for any to claim my homage. In doing so they propose to strike me from the list of freemen and merge me in a confused mess of incoherent inconsitencies.

NEW RACE IN AERICA.—A hitherto unknown race of people have, it is said, been discovered in the interior of Africa. They occupy the kingdom of Bari. They are black in color, and very tall, but destitute of the usual negro features.

ANNUAL MORTALITY OF CITIES.—London, 1 in 45; St. Petersburg, 1 in 20; Genoa, 1 in 46; Paris, 1 in 32; Berlin, 1 in 34; Vienna, 1 in 25; Rome, 1 in 31; Geneva, 1 in 40; Philadelphia, 1 in 42; Boston, 1 in 40; New York, 1 in 35; New Orleans, 1 in 20; St. Louis, 1 in 25. Total, 13 in 435.

Newspaper Editors.

The N. Y. Mirror remarks, that it "is one of the anomalies of our political organization, that those who have the widest influence in shaping public events, who are the direct means of elevating certain men to official posts, who give more of their time to the public than any other class, and whose aid and advice are more anxiously sought in emergencies than those of any other class, should when patronage of a party is to be distributed be deemed unworthy of participating in the fruits of their own labors. Editors and conductors of newspapers are, as a class, proscribed, so far as the emoluments of executive patronage go. There are, exceptions, of course, but they are very few; and for obvious reasons, which we need not repeat, we cannot enlarge upon this subject as we would willingly do."

And the Mirror might add that it is not by government alone that they are proscribed. They are generally overlooked in the distribution of trust in the people's gift, so that when we hear of an editor being nominated to the House of Representatives, or some other menagerie of hungry politicians, the cry is, "Editors rising." What an idea! Rising from the power of the press, the grandest power in the world—the daily power of scattering abroad, not only the seeds of knowledge but co-operating with the beneficent designs of Heaven itself in doing good—aye, by a single line or sentence promoting some cause of philanthrophy and mercy; sending forth some purifying and elevating thought; rallying the benevolent to the relief of some child of misery and wo; scourging vice with a lash of scorpions; sounding the trumpet call for the friends of education and intelligence to combine and put forth their energies to deliver their fellow men from the deep darkness of uninstructed mind; leading the van in some mighty measure of improvement, which will bring forth from the bowels of the earth untold treasures of wealth, and raise a decayed State from the grave, revisiting her cheek with the bloom of youth, and circling her brow with the diadem of empires—talk of rising from such a position as this to a seat in Congress! The Editor does not appreciate his vocation who thus speaks. We should as soon talk of an eagle rising from his mountain "eyrie" to mingle in the clamoring and squabbles of a community of puddle-ducks.

As to offices of the government, we see no reason why the editor who has passed his life in fighting the battles and bearing the heaviest burthens of the cause, should not be entitled to as much consideration as the politicians, whom he has a thousand times converted by a dash of his pen from catterpillars to butterflies. In this country, editors are too frequently looked upon as tools to raise aspirants to high stations, and when that is done to be cast aside as worthless, In unenlightened and uncivilized France, the very reverse is the case, and we find the power of the press acknowledged in deeds as well as words, and editors placed at the head of the government.

So it will be here, one of these days. Let the editorial fraternity wait in patience, and its time will come. In the mean time, let it never forget that there can be no station more truly honorable and beneficial than its own vocation.—[Richmond Republican.

TREASURER'S STATEMENT.—The total amount of public money in the several depositories on the 23d July, was $4,908,509 97. But there are outstanding drafts to the amount of $1,486,423 55, which, when deducted with the suspense account, leaves $3,422,-086 42.

The total receipts into the Treasury for the quarter ending the 30th June, 1849, are as follows: From customs, $5,794,256, 50; lands, $279,685 26; miscellaneous, $63,-500; loan of 1847, (treasury notes funded) $2,986,600; loan of 1848, $2,017,450. Total, $11,141,491 76. The expenditures for the same time amount to $14,418,239 92, as follows: Civil list, miscellaneous, and foreign intercourse, including $3,500,000 under treaty with Mexico, $3,909,143 12; army, $2,268,203 69; Indian department $441,717 41; fortifications, $129,127 52; pension, $162,380 17; navy, $2,041,912-23; interest, $1,765,223 58; reimbursement treasury notes, $2,998,850; redemption of public debt, $641,175; premiums and commission on purchase of public debt, $60,-443 31; redemption of treasury notes purloined, $54 05.

Douglass Jerrold calls woman's arms "the serpents that wind about a man's neck, killing his best resolutions."

"I have met my match," as the Devil said when he encountered the lawyer.

Mrs. Partington says that a man fell down the other day in an applejack fit, and that his life was extripated.

A TRADING PRINCESS.—The Journal du Havre, of July 17, says: For some days every one has been able to perceive, in the roadstead in front of the bathing establishment of Frascati, a large steamer. This vessel, named the William, belongs to the Princess of Orange, who is at present at Dieppe, for the benefit of bathing. Thence she is about, it is said, to proceed to Palestine. This Princess is an intrepid tourist, and proceeds where she pleases in her yatcht. Independently of this steamer, the Princess possesses, we are informed, eleven steamers which trade for her with England, Russia and the Netherlands. Her revenue is estimated at three millions of francs.

A verdant youth from the country was recently dismissed by a young damsel in this city, on the ground that she had been advised to avoid any thing green during the prevalence of the cholera.—[Pitts. Chronicle.

Equality.

Consider, man—weigh well thy frame,
The king, the beggar are the same;
Dust formed us all. Each breathes his day,
Then sinks into his native clay.

"Job Printing," exclaimed Mrs. Partington, "I'm glad on't, I allers thought he would do a better business than moping over his losses, and he must be just the sort of man to print in such hot weather, if he's as patient as he's called."

The Cemetries of Constantinople.

The people of each faith in Constantinople have distinct quarters allotted to them in death as well as in life. The dark groves of cypresses, with their turbaned stones of white marble, belong exclusively to the Moslems, and many are the generations of them interred there.

It has been the custom among Oriental nations, from remote antiquity, to plant a tree at the birth, and another at the death, of a member of a family, and a cypress is invariably planted at each Mussulman's grave. The Turks reserve that funeral-tree for themselves, and it is prohibited being planted in other cemetries. As no grave is opened a second time, these burial-grounds have become vast forests, extending for miles around the city and suburbs. The cypresses here, from the nature of the soil or the uses to which they are applied, have grown to a size seen no where else, and they form a shade which even an oriental sun can never penetrate.

The tombstones of the Turks are of white marble, supplied from the quarry of Marmora, or they are not unfrequently shaped from the ancient columns and marbles. The turban surmounting the stone distinguishes the graves of males; those of females are simply ornamented with a rose branch. The form of the turban denotes the rank and condition of the deceased. Thus the grave of the pasha, the soldier, the dervish, the lawyer, the merchant are easily recognized. The number of stones that may be observed, from which the turban has been recently severed, are tombs of the Janissaries. The late Sultan, not satisfied with having annihilated that rebellious body, waged war against them in death, and, in order to obliterate every trace of their existence, directed the mutilation of their tombstones. No turban of a Janissary is now standing within sight of any road. Each stone is placed standing; it bears a single inscription recording the name of the deceased, the date of his death, and sometimes a sentence from the koran. The letters in relief are richly gilt, and when they begin to lose their lustre undergo renovation at the expense of some pious descendent.

Nothing is more touching or impressive than to see, beneath the shade of some dark cypress, solitary men absorbed in prayer, or groups of women, sitting over the graves of departed friends, with whom, in deep affliction, they seem to hold communication, or suppplying with water the flowers planted in cavities left expressly in each for them. Multitudes of turtle-doves frequent these cemetaries. They are at all times seen fluttering among the overhanging trees, and with bats and owls hold divided sway.

Burying within the city is strictly prohibited—a wise regulation among people whose graves are exceedingly shallow: were it otherwise, baneful effects might be apprehended. The aromatic odor of the cypress is supposed to neutralize pestilential exhalations, and render the air salubrious. The Turks have an idea that the soul is in a state of torment from the moment of death until that of burial. They therefore hurry the funeral with as much speed as possible, in order to obtain repose for their departed friend; and almost the only occasion on which a Turk is seen walking at a quick pace, is when carrying a dead body on a bier towards the cemetry. This is to them the most sacred of all obligations, as the koran declares that he who carries a dead body for forty paces, procures for himself the expiation of a great sin. Coffins are not used; the corpse, when carried, is decently covered, and when deposited in the grave, thin boards are so placed as to prevent the earth pressing upon it.

The cemetries of Rayahs are shaded by the platanus, mulberry, and the terebinth or turpentine tree. Of these burial-grounds, that of the Armenians is pre-eminently beautiful. The tree they prefer is the trebinth, which grows to a prodigious size. Numbers of them overhanging the Bosphorus, contribute considerably to the picturesque appearance of that lovely strait. The Armenian tombs are inscribed with the name of the deceased, and devices rudely carved in relief represent the profession and the manner of his death: thus, if he has been decapitated, he is represented with his head in his hand; if hanged, the body appears suspended on a gallows; if strangled, the application of the bow-string is depicted. Ignominious as these deaths are, they are considered as no disgrace among the Armenians. None of their community, they assert, is ever executed for a real crime. The true motive is the confiscation of their properties, and some plausible excuse is invented to conceal it.

Beyond Pera there are extensive cemetries belonging to every race—English, Germans, Swiss, and French, lie promiscuously in the Protestant cemetry; and contagious to it, Spaniards, French, Italians, and their descendents, the Peorites, occupy a portion of land belonging to the Roman Catholics Within Pera, a burying-groud called "Les Petits Champs des Morts," to distinguish it from another called "Les Grande Champs des Morts," is a fashionable promenade. In the evening Frank ladies, gaily attired, attended by their beaux, assemble in great numbers, talking and laughing among the cypresses and tombstones.

In one of the counties of Kentucky, some of the voters have addressed a series of questions to one of their candidates for the Legislature, among which are the following:

Are you in favor of the next war?

Do you believe the Irish came over in the same boat with Noah?

Do you believe that Eve's eating the forbidden fruit, caused the knot in a man's neck called "Adam's apple?"

Are you a "gradual Imaginationist?"

Do you liquor?

If elected, do you pledge yourself not to go to Frankfort?

Not being caucased on, do you pledge yourself not to be caucased off—but run until the "last day in the evening"—going through the polls like "a dose of salts!"

NATIVITY OF THE VICTIMS.—Of the 1,530 deaths in New York in one week, 696 were Americans, and 656 foreigners; of the latter, 434 were Irish, and 148 Germans.

A HOG CASE.—Rather an amusing hog case was told us by a legal gentleman recently, which, for the benefit of our readers, we make public, without mentioning the names of the parties. On the confines of the town live two small farmers, each, among other things, engaged in the rearing of hogs. One is an honest German, the other an Englishman. Not long ago the German missed from his pen several hogs, with peculiar marks and spots, which he thought he could recognise any where; and, after a diligent search they, or what was supposed to be them, were discovered by the German's son, (Hans,) in the pen of his neighbor, the Englishman. Claim was immediately made by the one for their restoration; but was stoutly refused by the other, who maintained that he had raised them from infant piggery to their then condition. A suit for their recovery was the result; lawyers were engaged, and the case came before a magistrate for his decision.

Hosts of witnesses were examined on each side. On the part of the German, it was proved that his hogs were of the same color and spots; that an old dog, with but one tooth, had bitten one of them in the ear, and the mark was shown, &c. The Englishman proved, by an equal array of testimony, the littering of the pigs, the careful bringing of them up to hogdom, the cutting of the dog-bitten hog's ear with a knife with a broken blade, &c. It was a most doubtful case. The two women that claimed before Solomon the mothership of the child were not more positive in their assertions than were the two litigants as to the ownership of the hogs in question. Testimony was so nicely balanced that the justice was bothered how to decide. The lawyers on each side made most earnest declamations as to the rights of their clients. At last, the German's lawyer (who was but a young disciple of Blackstone, and this was the first case) was seized with a lucky thought. He desired the son of the German to be recalled. Hans stepped forth. He was asked if he was not in the habit of calling the hogs, and did they not answer his call. He answered yes. "And now, Hans," said the lawyer, "did you call them in German or English?" "Me calls dem in Deitch," replied Hans. Resort was immediately had to the Englishman's hog-yard; Hans called the hogs "in Deitch," and, lo! those which the German claimed were the only ones out of the number which came forth at Hans's German call. The effect was irresistable. Judgment was immediately rendered for the German, and the hogs ordered to be restored to him. Whether any further legal steps are to taken in the matter, we have not learned.—[Republic.

A YANKEE WAY OF TELLING A STORY.—[Scene in Court.] Counsel: Well, what do you know of this matter? Please state to the Jury what you saw. Witness: I was going along the road with my team, and come up where Dickery and Grub were taking down a pair of bars; I stopped and asked Grub a question, when out came Marm Jones out of her house with a rolling-pin and hit Dickery a dig in the ribs. Counsel: What was the cause of her striking him? Witness: I do'no, unless it was 'cause he was gittin down the bars. Counsel: Well what took place then? go on with your story. Witness: When she hit him, Dickery up and give her a lounger right in the mums, for, says he, I don't be licked by a woman no how; well, says she, I don't be puckerstoppled in that way, I can tell ye. Counsel: What's that word? I don't understand. Witness: Puckerstoppled, (a laugh.) Counsel: What does that mean? Witness: Why, connunk'd, (a louder laugh.) Counsel: Please to explain yourself, what does that mean? Witness: Why, as I understand it, she didn't like the feelin' of that dab in the chops, so she gin him a piece of her mind on the subject. Counsel: Go on. Witness: After that they slat round them pretty lively for a considerable spell. They then stopped a minute, and began to jaw—says she I aint goin' to be skeert. Arter they stood and jawed a spell, Joe Hines come up and axed Dickery what he was doin' to Marm Jones. He said he was only fending off her darned old rolling-pin. Then the old woman said it warnt a rolling-pin, that she could substanche. And then they snarled a spell, and did up a considerable talk among um, but they didn't tackle agin—and that's all I know about it.

SINGULAR PHENOMENON.—The Baton Rouge (La.) Advocate states that recently a fire was discovered issuing from the ground in the lower part of the town, and that for the space of twenty or thirty feet square it appeared to be in a state of entire combustion.

A sulphurous smell arose from it, and water, though applied freely, did not extinguish it. Ashes were, at last, used with success, but subsequent examination showed very little, if any trace on the ground, of the action of the fire.

The art of advertising is the same to a tradesman as the art of dressing is to a beauty; the great secret of both is to expose enough to excite curiosity, and to conceal enough to leave curiosity ungratified.

CUCUMBERS.—When a cucumber is taken from the vine, let it be cut off with a knife, leaving about the eighth of an inch of the cucumber remaining on the stem upon which it grew; then slit the stem with a knife from its end to the vine, leaving a particle of the cucumber remaining to each division, and as many slits or divisions as are made in it, there will be new cucumbers, as large and as fine as those that grew in the natural way.

A gentleman putting his arm about a young lady's neck the other day, and disarranging her frills, was tartly informed that she considered it rather rough treatment.

Four young Morocco girls, of wonderful personal beauty, who have been acting as Hebes, and distributors of coffee and other beverages, at one of the fashionable Cafes in Paris, have gone to London. They have nightly attracted large crowds, as well from the singularity of their appearance, as from their personal beauty, and have realized for their importer a handsome sum.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 17, 1849. VOLUME I.----NUMBER 19.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE,.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

Elder Isaac Bullock, is our authorized traveling Agent throughout the United States.
Dr. John M Burnhisel, Travelling Agent.
Mr. Henry Sanford, Linden, Mo.
Mr. Graham Coultrin, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. James Townsend, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder Nathaniel H. Felt, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. Jacob Gibson, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder Thomas Cartwright, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder Wilford Woodruff, Traveling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. Merryweather, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. John Bowen, Montrose, Iowa.
Murdock McKenzie, Quincy, Ill.
David Whitmer, Richmond, Mo.
David Judy, Mackinaw, Tazwell county Illinois.
Basil B. Hulse, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

From the Times and Seasons.

THE GATHERING.

The gathering of the saints is a subject which has created not a little speculation among the religious world, although some of its leading features are very familiar to the saints. It is thought a strange thing that the saints should gather; and mankind being generally "ignorant of the scriptures, and of the power of God," are ready to ascribe it to an impure motive, political intrigue, a thirst after power, or some other unholy influence. It is true that the gathering of the Jews is a subject which has obtained some credence, and has been advocated by a portion of our modern theologists; the scriptures pertaining to this subject have been thoroughly investigated, and the idea of "Jerusalem being inhabited again in her own place, even in Jerusalem," is one that has been entertained by many; and they have reflected with pleasure and delight upon the time when the promises made to God's ancient people should be fulfilled; when "he that has scattered the house of Israel shall also gather them." But upon what principle, for what purpose, or by whom they should be gathered, is a subject about which men are most egregiously ignorant. Nor has it entered into their minds that any other people should be gathered together, under the direction and guidance of heaven, nor that the principle of the gathering was one upon which Jehovah had acted in the different ages of the world, for the building up of his kingdom, and the accomplishment of his purposes. Whereas the scriptures are full of subjects of this kind, unfolding the designs of Jehovah, pertaining to the different nations of the earth. Not only are Israel and Judah mentioned, as objects of God's mercy, but other nations also. The Moabites, the Amorites, and the Elamites will not be among the least of those who shall participate in God's mercies. As the father of the spirits of all flesh, Jehovah does exercise a paternal care over all his creatures, and in order to acomplish this will erect a standard, for, according to the prophet, "Zion shall be established in righteousness, and all nations shall flock to her standard."

The purposes of God, in regard to the human family, are great and comprehensive, and are marked by the most consummate wisdom, and as in the formation of worlds, the organization of the solar system, and the order of nature, his intelligence is displayed, so in regard to the well-being, safety and happiness, both present and future, of the universal world, he, as the great father of the human family, feels highly interested. It is true that he adopts plans and makes use of means, which in the estimation of men in many instances would be foreign from the point, yet when we consider, that with Him dwells wisdom, that "his thoughts are not as our thoughts, nor his ways as our ways," we shall not be surprised that he makes use of means for the accomplishment of his designs, which in many instances are, to us incomprehensible.

When the Lord created the heavens and the earth, he had a design in it, and had certain purposes to accomplish, and when he created the beasts of the field, the fish of the sea, and the fowls of the air, he did it to promote his purposes and to advance his glory, and when man was placed as lord of creation, it was for a purpose, and the which, though it may now be mysterious, yet when the curtain of heaven shall be withdrawn, and we shall comprehend eternal things, we shall see and acknowledge "that the judge of all the earth has done right." The council of heaven was had among the Gods' in the eternal world, pertaining to all these subjects, of their creation, before ever they were formed, "or the morning stars sang together for joy;" and by him who comprehends the end from the beginning and before whom, and with whom, the present, the past, and the future are one eternal now, their organization, habits, propensities, the object of their creation, the position they would take in the order of that creation, and how, and by what means they would be made happy, and increase his glory, was fully understood by him who has done "all things well."

The world was not made to be annihilated nor the creatures that he has formed: all of them were intended to fulfil the measure of his creation. The sun, the moon, the stars, the earth, man, beast, bird and fish, all occupy their several spheres, all were made for the glory of God, and all were intended to fill up the measure of their creation, and to bring about his purposes, and the beast of the forest, the fish of the sea, or the fowl of the air, all are necessary in the vast works of creation, and the chirping sparrow upon the house top, fulfill the measure of his creation, in his own sphere, as much as an archangel does in his.

"Whichever link you from the order stirke,
"Tenth, or tenth-thousand, breaks the chain alike."

It is true that they move in different spheres and occupy a different glory; but although we cannot now see those various connecting links, the time will come, when we shall hear "every creature in heaven, every creature on the earth, and every creature under the earth, say blessing, and glory, and honor, and might, and majesty, and dominion, be ascribed unto Him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the lamb forever." It is true that they will occupy their several spheres, they will not all obtain the same glory, "for there is one glory of the sun and another of the moon, and another glory of the stars; and as one star differeth from another star in glory, so also will it be in the resurrection. There are also celestial bodies, (and telestial bodies,) and bodies terrestrial; and the glory of the celestial is one," (and the glory of the telestial is another;) and the glory of the terrestrial is another. Again, "all flesh is not the same flesh; but there is one kind of flesh of men, another flesh of beasts, another of fishes, and another of birds." All occupy their own place, fulfill their own sphere and glorify God. And as there are different glories that the children of men will inherit, in the eternal world according to their faithfulness, diligence and capacity, in keeping the commandments of God while here; each one will be enabled to find his own element, and participate in that kind of glory which is the most congenial to his nature and suited to his capacity, according to the testimony of the prophet.

"And they who are not sanctified through the law which I have given unto you; even the law of Christ must inherit another kingdom, even that of a terrestrial kingdom, or that of a telestial kingdom. For he who is not able to abide the law of celestial kingdom, cannot abide a celestial glory: and he who cannot abide the law of a terrestrial kingdom, cannot abide a terrestrial glory: he who cannot abide the law of a telestial kingdom, cannot abide a telestial glory: therefore he is not meet for the kingdom of glory. Therefore, he must abide a kingdom which is not a kingdom of glory.

And again, verily I say unto you, the earth abideth the law of a celestial kingdom, for it fulfilleth the measure of its creation, and transgresseth not the law. Wherefore, it shall be sanctified; yea, notwithstanding it shall die, it shall be quickened again, and shall abide the power by which it is quickened, and the righteous shall inherit it: for notwithstand they die, they also shall rise again a spiritual body: they who are of a celestial spirit, shall receive the same body which was a natural body; even ye shall receive your bodies, and your glory shall be that glory by which your bodies are quickened. Ye who are quickened by a portion of the celestial glory, shall then receive the same, even a fulness: and they who are quickened by a portion of the terrestrial glory, shall then receive the same, even a fulness: and they who are quickened by a portion of the telestial glory, shall then receive the same even a fulness: and they who remain, shall also be quickened; nevertheless, they shall return again to their own place, to enjoy that which they are willing to receive, because they were not willing to enjoy that which they might have received.

For what doth it profit a man if a gift is bestowed upon him, and he receive not the gift? Behold he rejoices not in that which is given unto him, neither rejoices in him who is the giver of the gift.

And again, verily I say unto you, that which is governed by law, is also preserved by law, and perfected and sanctified by the same: that which breaketh a law, and abideth not by law, but seeketh to become a law unto itself, and willeth to abide in sin, and altogether abideth in sin, cannot be sanctified by law, neither by mercy, justice, or judgment. Therefore, they must remain filthy still." Page 101, Doctrine and Covenants.

It is evident from the above, that no man need murmur or complain, at the dealing of God, for he will be enabled to obtain the very thing which he is looking and living for.

The earth, as part of the creation of God, has and will fulfil the measure of its creation. it has been baptized by water, it will be baptized by fire; it will be purified and become celestial, and be a fit place for celestial bodies to inhabit. It will become the residence of those who have abode a celestial law, and of none other; after it has thus become purified, and made celestial. It was to obtain an inheritance of this kind, that all the prophets, apostles and ancient worthies, suffered and endured so patiently, all that they had to pass through. They had found out the way to come to God; the curtain of futurity was withdrawn from before their vision, and having a knowledge of the designs and purposes of God in regard to the earth, "they endured as seeing him who is invisible," they "were tempted, tried, and sawn asunder." They wandered about in sheep skins, and in goat skins; they dwelt in deserts and in dens, and in the caves of the earth, for they had respect unto the recompense of reward; they looked for a city which hath foundation, whose builder and maker is God. Well hath Paul said "they that say such things, declare plainly that they seek a country.

* * * * * * *

wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a city." What is this city? a heavenly one; but it will come to this earth when the earth is prepared to receive it; hence John says. Rev., xxi, 1—5. And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth passed away; and there was no more sea. A 1 John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and their shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away. And he that sat upon the throne said, behold, I make all things new—and he said unto me write: for these words are true and faithful."

This then was the thing that the ancient saints had in view; it was to obtain this glory that they sought; it was for this they suffered and endured. Eternal life with them, was the only thing desirable; it was for this they lived; for this they died. And what to men with minds unenlightened, would be folly and nonsense; to them was the greatest height of wisdom, even the teachings of Jehovah, pertaining to their eternal welfare. And as man's everlasting tabernacle was designed to be on this earth; by faith they sought, and by faith they obtained promises." Abraham obtained a promise of the land of Canaan for himself and his posterity. The land of the Gentiles was allotted to their several owners. Joseph had a promise of a land at the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills. Jared, at the destruction of the "Tower of Babel" had the promise of an inheritance in this land. The twelve tribes of Israel had their inheritance divided unto them by lot, and unto various heads of families, God gave similar promises. Yet we are told that though Abraham had the land of Canaan promised to him, for an everlasting inheritance, "God gave him none inheritance in it," (in his life time) "no not so much as to set his foot." Yet according to the scriptures he will do and inherit it eternally.

Abraham, and many of his coadjutors were willing to abide a celestial law, and therefore obtained promises by faith through the priesthood of a celestial inheritance, when the earth should be renewed; and as celestial glory was a prize worth seeking after, and enduring that they might obtain, men of faith in ancient days made every effort to get in possession of the blessings flowing therefrom—it was for this that the tabernacle and ark was made; it was for this that the temple was built; and if those people who had already the Aaronic priesthood, had received the Savior when he "came to his temple," he might, and would have unfolded to them many great and eternal principles, petaining to futurity, connected with the priesthood, for which the temple was originally built.

It was the policy of all those ancient men of God, and the order of their Heavenly Father, to collect the people of God into one place, for the purpose of teaching them the things of God, that they might be prepared to reign with him in a celestial glory. Thus when the earth was becoming corrupt, Enoch collected together a people who were virtuous and pure; who professed a willingness to be governed by the law of God, and as the earth was then becoming corrupt, and the children of men departing from God, and his ordinances, Enoch was selected as a faithful man of God, to whom was committed the priesthood, that he might assemble together God's chosen people and save them from the contaminating influence of the world, and through the intercourse that he had with the Almighty, and the teaching of heaven, lead the people in the paths of righteousness, teach them a celestial law, and prepare them for a celestial inheritance. Thus Enoch built up a Zion in his day, and as he "walked with God," he of course received teaching, not only pertaining to himself; but also pertaining to those chosen ones, over which God had given him the oversight: he did receive revelations and some of those revelations have been revealed to us, and after the pure in heart thus assembled, were prepared by upwards of one hundred years of divine teaching, and there was no hopes of reclaiming the rest of the world, Enoch, and his Zion was removed out of the world; they were not for God took them, and the saying went abroad, that "Zion is fled."

Noah, who was left upon the earth for the purpose of preserving a pure seed after the earth should be destroyed, in consequence of having filled up the measure of their iniquity, "and every imagination of their heart being evil, preached but in vain to the then devoted inhabitants of the earth." He was preserved, however and his seed, and thus when the earth was laid desolate, there was a little gathering of Zion left, to fulfill God's purposes, in regard to the earth, and perpetuate a pure seed. Having the priesthood Noah was prepared to teach them correct principles, and the seed of Noah thus assembled together were divinely taught. But it soon became evident that man's heart was deceitful;" that it was ready to start aside like a broken bough; and we find the people, as they became wicked, trying to arm themselves against the judgments of God. They knew that a short time before the inhabitants of the world had been destroyed by a flood in consequence of their wickedness. They had no doubt been warned by Jared and others, of their wickedness, and what it would tend to, therefore, partly fearing lest the testimony of the servants of God might be true, and partly braving the Almighty, they commenced building a tower whose "top would reach to the heaven," for the ostensible purpose, as they said, of "getting them a name." God however, took them in hand; confounded their language as a curse, and scattered them abroad upon all the face of the earth.

The brother of Jared, as a man of God, then pleaded with the Almighty, that his speech and that of his family, might not be confounded, and that he and his seed might be preserved from the corruption of the earth, and that other families who feared God might be preserved with them; and that if the Lord would drive them from that land, that he would give unto them another land, where they might fear God, and keep his statutes, and observe his ordinances. The Lord heard his prayer, and gave them an inheritance in this land.

"And it came to pass that the brother of Jared did cry unto the Lord according to that which had been spoken by the mouth of Jared. And it came to pass that the Lord did hear the brother of Jared, and had compassion upon him, and said unto him, go to and gather together thy flocks, both male and female, of every kind; and also of the seed of the earth of every kind, and thy families; and also thy brother Jared and his family; and also thy friends and their families, and the friends of Jared and their families. And when thou hast done this, thou shalt go at the head of them down into the valley, which is northward. And there will I meet thee, and I will go before thee into a land which is choice above all the lands of the earth. And there will I bless thee and thy seed, and raise up unto thee of thy seed, and the seed of thy brother, and they which shall go with thee, a great nation. And there shall be none greater than the nation which I will raise up unto me of thy seed, upon all the face of the earth. And thus I will do unto thee because of this long time which ye have cried unto me."

Thus we find that they were taken from another people who had become corrupt, and set apart, or, gathered together, as a righteous branch of God's planting upon this land; for the purpose of raising up a righteous seed unto God, "and there will I bless thee, and thy seed, and raise up unto ME of thy seed, and of the seed of thy brother, and of they who shall go with thee, a great nation." The promise of God moreover, to them was, that if they continued to fear God, they should be blessed; but if they departed from his ways, they should be cursed, for the decree was, as this was "a choice land, above all others;" that "it should be preserved" (as a place of gathering,) "for a righteous people; and he had sworn in wrath, unto the brother of Jared, that whoso should possess this land of promise, from that time henceforth and forever, should serve him, the true and only God, or they should be swept off when the fulness of his wrath should come upon them.

(To be continued.)

CRY OF THE MARTYRS.

Hark!—the sound of many voices mingling
Their feeble cries like the groans of myriads
Of expiring insects, assenus the skies
In solemn music. while the wide expanse
Of Heavens' courts re-echoes with the sound:
Its strains, how mournful, sad, and solemn are Powerful and mighty, and dignified,
And grand, and sublime: and fill all heaven,
As the sound of many waters; or as
The voice of a great thunder; rending the Skies; startling the angels; and penetrating
The hearts of Gods; thrilling every nerve
And kindling the flame of justice in each
Holy bosom. And whose voices are these?
They are the voices of ancient martyrs
Who were slain for the witness of Jesus;
And for the word of their testimony.
Yes—crucified, beheaded, sawn asunder,
Burned, torn by wild beasts; betrayed, shot,
Hung, boiled. roasted, imprisoned, starved, and
Tortured in ten thousand nameless ways.
And who, so cruel, or so hard in heart
As to afflict these blessed martyrs thus?
Perchance some demon from the courts of Hell
In human form arrayed, alone performed it?
Or if by human aid it must have been
Some long degraded heathen—canibal,
Trained from his youth to feed on human flesh.
Or tell me, where such wretches could be found?
Alas, I blush to own the truth, and yet
Myself a man. There were their PRAYING FRIENDS;
Their fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, sons,
And neighbors. Ah, too oft their fellow christains,
In name, but not in spirit. Yes, pious
Priests, and praying friends, too oft betrayed them.
But how could these in conscience kill such men,
And all for their religion and their faith:
Ah, this, (themselves the judge) they never did.
They first accused them, charged with various
Crimes, belied and slandered; then, for justice
Cried: and thus destroyed them, in holy zeal for God;
And vainly thought to do him justice.
But hark—That piercing voice still tingles in
My ears, and fills my weary heart with grief
What are their words that burn, with might and power
To pain both heaven and earth and all that hear?
"How long, O Lord! holy and true, dost thou
Not judge and avenge our blood on them that Dwell on the earth?"
Are these the awful words? And what reply
Is given by the avenging heavens?
Be patient—O ye martyred souls and wait
Till your fellow servants who are to be Killed in like manner shall be fulfilled.
Wait—till Missouri's plains are soaked in blood
Of innocence, and the souls of Latter-day Saints
Mingle their cries with yours for vengeance on
The earth. Wait, till the plains of Illinois,
And the walls of Carthage, are soaked with
The blood of martyred prophets, whose cries
Ascend to heaven for vengeance on a mob.
Wait—till the last vestage of civil and Religious liberty shall expire in
The bosom of a boasting nation, whose
Rulers mock the cries of justice,
And laugh at the prayers of the oppressed.
Wait till then; but wait no longer.—You have
The answer.

COURAGE OF A SPARROW.—A nature-loving friend has communicated to us the following incident, illustrating the courage of one of the sweetest of our birds. He was walking along one of the more quiet streets in the outskirts of the town, when he discovered on the ground an unfledged sparrow, which had probably tumbled out of its nest. Prompted by a kindly feeling, he picked up the helpless creature for the purpose of carrying it home, when he was assaulted by the parent of the child-bird, which flew directly into his face and cuffed him with her wings at a furious rate, uttering in the mean time a shrill cry, which seemed to moan, "You naughty man, if you don't let my child alone I will put out your eyes." The fledgling was of course given up, and the mother was happy.

THE ST. LAWRENCE.—Mr. Bayfield, an English officer, has been for thirty years engaged in surveying the St. Lawrence river, from the Gulf to the head of Lake Superior, and is still at the same work. He says there are 22,000 islands in the river and the eastern waters of Lake Huron.

From the Nauvoo Neighbor.

A PICTURE OF A MOBBER.

( )
Every man carries his own head
.. ..
.....I.....
....
[swear]
God damn you.
Cuss
the government.

The best recommendation I ever saw for a gentleman, is a brace of pistols, a bowie knife and a bottle of whisky. A body of such men as Isaac M'Coy, Gov. boggs, General Clark, Neil Gilham, of Bogard, with a number all Indenfluential Priests of such gration in connominations and ged the A men as were engaon Phases, rupting their way flood. the earth before the or a Job's ain to kill Abel; Mothe roah to withstand tines; Ba the Egyptians, Philis ites; Asyrians; the Sodom of Baal; enemies; the prophets n; the Vicksburg lynchme tho ltimore rioters, Native mobbic party of Philadelphia; the great G. T. M. Davist of Alton; Tom Sharp of Warsaw, with all the men who fell back on their reserved rights the latter part of June 1844: being Fostered and u phold by Laws of flesh, which had w axed fat on the w idows mite and orphans tears! all men who can quit all vir tue, all rea- son and law; & live by war, by lying and blasphemies are just fit to fester in their own infamy, where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched: and the punishment still is eternal.
THIE VING,
BLOOD MURDER,

†John C. Bennet, and all others, of the same kidney, behind Davis.

From the Springfield Republican.

The Farmer's Wife.

The life of the farmer is so often made the subject of complimentary remark, so often praised for its gracefulness and independence, that the farmer's wife might very rationally be supposed to be the happiest woman in the world. From her relation to the "lords of the soil," she should be the lady of the soil, a peaceful, healthy, independent woman. That the reverse of this is the general fact, will be universally conceded by the wives of farmers.

A young farmer arrives at an age when he thinks it time for him to get married, and "settle down." He has had a respectable education, and wants a woman who is his equal. He looks about him, and makes his choice. She is a girl bred beside him in the country, has been well educated; reared by careful parents, and is in the truest sense, a lady. She loves books, possesses skill and taste in music, and is in all points fitted to reign as queen of a happy home. She becomes the wife of the farmer, is ambitious to do as much as her neighbors, and her husband is soon avaricious enough to allow the woman of his love to become his most devoted drudge. From thenceforth her life is one of the most unremitting toil. It is nothing but mend and botch, cook and bake, wash and iron, churn and make cheese, pick up chips and draw water, bear children and nurse them. The family enlarges, the husband grows wealthy, becomes important in community, rides to town every day, takes his ease when he chooses;—but the cares of his faded and broken down wife knows no relaxation. She may outlive her husband, but rarely does, and not unfrequently a second wife comes in to share in the money that should have been enjoyed by her predecessor through a quiet old age of rest.

This is no fancy sketch. It is drawn from life and in every country town and neighborhood, its truthfulness will be recognized. Now we despise the good-for-nothings of fashionable life as much as any one, and have no affection for drones in any hive. We are aware that circumstances sometimes demand extreme labor of the farmer's wife, but in New England those circumstances do not prevail, and while we would leave no woman to eat the bread of lileness, we would see the class of which we are speaking, released from the circle of everlasting drudgery which deprives them of the privilege of relaxation for a day, and the time which they would gladly devote to the maternal education of their children.

From this life the girls of our day are learning to shrink: not because they are lazy, but because they know that they are to be sacarificed. Not because the calling of the farmer is not respectable, but because they do not wish to become his mistress, maid-of-all-work, nurse and boot-jack. Now the foundation of all this wrong is in that avaricious spirit, handed down from father to son, which makes the dollar the standard of respectability, and land the only fountain of happiness. We hope to see the day when the farmer's wife shall share in the peacefulness and independence of the farmer's lot, and we call upon the ladies to engage in the reform themselves, and to teach the lords of the soil that there is something to live for besides potatoes, and that life can be enjoyed more truly by a proper preservation of health, beauty, accomplishments and good spirits of their companions.

TRUE.—"The history of the world as well as the biography of those who played a prominent part in its concerns, teach one great lesson. worthy of everlasting remembrance It assures us that it matters but little what form of danger may assail man, if he be true to himself. Poverty may lay its chilling hand upon him, and freeze up his brightest hope—disappointments may meet him at every step—affliction may strike down those who are dearest to the heart—the breath of slander may attempt to sully his name, and tarnish his reputation—still let him be true to himself—let him maintain a stout heart and a clear breast—and he will eventually outride the storm. Let those who are struggling with low birth and iron fortune' remember this truth—and let them remember, too, that no man can be destroyed by others without fault and weakness in himself."

Shake not the credit of others in endeavoring to establish your own.

Interesting Letters of Kossuth.

In the baggage wagon of Bem, captured at Schassburgh, were found several letters from Kossuth, two of which are annexed:

PESTH, June 28, 1849.

I must candidly and honestly express the opinion, that if we can rapidly, very rapidly concentrate our forces, the country is saved—if not, she is lost. I must say, with bleeding heart, it is true, but with firm conviction, that I am prepared, if it could be done at once, to give up whole provinces, even three-quarters of the country, in order, to see our forces rapidly concentrated. For thus we can vanquish the enemy, and when he is vanquished, the last provinces will fall back of themselves; but if the supreme power is overthrown, the whole nation politically considered, falls to the ground, and the provinces do us no good. I therefore wish that you would come on with your whole force, combine with our army and take the supreme command. We shall thus overcome all our enemies in turn, and conquer the freedom of the world. If this cannot be done, I fear that a catastrophe must take place within a fortnight. Meantime, I will defend the country to the last man. I now call the whole Hungarian people to arms.

L. KOSSUTH.

SZEGEDIN, July 26, 1849.

A circumstance has happened to the last degree unfortunate for me, and for you, and for the whole country. General Gorgey writes from Comorn on July 20. "The battle of Raab is lost. The enemy will be in Buda in 48 hours." The Government must attend to the securing of the stores, the bank &c. I had no garrison in Pesth, and hence was unwilling to leave the bank-note machinery exposed to being carried off in case of an unfavorable event. I was therefore obliged to take it to pieces and cause it to be transported to Szegedin (a heavy load, of at least 6,000 hundred weigh of presses and matrices), just at the time when an account of the approach of the Russians, I was obliged to break up the apparatus at Debreczin. The erection took at least 14 days, and for that time we fabricated no money. You therefore get nothing except the 125,000 florins, which I sent on the 9th inst., to Szolnok. I did what man could do, but I am no God, and cannot create out of nothing. For a whole year nothing has come in: empty purses and war. At this moment, I have the following troops to sustain: in Transylvania 40,000 men; Upper army and Comorn 45,000; South army 36,000; Theiss army 26,000; Peterwardein 8,000; Grosswardein, Arad, Szegedin, Baja, Zarander, Granzcordon, and small detachments, 10,000; in the whole, 173,000 men. Beside the reserved squadrons of the 18 Hussars Regiments, 7 battalions in erecting fortifications, 20,000 sick, 60,000 militia to be sustained,—powder mills' foundries, armories, boring of cannon, making of bayonets, 24,000 prisoners, the whole civil administration. This, General, is no trifle, and the bank note apparatus has not worked for a fortnight. I ask for patience. I am not God. I can die for my country, but I cannot make a "creation." In three days the bank will again be in order, and I can then deliver to your treasurer 20,000 florins per week. You write for 800,000 florins, and this sum is scarce a tenth part of our monthly expenses. So much for explaining our difficulties. More I cannot. Now for something very important. Bolexes and Belliach emigrants from Wallachia, have proposed to me to form a Wallachian legion. I have accepted the offer, in general, and referred them, for details, to the commander-in-chief. I recommend them. The matter is of great consequence. If you should return into Wallachia, as I hope, this batallion will form the advance guard. The effect would be incalculable. I consider it very important to announce in the proclamations that we come as friends to the Turks and Wallachians, to free them from the Russian yoke. The Turks pursue a two-sided policy. We must compromise them."

FEMALE CULTURE.—The great entertainments of all ages are reading, conversation and thought. If our existence after middle life is not enriched by these, it becomes meagre and dull indeed. And these will prove sources of pleasure just in proportionto previous intellectual culture. How is mind to have subject matter of pleasurable thought during its solitary hours, which has no knowledge of the treasures of literature and science, which has made no extensive acquaintance with the distant and the past? And what is the conversation between those who know nothing? But on the other hand, what delight is that mind able to receive and impart, which is able to discuss any subject that comes up, with accuracy, copiousness, eloquence and beauty! The woman who possesses this power can never fail to render herself agreeable and useful in any circle into which she may be thrown, and when she is so she cannot fail to be happy. A full mind, a clear heart, and an eloquent tongue, are among the most precious of human things, The young forsake their sports and gather around, the old draw nigh to hear, and all involuntarily bow down to the supremacy of mind. These endowments add brilliancy to youth and beauty, and when all other charms are departed, they make old age sacred, venerable and beloved.

THE BIBLE contains 3,565,489 letters; 840,679 words; 31,173 verses; 1,189 chapters, and 66 books. The word "And" occurs 46,227 times; the word "Lord 1,854 times: "Reverend" only once, and that in the psalms. The 19th chapter of the second book of Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah are alike. The first record of a burial in a coffin was Joseph, in Genesis, 50th chapter, and 26th verse. Nowhere but in the 1st chapter of 2nd Timothy is the name "Grandmother" mentioned. Two particular fine chapters to read, are the 2nd chapter of Joel, and the 26th chapter of Acts. There is no word in the Bible of more than six syllables.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,...Printer.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

WANTED ON SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE GUARDIAN.

10,000 good hard wood rails, ten feet long, at $1 25 per hundred.
10,000 18 inch shingles at $3 per thousand if good.
10,000 pounds best fall wheat flour at $2 50 per hundred, or the market price.
10,000 feet good lumber at $2 00 per hundred.
100 cords good fire wood, four feet long, well split and corded at or near this office, (hard wood,) at one dollar a cord.

Besides cheese, eggs, chickens, fresh beef, mutton, veal; and even gold and silver or good current paper in quantities to suit the subscriber.

Returned.

We have just returned from a tour across the country to Keokuk—down the Mississippi to St. Louis, and up the Missouri to St. Joseph, and thence home to our old stand again. The boys have done very well in our absence. Indeed every thing seems to have gone right, except the suspension of our Southern mail. As all our commercial relations are along the line and route of our southern mail through the various places and towns in Missouri, we shall be subjected to great inconveniences by its discontinuance, and we learn by the Postmaster at Nebraska that the Desmoine mail is likely to prove a failure, or nearly so. Its present contractor or sub-contractor we hear is about to resign or give up the contract. If the Post-office at High Creek were discontinued and a direct weekly route established from St. Joseph to this place, it would be just what is needed along this frontier. The Post-office at Linden would supercede the necessity of one at High Creek, being, at present, only about two miles apart. At High Creek, the mail from this place has laid by one week in consequence of the want of a proper arrangment of the time of starting. By this office being discontinued, or even if it were continued, a regular weekly route from St. Joseph to this place, and so ordered and arranged as to allow of no delay of the mail either going or coming, would meet the wishes of the entire population of this upper country, both in Missouri and Iowa. The mail route should be located on the Bluff road from Austin, as the bottom road has been impassable during the greater part of this past season; and to accommodate the citizens at Nebraska Post-office and at the Missionary Station near Bellevue, and the Agency, there should be a weekly side mail running from this place to Trading Point, a distance of eight miles.

What say you, fellow citizens? Shall we call a mass meeting, and express our views, and petition Congress on the subject? Or shall we be silent and have little or no mail. We go in for a mail from the East and from the South with bags large enough to hold over a half bushel. We want to publish the Guardian weekly on the first of January if we can have mails that we can rely on. We want to send out, at least, two bushels of papers from this office weekly; and then the entire mail of the country besides.

Uncle Sam may think that he has not many boys up here; but if he does, he is much mistaken. They are as thick as bees round a hive, and are rising up in numbers, and with a voice that calls loudly for all the mail facilities that a liberal policy will grant.

Weekly.

It is our intention to publish the Guardian weekly after the 1st of January next, if our mails become anything like regular by that time. Our type and fixtures for that purpose are on the way, and hourly expected here. To those subscribers whose term of subscription does not expire at that time, the Guardian will be continued to them weekly at the same rates till their term of subscription expires. In all cases the subscription money must be paid in advance, either into our hands, or into the hands of some of our authorized agents whose names will always be found in the paper. Do not forget that two dollars a year is the required sum for the Guardian, or one dollar for six months.

Misunderstanding.

It was never our wish or expectation for the Government to provide a coach for mail service between this place and St. Joseph. But as nearly all our Commercial relations are on this Southern route, we are resolved to have coaches in operation for the accommodation of passengers at all events. Then, if the transportation of the mail could be coupled with this line of conveyance, it would contribute so far to its support, as to enable it to keep in successful operation. High water, the want of good bridges and the intense cold and snows of winter, will be likely to lay an effectual embargo upon the Desmoine mail for some two or three months—especially if this coming winter should be as severe as the past. Fifty miles between houses—snow averaging two feet deep, and sometimes drifted to the depth of ten feet, and facing a keen wind sweeping over the plains and bearing down upon a poor mail carrier with a chill that reduces the mercury to solid frost, as it did last winter, are obstacles rather too formidable to allow the indulgence of very bright hopes of receiving much intelligence through that channel: and the Southern mail being discontinued, we may be blocked in here, and compelled to look to Heaven alone for information. However highly we regard that source we sometimes want information which that department does not care to be troubled with giving.

School Books and Stationary.

We have a bountiful supply of the above, and are in hourly expectation of their arrival. Plenty of music also. Paper of all kinds, sorts and qualities that is needed, and some to please the fancy. Waters, sealing-wax, mottoes, pens, pencils slate and paper, ink and inkstands, olive oil, &c. &c. When they arrive, call and take a look and see if you cannot make a complete outfit for your children preparatory to a journey up the "Hill of science."

CONFERENCE.

The Semi-Annual Conference convened at the stand erected for the purpose a little north of the Tabernacle, on Saturday the 6th inst. There were but a few in attendance, owing to the bad condition of the roads, caused by the constant rain that was experienced during the fore part of the week. The day was pleasant, and after some good instruction to the Saints, the Conference adjourned to Sunday the 7th, which was a delightful day, and every face beamed with gladness, and all appeared to feel the approving smile of Heaven on the occasion. About 9 o'clock the carriages and wagons began to pour in from the branches abroad, and continued until noon. During the forepart of the day the fellowship of all those who were in authority in the Church was tried—to see whether the people were willing to sustain them—every one was sustained unanimously—not a dissenting voice was to be heard.

Unity, peace, and good will to man characterize the proceedings of the day, and all seemed to feel the benign spirit of our Heavenly Father resting upon them. It was a day that will be long remembered by the Saints of the Most High God. There was a large concourse of persons present, and what a sight it would have been in any other place to see so many persons of one mind and one spirit. Who can wonder at the devil getting wrathy, when he sees that his kingdom must fall, and himself cast into the bottomless pit forever and ever, and no more to torment those who love God and keep His commandments.

The Conference adjourned to the first Sunday in November. The minutes of the Conference are crowded out of this number. We shall publish them in our next.

Elder Thomas McKenzie

Has been sent to New Orleans as our agent to advise and assist the emigration. His family resides there and he can attend to this duty more conveniently than one sent from the Bluffs.

Elder McKenzie, has been on a mission to collect school books by donation for the education of our children in the Valley of the Salt Lake. He has been faithful, industrious, and successful. He has encountered much opposition, some insults and contempt; but his patience and untiring perseverance have overcome these obstacles so far as to enable him to collect six or seven large boxes of valuable books which are now in good order, stored in St. Louis and will be sent to the Valley in the spring. He informs us that the bible society in New York City, gave him a box of entire new bibles and were very kind to him. The bibles are most thankfully received, and we trust, they will be faithfully read and their precepts honored and respected by those to whom they are given. May the givers never be destitute of the blessings of Heaven nor the words of eternal life. He also informs us that the Hon. Mayor of Boston, Mass, Mr. Bigglow, and also his brother, a clergyman, showed him great civility.

In the report which he made, he was very particular to note acts of kindness and liberality, by no means forgetting Col. Kane, of Philadelphia; but passed over, with a slighty hand, the insults and contempt that he had been compelled to receive.

We here tender our sincere and hearty thanks to those people who have favorably responded to the call of Elder McKenzie. It shall be our pride and our exertion to reward them by faithfully using those books in the cultivation and improvment of the minds of our children, and in qualifying them to serve with acceptance and honor, their country and their God.

Claims.

The Conference can pass no law respecting claims that tends to destroy, or render null that protection which the Statute Law of the State affords to every legal claimant. To do it, would only tend to destroy the country and the people that inhabit it.

Runaway Negroes.

It is said that a mullatto belonging to a Mr. King, of Savannah, Mo., has run away and come up into this State and County. If this be so, let him be treated as any other stranger is treated. Do not harbor or secret him, more than to feed him if he is hungry. When this is done, let him go his way. Let no Mormon secret him from his pursuers, neither be officious to procure his arrest. Keep yourselves entirely free and unspotted from so dark a subject. Suffer not yourselves to be partizans, in any form, to this vexatious question.

AUDITOR'S OFFICE, Iowa,
Iowa City, Sept. 5, 1849.

THOMAS BURDICK, Esq., Clerk Board
County Com. Pottawatamie.

SIR: Enclosed you will please find a blank abstract, which you will fill up with the several kinds of property in your county under the proper heads, and forward the same to me as early as possible with the names of your Treasurer, Sheriff and Prosecuting Attorney for the present year.

The abstract for the year 1848, came to hand only a few days since, which shows that there is due the State $226 54 cents. Hoping that the money will be forwarded to our State Treasurer immediately.

I have the honor to be,
respectfully yours,
JOS. T. FALES, Auditor of State.

We publish the above letter that all parties may see how our county organization is regarded by the public functionaries at Iowa City. We do not profess much knowledge of law; but it has been our opinion from the beginning that the organization of our county was good and legal so far as it went. Here is an acknowledgment that may be regarded as a precedent in future transactions. We trust that Pottawatamie county is prepared to cash over in compliance with the above order.

Mails.

Since our return home, we have examined some documents from the Post-office department, and we are satisfied that we have labored under and erroneous impression in regard to some acts. We are furthermore satisfied that the Postmaster General is disposed to grant us all the mail facilities that the wants of the country demand, when the position of things is fairly understood. We do not want our citizens to get the idea, without just grounds, that anything is designedly wrong on the part of the Government, or that any penurious feelings forbid them to provide all the mail facilities that the wants of this frontier country can reasonably call for. Our boys felt their poverty a little when the Editor was so long absent, and received no mails for some time. They felt as though their own resources were hardly extensive enough to manufacture a newspaper; hence they spoke as though they were a little vexed or perplexed under the head of "what next?" But their sin is not of an unpardonable nature, and we cannot reprove them with much severity. In fact, they are good boys and worthy to receive all he mails they can get.

We have received from the Secretary of state an abstract of the votes for the Board of Public Works throughout the State. By refering to the abstract in another column, it may be seen that the votes of Pottawatamie were duly admitted.

Dancing.

A civil recreation among young people of the world, and when prudently conducted, is a means of refinement, and a source of mental improvement. We know of no law against it, either human or divine. Among the Saints, it is regarded not only as a civil recreation, but a religious exercise when conducted by the sanction and under the government of the Church. No person who calls him or herself a Latter-Day Saint should presume to go forth in the dance, only when the proper officers of the Church conduct it.

As the season for some of the above exercise is drawing near, it remains for our Council to say whether persons that have been expelled from the Church for improper conduct, shall be entitled to join the dance with the Church. Or whether persons known to indulge in the use of profane language, or to frequent the dram shop, or any immoral person, or any young lads or older ones that are uncivil in the streets by day or by night; or any persons that have quarrelled or fought and have not made proper reparation. These are matters that will go before the Council; and it is our opinion that that body will take a decided action upon them, which will be duly enforced.

Reform is what should loudly ring in the ears of every delinquent.

Uncommon Season.

The passing season is, and has been most singular. Constant rains and high water have prevailed in this section since the last of March. Planting was delayed in consequence of wet and mud. At wheat harvest, the water was ancle deep in some of the wheat fields on low ground. Hardly a week of dry weather at a time during the season. It is now raining, and has been for the last forty-eight hours—it is cold and disagreeable.

Our wheat and corn crops were never so abundant before, notwithstanding the great quantity of rain that has fallen. Turnips look well, and all kinds of garden vegetables abound, except potatoes. This crop is short. The rot is making sad havoc with them. It is thought that eating the potatoe in its unhealthy state has been one great cause of the diarrhœa that has prevailed here. The constant rains and high waters have caused considerable sickness, fevers, and fever and ague; yet we are happy to say that very few if any deaths have occurred by these diseases.

Mr. William Mower, is our traveling agent for the Guardian between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.

We clip the following advertisement from the Warsaw Signal. We can see no reason for their wanting the papers published in Nauvoo while the Mormons were there, without it is to keep the testimony before them that they have been the means of shedding innocent blood, and of assisting to drive a whole community, men, women and children, the widow and the orphan, from their homes into the wilderness among savages. What pleasing reflections these must be to them? We hope they may obtain the desired copies that they may read as well as feel the merited rebuke of the persecuted Saints of the Most High God:

"TO THE READER.—We are desirous of obtaining copies of the papers published at Nauvoo, during the Mormon Rule. We will give one year's subscription to the Signal to any peason who will send us 52 numbers of any of the following papers, viz: "Times and Seasons," "Wasp," "Neighbor," or "Eagle,"—or in like proportion for a greater or smaller number."

Public Documents.

We return our sincere thanks to Fitz Henry Warren, Esq., for a copy of Hickey's "Constitution of the United States," this is a very valuable book, and just such a one as we have long desired to be in possession of; also a copy of the "Patent Office Reports," and a copy of the Report of a Geological Reconnoissance, of the Chippewa Land District of Wisconsin and the Northern part of Iowa."

Desmoines Mail.

The Desmoines mail has arrived once more, bringing us any quantity of papers, dated from the 1st of August up to the 5th inst. We have reason to believe that we shall receive the mail a little more regular, as we learn that the contractors have been notified by the Department at Washington that they must carry the mail through in the contract time.

We trust that if any more failures occur upon this route as there have heretofore, that the contractors forfeit their contract, and the Government give it to some one who will transmit it regularly. These long delays subject us to a great deal of inconvenience; we look for more punctuality hereafter. If the mail comes regularly we shall be able to give our readers news from New York and Washington in 15 days, which is a great consideration, considering that it generally took the mail 30 days to reach here from the above places.

Br. ELI B. KELSEY has arrived from England, he brings glorious intelligence of the progress of the cause of truth and informs us that the emigration will be large this Fall. The cause of truth is progressing rapidly in all parts where there is preaching.

Prospect of War with France.

Diplomatic relations between the United States and the French Minister, Mr. Poussin has ceased. Without France backs out or makes sufficient apology for the repeated insults of the French Minister to our Government, we shall probably have a little brush with the French. Besides the trouble between Mr. Poussin and the Government, the United States flag has been insulted at Rome by the French, which our Government will of course feel bound to take cognizance of. Particulars in regard to these difficulties will be found in another column. We learn that France is about sending out another minister of Foreign Relations, and perhaps he may be able to settle the matter.

Potatoes and Diarrhœa.

Our attention has been called to this subject by an article published in the Louisville Journal, which will be found on our first page; and from what we can learn, we are almost forced to believe that the Diarrhœa that has been so prevalent lately has been produced by the free use of potatoes.

It is known that this esculent plant is affected with some kind of disease, which has not been accounted for on any scientific principle, whether the potatoe contains any unusual properties by which the bowels are opened we are not prepared to say—but we can say that since potatoes have become scarce, the Diarrhœa has in a great degree abated. We do not publish this to deter people from the use of potatoes; but to call forth observations in regard to their operations upon the system. The inhabitants of the country have been generally afflicted with the Diarrhœa, and from diligent enquiry we find where families have not used potatoes they have escaped this complaint.

CHOLERA AT BOSTON.—The whole number of deaths by cholera in Boston, up to Monday week, was 600.

For the Guardian.

KANESVILLE, Oct. 15, 1849.

Mr. EDITOR: Not having stood in connection with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints for some length of time, I feel it my duty and privilege to give you a small part of my experience for the last two years. Like some others that let go the "rod of iron," I wandered to Texas and saw Lyman Wight, with the hope of finding him enjoying the light of life. But alas! alas!! "how are the mighty fallen!" I have faults enough of my own, and therefore will not dwell particularly upon my disappointment in Lyman.

I found myself in a strange country with but little cash, and every necessary very dear. Things appeared to be tapering off to a point very suddenly with me. Indeed, I hardly knew what to do. While things were thus with me, one night in my sleep, Joseph Smith, the martyr, came to me and very smilingly said, "Bro. Morse, how came you in Texas? You are the last man that I should ever thought of finding here." I then asked who was right and where was the place to gather. His countenance at once became like lightening, and he gave me such a look of rebuke that I shall never, no never, forget. "The body of the Church," said he, sternly, is the place where the Saints gather. It is not where a buzzard flies off with a bit of carrion." This language fell from his lips with more weight and power than seven fold peals of thunder. When I awoke, I said the body of the Church is at the Bluffs, and more especially in the Valley of the Salt Lake; and I immediately resolved to shape my course accordingly, and am therefore now at this place to inquire what to do, and trust that my inquiry will not be in vain. This is but a dream it is true, yet it has made a lasting impression upon my mind, and I am now constrained to regard Strang, Wight, Wm. Smith, Brewster, McLellin and others of the like character, as so many buzzards, having flown off with their delicate morsel.

Yours most sincerely,
JUSTUS MORSE.

CONSPIRACY OF DESPOTS.—It is far from improbable—many facts authorize the belief that the crowned heads of Europe are now engaged in the formation of a new holy alliance, more effectually to crush all aspirations after those free institutions, which are so inimical to the sceptre and crosier, when wielded by tyrant hands. "Art and part" in this conspiracy are Louis Napoleon and his present advisers. The ruling powers, at this moment, in France, seem to be as warm partizans of despotism as the Czar, himself. They seem to hold all genuine republics in detestation. Hence perhaps the animosity which they cherish towards the United States—if it be true that they have put the insult upon our nation, which the last reports would lead us to believe they have.

It is not very difficult to credit what follows:

A Warlike Alliance against England.—The Berlin correspondent of Jerrold's News says: "In the first interview between Lamoriciere, Schwarzenberg and the Russian Czar, a plan was broached for an alliance between France, Russia, Austria, Prussia, Naples, and the Pope. The coalition was to keep in view as an ultimate aim, a war with England. The immediate object was to be extinction of all the revolutionary elements. Turkey, Italy, the Rhenish Provinces, and Belgium, which is no longer to be tolerated, furnish materials for identification. Prussia is to have North Germany to the Maine; Austria, Bosina and South Germany, except Bavaria; Bavaria is to have Wirtemberg in exchange for the Rhenish Province, which is to go to France with Cologne. Wirtemberg, Baden, Hesse, and other princes are to be mediatized. Switzerland is also to be divided.

"Chimerical as this may sound, still it formed the matter of discussion. Without drawing definite conclusions from this statement, it allows one to see with what kind of plans diplomatic heads are busied. The Czar took up Alexander's journal, and read out of it the conversation of that Emperor with Napoleon. Respecting Constantinople, nothing could be agreed upon. It was the Emperor's notion that Byzantium might one day be left as a free city, with some territory. It was assumed that France, Russia and Austria, with the help of Naples, would be able to produce a fleet able to cope with that of England."

MAKE ROOM FOR POTTAWATAMIE COUNTY.—We have heard from only two precincts in Pottawatamie County. These give all the votes but four to the Whig candidates for the Board of Public Works. We do not know how many more precincts there are in the county, but with what they have already done, if the whigs of this and some other counties had voted as they did on our Missouri border, all the whig Board would have been elected. The locos have thought that Dubuque with its 390 majority could not be beat, but Pottawatamie has already done 150 better for the whigs than Dubuque did for the locos. Pottawatamie is the Banner County.—[Hawk-Eye.

Pottawatamie county, Iowa, at the late State election, voted 550 whig, and 4 locofoco votes. This county is the residence of the Mormons in Iowa. They had seen enough of locofocoism in Missouri and Illinois, and were voting in Iowa from the teachings of the past.—[Quincy Whig.

LAND WARRANTS.—Ninety thousand land warrants have been issued to soldiers who served in the Mexican war, giving away to them as a bounty, thirteen millions eight hundred thousand acres. Estimating the value of this land at $1 25 per acre, we have an agregate of $17,230,000.

APPOINTMENT.—Archibald Gamble, Esq., has been appointed Postmaster at St. Louis, vice Mr. Wimer, removed.

LITERARY AMERICAN.—We received several numbers of this valuable periodical, by the Desmoines mail, it is full of interesting matter. It is well printed, and published in New York by C. P. Quackenbos, at $3 00 per annum; clubs of ten subscribers will be furnished for $20 00, payable in advance.

Short Chapter from Gooch's Proverbs.

We like to see newly married persons send cake to Editors in a dirty cloth; it shows economy, as it saves washing.

We like to see persons censuring an article in a newspaper, because it reflects upon them, and say "it is only one man's opinion," it shows that he is deprived of some portion of his senses.

We like to see butter come to market in dirty vessels, it shows that the people are economists—and believe the old adage, "that every man has to eat a peck of dirt during his natural life.

We like to see farmers neglect to put in seed during planting time—it shows that they are in favor of "labor saving machines," they can whine and beg their produce from his working neighbor.

We like to see a man who owes the printer, avoid him on every possible occasion; it shows that his conscience smites him, and tells him "Pay the Printer," "Pay the Printer."

An abstract of votes given for the Board of Public Works, to wit. for President, Secretary and Treasurer, at the General Election in the State of Iowa, held on the 6th day of August, A. D., 1849.

Counties.	President.		Secretary.		Treasurer.
	Wm. Patterson,	Thos. McKean,	Jesse Williams,	Wm. M. Allison	Geo. Gillespie,	H. G. Stuart.
Appanoose,	179	97	180	97	178	99
Allamakee,		15		15		15
Benton,	52	39	71	19	68	21
Boone,	19	5	19	5	19	5
Buchanan,	19	22	19	19	19	17
Clayton,	147	222	149	216	147	220
Cedar,	275	234	282	239	283	228
Clinton,	202	121	202	116	201	121
Davis,	430	345	459	336	439	338
Dallas,	44	51	44	51	42	50
Desmoines,	998	823	994	813	985	821
Delaware,	108	137	110	144	110	136
Dubuque,	691	299	692		694	299
Henry,	405	648	416	815	399	642
Iowa,	73	22	71	24	69	22
Jasper,	73	58	80	51	66	62
Jackson,	555	446	555	480	551	449
Jefferson,	701	668	698	671	686	672
Johnson,	369	313	394	303	375
Jones,	203	158	215	158	215	145
Keokuk,	359	164	361	160	355	165
Lee,	1157	997	1238	1053	1274	930
Linn,	290	426	432	276	403	296
Louisa.	311	375	312	407	299	376
Lucas,	15	9	14	5	15	10
Mahaska,	425	433	469	419	374	449
Marion,	288	241	282	233	276	243
Monroe,	229	135	247	97	236	127
Muscatine,	406	398	411	398	408	402
Madison,	57	15	51	15	40	21
Polk,	306	264	302	279	357	221
Pottawatamie,	4	550	4	550	4	550
Poweshick,	25	31	30	29	25	31
Scott,	411	314	411	314	411	314
Van Buren,	950	847	971	840	964	827
Washington,	275	390	300	439	298	358
Wapello,	609	613	652	561	658	563
Warren,	28	35	28		27	36
Total,	11672	10960	12105	10913	11970	10281

J. H. Dayton received 564 votes for President of the Board of Public Works. F. Street, received 577 votes for Treasurer.

From the Missouri Republican of the 20th.

Exciting News from Washington—Negotiations with France at an End.

The News which we give from Washington, received by telegraph yesterday evening, will take the country by surprise. No one suspected that negotiations of such grave import were going on between the American Secretary of State, and the causes of complaint, lying at the bottom of this difficulty, were altogether unknown outside of the diplomatic circles. Had such negotiations occurred under either of the proceeding Administrations, the whole affair would have been known long since. But Gen. Taylor's Cabinet know too well what is due to their station, and to the gravity of the interests committed to their charge, to expose secrets of this character. Even before the country is advised of any difference between the two countries, the Administration have decided upon the course which the honor of the nation requires to be adopted. Diplomatic relations are at an end, and France may choose the alternative—either of backing out from the position in which she is placed by the acts of her Minister, or of adopting ulterior measures.

PHILADELPHIA, 19th Sept.—P. M.

"Independent," the Washington correspondent of the North American, and, who is reliable authority, speaking of the difficulty between this Government and the French minister, says, by telegraph this morning:

"In February, Poussin, the French minister, presented Mr. Buchanan, then Secretary of State, a claim on behalf of Mons. Porte, a Frenchman, residing in Mexico. Porte purchased some tobacco, sold by the agents of the American army, knowing it to be private property and not subject to the rules of war. The tobacco was restored to its proper owner, by Col Childes, and purchase money refunded to Porte. Under these circumstances, a claim was set up by the French minister for damages—being the difference between the price at which Porte had purchased and at which it was sold. A court of inquiry was held, which decided unanimously against the claim, and the decision was approved by General Scott. Mr. Buchanan went out of office without examining the case. When it came before the present Administration the finding of the court was affirmed by Mr. Clayton, and in answer to a note of M. Poussin, the Secretary of State sustained the verdict of the court, and added his own approval. Poussin rejoined—charging Col. Childes, verbally, with perjury, in rather insulting language. He was invited to Washington—being absent—on the alternative of withdrawing or adopting his offensive note. He then renewed his communication, which was then accepted. Subsequsntly, Poussin presented another note, claiming the punishment of Commander Carpenter, under the following circumstances:—Capt. Carpenter, while forming part of the blockading squadron on the coast of Mexico, was called upon by the Captain of the French ship "Eugene," to rescue her from shipwreck. He, with his crew, succeeded after much labor., and afterwards requested the legal salvage. This was refused; whereupon Capt. Carpenter restored the vessel to the Captain—she having laid alongside Carpenter's ship for thirty hours. Mr. Clifford, minister to Mexico approved of Capt. Carpenter's conduct. When this subject was submitted to Mr. Clayton, it was referred to Mr. Preston, who confirmed Capt. Carpenter's statement of facts. Poussin, instead of referring the matter to his Government, wrote an insulting letter, in which he reflected grossly upon the character and honor of the American Marine. The President then directed the whole correspondence to be laid before the French Government, expecting immediate and voluntary redress. Instead of atonement, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs attempted to inculpate our own government and to divide the responsibility. As soon as this information was received, the President ordered no further correspondence to be held with Poussin, and his passports placed at his disposal. The future is shrouded in doubt. Te Tocqueville, the minister must resign. Poussin must be removed. The French Government must apologise, or a rupture must ensue. The Administration will not advance an inch or retract a word, and if France wishes war, as there is good reason to suppose she does, the responsibility is on her shoulders. This case admits of no diplomatic cobbling: it is a question of honor, in which the United States cannot abandon its high position."

Sidney Roberts, of Iowa City, is hereby notified that he is disfollowshipped by the High Council of the Church, of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, until he comes up here and makes satisfaction for his erroneous teaching and base conduct.

Done by order of the High Council, at Kanesville, this 6th day of Oct., A. D., 1849.

JAMES ALLRED, Prest.
E. M. GREENE, Clerk.

The ships "James Pennell" and "Berlin" sailed from Liverpool, one on the 1st, and the other on the 5th, of Sept. last. Both bringing 468 persons of our Church besides young children.

Thomas Burdick, Esq., is duly appointed deputy Post-master, at the Kane P. O., in Kanesville.
E. M. GREEN, P. M.

Elder James McGaw, of Grimses Co. Texas, is hereby appointed our agent in that State. Elder Preston Thomas, is also appointed our traveling agent in the Southern States.

DIED,

Near Pigeon Tabernacle, on the 12th, inst. of Diarrhœa, JOSEPH son of Lucius N. and Alice Scovil, aged 13 months and 20 days.

So fades the lovely blooming flower
Sweet smiling solace of an hour.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store, hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

WANTED—Immediately, at this office, a good wood chopper to whom constant employment and liberal wages will be given. Enquire soon. 0f

MEAT! MEAT!!

WANTED—I want to purchase beef cattle on the hoof, for which I will pay $2 per hundred. Also want to purchase fattened hogs, sheep, calves, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

Persons wishing meat can have it left at their residences on Tuesdays and Saturdays of each week. Meat constantly on hand at the Slaughter House. A share of the public patronage is solicited.

JOSEPH WARTHAN.

Kanesville, Oct. 17, 1849.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that I the undersigned have obtained from the Judge of Probate Court, of Fremont county, letters of administration upon the Estate of F. Benoist, deceased, bearing date the 4th day of October, 1849. That all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against said estate are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate; and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred.

T. S. BENOIST,
Admistrator.

St. Francis, Pottawatamie Co., Iowa, Oct. 4, 1849. 3m

NOTICE.
FARMERS AND MECHANICS.

ON SATURDAY the 20th inst., at the Agency, Bellevue, I will sell to the highest bidder, for cash, three old wagons, a large lot of iron and steel, blind bridles, harness, spades, shovels, ploughs and many other articles too tedious to mention.

Bellevue, Oct. 17, 1849—1t

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 11, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by

JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the

MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)
St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

SEVENTY-FIVE DOLLARS REWARD.

RUNAWAY from the subscriber on the night of the 29th September, a negro boy named HENRY. Said boy is about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, 21 or 22 years old, rather straight and heavy built, has straight hair inclined to curl at the points, is a very bright mulatto, with a keen eye and good countenance, is a good boot and shoe maker, is left handed and is decidedly a good looking boy. He carried with him a black cloth frock coat, black cassimere pantaloons, plaid woollen vest, and also an old tweed coat, pretty well worn, and a brown jeans pair of pantaloons, he had also a cap and white woollen hat.

I will give the above reward if said boy is taken out of the State, fifty dollars if taken out of the county, or twenty-five dollars if taken within the county, and delivered to me in Savannah, or placed within the jail of the county where he is taken, and information given to me of his detention, so that I can obtain him.

WILL. R. KING.

Savannah, Andrew Co., Mo., October 1st, 1849.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1849.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CAMBRIA.

One Week Later from Europe.

LOUISVILLE, Sept 21—P. M.

The steamer Cambria arrived at Halifax, last evening.

England.

The cholera is increasing rapidly—1,600 deaths occurred in London in one week—it is likewise raging throughout the Continent, and 40 deaths daily are reported at Berlin.

The harvest is nearly housed, and pronounced abundant. Trade is active and employment await all who desire it in the manufacturing districts.

Austria and Hungary.

Comorn and Peterwarden still hold out against the Austrians and Russians—the former commanded by Klapka, the latter by Keily. The Russian General Berg had a long interview with the latter, on the 23d ult., which resulted in the Hungarian Major being sent to Haynau to arrange terms for capitulation. The impregnable position of Comorn induces Klapka to demand good conditions. A letter from Vienna states that several renowned Magyar chiefs had been executed by the Austrians. The mother and children of Kossuth, together with the wives of several Magyar Generals had been taken prisoners and conveyed to Presburg. A great part of the Russian army had received orders to march towards Galicia. Buda and Pesth are to be garrisoned by 5,000 Austrians. The Hungarian corps of Perczel entered Orshova, but the Turkish authorities would not receive them until they had laid down their arms.

A letter states that the Emperor of Austria has pardoned Georgey and that he had departed for Servia.

Prussia.

On the German question it is stated that there is to be a directory consisting of members for the confederation provided by the cabinets of Vienna and Munich; which is to hold its sittings at Frankfort. The Directory will be a permanent executive commission for the common interests of the whole of Germany. The Presidency of the Directory will be vested alternately in an Austrian and Prussian. A Frankfort correspondent of a London paper writes that there is but little doubt that a Congress of Princes will be held there in the course of next week, for the purpose of settling finally the German question.

France.

The French Government continues to refuse passports to German refugees, who, on their way to America, are forced to traverse France. The news generally from France is uninteresting. No allusions is made to any correspondence with the U. S. relative to the difficulty with the French Minister.

Rome.

The Triumvirate of Cardinals has instituted a commission for the purpose of prosecuting the authors of the outrages committed during the revolutionary period against religion.

Gen. Rostalan has assumed the command of the French army of occupation.

ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICA.

In a letter written by Louis Napoleon to Ney, he says, the French Republic did not send an armed force to put down Italian liberty; on the contrary, it was to regulate it, and preserve it from excesses, and to replace the Pontificial Prince in power, who was the first to take the lead in useful reforms. He expresses regret that the Pope's benevolent intentions remain unfruitful. General Randon was appointed on the 15th to the command of the army of Italy, with instructions, that should the Pope not return to Rome, to carry out the instructions furnished by Napoleon.

Garibaldi had reached Genoa, there to remain until an opportunity offered for quitting Italy.

It is thought probable that the Pope will end by putting himself under the protection of the Austrian flag. It was rumored that Austria would take the Roman loan. The Pope arrived at Naples on the 4th.

No news from Hungary, except that Comorn and Peterwardien still held out.

All the northern States of Germany with the exception of Oldenburg, have acceeded to the proposition of alliance made by Prussia, Saxony and Hanover.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22d, 5—P. M.

The papers this morning contain seven columns of official statements in regard to the affair of the French Minister. The letters of Clayton are devoid of any appearance of disrespect or ill temper.

An immense crowd assembled at the military encampment at Bristol. Gov. Johnson will review the troops this evening.

Passengers in town from Montreal report that city full of armed men from the country; the troops are out in considerable force and it required the utmost precaution to prevent a collision between the imperialists and their opponents.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26.

The Brig Soule arrived yesterday from Havana, having left on the 16th. The papers are filled with congratulations of the success in checking the Cuba expedition.

Accounts from Jamaica state that the merchants applied to the American Consul, begging the United States to establish regular steam packets between New York and Kingston.

The steamer Severn has arrived at Mobile with over $1,000,000, mostly from England. The Round Island expedition caused much excitement in Mexico. Herrera addressed a remonstrance to the American legation at the capital. The Government is making great preparations to defend the city and coast. The Islanders, it was supposed, would land on the Island of Lobos or at Tampico, at which latter place La Vega had armed some steamers to defend the river. Antigua had been inundated by heavy rains, the inhabitants barely escaping with their lives.

Late from California.

The news from California by the Empire City at New York, is just a month later than that before received. We have the Alta California of August 2, which is principally filled with the account of the trial of the rioters mentioned below. The amount of gold dust received on consignment, was $421,152. Several of the passengers were emigrants, who have returned with constitutions much impaired:—

PIONEER COMPANIES ARRIVED.—I saw last week the first company of adventurers who have arrived by the overland route—Capt. Goodyear's party, which started from San Jose on the Missouri River in May last. They report but 67 traveling days through, and all the party look hearty and rugged. Capt. Goodyear thinks that the first wagon train will enter the valley of the Sacramento by the 15th of July. Capt. G. expresses the belief that most of the wagon trains will suffer unaccountably from scarcity of grass for animals, although he represents the yield of grass as more than ordinarily good, and this is his third trip across the mountain. There has another small party arrived, both of which took the Salt Lake Valley route. They represent the Mormon settlements in the most flourishing condition, with the prospect of a glorious harvest in every branch of agriculture save corn, and the Mormons as universally kind to the emigrants who pass through their domain; in many instances they state that needy emigrants are furnished without reward with provisions and fresh cattle, accompanied with the hospitalities of good Samaritans. This speaks well for a persecuted people, whom malice has written down as thieves, and whom wrong has driven to this enchanted asylum beyond the desert—to this "lodge in the wilderness."

The Alta California of August 2, has an account of an attack, by an armed party of Americans, on the 10th of July, upon the Chilians, and other foreigners in San Francisco, with the consequent proceedings of the citizens. The attack appears to have been unprovoked and very savage; and the assailants were a large number of turbulent and lawless fellows, who had organized themselves for mischief under the name, first of "Hounds," and then of "Regulators."

A meeting of citizens was called in the afternoon, and attended by about 230. Mr. S. Brannan first addressed the people, exposing the acts of violence committed by the "Hounds," and calling for prompt action to protect the lives and property of citizens.

Mr. Brannan moved that a subscription be opened at the Parker House for the relief of the sufferers by the riots and robbery of the previous night—which was carried. A police body was then formed, of which Mr. Spofford was appointed Chief. In accepting the office, he made an energetic address, and concluded by saying, "When I forget my duty may God forget me." The citizens generally enrolled their names for Police service, and the meeting then adjourned.

On Tuesday, July 17, a grand Jury was organized to try those who were arrested, and soon brought in an indictment against the prisoners, charging them with conspiracy, riot, robbery, and assault with intent to kill.

Samuel Roberts, the leader, was found guilty on all the charges, and the jury recommended that he be sentenced to exile, "to some port in the United States," never to return on pain of death. Theodore R. Saunders was found guilty on all the charges except that of conspiracy. James H. Harrison and George Batchelder, were found guilty on some of the charges; and John Powers, George Childs, and Cyrus Leatherby were acquitted.

Sentences. S. Roberts and T. R. Saunders, 10 years in penitentiary at hard labor. John Conley, fine of $1000, and 1 year penitentiary. David Gale, fine of $500 and 6 months penitentiary. A. St. John, fine of $500 and to give bond in $5000 to keep the peace. John F. Barker, fine of $250 and $2500 bond. Wm. Mickle, fine of $250 and $2500 bond.

Fred. Cole, an Irishman, one of the accused afterwards committed suicide.

The Mormons Island Mining Association has nearly completed the dam at that point. It is presumed that in three weeks they will turn the river from its bed. Shares in this work are are now selling for $5000. At the junction of the Forks above this point is another association for a similar purpose, and great numbers are at work.

Expulsion of Foreigners.

A movement has taken place in the Gold region, which, from its probale results, calls not only for the intervention of the civil authorities, but seems to require an earnest expression of the feelings from all those citizens of the United States who have a regard for the honor of their country, and who are resolved to maintain it.

We allude to the forcible expulsion of certain foreigners and naturalized citizens of the United States from the placers of the Middle Fork and neighborhood, by an armed body of men calling themselves Americans.

Of three individuals thus expelled, whom we have seen, one is an old resident of California and a naturalized citizen of the United States. Another is a native Peruvian and naturalized citizen of the United States, who has, to our knowledge, periled his life many times in this country, fighting under the American flag, and who was severely beaten by the enemy because he refused to bear arms against us.

The usual fever of the season was just beginning to prevail on the placers, and old residents of California estimated that at least 5,000 deaths would occur during the summer among the unacclimated.

Mormon Island

Is about 30 miles and nearly due east, from Sacramento City, a few miles off the main road leading to the Culloma or saw-mill washings, where the discovery of Gold was made in April last. The above Island, or bar, was visited by a party of Mormons shortly after this event, who commenced a search for the valuable metals, which resulted in finding gold, and the complete success of their labors spread from this point throughout California. The bar has since been worked with continued though varied good success. It is situated on the American River, a few miles below the junction of the "Forks."

Information gathered from various sources tends to confirm our expressed fears upon the subject of foreign labor in the mines. In the American River country, it is understood, the miners had assumed a decidedly hostile bearing towards their Chilean neighbors.

A Yankee Trick.

We were accidentally listeners, and were not a little amused, at a colloquy held by a long, green Yankee with a machine similar to a common New England churn, which he was examining minutely: "I bought you for a gold-washer, and you are one of the washers. Here I've lugged and backed and packed you all through Mexico, and now you ain't worth a continential darn—you've turned out only a churn; ain't I a sweet-scented darn fool, ain't I?" Here wrought into a passion and overcome by his feelings, he seized an axe and entirely demolished the churn, casting the cog-wheel and crank nearly into the middle of the Sacramento.—[Sacramento Times.

From the Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

Accounts from the Mines—Gold Abundant—Every one getting Rich—Gambling, &c.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1, 1849.

The accounts from the mines are very encouraging. There is plenty of gold, but it requires attention and labor to get it.

A man cannot help making money here, no matter what he goes at. There is a man here who gets $500 dollars a month for his wagon and mules—equal to the salary of the Vice President.

Our machinery takes here, and we will be off in a few days. We have the assurance of some old gold-diggers here, that we have hit the thing that will bring out the gold Much of the machinery that is brought here, is valueless—good for nothing. Money is a perfect drug. You dot not hear half the result of the mines. It is only those who are lazy and sickly that go and come and get discouraged without any cause. I tell you this is a great country, and is destined to make the Yankees open their eyes.

A young lawyer, named Frank Lippett, is here; and, simply for drawing deeds and conveyances, gets his $6,000 to $8,000 a year.

Here, as well as at the mines, laws are strictly observed, and order is equal to that of our cities. The Sabbath is observed. Should any man be caught stealing, and is convicted, he is hung; and if a gambler bets more than he can pay, the same punishment awaits him.

I saw one man put down $10,000 in gold dust at a play called monte, and he won the bet.

Do not mind what the newspapers say. The letter-writers have their motives. I tell you that New York has not heard half what this country is, and time (not a long time either,) will confirm my predictions. The accounts that will follow this steamer's will be only the beginning of what you will receive. I have taken great pains to book myself up, and I speak of what I know.

There is a hundred ways by which a man can get rich here. The most important of all things that a man must have, is health. If he has that, and is sober, and will attend to his duties, he can get rich; and you may send one hundred thousand more here, and it will only add to the inducements of those that are here. There is gold enough, room enough, and occupation enough, for all you can send here for years to come.

Liquors are high; Champagne $5 a bottle, and poor at that; brandy two shillings a glass; two segars for a quarter; billiards $1 a game. Rents awful—country delightful. Yours.

RIOTS IN NEW ENGLAND.—There has been a recent Irish "faction fight," in Lowell, Mass., between the Corkonians and Fardowns, the savage feud between these divisions of Irish having been transplanted to this side of the Atlantic, where it should be shown no mercy. On this occasion a war of words was followed by volleys of stones, and finished by firearms. The houses in the neighborhood sustained considerable damage, and at half-past six o'clock as the police were unable to quell the riot, the bells were rung for fire. The department turned out and with horses attached to their machines, soon dispersed them. Arrests to the number of fifteen were made by the police. A large number of persons were more or less wounded. A young boy who took no part in the row, was shot with a slug, which passed completely through his body, and is probably dead. The military, during the evening, were at their different armories, in case their services should be wanted; but the business of dispersing the mob was effectually accomplished by the aid of the fire companies.—[St. Louis Organ.

INVASION OF CUBA.—Senor A. Calderon de la Barca, Spanish consul at Washington, has sent a dispatch, we learn from the Boston Herald, to the vice consul at that place, ordering him to obtain every information possible of the existence of any organization of men or magazine of arms, destined for the threatened invasion of Cuba, as mentioned in the President's proclamation.

The vice consul in his reply stated that there did, last winter, exist a large force of men and arms in that city, composed almost entirely of Irishmen, and regularly drilled by experienced officers, who were destined for an attack on Canada, so as to create a diversion in favor of Ireland, in case the Irish rebellion should come to a head; but that since the failure of the rebellion, the troops had been disbanded and the object discontinued. Since then no military organization whatever has existed here for foreign purposes.—[Republic.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 27—5 P.M.

The Germantown was burned near Raleigh, just above Shawneetown. The fire originated in the after hold, among some paper, and is supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Some thieves, who were passengers, committed depredations on trunks, &c.; two of them were caught and lynched.

The steamer Confidence, from St. Louis, struck a log on New Albany Bar, and sunk last night. She can be raised, as she lies only in six feet water.

CAMELS FOR THE PRAIRIES.—The Boston Times announces that a company is formed in Boston, to introduce the use of camels upon the great prairies of the West.

Bloodshed in Canada — Fight between the Tories and the Radicals at Bytown.

MONTREAL, Sept. 19, 1849.

Intelligence of a bloody rencontre between the Radicals and the Tories, at Bytown, has just reached this city. It appears that the Radicals (or "Reformers") called a public meeting for the purpose of adopting a congratulatory address to the Governor General, Lord Elgin, and that both parties went armed to the appointed place, where a fight soon commenced. The Radicals were driven from the ground, although, it is said, the Tories suffered the most. Seven or eight persons were seriously wounded, by gunshot; and one or two are not expected to recover.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining in the Post Office, at Kane, Iowa, Sept. 30th, 1849.

A.

Adams, Mrs Wm B
Adams, Wm
Adams, John
Allen, Franklin
Allen, J C
Allen, Charles
Abbitt, John Q 2
Allred, Wm M
Attwood, Rebecca D

B.

Brown, T D 2
Blair, Beverly
Bond, Abraham
Bickmore, Gilbert
Bates, Rufus
Brandon, G W
Butler, John L
Beeble, Albert S
Bryan, Geo
Benn, Wm
Bacon, James
Brock, Juliana
Bull, Isaac
Banes, A L

C.

Clark, Joseph
Curtis, Moses
Cross, P S
Cole, John
Cook, James
Campbell, J D
Carnes, J
Crowe, Wm
Camerhall, Mary Ann
Cord, Alex M

D.

Deardin, Wm 2
Dart, John 2
Donahoe, A J
Darfee, Edmond
Davis, Chas A
Dickaman, Horace H

E.

Edwards, Edward
Ellsworth, Benj
Eggert, Franz

F.

Foy, Thos H
Fisher, Matilda
Fairchild, L
Fellows, Samuel
Farlin, Flavilla
Fuller, Hiram

G.

Gardner, Benj 2
Green, Chas
Gerry, Benj
Gietrost, Philip
Gheen, Mr
Gage, C D
Gaybill, Marsena

H.

Hutchens, Wm
Hutchens, James
Hadlock, Chastina
Hadlock, Sally
Hunter, Wm
Hunter, Isaac
Huff, Geo
Hill, Joseph
Hales, Geo
Hatch, Jacob
Haws, Wm
Hough, Joel R
Hubbard, Mrs C M
Henrie, James
Higby, Mrs R R
Hunt, A R
Hrds, Thos

J.

Joe, Thos C
Johnston, Mrs Sarah
Jamison, H H

K.

King, Eleazer
Keith, Lewis

L.

Laird, John
Lamb, Sandford
Litz, Wm A
Laullen, James
Littlefield, L O
Lansing, Alexander

M.

Myres, Jacob 2
Martin, Wm P
Matlock, G C
McFarlin, Elizabeth A
Merkley, Sarah
Malin Sarah
Mitchell, Warren
Muir, Walter
Mathews, John
Mathews, James
Mayon, Daniel
McDonnold John W
McIntosh, S P 2
Montgomerie, Hannah
McKee, Jonathan
McGahan Humphrey
Mackintosh Sarah
Morrison, Wm P
Manhard, Wm
Marsh, Jane E
McCall, James A.
Machon, Thos
MacGregor John
McGahen, Wm

N.

Norry, Henry

O.

Owen, David Dale 2
Osburn, David
Ormsby, W M

P.

Predmore, Geo B 4
Prichard, John 2
Pierce, Samuel B T
Pierce, Mark
Pendleton, Joseph B
Pickard, Mrs Jane
Parks, Wm A
Powers, Sarah
Potter, Martin

R.

Rice, Phillip
Rose, Daniel P
Roundy, Uriah
Rogers, Sally R
Rook, John W

S.

Smith, Wm 3
Smith, John F
Stephens, John
Stephens, Wm
Stewpert, Geo
Stoddard, Lyman
Swap, Wm
Shipley, Mrs. Robt
Simmons, Elevers 2
Somerville, Henry B
Sheldon, Richard
Snyder, Mathias W
Stewart, Alfred
Sawyer, Sumner J
Sampson, Isaac

T.

Terrel, Joel J 2
Townsend, David 2
Turner, Elihu
Taylor, Nathaniel

W.

Wright, Mrs Rebecca 2
Weeks, Allen
Weeks, A G
Wight, Ephraim
Wilson, Whitford
Willer, Jas G
Wakesham, John A
Wilder, Hannah A
Wilder, Sally M
Wixon, Mathan
White, J G
Wardrop, Robt
Wear, Geo W
Wilcox, S S
Wiltshire, Wm 2
Wilson, Bushrad W
Wright, Grecian
Wilson, Joseph
Webb, Chas Y.
Wilcoxen, J N
Walker, J B

Y.

Young, Bazzel

Kanesville, Oct., 17, 1849.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,

Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.

Kanesville, Oct, 5, 1849—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL, for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and follee plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled.

J. W. COOLIDGE,
S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRESH ARRIVAL
OF
FALL AND WINTER GOODS
AT
DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S
CHEAP STORE,
ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods: Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at
July 25th. C. VOORHIS.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED.

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hosiery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambries, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family [illegible]ent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical, do., Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention. There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweetments, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 10, 1849.

A LARGE IMPORTATION OF ENGLISH & FRENCH Dry Goods, Hardware and Cutlery,

BROUGHT DIRECT, and this day opened for sale to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Kanesville and other Inhabitants of Pottawatamie county by BROWN & BARHAM.

GROCERIES, sugar, tea, coffee, salt, soap, &c.
PRINTS—English and American, and domestics.
BLANKETS—quilts, carpets, rugs, woolens.
CALICO—shirting and ships of all colors.
FLANNELS—muslins, jaconets, gauze;
RIBBONS—satin, sersenet, galloone, binding;
CLOTHES—velveteens, cords, moleskin and cloth;
SHEETING—tick, diaper, fewelling;
HOSE—woolen and cotton, gloves, socks and stockings;
LADIES Alapacca, Merino, Coburgh and French dresses;
LACES—French and English, silk and cotton thread, nets, quilling and flowers;
SEWED MUSLIN—collars, braids, thread, needles, pins and thimbles;
SILK AND SATIN—bows, ties, neckcloths, h'k's and eyes;
SMALLWARES—buttons, glass, steel, gilt, silk and satin;
THREADS—silk, linen, and cotton of all colors;
SHOES—ferretts, edging, binding, caps and bonnets;
IRISH LINEN—Union check;
TOOLS—double and cut plain irons, chisels, gouges and augers of all sizes, drawing knives;
SAWS—taper, pit and mill, ripping, compass and hand saws, also turning wels, pit and hand saw sets and tillers;
FILES—bastard, horse rasps and flat wood files;
GIMBLETS—shell and spike, turnscrews;
NAILS AND GLASS;
STEEL—knives, forks, pocket and pen knives, screws, door hinges, scissors and spoons of good, and common quality, door locks;
SALERATUS—spices, oils, paints, varnish, saltpetre, olive oil, camphor;
LIQUORS—rectified whisky, gin and cognac brandy, by the Gallon.
HAMS—barley, rice, dried apples and peaches;
RAISINS—currants, almonds, allspice and pickles;
TOBACCO AND SNUFF—Ginger, tartar, wax and candles;
POWDER—lead, vinegar, tinmans solder;
TARTANS AND PLAIDS—a good selection from Scotland, for ladies and gentlemen's dresses—all offered CHEAP for cash, by

BROWN & BARHAM.

Kanesville, Aug. 22, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEA—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate article at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

Straw Bonnets and Gentlemens' Hats Cleaned and Pressed.

MRS. CROMBIE, (formerly of Boston,) most respectfully informs the Ladies of Kanesville and vicinity that she will attend to the above, and also to Dressmaking and Millinery, and she hopes by assiduous attention to give satisfaction to those who may patronize her. All orders left at Mr. Needhams store, will be promptly attended to.

Kanesville, June 27, 1849.—tf

BOSTON—L—STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Gaiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins;	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the BIG BOOT, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectfully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

HERRING—A few boxes of good dried herring, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MOLASSES—Several bbls. good Sugar House Molasses, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PAINTS—White and colored paints, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TIN WARE—A variety, just rec'd by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SCYTHES, trace chains and cow bells, at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BONNETS—An assortment of Tuscan and Leghorn bonnets, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot, just rec'd at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HATS—Fr'k silk and Gen. Taylor hats—a variety, for sale by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness Bridle and Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

RICE, Peaches and apples at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

CURRANTS—A large lot of dried currants at
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS

MACKEREL—Just opened, a choice article, by
aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STILL THEY COME.

NEW GOODS
AT NEEDHAM & FERGUSON'S
STORE,

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON has just received a choice selection of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARD-WARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

Mr. Ferguson residing most of his time in St. Louis, we are enabled to watch the market, and select the goods at the best possible advantage. We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident we have one of the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by
jy25 VOORHIS.

WINDOW GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

The Soldier's Orphan.

Mother! where is my father gone,
And why are you so sad?
Your cheek is pale, your eyes are dim,
You never now are glad.

Not long ago you loved to play
Upon the green with me—
You laugh'd and sang all day; but now
A smile I seldom see.

And in the morning, when I wake,
And think to meet a smile,
I only see a tearful cheek,
And turn to weep awhile.

And when, last night, I chanced to wake,
You kiss'd me, and you pray'd—
"Help of the fatherless, protect
My orphan boy!" you said.

E'en now your tears are falling fast;
And while you closely press
Me to your bosom, still you weep,
And call me fatherless.

I wish they'd bring my father back—
Those soldiers stern and wild—
Then would my mother smile again,
Upon her darling child. ISABELLE.

The Hope of Heaven.

There is a hope will cheer the heart,
Though all its joys may fly;
Though all its gladness may depart,
This hope will never die.

'T will cheer us in the hour of gloom,
And when the soul is sad;
'T will, like the flower, the brighter bloom,
And make the heart more glad.

When fortune frowns and false friends fly,
This hope will be most dear;
When mem'ry clings to joys gone by,
'T will check the starting tear.

It is a hope of purest truth,
To man in kindness given;
The joy of age, the guide of youth—
It is the Hope of Heaven.

MISCELLANY.

Charles Hess and the Indian.

In the winter of eighteen hundred and eight, Charles Hess, an oficer in the service of the North American Fur Company, was stationed at the Lake of the Woods. An Indian called Opawgun Mokkeety, or the Black Pipe, took offence at him for having refused to give him as much liquor as he desired. Shortly after Hess had occasion to go on a journey, and employed Black Pipe as a guide. They traveled together half a day without any suspicion on the part of Hess. As they came to a ravine, the Indian proposed to stop and smoke before crossing it, and the white man cheerfully complied. "Brother," said Opawgun Mokkeety, "you have always been very kind to me. The other day you refused to let me make a fool of myself. You were right. I have a fast hold on your heart."

"I am glad," replied Hess, "that you are wise at last, but we have far to go: let us push on."

"Directly," rejoined the other, examining the lock and priming of his gun. "Go on brother. I will but tie my moccasin, and then follow."

Hess took up his own piece and crossed the gap; just as he attained the level ground on the other side, he heard the report of the Indian's weapon, and felt his side grazed by a bullet. He turned and saw that Opawgun Mokkeety had taken to his heels as soon as he fired. A ball from the white man's gun overtook him and he fell. The weapon leveled for the destruction of Hess had been charged with two bullets, and this contrivance to make sure of him had saved his life. The balls had diverged; one grazed his right side, and the other cut his belt in twain on the left. He returned in a few days to his house.

Two or three evenings after his return, a cousin of the deceased by the name of Squibee, or the Drunkard, entered his apartment with his gun in his hand, and his face painted black. He seated himself before the fire without saying a word. Hess saw that he was bent on mischief, and thought it better to temporise. He offered the Drunkard a pipe, which was refused. He then set before him a wooden platter of boiled vension, but he would not taste it. He spoke several times to the savage, but received no answer. Squibee sat sullen and immovable, his eyes steadfastly fixed on the blazing logs before him. At intervals his eyes turned in their sockets, though his head did not move, and he cast furtive and scowling glances around. The engages belonging to the establishment, who were much attached to their principal, looked in, but when they saw the expression of the Indian's features, they shrunk back, and loaded their guns.

After a silence of half an hour, Hess determined to bring matters to an issue.

"Nitchee," (i. e. friend) said he, "what do you seek my house?"

"My brother Opawgun Mokkeety is dead," replied the savage. "My eyes are dry, and I want something to make the tears come in them."

Hess went into his store house and drew a glass of spirits which he gave to the Indian. The latter held it up between his eyes and the light, and then threw it into the fire. It blazed above the chimney.

"Why did you not drink it?" said Hess.

"It is'nt so good, it is no better than water," replied the other.

"It burned as if it was good," said Hess, still desirous to conciliate him. "I thought it was strong enough. I will get you some more." And he went out to do so. Squibee was evidently working himself to the pitch of resolution requisite for some desperate action. He began to examine his gun and look uneasily about him. At one moment he seemed to relent. He wiped the smut from one side of his face with the corner of his blanket; but one of the Canadians happening to look in, he turned away his head. The instant the man withdrew, he scraped some soot from the chimney back with his fingers, spat upon it, and renewed the color of his visage with the mixture. He had scarce finished when Hess re-appeared.

"Here," said the trader, "is liquor that is as strong as fire. Drink."

The Indian doggedly put the glass to his lips, took a mouthful, and spit it out again. He threw the remainder into the fire, saying, "neither is that good. Bring more."

Hess turned to obey, and as he stooped to pass through the door, heard the explosion of Squibee's gun, and saw the splinters fly from the timber over his head. Without testifying any concern he went out, and was asked by Menard, one of his people, "what is the matter? are you hurt, mon Bourgeois!"

"I believe not," he replied, "but I have had a narrow escape. I felt the scoundrel's bullet stir in my cap." He took it off, and saw that he had been near death; the ball had gone through it within an inch of his skull.

Without uttering another word he entered his store, drew a third glass of alchohol, and returned with it to the room where he had left the Indian sitting. He offered him the liquor, saying, "You have been at the fort at the forks of the Assineboin river, and have seen the scales that are there used to weigh furs go up and down. Just so it is with your life. Shall I live? Shall I die? Dog!" he continued, his choler rising as he saw that the Indian's countenance did not relax its ferocious expression, "your life is light in the balance. Look at that sun. Drink that liquor. It is the last you shall ever drink"

Squibee, as ready to suffer as he had been to inflict suffering, took the glass, coolly emptied its contents, and drew his blanket over his head. Hess levelled his pistol and blew out his brains.

Menard and the other engages rushed into the room at the report, with their guns, and discharged them into the bleeding body of the Chippeway. "If any harm is to come to you, mon bourgeois," cried Menard, "we are resolved to share it. If the Indians revenge themselves on you, they shall kill us also."

Closing Appeal to a Jury.—Gentlemen of the Jury; I quote from Shakespere when I say to you, "To be or not to be"—LICKED—that's the question. My client is a national stump machine—he flings his wrath in pailfulls; and it is dangerous to run a snag against his interest. Let me be made fodder for a fool and a chowder for a powder mill, if he is guilty, notwithstanding of the criminal absurdities alledged against him in this indictment.

Do you believe that my client is so destitute of the common principles of humility; so full of the fog of human nature; so wrapped up in the moral insensibilities of his being as deliberately to pick up a tater, and throw it at the nasal protuberance of the prosecutor?—No! not while you discern a star in the northern sky; while the waters of the Ohio roll; and the race of buffaloes nestle on the Rocky Mountains, this immutable principle will remain that my client is a gentleman tater or no tater.

A Coquette's Account of herself.—Very well done.—I am, you must know, a young woman whose soul dependence is on my person and accomplishments; and as I would willingly be married to a man of fortune, a description of both may be necessary. In the first place, I have a sweet figure, charming teeth, the finest eye in the world; my face has a good deal of wholesome flesh and blood about it, and I fancy myself possessed of a constitution very little favorable to the physician. Then as for my accomplishments, I can sing all the songs in Norma like a Daborde or Truffi, have a natural taste for extravagance and am passionately fond of running into debt. I am in the strict sense of the word, a bewitching girl, and happily calculated to break a husband's heart. If any gentleman, therefore, has the least intention to be made miserable and a beggar, he can by no means apply to any person more devoted to his service. But then I expect settlements pretty considerable. For making a man unhappy, I could not think of less than two thousand a year, though fifteen hundred might possibly be accepted from a commoner. You may, perhaps, laugh at hearing me talk of making a man miserable who shall honor me with his hand as an argument in my favor; but do you remember that the more universal the custom is, the more fashionable it must be considered; and the making of one another wretched is one of the most polite accomplishments among certian people of distinction. Not but that I can preserve appearances tolerably well; I could say "My life" to a husband, at the same time, I was winking at another man in company, and call him a "dear creature!" at the very time I thought him the greatest brute in the universe.

"Why," said a physician to his intemperate neighbor, "don't you take a regular quantity every day—set a regular stake that you will go so far and no farther?" "I do," replied the other, "but I set it down so far off that I get drunk before I get to it."

"What does your husband deal in, Madam?" "He deals in cards, chiefly, sir."

Society Upset in California.—There appears to be what the French call a boulevcrsement—a complete overturn—of the usual arrangements of society, at the gold region; for a specimen of which see the following extract from a San Francisco letter in the Boston Courier:

"Since my arrival I have seen a lieutenant of the navy and a New York merchant dragging a hand cart, at an ounce per load; a few days since, I met a professor in one of your first colleges, driving his ox team, hauling emigrant 'traps' to the 'diggings,' at $20 for one hundred pounds. A Georgia planter cooks my salt pork, and does the flap-jacks brown; a printer from the Picayune office keeps my books, and two young gentlemen from jobbing houses in Pearl street take care of my mules, haul lumber and act as porters in the store; each from $10 to $16 per day, with board. In California all labor, and one is daily furnished with innumerable sources of amusement by meeting old friends in some comical employment. Imagine our friend ——, the artist, with buckskin trousers, red flannel shirt, and California hat, peddling newspapers: 'Sun, Herald, and Tribune, sir! latest dates from New York! only two dollars each!"

Fitz Greene Halleck gave, a dozen years ago some lines, which will answer for a synopsis of "the latest news from Europe:"

"Kingdoms to-day are upside down,
A castle kneels before the town,
A monarch fears a printer's frown,
A brickbat's range!
Give me, in preference to a crown,
Five shillings change!"

Greedy Gold Hunters.—So anxious were the passengers on board the schooner G. H. Montague, to reach the gold reion, that, on their passage to California, during the prevalence of calms, they frequently got out the boats, and towed the vessel toward her port of destination.—[N. Y. Com.

Specimen of Welch Preaching.

At a meeting of ministers at Bristol, the Rev. Mr. —— invited several of ois brethren to sup with him, among them was the minister officiating at the Welch meeting-house in that city. He was an entire stranger to all the company, and silently attentive to the general conversation of his brethren. The subject which they were discussing was the different strains of public speaking. When several had given their opinion, and had mentioned some individuals as good preachers, and such as were models as to style of composition, &c., Mr. —— turned to the Welch stranger and solicited his opinion. He said he felt it a duty to comply with this request. "But," said he, "if I must give my opinion, I should say that you have no good preachers in England." "No!" said Mr. L. "No," said he, "that is, I mean no such preachers as we have in the Principality." "I know," said L., "you are famous for jumping in Wales, but that is not owing, I suppose, so much to the strain of preaching which the people hear, as to the enthusiasm of their character!" "Indeed," said the Welchman, "you would jump too, if you heard and undsrstood such preaching." "Why," said Mr. L., do you not think they would jump if I were to preach to them?" "You make them jump!" exclaimed the Welchman, "you make them jump! A Welchman would set fire to the world while you were lighting your match." The whole company became very much interested in this new turn of the subject, and unanimously requested the good man to give them some specimen of the style and manner of preaching in the Principality. "Specimen," said he, "I cannot give you; if John Elias were here, he would give you a specimen indeed old John Elias is a great preacher." "Well," said the company give us something that you have heard from him." "Oh no!" said he. "I cannot do justice to it—besides, do you understand the Welch language?" They said no, "No, not so as to follow a discourse."

"Then," said he, "it is impossible for you to understand it, if I were to give you a specimen." But said they "cannot you put it in English without spoiling it." The interest of the company was increased, and nothing would do but something of a specimen; while they promised to make every allowance for the language. "Well," said the Welchman, "if you must have a piece, I must try; but I don't know what to give you. Christmas Evan's was a good preacher, and I heard him a little time ago at an association of ministers. He was preaching on the depravity of man by sin—of his recovery by the death of Christ—he said:

"Brethren, if I were to represent you in a figure the condition of man as a sinner, and the means of his recovery by the cross of Jesus Christ, I should represent it somewhat in this way. Suppose a large graveyard surrounded by a high wall, with only one entrance, which is fast bolted. Within these walls are thousands and tens of thousands of human beings, of all classes, by one epidemic disease bending to the grave—the grave yawns to swallow them—no physician there—they must perish. This is the condition of man as a sinner—all, all have sinned, and the soul that sinneth shall die. While man was in this deplorable state, Mercy, the darling attribute of Deity, came down and stood at the gate, looked at the scene and wept over it, exclaiming, "O that I might enter, I would relieve their sorrows—I would save their souls." While Mercy stood weeping at the gate, an embassy of angels, commissioned from the court of heaven to some other world, passing over paused at the sight and heaven forgave the pause; and seeing Mercy standing there they cried, "Mercy, Mercy, can you not enter? Can you look upon this scene and not pity? Can you pity and not relieve?" Mercy replied, I can see," and in her tears she added, "I can pity, but cannot relieve." "Why will you not let mercy in? Justice replied "my law is broken and it must be honored. Die they or Justice must!" At this there appears a form, among the angelic band, like unto the Son of God, who addressing himself to Justice, said, "What are thy demands?" Justice, replied, "my terms are stern and rigid—I must have sickness for their health—I must have ignominity for honor—I must have death for their sin—I must have death for life. Without shedding of blood there is no remission. "Justice," said the Son of God, "I accept thy terms." On me be this wrong, and let Mercy enter." "When," said Justice, "will you perform this promise." Jesus replied, "Four thousand years hence, upon that hill of Calvary, without the gates of Jerusalem, I will perform it in my own person. The deed was prepared and signed in the presence of the angels of God. Justice thereafter presented the deed, saying this is the day when this bond is to be executed." When he received it, did he tear it in pieces and give it to the winds of heaven? No, he nailed it to the cross, exclaiming, "It is finished." Justice called on holy fire to come down and consume the sacrifice. Holy fire descended; it swallowed his humanity but when it touched his Deity, it expired! and there was darkness over the whole heavens; but, "glory to God in the highest: on earth peace and good will to men

"This," said the Welchman, "this is but a specimen of Christmas Evans."—[London Jewish Expositor.

The Priests of the Greek Church, in order to encourage the recruits raised for the Russian Army, assure them that if they are killed in Hungary, they will rise the third day at Moscow.

Chapter on Hats.—"For God's sake old woman get off my hat!" said old Roger, at the concert, as he saw a two hundred and fifty pounder settle on his new ventilated castor. Old woman! It was an ungallant expression, but the circumstance would seem to justify it. A new hat was a new era in his existence, and this was one of Aborn's latest. Recovering himself, and pressing over his knees as best he might, his crushed tile, the wrinkles but too plainly apparent, he continued:

"I wouldn't object to your trying it on, ma'am, were there the least chance of its fitting: but it is evident that it isn't large enough: I never saw a hat worn in that way before, and I do not want to furnish one to experiment upon either.

Matrimony.

The clergy have reported no new cases for the last three or four days, and yet it is said that many are predisposed to the epidemic. The causes are said to be local and not atmospheric, and it is thought that if those who are predisposed would avoid those places where the local causes exist, that there would be very little danger, and that it might be partially checked, if not arrested altogether. There is, indeed, a difficulty which cannot be easily overcome, these local causes are found in almost every street in the city, and many who are predisposed, think, or pretend to think, that there is no danger, and they are prowling about day and night, and exposing themselves, regardless of consequences.

There is yet another difficulty in this matter, for it is thought that the causes cannot be removed without increasing the panic, the excitement, the alarm, and consequently the danger. We are therefore, at a loss what course to recommend. We would, however, say that, notwithstanding the sudden appearance of this epidemic among us, and its rapid spread and fatal termination, there has been but very little panic or alarm! All have been willing, and apparently anxious, to attend to the calls of the afflicted, and to minister to their wants. In fact, there has been little or no suffering for want of nurses, medical or ministerial aid. The premonitory symptoms are a palpitation of the heart, a low muttering conversation, or "small talk," with an inclination to write or repeat scraps of poetry or verse. In some cases there is an inability to speak, with an indiscribable sensation, resembling a ball rising in the throat, or, as the patient describes it, "the heart getting into the mouth." And from all that we can learn on the subject, we are of the opinion that it is a "heart disease."—[Blade.

The following advertisement is re-printed by request, not so much on account of its applicability to the existing state of things as to exemplify the peculiar genius of the author; for excepting the authographical corrections, it is Lord Dexter's own.—Newburyport Herald.

Whereas, I, Lord TIMOTHY DEXTER, have been truly informed, that several audacious, atrocious, nefarious, pestiferous, infamous, intrepid, night-walking, garden-robbing, immature peach-stealing rascals, all the spawn of ——, and cubs of Satan, do frequently, villanously, and burglariously assemble, eating, drinking, sabbath-breaking, ——, fighting, with many other shameless and illicit acts, which the modesty of my pen cannot express: This is to give you all notice, Delicarians, Doliareans, Capincureans, all rascals, and whatsoever nation ye be; return me my fruit and property, or by the gods, I swear, I will send my son Samuel, to Babylon, for blood-hounds, fiercer than tigers, and fleeter than the wind; and with them, mounted on my horse Lilly, with my cutting sabre in my hand, I will hunt you through Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, till I can enter you in a cavern under a tree in Newfoundland, where Belzebub himself can never find you. Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! Reptiles, Tatterdemalions, Thieves, Vagrants, Vagabonds, Lank-jawed, herring-gutted and tun-bellied Plebians, that if ye or any of ye dare to set your feet in my house or garden, I will send ye to Charon, who will ferry you over the river Styx, and deliver you to the arch devil Lucifer, at the place of his infernal cauldron, there to be drugged with the sulphur of Caucasus, and roasted forever before the everlasting cinders of ÆTNA.—Prov. Journal.

Miss Nanny Hard to Please.

I do not like a man that's fat—
A man that's lean is worse than that;
Nor do I like a man that's tall—
A man that's little is worse than all;
Nor do I like a man's that fair—
A man that's dark I cannot bear;
A young man is a constant pest—
An old man would my hours invest;
A man of sense I could not rule,
And yet I could not love a fool;
A sober man I will not take—
A drunken man my heart would break.
All these I most sincerely hate,
And yet I love the married state.

Another disgraceful affair has occurred in the English church. The Rev. Mr. Brooks, residing at Exeter, and was sued by Mrs. Brooks, for the seduction of her daughter. The jury found a verdict of £100. On the trial, a series of the most disgusting transactions, on the part of the clerical scoundrel, was proved. He procured, by the aid of drugs, several abortions for his mistress, used to read the prayers with her daily, and church his illegitimate child in his own parlor. When he became tired of Mary Brooks he discharged her from his service, and procured another victim.

One of the Printers.—There is a good practical printer by the name of James Evans, who lives at Batavia, Ohio, who educated himself at a distinguished literary institution in New Hampshire, is a practical farmer, has taught schools of various grades in New England, travelled through most of the States of the Union, taught a "high school" in Ohio, a "seminary" in Kentucky, an "academy" in Illinois, and one in Missouri, been superintendent of public schools and school examiner, a president of a college of teachers, and of a literary association; who offered a prize of $50 for the best method of teaching the branches usually taught in a high school, and $25 for those taught in a common school; who has acted in the capacity of editor of three different newspapers, and more or less in the capacity of constable, sheriff, county treasurer, recorder, auctioneer and merchant, wholesale pedlar, and postmaster at three different places; who is a practical surveyor, engineer, map-maker, also a regular member of the bar, and notary public, &c.; and who works at the printing business more or less nearly every day. He is about 30 years of age, and in easy circumstances. His father died very poor, when he was young, and his mother supported the family several years by hard labor. He made himself what he is.—[Cincinnati Commercial.

We would like to know James. He must be a smart boy, to have done all that the Commercial reports him to have did, before he was 30 years of age.

Lost wealth may be regained by a course of industry, the wreck of health repaired by temperance, forgotten knowledge restored by study, alienated friendship soothed into forgiveness, even forfeited reputation won back by penitence and virtue. But who ever again looked upon his vanished hours—recalled his slighted years and stamped them with wisdom—or effaced from heaven's record the fearful blot of a wasted life?

The thread of existence is very brittle and may be snapped by the cord.

From the Louisville Journal.

Potatoes and the Cholera.

The cholera has been very fatal in certain portions of Pickaway county, Ohio. Mr. J. G. Renick, who owns a large farm there, on which a large number of hands are employed, has suffered greatly. Dr. P. K. Hull, of Circleville, has furnished the Columbus Journal with a statement of the facts in the case. His account is substantially as follows:

Mr. Renick is engaged in raising broom corn, and had in his employ about seventy persons, who were harvesting the corn. They were all fed and lodged on the premises. They took their meals at three seperate houses, but nearly all of them lodged in the same place, in good clean straw beds. Their diet consisted of bacon, beef and mutton potatoes, bread and butter, tea and coffee. No green corn, cucumbers, or any other green vegetables, were permitted to be used One of the hands admits that some of the men did use vegetables not allowed by Mr. Renick. At two of the houses, potatoes were used daily, and at the third house they were not used at any time. The meats used in each of the three houses, were precisely alike, as they were parts of the same animals; the water used was the same, and the exposure was similar.

Mr. Renick observed, for several days preceding Saturday, that the hands boarding at the houses where potatoes were used, were laboring under diarrhœa; and, believing that it depended upon the use of that vegetable, he prohibited its further use from that day. Early that night it was ascertained that three of the hands were laboring under cholera. Medical assistance was called, and the most unremitting attention given by the medical attendant. Some ten or twelve cases occurred before morning, and several deaths.

Up to Monday evening, twenty one died, as is certainly ascertained, and rumor swells it to thirty-three. Inasmuch as a stampede took place as soon as they knew the cholera was amongst them, some of them laboring under the disease at the time, it is not to be wondered at that the actual number of deaths is not yet known. Some died on the road-side and in corn-fields. There was not a single recovery, with the exception of Mr. Renick himself.

What is particularly worthy of attention in this visitation, is the fact that not a single case of cholera occurred among the hands boarding at the house where potatoes were not used, and, as far as is known, but two cases took place among the field-hands, or those who were exposed to the vicissitudes of the weather. Part of the hands from each house worked at each place, and part from each boarding house lodged together.

From these facts, it would seem that to the use of potatoes is to be ascribed the mortality. Whether the potatoes were matured and apparently healthy or no, is not stated.

A Local Romance.—Tradition has preserved a singular anecdote of John Thacher, a son of one of the earliest settles of this town. He was married in 1661, to Miss Rebecca Winslow, of Duxbury, in Plymouth county, if we mistake not. On his way home with his new bride, he stopped for the night at the house of a friend, a Colonel Gorham of Barnstable, one of the most prominent citizens of the town. Merriment and gaity prevailed, and during the evening a female infant about three weeks old was introduced, and the night of her birth being mentioned, Mr. Thacher observed, "That is the very night on which we were married," and taking the child in his arms, he presented it to his bride, and jokingly said, "Here, my dear, is a little lady that was born on the same night that we were married. I wish you would kiss her, for I intend to have her for my second wife." "I will my dear, with great pleasure," replied she, "but I hope it will be very long before your intention is fulfilled in that respect."

Mr. Thacher and his wife lived happily together for about twenty years, and faithfully fulfilled the scriptural injunction to "multiply and replenish the earth." Mrs. T. left a large family of children, among whom was a son named Peter.

After Mr. Thacher had mourned a reasonable length of time, he began to think of getting another partner. None of the maidens, young or old, seemed to please him like Lydia Gorham, the little lady of the preceeding part of the story, now grown up, if we may believe tradition, to a fair, comely girl, "full of blushing life," as the poets say. But there was one impediment in the way. His eldest son, Peter had shown a predilection for the girl, and the old man was at a loss to decide whether she favored the suit of the sire or the son. The one rode a black horse in his visits, and the other a white. There was a kind of tacit agreement between the two that one should not interfere with the visits of the other; so when the father found a white horse tied in front of Colonel Gorham's, unlike the good Samaritan, he crossed over on the other side; and the son, when the black horse was there returned the favor. Thus things went on till the patience of the old gentleman was well nigh exhausted, and he resolved upon a desperate step to decide the matter. Taking his son one side, he said to him:—"Peter are you or are you not going to marry Lydia Gorham?" Peter replied that he had not yet made up his mind. "Well," said the old gentleman, "I will make you an offer: if you will give her up and court her no more, I will give you thirteen pounds in money and the pair of black steers. What do you say to that?" The young man hesitated but a moment. "'Tis a bargain," said he; and it is due the parties to say that it was observed by them all with perfect good faith. Whether Lydia knew the bargain that her charms had occasioned, tradition sayeth not; but she subsequently became Mr. Thacher's wife, and bore him ten children, from whom many members of the numerous and highly respectable family of Thacher have sprung. Our venerable townsman, Mr. Peter Thacher, is the grandson of Peter noticed above.—[Yarmouth Register.

The Women of Hungary—Countess Csaky.—Patriotism and love of country are the great characteristics of the matrons of Hungary. Ladies of the highest rank, as well as those of the humblest origin, all mingled together in a maternal bond of alliance, stand forth as the encouragers of the martyrs of the Republic. The young Countess Csaky has been foremost in the bloody struggle; she raised a regiment of volunteers at her own expense, and is actually in command of it. The adjutant is also a lady of rank, and is her sister. They dress in the uniform of officers—Hungarian jacket, blue pantaloons, and a large sword at their side. Watch fires surround their tent, and sentinels keep guard throughout the night. Before the Countess retires to rest, she writes dispatches to all her officers, giving them orders, and if any spy brings a report of an advance of the enemy, she is at once at the head of her divisions. With the most wonderful talent she lays the plans for the surprise of her enemy. To the discomfiture of the foe, her commands are carried out confidently and strictly. The animated patriotism of this noble woman inspires such enthusiasm amongst the soldiers, that each one becomes a hero in his courageous desire to out-do, in deeds of daring, his compatriot. The skill in manœuvering displayed by these admirable women is wonderful, and in many instances the enemy have surrendered to them without a blow. Not the less efficient are many other ladies who are not quite so famous in arms; every where the angelic presence of the women is visible in saving the soldiers from the jaws of death.—[European American.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful types from the Eastern foundry's, to execute al he varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds, Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply a ttended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

State of Iowa, } ss.
Fremont County, }

TAKEN up by Daniel McKissick, living in Franklin township in the county and State aforesaid, on his plantation; one dark bay mare, supposed to be seven years old, left eye out, a scar on her right hind hoof at or in the edge of the hair, supposed to be 14 hands 3 inches high, and by her side has a suckling mule colt; both appraised to the sum of sixty-five dollars.

Also one dark bay mare supposed to be 8 or 9 years old; her left hind leg has the appearance of having been corded, supposed to be 14 hands 3 inches high, has by her side a suckling colt, both appraised to the sum of fifty-five dollars.

A true copy from the Estray Book.

A. H. ARGYLE, C. B. Co. Com's.,
of Fremont county.

Fremont co., August 31, 1849.—o 3 3t*

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo., that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

References: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849.—1y*

BLUFF HOUSE.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.

Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.

Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the non opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Sattinetts, Tweeds, Jeans; &c., for sale by

aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 31, 1849. VOLUME I.----NUMBER 20.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

WM. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PRESTON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES MCGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M. BURNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
BENJ. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

From the Times and Seasons.

THE GATHERING.

(Continued.)

Jared and his brother, together with the families that were with them, and their several offsprings, were greatly blessed of God, for a length of time upon this continent; they prospered exceedingly. They were blessed with communion with the Lord, with revelations, visions, faith, wisdom, and in all temporal blessings they became a great people. But when they trangressed the laws of God, the curse of Jehovah fell upon them, and they were swept from the face of the earth, according to the word of the Lord.

Abraham was made use of, he was selected and chosen as a peculiar personage, to whom God would commit his laws and ordinances, and to his seed after him, and in order that he might accomplish his purposes, he gave unto him, the land of Canaan as his inheritance, that he might be selected and set apart from all other nations; and this was the only principle upon which God could teach him his law, and establish the priesthood. It is true, that Abraham obtained it by faith, but then if he had not possessed faith, he would not have been a fit personage for the Lord to select, through whom he could communicate his will, and preserve a chosen seed upon the earth. Abraham, through a long train of afflictions, and in many trials, had proven his unflinching integrity and faithfulness to God, for many years, and when the Lord saw that he was a proper person to exalt, he said unto him, "get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee, and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and curse them that curse thee, and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." And when Abraham had journeyed to the place appointed, "the Lord appeared unto him and said, unto thy seed will I give this land," and he afterwards entered into a covenant with Abraham, saying, "unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates. The Kenites, and the Kennizites, and the Kadmonites, and the Hittites, and the Perrizites, and the Rephaines, and the Ammorites, and the Canaanites, and the Girgashites, and the Jebusites."

That land was given unto Abraham, and unto his seed, for an everlasting inheritance, and "Isaac, and Jacob were heirs with him, of the same promise." The land was allotted unto the Twelve Tribes of Israel, but in consequence of their iniquities, they were afterwards driven from it, and scattered upon the face of all the earth. Previous to their scattering, the Lord made provisions for the preservation of a remnant, upon this continent, that he might preserve a pure seed unto himself; and Lehi and his family, together with Ishmael, were directed by the Lord to come here and possess this land. There was no doubt provision made also for many others; the Ten Tribes of Israel were carried away to a distant land, "where never mankind dwelt;" where they should remain "until the latter day;" then should they return according to the word of the Lord, and become one nation with Judah, "in the land upon the mountains of Israel, and one king shall be king over them, and they shall no longer be two nations any more at all." That there were then remnants of the house of Israel, is evident from the words of the apostle Paul, In writing to the Romans, who were Gentiles, and reasoning with them upon their standing and relationship to God, he tells them that "the Jews were broken off because of their unbelief, and that they, (the Romans) stand by faith; he tells them not to "boast against the branches," for the obvious reason, that "thou bearest not the root, but the root thee; and that although the house of Judah was at that time about to be destroyed, yet all the house of Israel had not become extinct, nor were the promises made to the fathers, forgotten; for God said that he would graft them in again, not only so; but the house of Judah was only one branch of the house of Israel, whereas, there were many branches, who were not broken off. For, says Paul, if some of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in AMONG them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness, of the olive tree; boast not against the branches;" (that yet remain,) "but if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee." From the above, it is evident that there were other branches of the house of Israel, that were not broken off at the time to which the apostle refers; and that instead of the Gentiles possessing the above kingdom and dominion, as some suppose, and having the exclusive charge of the ordinances of God's house, they were "graffed in" as a wild olive, "among the natural branches, and with them partook of the root and fatness of the olive tree."

The Lord provided for all these things; and before he destroyed, or broke off one portion of the house of Israel, he made ample provision for the perpetuation of their seed, the continuation of his mercy, and the ordinances of his house among the other branches. This is beautifully exemplified in the parable of the olive tree in the Book of Mormon.

"And it came to pass that the master of the vineyard went forth, and he saw that his olive tree began to decay; and he said, I will prune it, and dig about it, and nourish it that perhaps it may shoot forth young and tender branches, and it perish not. And it came to pass that he pruned it, and digged about it, and nourished it, according to his word. And it came to pass that after many days, it began to put forth somewhat a little, young and tender branches; but behold, the main top thereof began to perish. And it came to pass that the master of the vineyard saw it, and he said unto his servant, it grieveth me that I should loose this tree; wherefore, go and pluck the branches from a wild olive tree, and bring them hither unto me; and we will pluck off those main branches which are beginning to wither away, and we will cast them into the fire, that they may be burned. And behold, saith the lord of the vineyard, I take away many of these young and tender branches, and I will graft them whithersoever I will; and it mattereth not that if it be so, that the root of this tree will perish, I may preserve the fruit thereof unto myself; wherefore, I will take these young and tender branches, and I will graft them whithersoever I will. Take thou the branches of the wild olive tree, and graft them in, in the stead thereof: and these which I have plucked off, I will cast into the fire, and burn them, that they may not cumber the ground of my vineyard.

And it came to pass that the servant of the Lord of the vineyard, did according to the word of the Lord of the vineyard, and grafted in the branches of the wild olive tree. And the Lord of the vineyard caused that it should be digged about, and pruned, and nourished. saying unto his servant, it grieveth me that I should lose this tree; wherefore, that perhaps I might preserve the roots thereof that they perish not, that I might preserve them unto myself, I have done this thing. Wherefore, go thy way; watch the tree, and nourish it, according to my words. And these will I place in the nethermost part of my vineyard, whithersoever I will, it mattereth not unto thee: and I do it, that I may preserve unto myself the natural branches of the tree; and also, that I may lay up fruit thereof, against the season, unto myself; for it grieveth me that I should lose this tree, and the fruit thereof.

And it came to pass that the Lord of the vineyard went his way, and hid the natural branches of the tame olive tree in the nethermost parts of the vineyard; some in one, and some in another, according to his will and pleasure. And it came to pass that a long time passed away, and the Lord of the vineyard said unto his servant, come let us go down into the vineyard that we may labor, in the vineyard.

And it came to pass that the Lord of the vineyard, and also the servant, went down into the vineyard to labor. And it came to pass that the servant said unto his master, behold, look here; behold the tree. And it come to pass that the Lord of the vineyard looked and beheld the tree, in which the wild olive branches had been grafted; and it had sprang forth and began to bear fruit. And he beheld that it was good: and the fruit thereof was like unto the natural fruit. And he said unto the servant, behold, the branches of the wild tree hath taken hold of the moister of the root thereof, that the root thereof hath brought forth much strength; and because of the much strength of the root thereof, the wild branches have brought forth tame fruit: now, if we had not grafted in these branches, the tree thereof would have perished. And now, behold, I shall lay up much fruit, which the tree thereof hath brought forth: and the fruit thereof I shall lay up, against the season, unto mine own self.

And it came to pass that the Lord of the vineyard said unto his servant, come, let us go to the nethermost part of the vineyard, and behold if the natural branches of the tree hath not brought forth much fruit also, that I may lay up of the fruit thereof, against the season, unto mine own self. And it came to pass that they went forth whither the master had hid the natural branches of the tree, and he said unto the servant, behold these; and he beheld the first, that it had brought forth much fruit; and he beheld also, that it was good. And he said unto the servant, take off the fruit thereof, and lay it up, against the season, that I may preserve it unto mine own self: for behold, said he, this long time have I nourished it, and it hath brought forth much fruit.

And it came to pass that the servant said unto his master, how comest thou hither to plant this tree, or this branch of the tree? for behold, it was the poorest spot in all the land of the vineyard. And the Lord of the vineyard said unto him, counsel me not: I knew that it was a poor spot of the ground; wherefore, I said unto thee, I have nourished it this long time; and thou beholdest that it hath brought forth much fruit.

And it came to pass that the Lord of the vineyard said unto his servant, look hither: behold, I have planted another branch of the tree also; and thou knowest that this spot of ground was poorer than the first. But, behold the tree: I have nourished it this long time, and it hath brought forth much fruit; therefore, gather it, and lay it up against the season, that I may preserve it unto mine own self.

And it came to pass that the Lord of the vineyard said again unto his servant, look hither, and behold another branch also, which I have planted: behold that I have nourished it also, and it hath brought forth fruit. And he said unto the servant look hither, and behold the last: behold this I have planted in a good spot of ground; and I have nourished it this long time, and only a part of the tree hath brought forth tame fruit; and the other part of the tree hath brought forth wild fruit: behold, I have nourished this tree like unto the others."

From the above, it is very evident, that there did exist other branches of the house of Israel, [illegible] the Father hath compassionate remembrance of the Lord, and to whom he paid peculiar attention, and that in order that he might preserve a pure seed unto himself; he took those "young and tender branches from the main tree, before it had become corrupt, and planted them in different parts of the vineyard, and dressed and nourished them, that they might bring forth good fruit unto himself." There is one peculiar trait in this dispensation of providence, which is, that these branches were hid, in the vineyard, and consequently not generally known by the generality of mankind.

This may account for the generally received opinion, that the house of Judah were the only representatives of the kingdom of God upon the earth, and that consequently, when the kingdom of God was taken from them and given to the Gentiles, that the Gentiles were the sole possessors of it, and that the house of Israel had lost the blessings of God forever, and would only obtain mercy through the Gentiles. This opinion was obtained among the Romans, in Paul's day, hence his reasoning with them on this subject, shewing that they had received all their blessings through the Jews, and that if the Jews were broken off and the Gentiles graffed in, they bore not the root, but the root them; and that instead of either being the root, or the main branches, they were merely a scion taken from the wild olive tree and grafted into the old stock, dependant upon it; that they were neither the root nor the main branches, but "graffed in among the branches, and with them partaking of the root and fatness of the olive tree."

Those branches taken from the main stock were hid in different parts of the vineyard, some in one part and some in another. The Ten Tribes were taken to a "land where never mankind dwelt, from whence they will return in the latter day."

Lehi and his family, together with others, came to this continent, where they worshipped the true God, and there were other branches, besides those, according to the parable, and also according to the account given by our Savior when he conversed with his disciples on this continent. "And verily, verily, I say unto you, that I have other sheep; neither of the land of Jerusalem; neither in any parts of that land round about; where I have been sent to minister. For they of whom I speak, are they who have not as yet heard my voice; neither have I at any time manifested myself unto them. But as I have received a commandment of the Father, that I shall go unto them, and that they shall hear my voice, and shall be numbered among the sheep, that there may be one fold, and one shepherd; therefore, I go to shew myself unto them;"—7th chap. book of Nephi.

There was a number of the house of Israel discovered in little Thibet in the interior of China, in a highly civilized state, a few years ago. Whither these were the branches referred to or not, is not for us at present to say;—certain it is, however, that they do exist some where; according to the accounts given both in the Bible and the Book of Mormon,—there are some of the house of Israel, living on the Islands of the sea. In the second book of Nephi, page 121 we have the following: "For I command all men, both in the east, and in the west, and in the north, and in the south, and in the Islands of the sea, that they shall write the words which I speak unto them. * * * *

"For behold I shall speak unto the Jews, and they shall write it, and they shall also speak unto the Nephites, and they shall write it; and I shall also speak unto the other tribes which I have hid away, and they shall write it." Here then we find some of God's people on the islands of the sea. Agreeable to this is the account given by Isaiah, xi; ii: "And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea." No doubt then, according to these testimonies, but that there exists a remnant of the house of Israel, somewhere on the islands of the sea; for the obvious reason, that if they do not exist there, they cannot come from there.

We have now found out several of the hiding places of the branches of the house of Israel. The Ten Tribes are undoubtedly hid; the history of the Nephites on this continent, was unknown to the world till lately. The watchful jealousy of the Chinese, has been a bulwark to those in Little Thibet, Bucharia, and those on the islands of the sea are not known: and all of them has unquestionably been hid from the world, and this was the design of God to fulfil his purpose, according to the account given in the Book of Mormon, page 522.

"And now it came to pass that when Jesus had spoken these words, he said unto those twelve whom he had chosen, ye are my disciples; and ye are a light unto this people, who are a remnant of the house of Joseph. And behold, this is the land of your inheritance; and the Father hath given it unto you. And not at any time hath the Father given me commandment that I should tell it unto your brethren at Jerusalem; neither at any time hath the Father given me commandment, that I should tell unto them concerning the other tribes of the house of Israel, whom the Father had led away out of the land. This much did the Father command me, that I should tell unto them, that other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also must I bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd. And now because of the stiffneckedness and unbelief, they understood not my word; therefore I was commanded to say no more of the Father concerning this thing unto them. But, verily, I say unto you, that the Father hath commanded me, and I tell it unto you, that ye are separated from among them because of their iniquity; therefore it is because of their iniquity, that they know not of you. And verily I say unto you again, that the other tribes hath the Father separated from them; and it is because of their iniquity, that they know not them. And verily, I say unto you, that ye are they of whom I said, other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd. And they understood me not, for they supposed it had been the Gentiles; for they understood not that Gentiles should be converted through their preaching; and they understood me not that I said they shall hear my voice; and they understood me not that the Gentiles should not at any time hear my voice; that I should not manifest myself unto them, save it were by the Holy Ghost. But behold, ye have both heard my voice, and seen me; and ye are my sheep, and ye are numbered among those whom the Father hath given me. And verily, verily, I say unto you, that I have other sheep, which are not of this; neither of the land of Jerusalem; neither in any parts of the land round about, whither I have been to minister. For they of whom I speak, are they who have not as yet heard my voice; neither have I at any time manifested myself unto them. But I have received a commandment of the Father, that I shall go unto them, and that they shall hear my voice, and shall be numbered among my sheep, and there may be one fold, and one shepherd; therefore I go to show myself unto them. And I command you that ye shall write these sayings, after I am gone, that if it so be that my people at Jerusalem, they who have seen me, and been with me in my ministry, do not ask the Father in my name, that they receive a knowledge of you by the Holy Ghost, and also of the other tribes whom they know not of, that these sayings which ye shall write, shall be kept, and shall be manifested unto the Gentiles, that through the fulness of the Gentiles, the remnant of their seed who shall be scattered forth upon the face of the earth, because of their unbelief, may be brought in, or may be brought to a knowledge of me their Redeemer."

(To be continued.)

For the Guardian.

A Parody in Reply to President Joseph Young's call "The Seventies."

BY JOHN M. STEWART.

Yes! We Seventies hear the whispring
Of the Spirit from on high;
Gently hov'ring on our vision,
Showing us the hour is nigh.

When the gospel trump of gladness,
We will publish far and near;
And the meek who sit in sadness,
Then we'll hail the jubilo' year.

To the islands and the nations
Lo! our onward step we'll bend;
Pouring forth our proclamations;
Sweeping earth from end to end.

Trifling things shall not prevent us;
Pride nor lust bedim our light:
We'll go by faith in Him who sent us;
He will always guide us right.

Golden dreams and trifling trashes;
All the glittering toys of earth,
We'll tread beneath our feet as ashes;
Grasping things of greater worth.

We, the heralds of salvation,
Who are faithful will return;
Bringing the wheat from ev'ry nation.
While the tares are left to burn.

A Voice of Wisdom and Age.

In my apprehension, the best way to be useful and happy in this life, is to cultivate domestic affections—to love home, and at the same time, to be temperate and just—to pursue lawful business, whatever it may be, with diligence, firmness and integrity of purpose, and in the perfect belief that honesty is equally binding in the discharge of public as of private trusts; for when public morals are destroyed public liberty cannot survive. If we are aspiring, we ought not to lose our diffidence; and if ardent for reforms, ought not to lose our discretion. We ought to listen to the maxims of experience, and respect the advice and institutions of our ancestors; and above all, we ought to have a constant and abiding sense of the superintending goodness of the Almighty Being, whose wisdom shines equally in His works and His word, and whose presence is every where sustaining and governing the universe.—[Chancellor Kent.

THE FIVE POINTS.—The five cardinal points for a drunkard are a face of brass, nerves of steel, lungs of leather, heart of stone, and incombustible liver.

Every married man should let his wife have the management of the Home Department, and give her, as Secretary, the control of the different bureaus. Don't let her have anything to do with the War Department.

The following letter was written by the Editor of this paper and by Hyrum Smith, the martyr, to the Church in Jackson county, Missouri. It was written from Kirtland, Geauga county, Ohio, on the 14th day of January, 1833. Late in the fall of the same year the Church was driven from the former place.

In looking over some old documents, we discovered it, and as it is a relic, reminding us of olden time, and bring fresh to our remembrance many bygone scenes, we publish it now as one of the productions of our youthful days, assisted by our then worthy colleague, who now wears a martyr's crown.

KIRTLAND MILLS, Geauga, County, Ohio, Jan. 14, 1833.

"From a Conference of twelve High Priests, to the bishop, his council, and the inhabitants of Zion.

Orson Hyde and Hyrum Smith being appointed by the said conference to write this epistle in obedience to the commandment, given the 22d and 23d of September last, which says, "But verily I say unto all those to whom the kingdom has been given, from you it must be preached unto them, that they shall repent of their former evil works, for they are to be upbraided for their evil hearts of unbelief; and your brethren in Zion, for their rebelion against you at the time I sent you."

Brother Joseph, and certain others, have written to you on this all-important subject, but you have never been apprized of these things, by the united voice of a conference of those high priest that were present at the time this commandment was given.

We therefore, Orson and Hyrum, the committee appointed by said conference to write this epistle, having received the prayers of said conference that we might be enable to write the mind and will of God upon this subject; now take up our pen to address you in the name of the conference, relying upon the arm of the great head of the church.

In the commandment above alluded to, the children of Zion were all, yea, even every one, under condemnation, and were to remain in that state until they repented and remembered the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon, and the former commandments, which the Lord had given them, not only to say but to do them, and bring forth fruit meet for the Father's kingdom; otherwise there remaineth a scourge and a judgment to be poured out upon the children of Zion; for shall the children of the kingdom pollute the holy land? I say unto you nay!

The answers received from those letters, which have been sent to you upon this subject, have failed to bring to us that satisfactory confession and acknowledgement, which the spirit of our Master requires; we, therefore, feeling a deep interest for Zion, and knowing the judgments of God that will come upon her except she repent, resort to these last, and most effectual means in our power, to bring her to a sense of her standing before the Most High.

At the time Joseph, Sidney and Newel left Zion, all matters of hardness and misunderstanding were settled and buried, (as they supposed) and you gave them the hand of fellowship; but, afterwards, you brought up all these things again, in a sensorious spirit, accusing Brother Joseph in rather an indirect way of seeking after monarchial power and authority. This came to us in Brother Carroll's letter of June 2d. We are sensible this is not the thing Brother Joseph is seeking after, but to magnify the high office and calling whereunto he has been appointed by the command of God, and the united voice of this church. It might not be amiss for you to call to mind the circumstances of the Nephites, and the children of Israel rising up against their prophets, and accusing them of seeking after kingly power, &c., and see what befel them and take warning before it is too late.

Brother Gilbert's letter of December 10th, has been received and read attentively, and the low, dark, and blind insinuations, which were in it, were not received by us from the fountain of light, though his claims and pretentions to holiness were great. We are not unwilling to be chastened or rebuked for our faults, but we want to receive it in language that we can understand, as Nathan said to David, "Thou art the man." We are aware that Brother G. is doing much, and a multitude of business on hand; but let him purge out all the old leaven, and do his business in the spirit of the Lord, and then the Lord will bless him, otherwise the frown of the Lord will remain upon him. There is manifestly an uneasiness in Brother Gilbert, and a fearfulness that God will not provide for his saints in these last days, and these fears lead him on to covetousness. This ought not to so be; but let him do just as the Lord has commanded him, and the Lord will open his coffers, and his wants will be liberally supplied. But if this uneasy, covetous disposition be cherished by him, the Lord will bring him to poverty, shame, and disgrace.

Brother Phelp's letter is also received of December 15th, and carefully read, and it betrays a lightness of spirit that ill becomes a man placed in the important and responsible station that he is placed in. If you have fat beef and potatoes eat them in a singleness of heart, and boast not yourselves in these things. Think not, brethren, that we make a man an offender for a word; this is not the case; but we want to see a spirit in Zion, by which the Lord will build it up; that is the plain, solemn, and pure spirit in Christ. Brother Phelps requested in his last letter that Brother Joseph should come to Zion; but we say that Brother Joseph will not settle in Zion until she repent and purify herself, and abide the new covenant, and remember the commandments that have been given her, to do them as well as say them.

You may think it strange that we manifest no cheerfulness of heart upon the reception of your letter; you may think that our minds are prejudiced so much that we can see no good that comes from you; but rest assured, brethren, that this is not the case.

We have the best of feelings, and feelings of the greatest anxiety for the welfare of Zion: we feel more like weeping over Zion than we do like rejoicing over her, for we know the judgments of God hang over her, and will fall upon her lest she repent, and purify herself before the Lord, and put away from her every foul spirit. We now say to Zion, this once, in the name of the Lord, repent! repent! awake, awake, put on thy beautiful garments before you are made to feel the chastening rod of him, whose anger is kindled against you. Let not Satan tempt you to think we want to make bow you to us to domineer over you, for God knows this is not the case: our eyes are watered with tears, and our hearts are poured out to God in prayer for you, that he will spare you, and turn away his anger from you.

There are many things in the last letters from Brothers G. and P. that are good, and we esteem them much. The idea of having "certain ones appointed to regulate Zion, and traveling elders has nothing to do with this part of the matter," it is something we highly approbate, and you will doubtless know before this reaches you, why William E. McLelin opposed you in this move. We fear there was something in Brother Gilbert, when he returned to this place from New York, last fall, in relation to his Brother William, that was not right; for Brother Gilbert was asked two or three times about his Brother William, but gave evasive answers, and at the same time, he knew that William was in Cleveland: but the Lord has taken him. We merely mention this, that all may take warning to work in the light, for God will bring every secret thing to light.

We now close our epistle by saying unto you, the Lord has commanded us to purify ourselves, to wash our hands and our feet, that he may testify to his Father, and our Father; to his God and our God, that we are clean from the blood of this generation, and before we could wash our hands and our feet, we were constrained to write this letter. Therefore, with the feelings of inexpressible anxiety for your welfare, we say again, repent, repent, or Zion must suffer, for the scourge and judgment must come upon her.

Let the bishop read this to the elders, that they may warn the members of the scourge that is coming, except they repent. Tell them to read the Book of Mormon and obey it; read the commandments that are printed, and obey them; yea, humble yourselves under the mighty hand of God, that peradventure he may turn away his anger from you. Tell them that they have not come up to Zion to sit down in idleness, neglecting the things of God, but they are to be diligent and faithful in obeying the new covenant.

There is one clause in Brother Joseph's letter, which you may not understand; that is this, "if the people of Zion did not repent, the Lord would seek another place, and another people. Zion is the place where the temple will be built, and the people gathered, but all people upon that holy land being under condemnation, the Lord will cut off, if they repent not, and bring another race upon it, that will serve him. The Lord will seek another place to bring forth and prepare his word to go forth to the nations, and as we said before so say we again, Brother Joseph will not settle in Zion, except she repent, and serve God, and obey the new covenant. With this explanation, the conference sanctions Brother Joseph's letter.

Brethren, the conference meets again this evening, to hear this letter read, and if it meets their minds, we have all agreed to kneel down before the Lord, and cry unto him with all our hearts that this epistle, and Brother Joseph's and the revelations also, may have their desired effect, and accomplish the thing, whereunto they are sent, and that they may stimulate you to cleanse Zion, that she mourn not. Therefore, when you get this, know ye, that a conference of twelve High Priests have cried unto the Lord for you, and are still crying, saying, spare thy people, O Lord, and give not thy heritage to reproach. We now feel that our garments are clean from you, and all men, when we have washed our feet and hands according to the commandments.

We have written plain at this time, but we believe not harsh. Plainness is what the Lord requires, and we should not feel ourselves clear, unless we had done so; and if the things we have told you be not attended to, you will not long have occasion to say, or to think rather, that we may be wrong in what we have stated. Your unworthy brethren are determined to pray unto the Lord for Zion as long as we can shed the sympathetic tear, or feel any spirit to supplicate the throne of grace in her behalf.

The school of the prophets will commence if the Lord will, in two or three days. It is a general time of health with us. The cause of God seems to be rapidly advancing in the eastern country; the gifts are beginning to break forth so as to astonish the world, and even believers marvel at the power and goodness of God. Thanks be rendered to his holy name for what he is doing. We are your unworthy brethren in the Lord, and may the Lord help us to all do his will, that we may at last, be saved in his kingdom.

ORSON HYDE.
HYRUM SMITH.

LANGUAGES.—There are three thousand six hundred and sixty-four known languages now used in the world. Of these, nine hundred and thirty seven are asiatic five hundred and eighty seven European; two hundred and seventy-six African; and one thousand six hundred and twenty-four American languages and dialects.

Virtue hallows the cottage, and sheds a glory around the palace. It is celebrated by the angels—it is written on the pillars of heaven and handed down to earth.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail, will be at the risk of those who send it.

STATE OF DESERET.

This little interior world is situated in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, embracing what is called the "Great Basin" of North America. This country seems to have been designed by nature's forming hand, as the area of a separate and distinct government. The lofty mountains mantled with perpetual snows—the sandy deserts—and the sage plains by which it is surrounded, present barriers too formidable, during the greater part of the year, to be successfully encountered by the hardy sons of the mountains.

Intercourse between this and the Bay country being impracticable for the greater part of the season the distance being nearly eight hundred miles, and about twelve hundred back to the States, the citizens of this interior country would necessarily labor under the most embarrassing circumstances in regard to carrying into execution many municipal regulations that might require frequent communications with the heads of Department, if a government were not given them of their own.

To every feeling and sensible man, whether religious or political in character, does it not seem as though Providence himself, had given that place as a kind of retreat—an assylum—a refuge to the oppressed and persecuted Mormons? Are they not worthy of a resting place on earth? Have they not suffered and endured enough? Can any one say that he thinks them insincere in their religious belief as a people? Have they not proven their sincerity in the midst of hunger, nakedness, and the sword? Have not their leaders been stigmatized with every evil and crime, and last of all, in a most base and cowardly manner, butchered by Christian hands? Have their followers abandoned their creed in this dark hour? No! But like Moses' burning bush, the unholy fire of mobocratic wrath has flashed through our branches, yet they are unconsumed—their leaves are yet green, and may prove medicine for the healing of the nation.

They will be skirted on every side by a people more numerous and powerful than they; and how unworthy the dignity of a generous and high-minded freeman is that petty, jealous fear that the Mormons are Anti-Republican—Anti-American in feeling, and dangerous to the harmony of the American policy.

There was a time since we landed on this frontier that the Indians had their wig-wams, and the wolves had their dens; but the Mormons had no place to call their own where they could lay their heads to rest. While thus situated the General Government made a call upon us for five hundred men. Did we refuse? Or did the Government have to call the second time? No! Five hundred of our best men went, leaving the lame, the halt and the blind, with women and children in an indian country with little else than wild roots and herbs to eat. Does this look like Anti-Republicanism? Does it manifest an Anti-American feeling? Or foreshadow danger to American institutions?

Our boys marched at their country's call, and although they were not led into the heat of action, yet if they had been, they would have acted well their part in our opinion. Their march was a long and tedious one, but resulted in the discovery of the rich and valuable gold mines of California. They lined their pockets pretty well, it is true, with the first fruits of the mines; and have now mostly resigned their places to other people, and feel disposed to retire to the Valley where no gold has been found, and there settle down in peace.

It has been plainly and clearly demonstrated that opposition cannot destroy what is called Mormonism. If this system is virtually and fundamentally wrong, its own advocates will destroy themselves and the system also. If the Mormons are wrong, let them have the management of their own affairs, and they will destroy themselves without subjecting any other people to the disgrace of attempting it: and that too, in a distant and secluded place where their own dissentions and difficulties will not disturb any other people; being entirely disconnected: But if they are right, and are the salt of the earth, ought they not to be sustained at all hazards.

Right or wrong, then, the Mormons ought to have a goverment to suit themselves. They are entitled, in our opinion, to the country they ask for. They have fought for it. They settled upon it first: and now if the Government will give it to them, or the privilege of their own municipal regulations, they will regard the grant as the oil and the wine of the good Samaritan. One ounce of the oil of friendship will inspire more loyalty and patriotism than a barrel of vinegar. If we were the Government, we would give the Mormons a State or Territorial Government, and just see what they would do. One of two things they would be pretty certain to do. They would either explode pretty soon, or stand forever. The latter is our faith.

DESERET—The name selected for that country, is borrowed from the Book of Mormon, where a description is given of the voyage of the Ancient Jaredites from the tower of Babel to the American continent, more than four thousand years ago. It is said that they brought with them seeds all kinds, and also "DESERET" which, by interpretation, is the honey bee. The bee and the hive being emblems of skill and industry, the citizens there, wishing ever to exhibit those qualifications, have chosen the above name, as being adapted to the character which they ever wish to sustain.

Tootle & Co., at Linden, Mo.,

Are now receiving a most splendid and extensive assortment of Fall and Winter Goods. We gave their stock a passing glance the other evening, and the neatness and taste displayed in their arrangement on the shelves, spoke much in favor of the clerks. The ladies will be very likely to call there, and faith, the gents likewise.

THE WEEKLY GUARDIAN.

We are resolved to publish the Guardian weekly at two dollars a year, invariably in advance, so soon as we can place confidence in our mails. Advertising will be reduced in nearly a like ratio, and whenever the term of any person's subscription expires, his or their paper will be discontinued if the money is not placed in our hands or in the hands of some of our authorized agents to insure its continuance. The embarrasments that we labor under in this distant frontier country in procuring stock, materials, &c., together with the low rate at which we are resolved to do our work, renders it imperative that we have our money either in advance, or at the time the work is done. We would rather have our stock in the office than to have it scattered through the country where we cannot control it. Then if our creditors should happen to pounce upon us in an unexpected hour, we should have something tangible for them to seize.

Come every body now and subscribe for the Guardian. We hope it will be but a short time before you will have it weekly. Bring on your advertisements, and we will insert them at a rate that none can object to unless his commodities are of such an inferior kind that he is ashamed to expose them. Friends and fellow citizens of this upper country! Remember, that the press gives the news at home and from abroad,—it speaks in your behalf—it maintains your just rights—it protects you against many evils, and often brings the oil of gladness to your domestic circles. Do not suffer the press to stop or the printer to go hungry. He labors day and night to make his paper interesting to his readers—is tormented with a thousand cares, and a deep anxiety keeps his mind continually excited; and it is our candid opinion that he is entitled to more patronage.

No people were ever the poorer for patronizing this art of arts; and no person will have cause to regret in this world or in the next, in our opinion, that he has contributed to the support of these powerful engines of intelligence.

We tender our hearty thanks to our subscribers and patrons for the good feelings which they have hitherto manifested towards us in our early attempts to establish a periodical in this wilderness part of the world. We were mostly, in this section, alike poor; but by most untiring perseverance, and by the blessings of a merciful Providence, our day begins to brighten; and the triumphant hand of industry has rid us of the most unfeeling tyrant that ever oppressed a struggling people! Want! A tyrant under whose galling yoke, mobocracy compelled us to come. But,

> Lo! this monster's chain is broken
> Smiling plenty bursts the gloom,
> Look ye pilgrims at this token
> Cherish hopes beyond the tomb.

We hope, by strict and careful attention to our business, and to the business of others entrusted to our execution, to merit a continuation of the confidence and good will extended towards us since our editorial labors began in this place.

Our good friends abroad will have just about time to earn the two dollars and remit it to us, or pay it to our agents by the first of January next, and a little to spare, and our friends at home will surely have their change ready. We will wait and see.

Keep out of Debt.

This should be one, (as it indeed is,) of the prominent articles in our creed, as Saints of the Most High God. "Owe no man any-thing but love and good will." Instead of running into debt to satisfy your wants, try to reduce your wants to the standard of your present ability. In nine cases out of ten, if you run into debt, you will be just about as unable to pay at the time you promise as you were at the time you contracted the debt. Men of extensive trade and business may often venture with safety and profit, and it may be necessary for individuals of a more humble sphere sometimes to go into debt for necessary articles: but where prudence and industry are coupled together, moderate wants may be supplied without entangling ones' self with debts.

It is our counsel and advice that no officer of the church, occupying a responsible station, endorse any note, bill or bond, or become responsible, in any way, for debts contracted by other persons, of any common or ordinary kind.

Contracting debts and then failing to pay them has laid the axe at root of more confidence than any other thing. There are men who depend on borrowing for a living; and then calculate to get off without paying. The evils of such a course have been so manifest to us that we are constrained to cry against the system altogether. If a man is hungry—if he is naked—if he is in distress, relieve his present wants according to your ability and generosity upon the noble principle of charity, expecting no return, and your reward shall be great in heaven. Upon this principle, confidence, which is the bond of union and of society, is not impaired, but faithfully preserved. Every honest man must commend this doctrine, whether he practise it or not.

We do not want any man to say that he has trusted some member of our church who has not paid him, and then impeach the whole church by saying the Mormons have cheated him. Let him rather impeach his own discernment, and say that he was not keen enough to discern through that man's countenance the character or complexion of his thoughts or his ability or inability to manage business. "Better is a dinner of herbs," says Solomon, "where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." Get out of debt as fast as possible, and like the burnt child that dreads the fire, keep out of debt.

High Council.

This highest tribunal of the Church met on Saturday last in this town. It was an interesting session indeed. Among the resolutions that were passed, on seeing the evils that arise from stolen parties or petty dances, that are got up in opposition to the order of the Church, they resolved that those members of the church that would attend them, should be distellowshipped, and excluded from the Church, and they entered their most solemn protest and anathema against that house that would allow any such party or dance to be in it where its heads or rulers professed to belong to the Church. And we are sure that it was done in a spirit that will fulfil what was said.

We have interceded that the above might not take effect upon any house or person till the order of the Church shall be violated in the above matter, after this notice has been made public. If there are any, in the stoutness of their hearts, that shall disregard this caution and rebuke, know ye, that they were before of old ordained to this condemnation, and must go to their own place.

The Baltimore and Susquehanna Railroad Company, has paid into the Treasury of Maryland this year $70,000—being $10,000 more than expected.

Offerings—Not Tithes.

The Saints in Pottawatamie County will not be unmindful that He, who causeth his sun to shine on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain upon the just and upon the unjust, has graciously condescended to bless your labors and reward your toil with an abundant harvest of the precious fruits of the earth. In consequence of the continued rains, causing the surface of the earth to be covered with a sheet of water for a long time, some chills and fevers have visited you this season which were unknown last year: and it is those more generally who have not enjoyed all the necessaries and comforts of life that have been visited by this unwelcome agent. The poor we still have with us, and those that are afflicted likewise; and as bounteous Heaven has blessed us, shall we not bless those poor and afflicted ones whose petitions are often addressed to us in the most feeling and respectful manner? Can you go forth in the dance and be merry while your poor brethren mourn and are in want? Will not condemnation follow you if you attempt it? A secret whispering says to us; yes, it will. How much sin have you committed this last season that is not forgiven? Let every person ask his own conscience this question. Do you want forgiveness? You say, Yes! How am I to obtain it?

Repentance is the old fashioned remedy, and when that repentance is spiced with a free-will offering to God for the benefit of the poor and needy, the sick and the afflicted, it makes that repentance the channel through which pardon, life and joy are freely communicated. "Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Therefore will the king say to such, "come ye blessed of my Father."

offerings, will begin at this date and continue till the first day of December, at this place. The presidency of the Church in Pottawatamie County will be in personal attendance to receive the offerings in behalf of the poor, and keep a faithful record of every person's name and residence; and quality and amount of his, her, or their offerings. This notice is given in time for all prepare. When this is done, permission will be given to go forth in the dance for a season, under such regulations as the council may ordain: and as our Heavenly Father has made no distinction among those who contribute to feed the poor and needy of his people, we shall not feel to exclude any from participating in the dance that have made their free-will offerings for the above purpose, whether they belong to our Church or not, provided they are moral, have not shed innocent blood to our knowledge, and are not excommunicated members from our Church.

Let such of our members as have taken the liberty to dance out of the order of the Church, and before the time, be ashamed and repent before the Lord and before their brethren for the bad example they have set. Let no man say he has been deceived, but let him rather censure himself for not learning his duty and doing it, and thereby preserving himself unspotted. Let such show the depth of their contrition by the liberality of their free-will offerings, that peradventure the poor may bless you; and if the poor bless you, the God of the poor will bless you also.

Remember if you offer the lame or blind of the flock, or anything that is inferior to that which you retain, your offering will not be accepted of the Lord, though his servants may accept it because they do not know all things. But as you always want the best if you can get it, bring the best you have, knowing that with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. If you have nothing more than a pair of turtle doves or two young pigeons, bring them, not forgetting the poor widow with her two mites. This is aside and wholly independant of tithing. It is a free-will offering. And the invitation is extended to all such as wish to come here to participate in our holy days' recreation, under the provisos before named, or that wish well to Zion's poor.

Omission.

Through the hurry and bustle on returning home the advertisement of Messrs. Tootle & Co., of Linden, Mo., was left out of our last number. We give them an editorial notice in this number, hoping they will send us a bill of particulars for the next.

Remember

That Missouri is a Slave State, and slaves knowing that Mormons, passing up and down, are residents of a free state, will naturally apply to you for some advice or aid to get off, if they take it into their heads to run away from their masters: Now all such as respect the advice and counsel of your humble servant, listen to what is said, and never give a syllable of advice to a negro when that advice is sought with the intention of securing escape; we do not give this caution because we think that any one has done so; but we give it in time that you may avoid an evil which we foresee that some may run into. The sentiment from the Valley is, "keep clear of any entanglements with this subject;" and we reiterate the same.

Do not harbor any colored people that may come here, unless they come with some white people that can vouch for them, unless it is merely to feed them if they are hungry, and then let them pass on. But what shall we do when a run-away negro comes along and a handsome reward is offered for his arrest? Shall we not arrest him, take him back and get the cash? We can hardly give counsel in this case, but only tell what we think. If we had been the means of his running away, we might feel compunction of conscience enough to arrest him, possibly, and take him back. We have seen the time that wife and children were all sick—no money—no provisions, scorching with fever ourself: yet we never saw the time that we wanted money bad enough to lay hold of the poor scape goat and take him back into bondage for it, for we should fear that our ill-gotten money would perish with us. Bread bought with such money, we don't think would taste good to any but a cannibal. A man that will do so for the sake of money, in our opinion, has effected the sale of two articles at their full value. The poor negro to his master, and himself to the ——, we did not say it.

We would say to the Saints—hands off and garments clean on every side. Touch not—taste not and handle not, and it shall be well for you and for your children after you, and if our country is free to be ranged by a negro that has runaway, it is equally free to be ranged by his owner in pursuit so far as we are concerned.

But where a negro has escaped and stolen a horse or any other property, he then becomes a criminal in the eye of the laws of our State, and every good citizen should use every reasonable exertion to procure his arrest with or without a reward. He is guilty of a felony, and should be treated the same as any white man in like situation.

Just Read This!

It is sometimes the case that men will leave their residence for the purpose of gathering with the Saints at this place or at the Salt Lake; and will not discharge their liabilities in a just and honorable way, and sometimes come here to avoid paying their just debts. Such may be Mormons, but they are not Saints. When persons claiming to be members of our church, leave their places of residence in a dishonorable way, after this date, to avoid paying their just debts, we wish to be informed of the same by members of our church that are in good standing and that wish to maintain just and righteous principles, to inform us of the fact, and such persons will not be received or countenanced in the church here.

Also there are those who sometimes go from this place into Missouri on business professedly, or to get jobs of labor, &c., and there disgrace themselves, dishonor the Church, and profane the name of the Most High because they find plenty of whisky.

All people are hereby particularly cautioned against those Mormons that use profane language, or are idle, having little else to do than lounge about the town or country, or that gamble. Beware of them, for they will do you no good. Some morning you might find yourself minus a horse if you keep such about you.

But those members of our church that apply themselves to business—that say but little—that care not about much whisky—that are never heared to use profane language, that do not speak against their brethren nor do any-thing to dishonor them—that frequently steal away in secret to offer up a prayer to Heaven—that esteem it a privilege to do you a kindness—that spend their leisure moments in perusing some good book or journal—that are careful about running into debt, and still more careful to pay whatever they agree to pay—that are prudent and virtuous in their deportment—chaste and unassuming in their conversation; we would advise any person who may want to employ another, to secure the services of the individual in whom these latter qualities prevail, at any price: For you will not only have the services of a true and faithful person, but the blessing of the SUPREME will be on your house for your servants' sake. This may apply, in a great measure to both male and female.

Cottonwoods.

When settlements first began to be made in this place, (now Kanesville,) the cottonwoods on the low bottoms of the Missouri river were claimed by the citizens of this place as a public resort for timber and wood. Those bottoms cannot be inhabited, neither the soil cultivated in consequence of the frequent overflows. None have the claim or right to prevent the citizens of Kanesville and its vicinity from going to the said cottonwoods to get what wood and timber they choose, provided they go north of Council Point bend. We consider that that timber land which is liable to overflow by the Missouri, and cannot be cultivated or inhabited, subject to the use and benefit of the public after going north of the above named bend. This was the understanding in the beginning, and it should remain so. Those who have settled on the table lands on the bottoms can go to the cottonwoods and get all they need, but they have no right to prevent any one else from doing the same: for the citizens of Kanesville have the original right and claim, and there should be an open lane or free passage to the cottonwoods, and not be obstructed by any fence.

Wanted in Exchange for the Guardian.

Pork, beef, butter, eggs, lard, mutton, chickens, potatoes, onions, flour, common fence rails, lumber, cord wood and even cash or California Gold Dust, will not be particularly objected to.

The Kanesville goods are landed at Linden, and and will have to be hauled here by land, as we are informed.

Negro Thieves and Runaways.

On Sunday, the 21st inst., two gentlemen came to our town from Fort Leavenworth in pursuit of some run-away negroes that had stolen four or five horses from the Fort.

After making some little inquiry, they concluded not to pursue any further; but requested us to get on their track if we could.

We sent immediately to the Upper Ferry to make inquiry, and soon Mr. Hewett, the Ferryman, came down and told us that about three hours after night, of Saturday the 13th inst., a little more than a week previous to the time their pursuers were here, four negroes came on the opposite side with five good horses and wanted to cross. Mr. Hewett crossed them; but was very suspicious of them that all was not right, and questioned them very closely. They were all dressed in robes and blankets like Indians. But one of them spoke. The others pretended not to understand English.

They claimed to be Indian traders—two woman were along, and it was said they were Souix Squaws. They were all fixed off with feathers in regular Indian style. The negro that spoke claimed to be a half Breed Indian. He said they were going down to Kanesville and thence to Liberty, Clay co., Mo. Their furs had gone down the Platte river, &c. He said he was well acquainted with Mr. Hyde, the Editor of the Guardian, and mentioned several others of our citizens that he was acquainted with. At this, Mr. Hewett began to think that nothing was wrong. We have seen the negro several times—he has been at our office when he lived at Trading Point.

They were seen at Indian Town, forty-five miles from this place—eastward; making their way towards the Mississippi river, through Pigs, or near there; and will probably, either make their resting place in the neighborhood of Fort Desmoine, or proceed on to Burlington or Fort Madison.

Tithing.

It should be bourn in mind by every one that wishes to honor the law of the Church in the prompt payment of his tithing, that it is his duty to pay it into the hands of the Bishop or where he shall direct, and no where else. There are those who stand ready to divert the tithing from its proper channel, and to appropriate it without the consent of the Bishop. This should not be so. We have our instructions from the Valley how to appropriate the tithing.

Fine Weather.

Indian Summer has set in, and it is more dry and pleasant than the white man's summer has been. But we hope our good friends will not be so busy about other things that they will forget to thrash and go to mill: for if they are not out of bread, we are. In fact, we are hard up. We wish you would bring us a little flour and stop our noise; we mean such as have promised, and we would not refuse it from those that have not promised.

It is hard to make newspapers without bread or mails. When we ask for bread, we know you wont give us a stone.

No Mails.

To spin out almost a whole newspaper without the aid of a mail, is next to winding the bobbin. Through the kindness of the Postmaster at Austin, we get now and then what mail comes to us by his office, but not without sending for it at our own expense, or by begging the question. Then, when all our own yarn is spun, columns about full, and the day arrived to issue, here comes a whole bundle of news—can't wait to set up new matter—all in a fix—no backing out. Well, here we go! We have done the best we could, and if any body can do better, let him go ahead.

Justice.

We have been afflicted and disturbed for some time in our town by a set of very unruly boys, till at length, their parents neglecting to curb them, the civil authorities had them arrested and tried, and one of the ring leaders fined twenty-five dollars and cost of suit. Experience has proven to us that the parties complained of received the full benefit of that gospel which alone would bring them to a sense of propriety.

There is now a precedent established, and it is hoped that all others that have made themselves rather notorious in their exploits, will take warning, and draw in a little, lest some more get what they richly merit as the one that was fined yesterday. If parents will not control their boys and keep them in order so that the quiet citizen and the unoffending stranger may rest in peace without being disturbed by yells as though a pack of wolves had been let loose upon them, we really hope and pray that they will leave our town.

Look at This.

The Constitution of the State of Deseret, just [illegible] form, with the Memorial of the Legislature of that State to the Congress of the United States for admission into the Union. Price 10 cents.

A Word to the Wise.

While ungodly men whose canine stomachs can only be satisfied with the developement of the great wickedness and corruptions of the Western Mormons, and their secret and wicked combinations against the nation made known; and appear to hunger and thirst after such delicate morsels to an extent, that leads them to call for more and more as though they had no relish for any other kind of food; let it be your prayer that you may have the Holy Spirit in your hearts—that you may hunger and thirst after righteousness, and be a little more heavenly minded than to descend, like the buzzard, to the putrid carcase, or to the real or imaginary faults of any people. Serve your God with integrity and your country with fidelity when she needs your services, and let your own life and example prove to the world that you are true men, and false ones will thereby be made manifest.

Early Rising.

Mark the man that lies in bed till after the sun has risen. You will most likely see him running about to find something to eat, and will wish to buy it on credit. But he that eats his breakfast before the sun shines upon his house will have plenty therein to take a lunch between meals.

AUCTION.—On Saturday next, we hear that Maj. Barrow, the Indian Agent, will offer for sale at this place to the highest bidder, a lot of steel and iron, shovels and spades, harness, &c., &c., chains and plows, besides some oxen and cows.

J. W. Tootle & Co., of Savannah, Mo.,

Have just received an extensive assortment of goods of every kind, quality and description, which they offer at low prices. This is no fiction, but a reality. If you don't believe it, just call and see if they have not a few things more than you ever thought of, and at prices too that would induce, even a miser to lay in a stock for his grand children. If they will furnish us a bill of particulars, we will insert it in our next.

We would say to the citizens of Highland Grove, near Nichtenabotna, to be of good cheer; and let all your neighborhood laws come within the limits of the Statute of the State: and if some poor self-willed character that has been expelled from the church, and has been frequently seen riding upon the grey pony into a certain hollow noted for the secret manufactory of some article, tries to make disturbance among you, just let him severely alone; mind your own business, and live as becometh Saints of God, and let the dogs do the quarreling and growling, and you will be blest and prospered in your lawful rights, and protected in the enjoyment of them. An underhanded game does very well for a knave, but an honest man has little occasion for any such low intrigue.

HIGHLAND GROVE, Oct. 11, 1849.

Meeting appointed on the 3d inst., and met on the 11th agreeable to appointment by the first settlers of Highland Grove and Nichtenabotna; and by unanimous vote appointed, Geo. W. Oman, Chairman, and Wm. Burrows, Secretary. The Chairman called the house to order, and stated the object of the meeting which was for the purpose of sustaining each settler on his claim agreeable to the Statute Law of the State of Iowa. Nominated by the Chairman, and unanimously voted James S. Watson, Isaac H. Losee and Calvin Beebee as a standing committee, whose business shall be to notify intruders on claims, and call meetings from time to time, when considered necessary.

ARTICLE 1st.—Resolved and unanimously voted that each claimant shall be entitled to 160 acres of timber, and the same quantity of prairie.

ART. 2.—Resolved, that any person settling on a claim and not intruding on another shall be considered a real claimant making the necessary landmarks or setting stakes so as to designat his or their claims according to the law of said State.

ART. 3.—Resolved, that the limits of this neighborhood shall extend west to the Nichtenabotna river; east to Walnut Creek; south six miles; north to the extent of the settlement at this time.

ART 4th.—Resolved, it shall be the duty of the Committee to receive such settlers names into this neighborhood, as wish to attach themselves to, and come under this organization.

ART. 5th—Resolved, that a copy of the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Guardian.

Signed by James S. Watson, Isaac K. Losee, Calvin Beebee, David Burrows, Jacob Anderson, Geo. W. Greaybill, Anders Peterson, and John Oman.

GEO. W. OMAN, Chairman.

WM. BURROWS, Sec'y.

Mammoth Squash.

On Saturday last, we were presented with a squash, by Mr. Solon Foster, of his own raising weighing 115 pounds. Who can beat this? Bring on your big pumpkins and Squashes, and let us see what Pottawatamie can do.

Another from Mr. Shearer—weighing 80 pounds.

For the Guardian.

A Thought on Charity.

Charity is constitutionally a principle of love and forbearance. It is not benevolence as many suppose; neither is it humility, or a willingness to suffer; nor yet is it power to to do mighty works; but a disposition or feeling to love our fellow man, and to bear with his faults and imperfections. Hence the Apostle says: "Charity suffereth long and is kind * * * is not easily provoked; thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things," &c., and after some further explanation of this principle he says: "Follow after charity." This duty is therefore enjoined upon us; and the propriety of it may be found to exist in the very nature and constitution of mankind as they have sprung from the hand of the Creator. To love all mankind is an office work of charity—a duty on us—an incitement of nature:—but the follies and improprieties of men are often so great that our hatred is excited towards them but not justly towards the man. Our anger, and our pity may justly rise, but not our hatred. He is a kindred to us, as much so as the angels in heaven are kindred there; and he has a claim upon our love as a fellow creature in like state of being with ourselves. Hence when we see a brother in fault or crime, we will pity and not hate, and let him redeem himself with the full assurance that by virtue of this Godlike principle he can yet enjoy friends and favor with his fellow man.

Forbearance is also an office work of charity—a duty on us, as the effect of love and the like imperfection of our mortal existence here. We may understand this characteristic of charity at once by applying it to ourselves. When we see ourself in a fault, or crime we begin to be sorry that it is so, and we wish to form some excuse or reason, to justify the commission of the deed, as much as possible. We can say that man is imperfect and liable to do wrong. This is true. We can perhaps further say that our motive was good, there was no harm intended. All this, and more, will ruminate in the mind to palliate the feelings. Yes; we will even resolve to do better; and feel that we are just; when indeed, if the facts were all known we should be ashamed, if not punished. And yet we wish to count ourselves just. How much more readily ought we to be to count a brother just, when we know not his motive nor his cause. Let us see well that our own imperfections do not lead us to judge rashly, as our brothers did him to do wrongfully, and our fault thus become as great or greater than his. Rather take him by the hand and help him out of the pit—speak kind words unto him and cheer his heart. His friendship may be better than gold. Follow after charity—it is manly—it is Godlike. B.

STEAMBOATS BURNT.—Telegraphic despatches were received here from New Orleans, yesterday morning, announcing that the steamer Illinois with all her downward cargo, the Marshal Ney and three other steamboats, were burnt at the Levee, on the evening of the 8th inst. It is presumed from the tenor of one of the despatches, that the cargo of the Ney was also lost. Her hull is reported to have sunk. No lives were lost. The names of the other boats destroyed were not received, nor any further particulars in relation to the fire. The Illinois and Marshal Ney and the most of their cargoes were insured in the different offices in this city.

A further despatch received last evening from New Orleans, which we publish in another column, informs us that the American and Falcon were the boats destroyed making four boats burnt instead of five, as first announced.

The America was from this port, but we believe, was owned on the Ohio. She was one of the largest and most splendid boats on this river. And the Falcon, we learn, was entirely new having just reached New Orleans, from Louisville, on her first trip. The loss by the destruction of the boats alone, will not fall short of $115,000 or $125,000, beside the amounts of the cargoes destroyed. —[St. Louis Organ.

DIED,

In this town, on Friday the 25th inst., PHEBE B., wife of C. C. Pendleton, Esq., aged 29 years.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

COWS AND CALVES FOR SALE!

STRAYED from the subscriber about the 10th of September last, two cows; one a pale red lined backed, I (believe,) with a cross off the right ear, three year old and well-grown—the other, same mark and age but a deeper red and white face—I think not large for a three old. I purchased them of Steward & Moody, below Keg Creek, and I expect they have bent their course back. Any person who will inform me of their whereabouts, or deliver them to me, shall be well paid for their trouble. S. M. BLAIR.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

The Barberous Notice.

THE subscriber having opened a shop in Kanesville, takes this method of informing the gentlemen of the town and vicinity, and the traveler, that they can be shaved at all reasonable hours. Hair cut and dressed at the following prices:

Twice a week, for shaving, only 50 cents per month. An addition of fifteen cents for hair cutting.

My monthly customers can have their hair dressed at all times for a party gratuitously.

Traveling customers, single shave, 10 cents. Hair cutting, fifteen cents. W. A. WESTON.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Partnership existing between the undersigned under the firm of BROWN & BARHAM, is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

The St. Joseph accounts will be settled by Mr. Barham; the St. Louis accounts by Mr. Brown.

THOMAS D. BROWN.
JAMES BARHAM.

Attest: ELI B. KELSEY.

N. B. Mr. Barham will continue business at the old stand.

Kanesville, Oct. 29, 1849.

DAY BOARDING.

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

No lodgings or stabling furnished.

JOHN GOOCH, JR.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1849.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4th, 5 P. M.

The Canada arrived at Halifax yesterday morning at 9½ o'clock, making the passage in less than ten days.

Comorn, although besieged, still holds out and can defy the besiegers one entire year. The influence of Russia and Austria has been exerted to compel the Porte to surrender the Hungarian chiefs who had taken refuge in Turkey, but letters from Constantinople state that this has been positively refused.

England.

The weather has been very wet in England, but has not materially affected the crops. The late downward tendency in the corn market has been checked, and a slight advance has taken place; this reaction has been caused by the unfavorable reports of the potatoe disease. Hop-picking in England had been disastrous, and great efforts were made by the hop-growers to procure relief from government. A favorable change has taken place in the bills of mortality from cholera throughout England, the cases have declined one-half. Since the announcement of the disease 13,000 persons have been swept away in London. In Ireland the potatoe disease is beyond doubt extending into several districts, although it has not by any means become general.

Turkey.

Honor to Ab Del Moschit! Honor to the Turkish ministry! They have nobly done their duty, and have refused to become panders to the vindictive bloodthirstiness of Joseph.

Austria and Hungary.

Comorn was well provisioned, and garrisoned by 30,000 men, in a state of complete discipline. The officers held a meeting, and resolved by a large majority not to surrender. According to Vienna journals 80,000 men are to besiege Comorn. The bombardment was to commence on the 13th, when the Austrians occupied a great part of the Island Schute without resistance, but part of the Hungarians were strongly entrenched before the Fortress, and expected to give the Austrians battle.

It is rumored in Vienna that Bem had fallen into the hands of the Russians. A number of Hungarian officers had been put to death at Arad and Tenisvar, some by hanging.

Russian ambassadors from Nicholas had demanded at Constantinople the surrender of the Hungarian officers—Kossuth, Dembinski, Descyel, Messmarasses, and their companions. A Russian General had also arrived, his mission being to bully the Sultan into compliance with their demand. The Turkish Government resolved not to surrender the refugees to either the Russian or Austrian Government. This decision being communicated to the Sultan, he declared in the most expressive and determined manner, that the refugees should not be given up, let consequences be what they might. We trust, says the leading London paper, that Lord Palmerston will do his duty as nobly as the Sultan has done his—that Russia and Austria will be given to understand that war with Turkey for such a cause, means war with England. We are rejoiced to find that Kossuth and his compatriots are furnished with passports from the English Ambassador, and trust that every assistance will be given to support the independence of the Sultan against the attacks of Russia and the vassals of Austria."

The latest intelligence to the London Sun announces that Peterwardein surrendered to the Imperial troops on the 5th ult., part of the Magyars decided to hold out still, but a majority overruled them.

Summary.

The Pope has quitted Gaeta, and proceeded to Naples, where his reception was of the most striking and popular character; he will not go to Rome for the present.

The cholera is committing serious ravages at Trieste.

News is daily expected from Morocco, where the Spanish and French Generals seemed likely to produce something more than a mere demonstration. The Moors were expected to make an attack on Massila, having already cut off the supplies.

The newly appointed Ministry were assembling at Madrid, but no notice seems to be taken of events relative to Cuba.

ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA.

One week Later From Europe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12, 7, P. M.

The Steamer Caledonia has arrived at Boston—nothing had been heard of the Express: the wires are down beyond Boston.

Austria and Hungary.

Nothing has transpired in relation to the resolution of the Sultan not to yield the Hungarian refugees to the demands of Austria and Russia, except that Russian officers of high rank had arrived at Constatinople to demand their extradition; no doubt but that requisite facilities can be furnished the Hungarians to go out of the Turkish dominions and proceed to whatever point they may chose. The latest intelligence from Vienna extends to the 23d. Comorn had not surrendered and nothing important is reported from that fortress; a sally was made on the 9th and some advantage obtained over the Imperialists. Nothing definite has yet arrived in regard to Hungary; there does not appear to be any insurmountable difficulty in the way of a final pacification upon the basis of a complete union with Austria.

The Emperor of Russia had returned to St. Petersburgh, his troops gradually withdrawing within the Russian frontier.

France.

France enjoys perfect tranquility — there is no prospect of another political agitation at present. Mr. Rives, who succeeds Mr. Rush as Minister to the French Republic, has arrived at Paris.

Additional Foreign News.

NEW YORK, 13th Oct.—7 P. M.

Hungary.

The greatest confusion prevails at Comorn; the officers and men are in a desponding state, laboring under the conviction that resistance against the combined Russian and Austrian power is useless. Gorgey helped to increase this feeling. The London News condemns Gorgey's conduct, and states that Kossuth, Bem and Dembinski are at Wedden, in a state of positive destitution.

Accounts from constantinople, of 13th Sept. state that the Emperor of Russia employs no argument at the Sublime Porte for his demand for the delivery of the Polish and Hungarian refugees; but says that he will consider the escape of one of them as a "Casus Belli;" if the Sultan does not give the simple reply yes or no, he threatens to return to Cracow. The Sultan persists in his noble resolution, but a great majority of the Council is alarmed at the threatening tenor of Czar's note, consequently no official announcement of his demand has been made. There is reason to believe that the Turkish Government, urged on by the English and French Envoys, will reject the Emperor's demands, and it is supposed that he will put threats into execution, should the answer prove a negative. Sixty thousand Turkish troops are concentrated around Constantinople, but the English fleet could not reach the "Golden Horn" in less than fifteen to seventeen days, while the Russian fleet could be in the Bosphorus in twenty-four hours. The greatest anxiety prevails among all classes. British subjects are among the refugees confined in Wedden. Private letters confirm the report of the Sultan's decision not to surrender the refugees.

Letters from Vienna state on good authority that Comorn would surrender.

Reports prevailed that Bem died of his wounds at Wallachia.

The Austrian government still detains Kossuth's wife and children in custody.

Late from California.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—7, P. M.

The Empire City arrived to-day from Chagres, and brings $700,000 in Gold. The U. S. Steamer Empire was lost on 26th of August, on Point Conception.

The steamer Falcon arrived at New Orleans an Friday from Chagres and left the next day with 75 passengers for the same port. The Falcon brought $70,000 in gold and a large mail, with 47 passengers. The dates from San Francisco are to September the 1st. Lieut. Beale, U. S. A., bearer of despatches, arrived at San Francisco and proceeded immediately to the Head Quarters of General Smith. Thos. Butler King, and General Riley had been sick, but were recovering. The Convention to form a constitution assembled at Monterey on the 31st of August. The steamer Panama arrived at Panama on the 22d ult., with half a million of gold and 150 passengers. Commodore Jones commands in the Pacific.

STEAM BOAT SUNK.—The officers of the Amelia report that the Steamer Tamerlane, from St. Louis for St. Joseph, on the 11th inst., struck a snag, about 45 miles below Lexington and sunk — boat and cargo total loss. The Tamerlane had on board several large shipments of freight for merchants of this town, nearly all of which were insured. No lives lost.

Communication with the Pacific.

We learn that the attention of London merchants and capitalists has again been awakened to the subject of a communication with the Pacific, across the narrow strip of land which unites North and South America. A pamphlet has just been published on the subject by Capt. Liot, colonial superintendent of the West India Royal Mail Steam-packet Company. This gentleman, in company with Mr. McGeachey, the crown surveyor of Jamaica, examined the Isthmus of Panama in 1845, and then came to the conclusion that the most feasible mode of connecting the two oceans would be by making a macadamized or wagon road in New Grenada, from Porto Bello on the Atlantic side, forty miles south of Chagres, to Panama on the Pacific. Capt. Liot estimated the cost—road from forty to fifty miles in length—at £400,000 or $2,000,000, and he calculated the profits from trafic at from $300,000 to $500,000 a year. He gives the foundation of these calculations in detail. Messrs. Howland and Aspinwall's project of a railroad has now superseded the plan of Capt. Liot.

The railroad undertaken by the American capitalists is regarded with intense interest by the English, who conceive that the profits which are sure to accrue would authorize the construction of another route. The one selected, or rather suggested, by them, it is said, combines the profits of great passenger traffic with the development of vast natural resources. It is a road from Greytown, at the mouth of the San Juan, to Lake Nicaragua, and thence to Realejo, in that State, or to the port of Salinas, in Costa Rica. This is almost identical with the route of the New York and New Orleans company, in their agreement with the State of Nicaragua to make a canal communication between the two oceans. We foresee that this latter route, which has unusual facilities for navigation, will one day or other be a strong rival to the Chagres and Panama railroad. The project of communication across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, however, is that which offers the greatest advantages to New Orleans. What immense interests have been involved in the late Mexican war! Five years will not have elapsed since its conclusion, when the great desideratum of centuries—the connexion of the two oceans—will probably be supplied, thrice over, by railway and canal.—[N. O. Picayune.

BILLY BOWLEGS, the Seminole chief, has sent a white flag to the commandant at Tampa Bay, expressing a desire for peace, and proposing to hold a council at the next full moon. It is now generally believed that the difficulties will soon be over, and that the parties in the late outrage will be surrendered. The United States troops, three hundred in number, would await at Fort Brooke the result of the council.

ARMED EMIGRANTS TO CALIFORNIA IN MEXICO.—The National Intelligencer, of yesterday, contains a correspondence between the Mexican Envoy at Washington and the Secretary of State relative to outrages committed by parties of armed Americans passing through Mexico for California. Senor de la Rosa says that at Paso, in the State of Chihuahua, numerous parties have entered the country without passports, destroyed the fields of grain of the peaceful inhabitants, and insulted the Mexican officers so far as to oblige them to place guards for the protection of their houses. In some cases, these adventurers have fired upon the people, under pretense that they have been robbed of beasts of burden. In consequence, the Mexican Government has given orders for arming the people of the settlements, and, in future, unless such parties submit to the laws of the country, they will be pursued like highway robbers, and, if apprehended duly tried for their offences. If a bloody encounter should ensue in consequence, Mexico will have done no more than use her legitimate right of resistance to aggression. The Envoy, however, hopes that the United States will order such measures as will prevent these excesses, and obviate the danger of conflict.

Mr. Clayton, in reply, says he has handed the Envoy's letter to the Secretary of War, with a recommendation that orders to meet the case should be issued. Mr. Crawford, in a letter to Mr. Clayton, says that the U. S. Government cannot interfere in the matter. It has encouraged and must still encourage an armed emigration to the Pacific, and if the emigrants go across the Mexican frontier to do mischief, Mexico must treat them like any other criminals that she catches; they must abide the consequences of their rashness and violence. Mr. Crawford suggests finally that if Mexico objects to armed parties crossing her territory, she should give due notice to that effect.

A London letter in the Philadelphia North American says:

"The heroic Bem and the immortal Kossuth have arrived safely at Adrianople, on their way to England. They will be warmly welcomed here. They intend to settle in the United States."

A traveller on the eastern railroad yesterday, had his leg broken by imprudently putting it between two cars. The "snap" was distinctly heard by the passengers around, yet, to the surprise of some, the man walked into the ferry boat, with the aid of a cane. He obstinately refused to have a surgeon who was in the cars, examine his injured limb, asserting as a reason that no professional man could do it any good, as it was made of white ash.—[Bee.

SLAVES IN DIFFERENT COUNTRIES.—The following is said to be a correct statement of the number of slaves in the following countries: United States, 3,095,000; Brazil, 3,250,000; Spanish colonies, 900,000; Dutch colonies, 85,000; South American Republics, 145,000; African settlements, 30,000; total, 7,500,000.

TEHUANTEPEC.—A wagon road across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec is about to be prosecuted forthwith, and is expected to serve a valuable end. It will effect a saving of distance between the Atlantic seaboard and California, as compared with the Chagres route, of about 1,700.

DECREASE OF POPULATION IN IRELAND.—A letter was read in one of our city churhes yesterday, from the paster of a parish in Ireland, stating the alarming fact, that the population of his parish has decreased, in four years, fully one-half! The number of persons in his parish in 1845 exceeded 9,000 souls; while, by a census recently and accurately taken, the number was found to be only 4,500. This great falling-off is attributed to famine, starvation, or consequent disease; while but a very small number have been able to escape these miseries, or the sight of them, by emigration. Unhappy Ireland.—[St. Louis Organ.

GOLD.—A correspondent of the London Times, says: "It will hardly be believed that the whole quantity of gold currency in the world, taking it at its usual estimate of 150,000,000 sterling, would only weigh about 1,150 tons; and that in bulk a room 20 feet long, 12 feet wide, and 10 feet high, would hold it all."

GREAT CURIOSITY.—We learn from a western paper that in some parts of Ohio the original straw with which Mr. Polk sucked in the tariff men of Pennsylvania is being exhibited, and is regarded as a great curiosity.—[Philadelphia News.

Oscar, King of Sweden, has turned teetotaler, and is sending teetotal missionaries throughout his country to show the blessing of temperance.

THE FRANKLIN EXPEDITION.—Every one will be concerned to hear that a despatch has arrived at the admiralty from Sir John Richardson, without any news of Sir John Franklin. The expedition has traversed the coast from the Mackenzie and Coppermine rivers; but the Esquimaux all declared that no white men had made their appearance. Unfortunately the ice set in unusually strong, and prevented the expedition from proceeding beyond Icy Cove, to the north of Cape Kendal, just as it was on the point of exploring a most interesting region. Thus, for the present, all hope is cut off of discovering the loss voyagers. Our only consolation is in the gain of science, for the search of Captain Franklin has brought to light many interesting facts respecting the inhospitable regions of Arctic America.—[London paper, Aug. 11.

MORMON HOSPITALITY.—From losses of crops and consequently of cattle at the Salt Lake, it is not to be supposed that the Mormons there had the means of furnishing supplies in much abundance to the California emigrants. Notwithstanding this deficiency, the Mormons did supply these emigrants with many articles of provisions and some cattle—extending their hospitality in a manner so kind and liberal, without any compensation, as to draw the warmest acknowledgments from those who had benefitted by their timely and generous aid.—[St. Louis Organ.

Miscellaneous Items.

At the last accounts Louis Napoleon was an invalid, not having recovered from his illness, at Havre.

The French Ministry are making great efforts to pay off Louis Phillippe's private debts. They have sold quite number of his forests, at his request.

Prince John, of Saxony, is about to give one of his daughters, in marriage, to the Duke of Genoa, and another to the Duke of Genoa, and another to the Emperor of Austria.

The return of the Pope of Rome, appears to be indefinitely postponed.

The Queen, at last dates, was at her Highland home of Balmoral, in Scotland. It has been improved very much, and now resembles Abbottsford.

In the English fashionable world, mourning, for the nearest relatives is not worn longer than for eight or ten months.

The cholera has assumed a menacing character in Vienna.

The name of Kossuth, pronounced properly, is Cough-shoot. Mayger is pronounced Medjor.

The wife of Garibaldi has died of excessive fatigue, endured to save her husband.

The Pope is dangerously sick at Gaeta, and his body is swollen as if by poison.

The Bey of Tunis has in his service two Christian ministers, Messrs. Raffo and Bogia.

Georgey's wife is a French woman, and was governess in the family of a banker of Prague.

Mrs. Manning, charged with the murder of one O'Connor, whose body she concealed under the hearth stone, and who it was supposed had sailed with her husband for America, has been arrested—at Edinburgh we infer from the report—and conveyed to London. Articles and money known to be in his were found in her possession.

CUBA HUNTERS TURNED LOOSE.—Since the discovery of their plans, the Cuba Hunters in New York, have been turned loose to shift for themselves. On Friday evening some twenty-five young men, who stated that they belonged to the expedition, applied at one of the police stations for lodgings, having been turned from the house where they boarded because of having no funds.

INCREASE OF POPULATION.—In 1835, only fourteen years ago, there were not 5,000 white inhabitants between Lake Michigan and the Pacific ocean. Now there are nearly 1,000,000.

Modesty is to the female character, what saltpetre is to beef; while it preserve its puity, it imparts a blush.

MORTALITY AMONG THE FISH.—The Board of Health of the city of Baltimore have found it necessary to provide scows to collect and convey away the fish, which are found dead in great numbers in the harbor, from Federal Hill down to the Fort. The mortality is attributed to the refuse from the chemical works and manufacturing establishments, which have only of late been deposited there.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store, hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

MEAT! MEAT!!

WANTED—I want to purchase beef cattle, on the hoof, for which I will pay $2 per hundred. Also want to purchase fattened hogs, sheep, calves, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

Persons wishing meat can have it left at their residences on Tuesdays and Saturdays of each week. Meat constantly on hand at the Slaughter House. A share of the public patronage is solicited.

JOSEPH WARTHAN.

Kanesville, Oct. 17, 1849.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that I the undersigned have obtained from the Judge of Probate Court, of Fremont county, letters of administration upon the Estate of F. Benoist, deceased, bearing date the 4th day of October, 1849. That all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against said estate are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate; and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred.

T. S. BENOIST,
Admistrator.

St. Francis, Pottawatamie Co., Iowa, Oct. 4, 1849. 3t*

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by

JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRESH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

SUGAR AND COFFEE—for sale at July 25th C. VOORHIS'.

IMPERIAL GUN POWDER AND YOUNG HYSON TEAS—for sale at VOORHIS'.

SUGAR HOUSE MOLASSES—for sale by jy 25 VOORHIS.

VINEGAR—at. jy25 VOORHIS'.

BUTTER CRACKERS—at jy25 VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate artilce at jy25 VOORHIS'.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Herdware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and rising Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention. There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

BLUFF HOUSE.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

ABEL LAMB, respectfully informs the traveling community and the citizens generally that he has fitted up his house on Main Street, in the best manner for a public House, and is now prepared to attend to all who may favor him with their patronage. And he hopes by strict attention to business, to merit and receive a share of the public patronage. Charges reasonable.

Also constantly for sale GROCERIES and PROVISIONS of all kinds.

Kanesville, July 11, 1849.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the han opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Jeosph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

STILL THEY COME.

NEW GOODS

AT

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON'S

STORE,

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON has just received a choice selection of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARD-WARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

Mr. Ferguson resding most of his time in St. Louis, we are enabled to watch the market, and select the goods at the best possible advantage. We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident we have one of the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

MACKEREL—Just opened, a choice article, by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Sattinetts, Tweeds, Jeans; &c., for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

RICE, Peaches and apples at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

CURRANTS—A large lot of dried currants at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS

HERRING—A few boxes of good dried herring, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MOLASSES—Several bbls. good Sugar House Molasses, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, for for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PAINTS—White and colored paints, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TIN WARE—A variety, just rec'd by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SCYTHES, trace chains and cow bells, at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BONNETS—An assortment of Tuscan an Leghorn bonnets, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot, just rec'd at aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HATS—Bl'k silk and Gen. Taylor hats—a variety, for sale by aug 8 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

LEATHER.

A LARGE quantity of Harness Bridle and Leather; Deer and Calf Skins, for sale cheap at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS Store.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

WINDOW GLASS AND PUTTY—For sale by [jy25] VOORHIS.

WHITE LEAD IN OIL—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)

St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand,

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jy25 VOORHIS.

MADDER, ALUM, COPPERAS AND INDIGO—for sale by [j25] VOORHIS.

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets

St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 1y

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch.

DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

Lines said to be composed by Dr. Watts, on the occasion of losing his sweet-heart, by the rival hand of Mr. Bendish:

Why should our joys transform to pain,
Why gentle hymen silken chain,
A plague of iron prove.
Bendish 'tis strange, the charm that binds,
Millions of hands should leave their minds,
At such a loose from love.

In vain I sought th e wondrous cause,
R uged the wide fie ds of nature's laws,
And urged the e'ves s in vain;
Till deep with thought within my breast,
My soul retired and slumber dressed,
A bright instructive scene.

'Ore the broad lands and cross the tide,
On fancy's airy horse I ride,
Sweet raptures of the mind;
Till on the banks of Ganges' flood,
In a tall ancient grove I stood,
For sacred use designed.

Hard by a venerable priest,
Risen by his God, the sun to rest,
Awoke his morning song;
Thrice he conjured the murmuring stream,
The birth of souls was all his theme,
And half divine his tongue.

He sung the eternal rolling flame,
That vital mass that's still the same,
Does all our minds compose;
Then shaped in twice ten thousand frames;
Then differing souls of differing names,
And jarring tempers rose.

The Almighty power that formed the mind,
One mould for every two designed,
And blest the new born pair;
This be a match, for this he said;
Then down he sent the souls he made,
To seek them bodies here.

But parting from their warm abode,
They lost their fellows on the road,
And never joined their hands;
Ah! cruel chance and crossing fates,
Our Eastern souls have dropt their mates,
On Europe's barberous land.

Happy the youth that finds a bride,
Whose birth is too his own allied;
The sweetest joys of life.
But oh! the crowds of wretched souls,
Fettered to minds of differing moulds,
And chained to eternal strife.

Thus sang the wondrous Indian bard,
My soul with vast attention heard,
While Ganges ceased to flow;
Sure, then I cried, might I but see,
Some gentle nymph that twined with me,
I might be happy too.

Some courteous angel tell me where,
What unknown land this distant fair,
Or distant seas detain;
Swift as the wheel of nature rolls,
I'd fly to meet and mingle souls,
And wear the joyful chain.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

First Day.

KANESVILLE, Iowa, Oct. 6, 1849.

A General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, convened at the Conference ground, a few rods north of the Tabernacle, this day, at two o'clock, P. M.

The brethren sung "From Greenlands Icy Mountains." Elder James Allred, Prest of the High Council of the Church, East of the Rocky Mountains, made some remarks relative to the general business of the Conference.

Elder Lyman Stoddard opened the Conference with prayer, when Elder James Allred was chosen Chairman of the Conference and E. M. Greene, clerk, and J. C. Wright was appointed marshal to keep order, upon the Conference ground, during the time of Conference.

Present of the High Council, James Allred, Ira Oviatt, Aaron Johnson, Geo. Coulson, Wm. Snow, James McLellan, Geo. W. Harris, Lyman Stoddard, Jacob G. Bigler, Henry W. Miller, N. S. Bulkley, Jerome M. Benson. Of the First Presidency of the Seventies, Joseph Young and Benj. Clapp.

Elder Benj. Clapp addressed the congregation followed by Elder Joseph Young with some very interesting and instructive remarks on various points of Doctrine.

Pres. James Allred made a few remarks and requested the marshal to see that some wagons prepared for a stand and also for seats for the musicians, and wished them to attend with their music to morrow, said he hoped we should have good order during the Conference, and he believed we should.

Some good remarks by Elder Geo. Coulson, when the Conference adjourned until to morrow at 10 o'clock, A. M.

E. M. GREENE,
Clerk of Conference.

Second Day.

KANESVILLE, Iowa, Oct. 7, 1849.

Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, the Conference convened pursuant to adjournment. The Marshal and his assistants were quite efficient in preparing seats for the council and musicians, as wagons came in that could be had. The morning was pleasant, and the sun shone beautifully, and it seemed like balmy summer. A large congregation was convened at an early hour, and was called to order by Prest. James Allred, at 10½ o'clock, A. M. The Band played and the choir sung, "On the Mountain Top Appearing."

Prest. Jas. Allred made some very appropriate remarks on order, and relative to the business of the day.

The band played again, and prayer was pronounced by Elder Wm. Snow.

The band again played, and the choir sung "My God the spring of all my joys"

Wm. Snow, moved to sustain Brigham Young, First President in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The motion carried by a full vote.

It was then moved to sustain H. C. Kimball, First counsellor to Brigham Young, &c. Carried by a full vote.

It was then moved to sustain Willard Richards, Second counseller to Brigham Young, and general Recorder and Historian for the Church. This motion was also carried by a full vote.

Next the Twelve Apostles, Orson Hyde, Parley P. Pratt, Orson Pratt, Wilford Woodruff, John Taylor, Geo. A. Smith, Amasa Lyman, Ezra T. Benson, C. C. Rich, Erastus Snow, Lorenzo Snow, Franklin D. Richards, were each tried, and the Conference voted unanimously to sustain them in the Apostleship. John Smith as Patriarch, and N. K. Whitney as Bishop over the whole Church were sustained by a full vote.

Then the votes was tried for each of the first seven Presidents of Seventies. Joseph Young, Levi Hancock, Henry Herriman, Zera Pulsifer, Albert P. Rockwood, Benj. L. Clapp and Jedediah M. Grant, and the Conference sustained them in their calling. The Conference then voted to sustain Orson Hyde as President of the Church in this region, and the High Council his counsellors.

The several members of the High Council, James Allred, Ira Oviatt, Aaron Johnson, Geo. Coulson, William Snow, James McLellan, Geo. W. Harris, Lyman Stoddard, J. G. Bigler, Henry W. Miller, Noah S. Bulkley and Jerome M. Benson, were severally tried and the Conference voted to sustain them unanimously.

Aaron Johnson was then sustained by a full vote as Bishop in this region.

Wm. Snow was also sustained President of the Quorum of High Priests, and J. S. Clark was sustained Prest. of the Elders Quorum, and Wm. Draper, Sen., was sustained Patriarch in the Church.

Joseph Young, Lyman Stoddard, Benj. L. Clapp, J. M. Benson, D. D. Hunt and C. M. Johnson were sustained traveling missionaries among the branches, after some remarks relative to that point by several. It was then proposed to send an agent for the Church to New Orleans, when it was proposed to defer it until Prest Orson Hyde should return, after some remarks by E. B. Kelsey and L. N. Scovil, it was voted to send an agent immediately to assist the emigrants from the old countries who are on their way to Zion, and Br. L. N. Scovil was chosen said agent by a full vote, and the Conference voted to sustain him and the emigrating brethren with their prayers and faith.

The band played and the choir sung, "The Spirit of God like a fire is burning," and the Conference adjourned until 2 o'clock, P. M.

Dismissed by Geo. Coulson.

2 o'clock, P. M., the Conference convened pursuant to adjournment. Called to order by Bishop Aaron Johnson.

The band played a tune, and prayer by Bish. Aaron Johnson. Prest. James Allred made a few appropriate remarks relative to the business of the Conference that had been done and what was still to do.

Councillor Geo. Coulson made some very appropriate remarks relative to taxes, taxation and the organization of the county, showing explicitly that Pottawatamie county was justly, truly and legally organized to all intents and purposes, and that every honest true hearted republican would come up and pay their taxes without putting the collector to the trouble, and themselves the expense of his having to go to visit them. He was followed by Br. C. M. Johnson the collector, who notified the people that those who did withhold their taxes; and if compelled to collect by distress he would be guided by the letter of the law to pay him for his trouble.

Bishop Aaron Johnson next spoke relative to tything, the Storehouse of the Lord, the repairing of the Tabernacle, &c., followed by Wm. Snow and Geo. Coulson, giving some good instruction.

Br. Snow spoke of a debt contracted a year ago this Conference to carry out the vote of the Conference in sending a mail to the Valley, said it had been due a long time and the man wanted his money, and called for a collection to pay it; the debt was $40, a collection of $11,45 were obtained, and the balance was given to the Bishop for the poor.

Councillor G. W. Harris spoke about the Tabernacle, followed by others.

Br. Harris then moved to repair it—carried.

Brs. H. W. Miller, Wm. Snow, and Lyman Stoddard, spoke relative to timber, that the brethren in these thick settlements where they were fratly compelled to settle in bodies, should not be deprived of the use of timber by a few claiming up all of it, but that all share it, using it with economy and prudence.

It was then moved that each man have a chance to get his firewood and necessary timber, (i. e.) in the thick settlements contiguous to Kanesville, in the nearest timber to him—carried by a unanimous vote.

Br. H. W. Miller moved that we hold it our imperative duty to pay our tything—carried by a unanimous vote.

Conference adjourned untill the 1st Sunday in next month.

Dismissed with prayer by Geo. Coulson.

JAMES ALLRED, Prest.
E. M. GREENE, Clerk.

PRUSSIAN BRUTALITY—An American in a Prussian Prison.—A letter from Basle Switzerland, dated August 13, to the Philadelphia Pennsylvanian, says that a citizen of Harrisburg, Pa., named Beck, is now imprisoned in the Fortress of Rostatt, by the Prussians, for some political offence, and that they are ready to relieve him on his giving guarantee that he will immediately leave for the United States and never return again to continental Europe. The same writer also adds:

"Only yesterday morning, in this neighborhood, in Frieburg, a young, intelligent, and literary man, named Neff, personally known to me, was shot, having been found guilty by a Prussian court martial of exciting, by writing, the people of Baden and Germany to be dissatisfied with the present form of government; and last, but not least of being in correspondence with the Democarts of France, Switzerland, and America! Upon these grounds, the man (only twenty-seven years of age, and only support of an aged mother,) was condemned and shot. He died like a man. When he arrived at the place of execution, he swung his hat and exclaimed in a loud voice, "Long live German Liberty—long live the German Republic!" These were his last words, and eight bullets entered his breast at the same instant. The executioners were as pale as death, whilst Neff looked cheerful."

DREADFUL RETRIBUTION.—Capt. Howard, who lived in concubinage with the woman whom his wife killed in Cincinnati, while smarting under her wrongs, some months since, has been brought to his end in consequence of another similar act of wrong doing. He was a week or two since, shot in St. Louis by a gentleman with whose wife he had taken improper liberties, and after lingering a few days, died in great agony. How true is it, that "the wicked shall not live out half their days."—[Keokuk Register.

MISCELLANY.

From the Spirit of the Times.

How to Obtain Subscribers—A Canvassing Sketch.

In the year 1830, we published a semi-weekly literary journal in the city of Detroit, and, at the commencement of our career "out thar' we employed a local traveling agent—one John D——, a fellow of infinite tact in his business, and ordinarily one of the merriest, happiest, best natured bipeds we ever yet met with. John had a way of obtaining subscribers, however, peculiarly his own; and his success was proverbial. If he undertook to get a man's name and subscription money, he got it—there was no dodging the issue, where he had resolved upon the thing.

John was a large, powerful man, standing six feet three, in his socks—and he feared nothing, in the performance of his duty; at times when a resort to the "tricks of his trade" was necessary, he was ever "at home," and his mimicry, smiling countenance, and capital address, always made him scores of friends at first sight. But John occasionally encountered a tough customer.

"You call that a paper?" exclaimed a rough big-fisted fellow, derisively one morning in a coffee-house where John was canvassing.

"Well I do," said John quietly.

"Oh, git out!" responded the bully.

"And you must subscribe, too—come!"

"Not you knows on," continued the other sneeringly. "It's a humbug!"

"What's a humbug?"

"That paper o'yourn."

"Come, now, my fine fellow, that won't do," added our agent not a little piqued. He always stood straight up for the paper. "That kind 'o talk ain't just the thing, my friend," continued John, for there were several persons present.

"I say it's a humbug," persisted the fellow; "an' you're another."

As the stranger got off this last remark, he approached the canvasser instantly, and offered some unmistakable demonstrations of a belligerent character.

John measured his customer a moment as he advanced, and drawing back, he very coolly knocked the insolent fellow down. Then grasping the rowdy by the throat—

"Is my paper a humbug!" asked John.

"Yes—cuss your pictur!"

"It is eh?" continued the agent, bringing the fellow a rap on the side of the sconce, which astonished him immensely, "It is—is it?" and again he cuffed him vigorously—and then again and again, until the bully began to believe that he had commenced operations upon the wrong individual.

"Is my paper a humbug?"

"N—n——no!" shrieked the fellow at last.

"What kind of a paper is it?"

"I dun no' ——'

"Yes you do," said John, raising his huge mawler over the other's head, in a threatening attitude and grinning a ghastly smile—"yes you do."

"Wal, le' me up" said the victim.

"I'll let you up, when you answer me."

"I tell you I dun 'no.'"

"I say you do," responded John, and again he raised that fearful fist, and showed his glistening teeth.

"Y—y——yes!" shouted the sufferer.

"What kind of a paper is it, then? Tell me, or I'll smash every bone in your ugly skin."

"It's a—a——its a——"

"Quick!"

"It's a goo—good—fuss rate one. Now, le' me up!"

"Not till you subscribe, old fellow."

"I wont!"

"You wont!" exclaimed John, looking daggers at the prostrate hero, while he grated his teeth like a mad catamount—and thrashed him violently upon the floor once more.

"I will!"

"For a year!" asked the agent.

"No."

"What then?"

"Six—six months."

"That'll be two dollars," said John; fork over the tin, there's no trust in this trade."

"Le' me up, I say."

"Not till you've paid your subscription."

"Wal, git off 'er me!"

"There," said John—who was naturally very accommodating—and at the same moment, he turned so that his subscriber could get his hand into his pocket. The latter actually drew forth his purse, counted out two dollars in silver, and the agent released him!

John took his address, wrote a receipt, and then invited his new made friend to take a drink. The other, nothing loth, joined him at once, for fear of giving further offence.

Then, getting up his specimen papers and other fixins, our canvasser turned toward his new subscriber, and with a bland smile of good nature remarked—

"I think you'll like my paper, friend."

"Yes—yes," responded the other,

"It's a capital paper."

"Yes," said the subscriber.

"An' you'll recommend it to your friends!"

"Yes," added the victim.

"It's a good paper."

"Yes——"

"I may say, a very good paper."

"Yes——"

"Good day, sir."

"Yes," continued the patron, abstractedly, as the canvasser departed; "but of you ain't one o' the agents we read about, then I haint no judge o' beeswax!" and rubbing one side of his crown—which had been but slightly damaged, as it happened, in the melee—he disappeared, resolved never again to interfere with the "power o' the press."

The maximum price of locofoco editors in the Illinois market, appears to be well established at $100.—[Quincy Whig.

It often falls out that he who thinks himself the master-wit is the master-fool.

Nothing is too good to be done. Nothing is too loving for the heart. Nothing is too thoughtful for the mind. Nothing is too powerful for the hand. There cannot be too much piety, too much patriotism, or too much philanthrophy.

Chart of Health.

Love.—A complaint of the heart growing out of an inordinate longing after something difficult to obtain. It generally attacks persons of both sexes between the ages of fifteen and thirty; some have been known to have it at the age of sixty.

Symptoms.—Absence of mind; giving things wrong names, calling tears nectar, and sighs zephyrs. A great fondness for poetry and music, gazing on the moon and stars, toothache, loss of appetite, neglect of business, loathing for all things save one; bloodshot eyes, and a constant desire to sigh.

Effects.—A strong heart burn, pulse high, stupidity, eloquent eyes, sleeplessness, and all that sort of thing. At times imagining bright bowers of roses, winged cupids and buttered peas; then again, oceans of despair, racks, tortures, and hair-triggered pistols.

Cure.—Get married.

A WIFE IN TROUBLE.—"I pray tell me, my dear, what is the cause of those tears?"

"O, such a disgrace!"

"What—what is it, my dear? Do not keep me in suspense."

"Why I have opened one of your letters, supposing it addressed to myself. Certainly it looked more like Mrs. than Mr."

"Is that all? What harm can there be in a wife's opening her husband's letter?"

"No harm in the thing itself, but the contents! Such a disgrace!"

"What! has any one dared to write me a letter unfit to be read by my wife?"

"O no. It is couched in the most chaste and gentlemanly language. But the contents! The contents!"

Here the wife buried her face in her handkerchief and commenced sobbing aloud, while the husband eagerly caught up the letter and commenced reading the epistle that had been the means of nearly breaking the wife's heart. It was a bill from the printer for nine years subscription!

A SHORT CONVERSATION.—The gentleman who perpetrated the following, expects to leave for California "on the first boat":

"Mr. Spriggins, I wish you would tell one of the boys to have the buggy in order for me to ride into the country this evening?" "My dear, you can't have the horse this evening. I shall be obliged to ride him to a funeral." "Always some excuse, Mr. Spriggins; I can never get an opportunity to leave the house—you wouldn't go to my funeral." "Nothing (suddenly brightening up) could afford me greater pleasure, I assure you, my dear!" "Oh, you!—where's the—!" Mr. Spriggins left.

THE HONEY MOON.—What is the honey-moon, and whence the name derived? It is traceable to a Teutonic origin. Among the Teutones was a favorite drink, called "metheglin." It was made of honey, and much like the present mead of the same name in European countries. The same beverage was in use among the Saxons, as well as another called "merat" which was also made of honey, but flavored with mulberries. The honied drinks were used in great abundance at festivals. Among the nobility the marriage was celebrated a whole lunar month, which was called a moon, during which the festival board was well supplied with the honey drink. Hence this month of festival was called the "honih moon," or honey moon, which means a month of festival.

TO CURE THE CHOLERA—BOSTON RECIPE.—Take two ounces of hen's milk, put in a hog's horn and stir it with a cat's feather, then divide the mass into pills as big as a piece of chalk about as long as a stick, and swallow them cross-wise—frequently.—[Post.

OPULENCE.—A rich officer of revenue one day asked a wit, what kind of a thing opulence was?

"It is a thing," replied the philosopher, "which can give a rascal the advantage over an honest man."

True courage is that which is not afraid of being thought afraid; the rest is counterfeit.

The Principal of an Academy, in his advertisement, mentioned his Female Assistant and the "reputation for teaching which she bears;" but the printer—careless fellow—left out the "which" so the advertisement went forth commending the lady's reputation for "teaching she-bears!"

A young lady from the country being invited to a party, was told by her city cousin to fix up and put her best foot foremost, in order to catch a beau, "she looks so green in her country attire." The country lass looked comically into the face of her rather jaded relative, and replied, "better green than withered."

EVERY AMERICAN ARTIST that goes to Rome, sends home a dozen or two of the beggars in the character of Apostles or Virgin Marys. A sturdy old fellow who blacks boots, has been painted twenty-eight times in the character of St. Paul, thirteen times as St. Peter, cannot remember how many times as a Roman Father, and as the Head of an Old Man at least a dozen times. He says "his religious expression" is worth two cents an hour more than any other man's in Rome.

SAD REFLECTIONS.—The Boston Post says: "We wish the Whig papers couldn't send us their "extras" filled with nothing but six or seven columns of government advertisements—they are not agreeable to our eyes—they remind us of "scenes once so charming" now "long banished."

Barnum has caught a printer with his pockets full of change, and is exhibiting him to crowded houses. So the papers go on to state.

The following are said to be the dates when the respective States entered the American Union:

Delaware, Debember 7, 1787; Pennsylvania, December 12, 1787; New Jersey, December 18, 1787; Georgia, January 2, 1788; Connecticut, January 9, 1788; Massachusetts, February 6, 1787; Maryland, April 28, 1788, South Carolina, May 23, 1788; New Hampshire, June 21, 1788; Virginia, June 26, 1788; North Carolina, November 20, 1789; Rhode Island, May 29 1790; Vermont; March 4, 1791; Kentucky, June 1, 1792; Tennessee, June 1, 1796; Ohio, November 26, 1802; Louisiana, April 8, 1812; Indiana, Decemer 11, 1816; Mississippi, December 10, 1817; Illinois, December 3, 1818; Alabama, December 4, 1819; Maine, March 15, 1820; Missouri, August 10, 1821; Arkansas, June 15, 1836; Michigan, June 20, 1837; Florida, March 7, 1844; Texas, December 29, 1845; Wisconsin, December 29, 1848; Iowa, 1849.

Plain Talk.

Mrs Swisshelm, of the Pittsburgh Saturday Visitor, goes for horsewhipping drunkards to reform them, and in answer to those who charge her for the want of womanly sympathy quotes the passage—"Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." Of the tippling shops and their victims she speaks after this fashion:

"If we were a man—if we were a voter—we would vote down the doggeries. As we are a woman, if we had a husband, father or brother, who was likely to become a victim to the serpent of the still, we would take the disease in time—in the first stages—and warn the dram seller within our reach, not to encroach on our hearth; and if they persisted we would burn down their groceries with as clear a conscience as we would make a fire to burn June-bugs and save our plums.

"This will be called incendiary doctrines; but desperate diseases want desperate remedies: and when our own happiness, and the life, and soul, and honor, of one dear to us, are at stake, it would not be well for the man who stood between us and his salvation, if we had concluded that salvation possible. We would never advise any other to such a remedy; for the remedy would be imprisonment for life; but we would consider this a positive blessing compared to lothing the bespotted face of one we had loved. To us there is no object on earth so lothesome, so hateful, so abominable as a drunkard. We would not live near one, for we should die of a sick stomach. It may be very angelic for a pure-minded, virtuous woman to love and caress a great drunken beast, but for our part we have not the slightest pretensions to being an angel. And the coil of an Anaconda would be quite as pleasant a corsage, as the entwining of a drunkard's arm. From the smell they have on the street, one would imagine that the angel that staid near them long would require to be pretty strongly scented with brimstone. Evil communications corrupt good manners, and people are forbidden to be unequally yoked! We can think of no yoke so unequal as that which would bind a decent woman to a drunkard; and we most firmly believe that so far from its being the duty of a wife to live with a drunken husband, it is a violation of the laws of God, and the dictates of common sense and common decency? A woman who would persist in living with such should be shut up in a lunatic asylum. Grant it that she has a right to dispose of herself as she pleases! Has she any right to entail misery and degradation upon a helpless offspring? Has she any right to furnish the State with paupers and criminals? Has the drunkard any right to hand down his vices and their consequences to posterity?"

Infantile faculties cannot be carried to the heights of knowledge and virtue at once. The feeble must be gently conducted along the ascending path, with new and more cheering prospects unfolding at every step; the pupil of time and probationer for eternity, must be allowed to stop occasionally and gather the sweet and pure flowers that beguile the weariness of the way, till, proceeding from one eminence to another, he at last reaches the crowned summit of intelligence and sanctified joy.—Magoon.

Barnum the museum man, has recently opened an establishment in Philadelphia, in front of which an immense sign stretches across the street. The mayor informed him that the sign was a violation of a city ordinance, and would subject him to a fine of two dollars a day. Barnum at once employed an Irishman to work on his premises, at a dollar a day—his first duty in the morning being to enter a complaint against his master at the mayor's office, for his swinging sign, for which he is entitled to one half the fine!

"I'll take two children if I can have 'em cheap," said a tall Yankee on entering an oyster cellar in Canal street, the other day.

"Two children!"—What two children "Why, I hain't got any myself and your sign reads 'Families supplied,' don't it? I want you to supply me with one."—[Noah's Messenger.

PHRENOLOGICAL WIT.—A Lady, a disbeliever in this science, asked a learned phrenologist with a view of puzzling him, "What kind of people are those who have destructiveness and benevolence equally and largely developed?" "Those, madam, are the persons who kill with kindness."

WEALTH.—A compost of the dirt of trade, mixed with the sweat of labor. If spread over the surface of society, it does good; but when amassed in heaps, it scorches every thing that it touches.

THE POTENCY OF WORDS.—On words rests the axis of the intellectual world. A word have struck ineradicably in a million hearts, and envenomed every hour throughout their hard pulsation. On a winged word, hath hung the destiny of nations. On a winged word, hath human wisdom been willing to cast the immortal soul, and to leave it dependent for all its future happiness.

"My good gracious! I wonder what they'll manufacture out of the grain next?" said Mrs. Partington. "Here's an account of a man making a rye face, and of another making a floury speech, and a whole column about the corn laws."

POETIC.—The following is herd to beat for depth of pathos and soul stirring sentiment:

Here Pizs and Kakes and Bier I sell,
And Oisters stude and in the shell,
And fried wuns tew for them that chews,
And with despatch black butes and shews!

THE SIOUX TREATY.—Gov. Chambers, formerly of Iowa, in connection with Gov. Ramsey, of Minesota, has been selected Commissioner to treat with the Sioux for that portion of the territory of Minesota, which lies on this side of the river. This tract is very much needed, and it is the only arable land worth speaking of in the Territory. The Sioux are anxious to sell, and we may look for the settlement of this beautiful tract by next Spring. All who know Gov Chambers' tact in treating with the Indians may anticipate that the business will be done up right.—[Hawk-Eye.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Gaiters;		" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do		" do Monroe boots,
" Black Kid Slippers;		Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;		" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;		" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins;		" Monroe slippers
" Phil. Polka Slippers;		Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do do Gaiter Boots;		" do Pumps
" do Genue do;		" seal do;
" half Gaiters;		" kip do;
		Boys' calf Brogans;
		" kip do
		" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the big boot, on the top of the House, No. 236, Near Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your mone

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter.

Great Cash and Produce Depot

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,

Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.

Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849.—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo, which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber used in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of selected timber and feline plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled.

J. W. COOLIDGE,
E. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 5, 1849.—3m.*

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with promptness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m

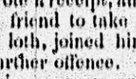
GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 9 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Mosquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 tfm JONATHAN BROWNING.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

STATE OF IOWA, } ss.
FREMONT COUNTY, }



TAKEN up by Daniel McKissick, living in Franklin township in the county and State aforesaid, on his plantation; one dark bay mare, supposed to be seven years old, left eye out, a scar on her right hind hoof at or in the edge of the hair, supposed to be 14 hands 3 inches high, and by her side has a suckling mule colt; both appraised to the sum of sixty-five dollars.

Also one dark bay mare supposed to be 8 or 9 years old; her left hind leg has the appearance of having been corded, supposed to be 14 hands 3 inches high, has by her side a suckling colt, both appraised to the sum of fifty-five dollars.

A true copy from the Estray Book.

A. H. ARGYLE, C. B. Co. Com'e,
of Fremont county.

Fremont co., August 31, 1849.—o 3 3t*

GUARDIAN

BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law,

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 28, 1849. VOLUME I.---NUMBER 22.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PRESTON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES MCGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M BURNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
BNJ. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.

From the Millennial Star.

Questions for the Latter-Day Saints.

BY THE REV. F. AUSTIN, A ROMAN CATHOLIC MINISTER.

1. Question—"What order is to be observed? Are we to believe in God on the authority of the bible? or are we to believe the bible on the authority of God?

Answer.—We are to believe in both God and the bible, on the authority of evidence Evidence is the foundation of all belief; for instance God reveals himself to his servants, and sends them forth to testify of his existence, and also of the truth of his word. These servants, having not only a belief in the word of God and in his existence, but an actual knowledge by revelation, go forth and testify to that which they know: this evidence will be a savor of life unto life to all who believe and obey, and a savor of death unto death unto all who believe not. On the testimony of inspired men sent of God, mankind in all ages have been justified or condemned, as they believed or disbelieved. The testimony of men, however learned or pious they may be, who have never received a revelation from God, will have no effect upon the world either to justify or condemn them. A church without new revelation have not the testimony of Jesus, which is the spirit of prophecy; and without the testimony of Jesus the world cannot be condemned through their preaching. Therefore we are to believe in God and in his word on the authority of those whom he sends by new revelation, or else we shall be condemned.

2. Question—"If we are to believe in God on the authority of the bible, on whose authority are we to believe the bible according to Mormonite principles?"

Answer—We are to believe in both God and his word, on the authority of his inspired messengers who are sent to testify of the truth.

3. Question—"And if we are to believe the bible on the authority of the God of the Mormonites, can we have any proof without the bible that such a God really exists at all?"

Answer—The testimony of God's messengers is a proof or evidence both of the existence of God and of the truth of his word, which will prove the salvation or damnation of all who receive or reject such testimony.

4. Question—"If man be created according to the image and likeness of God, does this likeness consist in his having all the qualities of God, or only some? and if only some, which?"

Answer—This likeness consists in his having the quality of form or shape. The spirits of men in the beginning were created in the form or shape of the spirits of the Father and Son. The external form of the fleshly bodies of men resembles in shape the external form of the spiritual bodies of men, and these again resemble in shape the external form of the Father of Spirits.

5. Question—"If the God of the Mormonites have passions, may he not be led astray by his passions? Man often is. If the likeness be in every thing, he must be sometimes. Passion makes man swerve from the truth, if the resemblance be in every thing, the God of the Mormonites must be liable to swerve from truth likewise. How then should we believe the bible true on the authority of such a God as that of the Mormonites?"

Answer—Man when first created was pronounced very good with all the rest of this creation. His passions then were all good; they became corrupted only through disobedience. Passions then are good and calculated to render intelligent beings happy, when controlled according to the law of God. Without passion man could not love, nor desire, nor rejoice, nor be merciful, nor manifest any other act that would be good; So God, without these passions, could not manifest any of these feelings. He could not love the works of his hands, nor desire their happiness, nor rejoice in their righteousness. God has infinite wisdom and knowledge as well as passions; by his wisdom and knowledge he knows how to regulate his passions in the best possible manner to maintain his own glory, and promote the well being of his creatures. Because of his infinite wisdom and knowledge there is no danger of his suffering his passions to be enticed and led astray. Man, because he is a being of finite wisdom and knowledge, frequently suffers his passions to be enticed and overcome by that which is evil. Because of his short-sightedness he does not always see the consequences of his actions in full until it is too late; not so with God, his knowledge effectually preserves him from all actions which are inconsistent with the great perfections of his nature. With his infinite wisdom and knowledge then, he never can be enticed to swerve from the great and eternal principles of right, which will forever govern his high and exalted character.

6. Question—"If he be essentially limited, how can we know him to be a God of infinite truth—a God that cannot lie?"

Answer—God is not essentially limited in any of his attributes. He is infinite in wisdom, knowledge and goodness; he is infinite in justice, mercy and truth; he has all power to do all things which are in accordance with his perfections and attributes.

7. Question—"If God be limited in his nature, how can his mind take in the knowledge of all the past which has extended back from all eternity?"

Answer—God is not limited in his nature; hence the past is known to him as well as the present.

8. Question—"Even supposing that all the future might be divined in succession, how can a limited mind take in at once the entire future which will never end?"

Answer.—God's mind is not limited in knowledge; therefore the future is known to him as well as the present.

9. Question—How can a being, limited to time, know the future at all. By logical conclusions, the relation of cause and effect. But if the effects do not necessarily follow certain causes, how can they be known for certain?"

Answer—God and all of his magnificent works are limited to duration or time. It could not be otherwise. God does not exist in the past, neither does he exist in the future, but he exists now. He has existed in the past, he will exist in the future; but he exists now, that is, in the present. All the acts of God and man must take place in time. God nor nothing else could possibly exist without being limited to time. Take away duration and no being can possibly conceive of existence. God has nowhere revealed how he knows the future, but he has revealed that he does know the future. He may know it by the relation of cause and effect. He may know it independently of cause and effect; or directly and intuitively the same as man knows or perceives his own existence. Man knows that he himself feels, and thinks, and remembers, and wills, but he cannot tell how he knows these things. We believe these powers to be the original susceptibilities of the mind, but we cannot tell why the mind possesses these susceptibilities. So we believe God possesses foreknowledge, but whether it be an original principle of his nature, or whether he foreknows by the relation of cause and effect is not revealed. Reason would seem to say that it is by an original principle of his nature.

10. Question—"Do the acts of our free-will necessarily follow from any previous cause? And if they do, how can that be called an act of the free will, which necessarily follows a previous cause? And if they do not, how can a being limited to time know them before they happen?"

Answer—The mind wills, and then acts. The will of the mind is the cause, the acts are the necessary effects flowing from it. The mind wills according to motives. Motives are the causes which govern the will. The mind has the power of originating the motive. The mind, therefore is free to originate different kinds of motives: these motives govern the will, and the will governs the acts. We believe the mind to be perfectly free to constitute a motive, to annul it, or change it for another; and therefore it follows, that it must in this sense be free in willing and acting. God does foreknow the acts of mind, but how, revelation, as we said above, does not inform us. There are many things which we know, yet we are entirely unable to assign any reason for that knowledge. It is as much a mystery to us that God or any other substance should have the quality of knowing anything. Can any one tell why the Deity, or man either, knows or feels anything? We know that God is possessed with the quality of knowledge, but no one can render any reason how or why his substance posesses that quality. We can say that it is an inherent or original quality of his nature; and with equal propriety, we can say, that it is an inherent or original quality of his nature to know the future. The latter is no more an impossible quality than the former. When man can assign a reason why the substance of the Deity has the susceptibility of knowing or perceiving anything, he will doubtless be able to also render a reason how or why he knows the future.

11. Question—"And if he cannot foresee the acts of man's free will, how can he foresee the revolutions which flow as consequences from them? And if he does not, how could he be the author of the prophecies contained in scripture?"

Answer—God is the author of scriptural prophecy, therefore he can foresee the acts of the minds of men, and the revolutions which flow as consequences from them.

12. Question—"If the God of the Mormonites be like a man in figure, we must suppose the organs of the senses to have the same uses, and to be dependent on the same sources for information; his ears, in consequence, for hearing must be dependent on the transmission of sound. How, then, can he hear his people praying to him in Europe when he is in America?"

Answer—Because the figure of two substances are alike, that is no evidence that the qualities of the two substances are alike. A wax figure may be in the shape of a man, and yet, we all know, that it has not the qualities of a man. A wise man may have the figure of a foolish man, and yet, be far superior to him in the qualities of wisdom, knowledge and understanding. God may have the the figure of a man, and yet have many qualities and susceptibilities which man has not got. The resemblance of figure, then, has nothing to do, as to whether other qualities shall be alike or unlike. The spiritual body of the Deity is altogether a different kind of substance from the fleshly body of man, yet they may resemble each other in figure. The substances are entirely different, therefore though the figures resemble each other, this is no evidence that all the qualities must be alike. The ear of the fleshly body may be affected by the vibrations of our atmosphere; the ear of a spiritual body may be affected in an entirely different manner, and yet their figures may resemble each other. The ear of the fleshly body may be affected by the vibrations of many elastic substances besides the atmosphere. Sound is conveyed through various mediums with different degrees of velocity. The ear of the spiritual body may be affected, not only by the atmosphere and other elastic mediums which affect the ear of flesh, but it also may be affected by a vast number of other more subtle and refined mediums, which may transfer sound with a velocity immensely superior to any motion with which we are acquainted. A medium which would convey sound with a velocity no greater than light, would carry it from Europe to America in less than the sixtieth part of a second. But if God foreknows all things, he must have foreknown all about our prayers millions of ages before we were born, and must also have foreknown the precise time when we would pray, and the kind of spirit or feeling, and the degree of faith that would accompany each prayer; and if he knew all these things before they come to pass, he must certainly know them the moment they do come to pass; and, therefore, with a foreknowledge of all things, there would be no necessity for his receiving information of our prayers by the transmission of sound; he would know and understand our prayers the moment they were offered up, the same as he knew them and understood them in ages before they were offered up. "He that formed the ear shall he not hear." Because God knows the nature of music, that is no reason why he may not rejoice in hearing music. One use, then, of the ears of his spiritual body is, no doubt, to hear and rejoice in delightful music, not that it increases his knowledge, but it is joyful to his ear. The ear of man serves a double purpose: it is not only a medium of information, but a medium of sounds that are delightful to the mind. The ear of the Lord may be delighted with sounds, though he receive no additional knowledge by those sounds.

13. Question—"As it appears that there are many stars, according to the "Millenial Star." (Vol. x., page 333,) which are so distant that it would take thirty thousand years for light to travel from them to our world; are these stars within the dominions of the God of the Mormonites or not? If they are not, have they a God of their own?"

Answer.—There is "one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all," (Eph. iv. 6.) "In him we live, and move, and have our being." (Acts xvii. 28.) This God hath created all things by his Son. By him "he made the worlds." (Heb. i. 1, 2.) "By him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible or invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him and for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist." (Col. i. 16, 17.) "Thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure, they are and were created." (Rev. iv. 11.) The God of the scriptures is our God. The Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, being one God, is our God. His dominions are stretched out through the immensity of space; and wherever his dominions extend, there his Holy Ghost extends.

14. Question—"If the different regions of the universe, extending, perhaps, to infinite distances through the regions of ininite space, have each of them Gods of their own, is there one Supreme God over them all or not? And if there is, is he like man as well as the God of the Mormonites?"

Answer—The God of the bible is our God; and he is the supreme God over all his works; he is the "King of kings, and Lord of lords." (1 Tim. vi. 15; also Rev. xix. 16.) He is like man in his "image and likeness," but infinitely superior to man in his qualities and attributes.

15. Question—"If these stars are within the dominions of the God of the Mormonites, then when he goes to visit that part of his dominions, how can he hear us at such a distance?"

Answer—The answer to this question will be found in the answer to question twelfth. It matters not where the person of God is, if he have the knowledge of all things future, then he has a knowledge of our prayers at the very moment they are offered up, as well as to know about them ages before. If this is not the case, then he has not the foreknowledge of all things.

Question—"If it takes 30,000 years for the transmission of light, how long will it take for the transmission of sound?"

Answer—The answer to to this question will depend altogether upon the proportional velocity of sound to that of light. Sound, in our atmosphere, is transmitted about one million times slower than light; hence, with that velocity, it would take about thirty thousand million of years for sound to travel to the most distant luminous bodies that have been discovered through the aid of the telescope. If sound traveled through some spiritual medium, one billion of times swifter than light, it could be transferred to the most distant bodies yet discovered in less than one second. If light can fly with a velocity one million times swifter than sound, there is no reason to show why there may not be some more refined spiritual substances which can traverse space with a velocity one billion times swifter than light.

17. Question—"And consequently how many years after our death must it be before he can hear our prayers?"

Answer—If God knows all things, sound cannot convey to him any additional knowledge. Therefore our prayers are understood independently of the transmission of atmospheric vibrations.

18. Question—"If he always remains here, what must become of those parts of his dominons which he does not visit?"

Answer—The Holy Spirit of God is in all parts of his dominions, governing and controlling all things, according to the mind and will of the Father and Son. The persons of the Father and Son visit such portions of their dominions as they think proper.

19. Question—"If he be like man, his legs must be the organs of motion; if not, what purpose do they serve? If they are, are they good for walking through the air as well as on land? Or has he wings, or how? or some organ of motion we have not got? And if we have not got this organ, how can we be created to his image and likeness, supposing the resemblance in every thing?"

Answer.—The resemblance between man and God has reference, as we have already observed, to the shape or figure; other qualities may or may not resemble each other. Man has legs, so has God, as is evident from his appearance to Abraham. Man walks with his legs, so does God sometimes, as is evident from his going with Abraham towards Sodom. God cannot only walk, but he can move up or down through the air without using his legs as in the process of walking. (See Gen. xvii. 22; also xi. 5; also xxxv. 13.)—"A man wrestled with Jacob until the breaking of day;" after which Jacob says—"I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved."—Gen. xxxii. 24—30. That this person had legs is evident from his wrestling with Jacob. His image and likeness was so much like man's, that Jacob at first supposed him to be a man—(See 24th verse.) God, though in the figure of a man, has many powers that man has not got. He can go upwards through the air. He can waft himself from world to world by his own self-moving powers. These are powers not possessed by man only through faith, as in the instances of Enoch and Elijah. Therefore, though in the figure of a man, he has powers far superior to man.

20. Question.—"When God appears surrounded with glory, is this glory essential to him or not? If essential, how can he lay it aside, as he seems to have done when he appeared to Abraham? If his appearing so does not prove it essential, how does his appearance in the form of a man prove that form essential to him?"

Answer—The glory of God is essential to him under all circumstances, whether his person is visible or invisible—whether man is permitted to behold that glory or not. He never lays aside his glory, though he may not always render it visible to mortals. "The God of glory," says the martyr Stephen, "appeared unto our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran."—Acts, vii. 2. But because he showed Abraham his person, it did not necessarily follow that he must also show him his glory. The person of God is one thing, and his glory is another; they are inseparably connected. He cannot divest his person of his glory, nor lay it aside, but he can hide his glory from the gaze of man, or he can reveal it and his person also, or he can reveal his person and not his glory. The visibility or the invisibility of the glory of God does not render it non-essential to him. The glory is just as essential as his image and likeness, and his image or likeness, resembling that of man's, is as essential as his glory—neither can be laid aside, though one or both may be rendered visible or invisible.

21. Question—"If he be no bigger than a man, how can he be higher than heaven, deeper than hell, the measure of him larger than the earth and broader than the sea?"—See book of Job, xi. 8 and 9.

Answer.—These were not the sayings of Job, but the sentiments of Zophar the Namathite. Now Zophar and Eliphaz the Temanite, and Bildad the Shulite, were all reproved by the Almighty for having spoken wrongfully concerning God:—"The Lord said to Eliphaz the Temanite, my wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends: for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my servant Job has."—Job, xlii. 7. The words of Zophar, therefore, are not to be depended upon, according to the Lord's own testimony, unless they can be proved true from some other source. God's Holy Spirit, as we have already remarked, extends through all his dominions, and may truly be said to be "as high as heaven" or "longer than the earth, or broader than the sea."

22. Question—"If his presence do not extend beyond his size, that is, the size of a man, how could he divide the waters of the sea—how could he hold them up? If they were a solid mass, it might be conceived; but all the strength in the world wont hold up water; and it must be remembered that a person must be present where he acts."

Answer—He could divide the waters of the sea, and hold them up by the actual presence of his Holy Spirit, which not only moves upon the face of the waters, but is likewise in and through the waters, governing them and controlling all the elements according to the mind of God. It is the actual presence of this Spirit that produces all the phenomena ascribed to the laws of nature, as well as many of the deviations from those laws, commonly called miracles; it extends, like the golden rays of the bright luminary of heaven, through all extent; it spreads life and happiness through all the varied species of animated beings, and gilds the starry firmament with a magnificent splendor, celestial, immortal, and eternal.

23. Question—"Is the Holy Ghost a dove? or has he the shape and size of a dove? and if his appearance as a dove does not prove him to be a dove, nor to be of the shape and size of a dove, how will God, appearing like a man to Abraham prove him to be a man, or to have the shape and size of a man?"

Answer—"The Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove" and rested upon our Savior. It appeared on the day of pentecost to one hundred and twenty disciples in the form of "cloven tongues, like as fire, and it sat upon each of them," and they were filled with the Holy Ghost." "It filled all the house where they were sitting." It appears by these instances that the Holy Ghost is a widely diffuse substance, existing in large quantities, or it could not have sat upon so so many persons at the same time, and filled the whole house where they were sitting. From these facts we learn that different portions of the Holy Ghost can assume different forms at different times. But we have no such instances when the person of God has been manifested. On all occasions when he was seen by Abraham, Jacob, Moses, the seventy elders of Israel, Micaiah, Isaiah, down until the coming of Jesus in the flesh, he appeared in the form and size of a man. Because the different parts of that inexhaustible substance called the Holy Spirit, has assumed different shapes, that is no evidence that God will change his personal image and likeness. If man in the beginning was created in his image and likeness—if he has, when he has been seen, always appeared in the shape of a man—if Jesus, who is known to be in the form of man, is in the "express image of the Father's person," then we have no evidence to suppose any variation or change in his personal form: hence we have every reason to believe his personal image and size to be as permanent and essential as man's.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Indian Summer.

BY ELIZA TERRILL.

My heart exults, breaks forth in joy,
For these bright sunny days;
Better I love the falling leaf,
Than Summer's gayish rays,
They speak of the soft and flakey snow;
Of bells with their merry ring,
And the days past long ago;
They to the memory bring,
And tell a tale we all must know,
Of winter the forerunner;
The fairest day in all the year,
It is the Indian Summer.
The farmer gathers in his corn,
His wheat is in the garner,
Secures his crops from coming storm,
In this the Indian Summer,
He feels the soft and sunny ray,
And hastes his work while yet he may,
For 'tis but the forerunner,
Of Winter old, and white and cold,
This lovely Indian Summer.

THE RICH MAN'S CHURCH.—The following, which is extracted from a pamphlet lately published, contains some severe strictures on the fashionable churches which are becoming so numerous in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and other cities:

Protestantism seem to have no machinery to reach the poorer classes. The most that has been done in England or in this country, has been done by the Methodists. But the spirit of our churches generally is worldly, self-seeking. They court the rich. The ambition of a Protestant minister, even in democratic America, is to be the head of an aristocratic congregation. The churches themselves are a kind of religious aristocracy. In New York, for example, what a rivalry as to which congregation shall be most exclusive. The very buildings in which they worship are constructed as if on purpose to shut out the poor. They are arranged just like a theatre, in boxes, which are sold to the highest bidder, and all are held at such a price that the poor are almost as a matter of necessity excluded.

I may be wanting in reverance, but to me a fashionable church is about as sacred a place as a fashionable theatre. One is as much devoted to the God of this world as the other. Both are filled up with gay or guady decorations. Both resorted to by very fashionable audiences for curiosity or display. The principal feeling excited or gratified is poor, pitiful human vanity. In the church as in the theatre, the audience are entertained for an hour with public speaking, in which there is an occasional religious reflection or sentiment, about as solemn, though by no means as eloquent as the moralizing of Hamlet. From both places the public, or the poorer part of it, are strictly excluded.

How Christianity is to penetrate the whole mass of society by the agency of such churches surpasses my comprehension. Sad would be the fate of the world if its moral condition or happiness depended on these fashionable Christians, who are giddy with folly and dissipation half the year, but—religiously abstain from the opera during Lent.

GAMBLING IN CALIFORNIA.—Extract from a letter dated San Francisco, July 30th: "This is one of the strangest places in Christendom. I know many men who were models of piety, morality, and all that sort of thing, when they first arrived there, and who are now the most desperate gamblers and drunkards."

Not to long for eminent excellences, would betray a want of feeling and goodness.—[Henry Ware.

EDITORS IN COUNCIL.—The State Convention of the editors of New York, held at Syracuse, to devise means to restore the law in relation to postage on newspapers, so that they may pass free within a circuit of 30 miles, or throughout the counties in which they are published.

In their circular, they say:

"Its repeal was never asked for by the post office department, or by a single petition from the people, and yet in an hour unexpected, without the knowledge of the members of Congress who voted for it, that repeal was effected by treachery and fraud alone. The consequence of said repeal is, that every paper which circulates a thousand copies by mail within the distance named, is now taxed at the enormous rate of ten dollars per week, or five hundred and twenty dollars per annum; and those circulating two thousand, at twenty dollars per week, or one thousand and forty dollars per annum; and so in a like proportion for a larger number."

We trust this inequality may be suffered to exist no longer, and that our brethren of the craft in N. York, seconded as they are by the press throughout the country, will obtain the re-enactment of the law, which, without cause, has been taken from them, by Congress, the ensuing session.—[Wash. Republic.

STRANGE CALCULATION—TONS OF MEAT AND DRINK USED UP BY ONE MAN.—Some genius has perpetrated the following calculation:

"I have been married 32 years, during which time I have received from the hands of my wife, three cups of coffee each day, two in the morning and one in the night, making about 35,040 cups of a half pint each, nearly 70 barrels of 30 gallons each, weighing 17,520 lbs., or nearly nine tons weight. Yet from that period I have scarcely varied in weight myself from 160 lbs. It will therefore be seen that I have drank, in coffee alone, 218 times my own weight. I am not much of an eater, yet I presume I have consumed about 18 ounces a day, which makes 5,806 lbs., or ten oxen. Of flour I have consumed in 32 years, about 50 barrels.—For 20 years of this time, I drank two wine glasses of brandy each day, making 900 quarts. The port wine, Madeira, whisky punch, &c., I am not able to count, but they are not large. When we take into account all the vegetables in addition, such as potatoes, peas, asparagus, strawberries, cherries, pears, peaches, raisins, &c., the amount consumed by an individual is most enormous. Now my body has been renewed more than four times in 32 years; and taking it for granted that the water, of which I have drank more, acts merely as a dilutant, yet taken together, I conclude that I have consumed in 32 years, about the weight of 1100 men of 160 lbs., each."

Probable Safety of Sir John Franklin.

The following appeared in the N. Y. Tribune, taken from the New London Chronicle. The information will be received with interest by every one:

"About the 1st of August, while the McLellan laid in Pond's Bay, lat. 74, long. 72, the natives of the coast came on board the Chieftain, an English whaleman, and gave information by signs that two large ships were lying in Prince Regent's Inlet, and had been there fast in the ice for four seasons; and being asked with regard to those on board, whether they were dead or alive, they replied in the same way that the crews were not "asleep," (that is, not dead,) but were all well. This information was considered by the Englishmen and by Capt. Chapel, as indicating that the ships of Sir John Franklin were clearly meant.

"The Englishmen landed at Cape Hay, some distance from Pond's Bay, a quantity of coal and provisions with which his ship was furnished by the British Government for the use of the long missing ships, if they should chance to come there, as they would be obliged to do on their return to England.

This, the latest intelligence from that quarter, gives some hopes that the commander of the unfortunate expedition and his crews may still be alive.

"The McLellan and her gallant officers and crew have reached home almost by miracle—at any rate have done so under circumstances that entitle them to the highest credit.

"On the 12th of June the bark got 'nipped' in the ice, and only escaped destruction by the almost superhuman exertions and good conduct of those who were in charge of her.

She was so severely injured that she leaked so as to be kept afloat only by the incessant work of nearly all hands at the pumps, and by means of pumps obtained by Capt. C. from the wreck of the English ships crushed and totally lost just ahead of him.

"The two English ships Superior and Lady Jane, were both lost very near the McLellan. Two of the crew of the lost ships arrived in her. They are natives of the Shetland Islands."

FIRST TOWNS IN AMERICA.—It will seem curious to those who are not aware of the fact, that the first towns built by Europeans upon the American continent where St Augustine, in East Florida and Santa Fe; the capital of New Mexico. The river Gila was explored before the Mississippi was known and gold was sought in California long ere the first man had endeavored to find home on the shore of New England. There are doubtless trees standing within the fallen buildings of ancient Panama that had commenced to grow when the sites of Boston and New York were covered with the primeval wilderness.—[Scientific American.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE.....Editor and Proprietor.
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail, will be at the risk of those who send it.

Agents.

WILLIAM MARTINDALE, is our authorized traveling agent, throughout the United States.

Mr. GEORGE PEACOCK, of Weston, Mo., is desired to act as agent for the Guardian in and about that town in procuring subscribers and advertising.

Introductory.

We take pleasure in introducing to our readers through the columns of the Guardian, our friend and fellow laborer, Mr. Daniel McIntosh, from St. Louis, whose services we have secured as an assistant in the task that we have to perform. We therefore hope, soon, to spend more of our time among the branches of the church at home, and perhaps abroad, than we have hitherto done. Br. McIntosh will superintend the business transactions of the office, and contribute by his talents to make the Guardian more interesting.

Thankful for the liberal support with which a generous public has favored us in the infancy of our undertaking, we feel the stronger impetus to persevere in the good cause, by collecting around us all the talent that our subscribing community feel able and willing to support. We are resolved to use our best exertions by day and by night to make our paper a welcome guest to every upright man, woman and child; and we trust our exertions will be responded to in a manner that becomes a people whose only object is, life and immortality in the mansions of our Father and our God.

It has been one object with us to avoid, as much as possibly, all contention, wrangling and strife, that almost invariably tend to lower a newspaper in the estimation of high-minded and honorable men. On this point, we shall endeavor to be still more guarded. Our politics we will try to preach at the polls, and not trouble our readers very much with these matters in the columns of our paper. Our views and sentiments are very well understood touching these affairs, and we see no good reason to alter them.

May the blessing of our Father in Heaven be upon all just and good men that bear rule in our own country and in every other. May the day be hastened on when truth shall be exalted to the throne of power and dominion, and wave his bright and peaceful sceptre over every nation, kindred, tongue and people—when the clangor of war shall be hushed, and the elements of confusion and hate disappear like the misty vapors of the morning fog before the rising glory of the King of day!

Poor, Sickly, and Destitute!

We have many good things for you: Come and get if you need while you have the invitation. If you are not Mormons, but needy: come along! No test but good character, and good conduct, and need will be required to give you claim on the charity and offerings of the season. "God causeth his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust."

Hon. AMHERST K. WILLIAMS, a delegate from Franklin county, in Northern New York, to the National Railroad Convention at St. Louis, is now in our town. His object is to examine the country and to report to his constituents, his views of the practicability and the feasibility of the said National Railroad passing the frontier at this point, or near this point, and continuing westward up the Bottoms of the Great Platte River.

Elder Joseph Grover has just arrived at this place from New Hampshire. All well.

A. W. Babbitt, Esq.

It is known by our friends and by the public, that there was a time when some considerable difficulty existed between us and the above named gentleman: but that difficulty was fairly settled in our Church; and though politically opposed to each other, we think that he cannot feel himself very highly complimented by the recommendation of William Smith as a candidate for Governor of the State of Deseret.

It matters little to us who the Governor of that section may be, if indeed a government should be there organized; if he is only a good man, and will not see his subjects unlawfully murdered in cold blood as they were in Illinois.

In olden times a wicked and familiar spirit spoke in praise of the servants of God; but they rebuked that spirit, and would not suffer it to speak in their favor. We also read, that that which was written aforetime, was written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope. Would not William like to be Governor of that country? No! for he is already a notch higher in his own estimation. He is PRESIDENT of the Church.

Jesus said, "my sheep know my voice and they follow me, but a stranger they will not follow." William's sheep neither know his voice, nor will they follow him; but will run away after us, strangers, oppressors, tyrants, usurpers of power, traitors to the Government as he declares us to be.

We have seen in the course of our life a deranged man who really owned in his estimation, every house, and all the land in the country—he owned several banks, besides a great many ships at sea; and would count over his wealth, in his own mind, with far greater pleasure and satisfaction than William can have in his exalted notions of being the head and leader of the Church, from the fact that his delusion was an innocent one, while William's delusion is criminal because it is spurred on by a vindictive and revengeful malice that corrodes and cankers his own bosom while he affects a consciousness of right.

DEATH OF C. E. HORN.—Mr. C. E. Horn, the composer and vocalist, died in Boston lately, of typhoid fever after an illness of two or three days.

Holydays.

The season of our Holydays will begin on the 20th of December next, according to the decision of the High Council on Saturday last, and continue till that body says they should end.

The following are the regulations entered into by the Council which they wish to have strenously and faithfully observed.

First.—No person that has been disfellowshipped or excommunicated from the church, will be allowed to go forth in the dance that is conducted by the sanction and authority of the Church.

Secondly.—No member of the Church will be allowed to join the dance that has broken over the counsel and regulations of the same by dancing out of order, unless proper satisfaction is first made. Or if he or she hath violated the counsel and rules of the church in any other way, satisfaction must be given, before permission can be granted to join the dance.

A portion of the Branch at Allred's camp was spoken of as having knowingly, and in the face of the most pointed sayings and resolutions of the Council, danced contrary to order. They must sooner or later experience the consequence of this violation, and the presiding officers for the Holydays will remember that a portion of that branch has knowingly broken the order of the Church in this respect.

Thirdly.—Every person that knows him or herself to be in good standing and fellowship in the Church—that has faithfully and truly kept the statutes and counsels of the same, may freely participate in the civilities and recreations of the season; and also our friends who are moral and upright, and are friends and well-wishers to humanity and equal rights,—who can remember the poor and needy and help them, these are respectfully invited to participate with us, though never members of our Church.

The Council would say to the Church and to all interested, that the season of the free-will offerings will continue until the Holydays commence, that all may have the opportunity of manifesting their liberality in behalf of the poor and needy.

Those members of the Church that have kept and sold liquor for gain, and do thereby corrupt the morals of society, should be bourne in mind by the Presiding officers of the Holyday recreations. Natches under the hill at Council Point should be remembered, and should also remember that their prototype on the Mississippi was ill-fated.

Woe unto them that dance with guile or malice in their hearts towards their neighbor! Woe unto them that have secretly injured their neighbor or his or her property: Woe unto them that are ministers of disorder and of evil. If these shall go forth in the dance without confessing and forsaking their guilt, the faith of the counsel is, that they seal their doom by it.

The following named persons were appointed by the Council to preside during Holydays over the dances:

JOSEPH YOUNG,
D. D. HUNT,
JEROME M. BENSON,
LYMAN STODDARD,
HARLOW REDFIELD,
AARON JOHNSON,
L. T. COONS,
JONATHAN BROWNING.

Whenever a dance is desired at any place, it can be had by getting the permission of any one of the above named persons if he will preside over it, after giving permission.

Bring all your tithes and your offerings to the proper place for the poor, that there be none hungry among us, and let the poor rejoice; and then you may rejoice in the dance to your heart's content.

Amusing.

Some men when they get between a pint and a quart of liquor down, they become touched with a fine sense of the pious. The mussles of their face become relaxed so that their cheeks are flabby and sag away like a piece of butchers meat if they happen to reel to starboard or larboard. We have heard such men complain that Br. Hyde gives counsel opposed to the Church in the Valley: How full of wisdom and sympathy these men are! They think every thing of the church: but never think far enough to help pay up the church debts. We think they will have no occasion whatever to say that Br. Hyde has ever counselled them not to go to the Valley. To all that are jealous that Bro. Hyde does not counsel the people strongly enough to go to the Valley, we would say to them, go to the Valley just as soon as you can. Tarry not in all the plain! do not look back! remember Lot's wife! and to all others, we would say, go just as soon as you can prepare yourselves for the journey, and take with you what the authorities of the church there recommend you to take, and not before.

Where Is the Desmoine Mail!

If there is not force enough in the legal and authorized channels to send eight weeks of accumulated mail matter from Fort Desmoine to this place, we had better raise a subscription and send a man after it. We have only about three hundred exchange papers there and any quantity of letters. There will only be about five bushels of mail matter there destined for this place. Who will go? By this delay, when weather is fine and roads good, we are forced into the belief that the Government should, forthwith, make the contractors and their sureties responsible for the non-fulfilment of their contract. The inconvenience and damage that the country here suffers, is great; and the citizens of all classes, look not with indifference upon the tardy movements of those that have the power to send us the mail and whose duty it is to do it or cause it to be done, and exercise that power to so little effect.

This is to certify that Elder Charles R. Dana, of Pisga, has given a satisfactory account of his mission eastward this last year to collect means for the benefit of the poor of our people. We believe that he has faithfully paid over to the church what he collected, with the exception of his expenses, and what was agreed to be right for him to receive.—Ed

Notice

Is hereby given to foreign subscribers that the Guardian will be discontinued in all cases at the expiration of the term for which they subscribed and paid, if the subscribers are not personally known to the Editor, or known to him by reputation, unless they renew their subscriptions through our agents, or by letter direct to us, and the money paid or forwarded in advance, according to our established custom.

We frequently receive letters, asking for the Guardian to be forwarded to the writer, and he promises to forward the cash when he gets the paper. This is all very well: but it would be better if he would just enclose the cash and send it to us in the start.

Stray Law.

In consequence of the numerous questions that are propounded to us almost daily concerning stray animals, as to what should be done with them, &c., we publish the law of the State touching this subject, and let this be an end of the matter, or rather, let it be regarded as the end of legislation on this subject.

SEC. 6. Every person, being a householder, who shall take up any stray horse, gelding, mare, colt, mule, or ass, shall, within five days thereafter, take the same before some justice of the peace of the county, wherein such stray shall have been taken up: Provided, The same shall not have been previously proven by the proper owner, or owners, and a tender made for the compensation herein provided for, and make oath, before such justice, that the same was taken up at his or her plantation, or place of residence, in said county, or otherwise, as the case may be, and that the marks, or brands, have not been altered by him, or her, or any other person, or persons, to his, or her knowledge, either before or after the same was taken up, the justice shall then issue his warrant, directed to a constable of his district, commanding him to summons three disinterested householders of the neighborhood, unless they can otherwise be had, to appraise such estray, and after they or any two of them, have been sworn to appraise such estray, without partiality, favor, or affection, they shall forthwith proceed to appraise the same, and shall immediately make report thereof, in writing, under their hands and seals, to the said justice, in which they shall be required to set forth a description of the marks, natural and accidental, brands, color, and age of such horse, gelding, mare, colt, mule, or ass; and the said justice shall thereupon enter the same in his estray book, and transmit a certified copy thereof, under his hand and seal, together with the original return of the appraisers, to the clerk of the board of county commissioners of said county, within ten days thereafter, who shall enter the same in his estray book, and file the aforesaid transcript, and report of the appraisers, in his office, and the said clerk shall, within twenty days from the time of the reception of the justices said transcript, cause an advertisement thereof to be set up on the door of the court house, or at three other of the most public places in the county, and also a notice to be published, for three weeks successively, in some public newspaper, printed in this Territory: Provided, The newspaper publication may be dispensed with in all cases, where the value of such estray shall not exceed the sum of fifteen dollars.

SEC. 7. Any person being a householder who shall take up any head of neat cattle, sheep, goat, or hog, shall, within five days thereafter, cause the same to be advertised in three of the most public places in the neighborhood, or township, and shall also, within ten days thereafter, unless such stray or strays shall have been previously reclaimed by the owner, go before some justice of the peace of the proper county, and make oath, as required in the taking up of an estray horse, whereupon such justice shall take from such taker up, upon oath, a particular description of the marks, brands, color, and age of such neat cattle, sheep, goat, or hog, and said justice shall also cause such estray, or estrays, last mentioned, as aforesaid, to be appraised, in like manner as is required to be done in the case of an estray horse, after which the same entries and proceedings shall be made as is required in the sixth section, except that it shall be necessary to make publication, in a newspaper, where the valuation of the property shall not exceed the sum of fifteen dollars: Provided, That if two, or more estrays, of the same species, are taken up, by the same person, at the same time, they shall, in all cases, be included in one entry, and in one advertisement, and in such cases the said justice, clerk, and appraisers, shall receive no more for their services than is allowed in cases where but one of the same species is taken up: But, in all cases, where the value does not exceed the sum of five dollars, no further proceedings need be had, than for the justice to enter the same in his estray book, for which the justice shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents; and when so posted and entered, the right, after the expiration of six months, shall vest absolutely in the taker up: But he shall be accountable for, and pay to each owner the appraised value of such animal, after deducting all lawful charges incident to taking up, and posting such estray, or estrays, and if the appraisement of an estray, or estrays, shall exceed five and does not exceed ten dollars, the right therein shall be vested in the taker up, by his paying into the county treasury the appraised value thereof, at the expiration of six months, after the same shall be advertised.

SEC. 8. Any person, being a householder, finding any stray horse, gelding, mare, colt, mule, or ass, running at large, without any of the settlements in this Territory, may take up the same, and shall forthwith take such stray, or strays, before the nearest justice of the peace, and make oath as directed in the sixth section of this act, after which it shall be lawful for such persons, to post such stray, or strays, in manner and in form as in other cases: Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to authorize any person to take up, or stop, any stray animal, between the first day of May and the first day of November, unless the same be a work beast, and manifestly straying away from the owner.

SEC. 9. As a reward for taking up of all boats, and other vessels, and of estrays, and for finding of lost goods, money, bank notes, and other choses in action, there shall be paid by the owner, to the taker up, or finder, before restitution of the property, or proceeds thereof shall be made: For every horse, gelding, mare, colt, mule, or ass, the sum of one dollar, except where the same may have been taken up out of the settlement, in which case the taker up shall be allowed the sum of three dollars; for each head of neat cattle, fifty cents, for every sheep, or goat, twenty-five cents; and for every hog, above six months old, the sum of ten cents; and, in all cases, where goods money, or bank notes shall be found, the finder shall be entitled to ten per cent. upon the value thereof, in addition to which said allowance, the owner shall also be required to pay to the taker up, or finder, all such costs, and charges, as may have been paid by him, or her, to the justice and clerk for their services, to be rendered as aforesaid, including the cost of publication, together with reasonable charges for keeping, and taking care of such property, which last mentioned charge, in case the taker up, or finder, and the owner cannot agree, shall be assessed by two disinterested householders, of the neighborhood, to be appointed by some justice of the peace of the proper county, whose decision, when made, shall be binding and conclusive to all parties.

SEC. 10. In all cases where any stray animal shall be taken, as aforesaid, and no owner shall apply, or prove his, or her property, within one year after advertisement shall be made as aforesaid, and the valuation exceed the sum of ten dollars, and no owner appear within the time aforesaid, the property may be vested in the taker up, by his paying the appraisement value into the county treasury, after deducting all necessary expenses, as hereinafter provided; but if the taker up or finder, shall fail to comply, as aforesaid, then it shall be his duty to deliver the same to the sheriff of the county, who shall thereupon proceed to sell such stray, or strays, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for ready money, having first given ten days public notice of the time and place of sale, and the money arising from the sale thereof, after deducting the costs and charges paid by the taker up, and reasonable expenses for keeping the same, together with all other costs and charges which may be incident thereto, shall be paid into the county treasury: Provided, That the taker up, shall, in all cases, have the privilege at the expiration of the year, as aforesaid, to pay into the county treasury the aforesaid value of such estray, after deducting the costs and charges aforesaid, and by so doing shall acquire an absolute right to the property in such estray: And provided, That the taker up and treasurer cannot agree on the charges for keeping, it shall be assessed as aforesaid, by two disinterested freeholders, which decision shall be binding.

SEC. 11. The nett proceeds of all such sales as may, at any time, be made by the sheriff, in pursuance of this act, and all such money, and bank notes, as may be paid over to the county treasurer, as directed in the 10th section, shall remain in the hands of the county treasurer in trust for the owner, if any such shall apply within one year from the time the same shall have been paid over, but if no owner shall appear within the time aforesaid, the said money shall be considered as forfeited, and the claim of the owner thereto forever barred, in which event the money shall remain in the county treasury, to be applied to the use of common schools, whenever applied for by law.

SEC. 12. If the taker up of any stray animal, water craft, or lost goods, bank notes, or other choses in action, shall be faithful in taking care of the same, and any unavoidable accident shall happen thereto, without the fault or neglect of the finder, or taker up, before the owner shall have an opportunity of reclaiming the same, such taker up, or finder, shall not be accountably therefor: Provided, That in all cases of accident as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the taker up, or finder, within ten days thereafter, to certify the same under his hand and seal, to the clerk of the board of county commissioners, who shall make an entry thereof in his estray book.

SEC. 13. If any person shall trade, sell, or or carry out the limits of this Territory, any such property as may, at any time, be taken up, or found, as aforesaid, except such animals as are suitable for the harness, or saddle, as aforesaid, before he, or she, shall be vested with the right of the same, agreeably to the provisions of this act, he, or she, so offending, shall forfeit and pay double the value thereof, to be recovered by any person who will sue for the same, in any court, or before any justice of the peace having jurisdiction thereof, by action of debt, one half thereof shall go to the person suing, and the other half to the county, as aforesaid.

SEC. 14. If any person shall take up any boat, or vessel, or any stray beast, or shall find any goods, money, bank notes, or other choses in action, and shall fail to comply with the requisitions of this act, every such person, so offending, shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered before any justice of the peace, by any person who will sue for the same, the one half whereof shall be for the use of the person suing, and the other half to be deposited in the county treasury for the use of the common schools: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent the owner from having and maintaining his action against such person for the recovery of any damages he or she may sustain.

SEC. 15. In all cases where services shall be performed by any officer, or other person, under this act, the following fees or compensation shall be allowed, to wit: To the justice of the peace for administering the oath to the taker up, or finder, making an entry thereof, with the report of the appraisers and making and transmitting a certificate thereof to the clerk of the board of county commissioners, fifty cents; to the clerk, for taking proof of the ownership of the property, and granting a certificate of the same, twenty-five cents; for registering each certificate transmitted to him by the justice, as aforesaid, twelve and a half cents; for advertisements, including the newspaper publication, fifty cents; to the sheriff, on account of all sales made by him, in pursuance of this act, five per cent. on the amount; to the constable, for each warrant served on appraisers, twenty-five cents; to each appraiser, twenty-five cents; all which said costs and charges, with the exception of the justice's charge for granting a certificate of ownership, and the sheriff's commission, shall be paid by the taker up to the persons entitled thereto, whenever the services shall be performed: Provided, That in all cases, where it shall be necessary to make publication in a newspaper, the taker up, or finder, as the case may be, shall be required to deposite with the clerk of the board of county commissioners, a sum of money sufficient to pay for the same, previous to the publication thereof; all which costs and charges shall be reimbursed to the taker up, or finder, in all cases where restitution of the property shall be made to the owner, or the same shall be delivered to the sheriff to be sold, or where money, or bank notes shall be paid into the county treasury, in addition to the reward to which such person may be entitled for such taking up or finding, as aforesaid.

SEC. 16. For the more speedy recovery of estrays, and other lost property, it shall and may be lawful, at all times for any person interested, to search and examine the estray book of the clerk for any information he or she may want, in relation to any property which may at any time have strayed away, or been lost, by any such person as aforesaid, for which said clerk shall be entitled to no compensation.

SEC. 17. This act to take effect, from and after the first day of May next.

APPROVED, January 22, 1839.

Attention.

It is satisfactorily ascertained that the Ottoe and Omaha Indians are on this side of the River, in this County near and above the Soldier river.

Our men will be called on to go and remove them to their own side. The agent advises it and their thefts and depredations should be checked, and our citizens on the outskirts be protected. The Agent, Maj. Barrow, is expected to go along. Scour up your arms, boys, and be ready!

Offerings.

Our friends have brought in many good things for the poor, and it has afforded us great pleasure in dealing them out to those who have need. As the offerings are to continue for the same purpose until the 20th of December next, by the decision of the Council, we shall be under the necessity of referring them to the Bishop, as the multiplicity of our cares will not allow us longer to attend personally to this duty. Do not forget, neither relax your energies,—but remember that "he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." "It is more blessed to give than to receive." The Bishop is now prepared to receive tithes and offerings.

Request.

It is more than probable that we may leave Kanesville during a portion of this winter on business abroad. In that case, a little expense money would be very acceptable. The business that we contemplate going on is not our own individual concern, but the concern and business of the Church. We do not ask a donation; but we ask any and every person to whom we just'y owe a dollar, to call at our office and receive their money on demand; and we only ask our friends that are indebted to us, to pay us as we pay those that we owe. This will enable us to go independently, at our own charges, upon the fruits of our own labor, and we shall not then be forced to beg, a thing that we do not intend to do so long as we can get what we earn. We have a fine lot of School Books and Stationary on hand. If you will purchase now, you will help yourselves and us also.

Caution.

The Council will hold the presiding officers of the holydays measureably responsible for any immorality or impropriety that may happen at any party where they preside, unless they can show that they used every exertion to maintain order and decorum. They can appoint their door-keepers, and make their own regulations.

Good Breeding.

One of the counterhoppers in this town asked us the other day if we ever saw a modest well bred man seat himself upon the counter when he entered a store? Or if he would refuse to give place to the ladies when they came in and wished the attention of those behind the counter? These questions have only need to be asked, and the answer is implied; and we are saved from committal upon such important national questions.

Wanted in Exchange for the Guardian.

Pork, beef, butter, eggs, lard, mutton, potatoes, flour, common fence rails, lumber, cord wood and even cash or California Gold Dust will not be particularly objected to.

Weather.

On Friday night last, it began to rain, and in the morning it turned into a severe snow storm. Our western mail will have a hard time—it should have been in before this period. It is to be hoped that it has not shared a similar fate to that of the United States' mail between Fort Laramie and Fort Kearney.

Another Squash weighing 124 pounds has been presented to us by Mr. Kearnes. This is 9 pounds ahead of any other squash that has made its appearance in our city this year.

We understand that two ships have arrived at New Orleans with brethren from England. A few of those who came over in the first ship have arrived at this place.

Nathaniel Childs is undergoing an examination before the St. Louis Circuit Court for embezzling the funds of the State Bank of Missouri. They had been examining the matter for a week, and then had not apparently got more than one-half through with the examination.

Some of our exchanges in noticing the publication of our paper says "it is issued monthly in the Mormon settlement on the Mississippi river." This is a mistake, the Guardian is published semi-monthly at our settlement at Kanesville, Council Bluffs, near the Missouri river.

The steamer Ivanhoe, was burned to the water's edge on the night of the 9th inst., at the landing in Cincinnati.

The Presbyterian Synod of New York have issued an address to the Israelites within their district of a character aimed to enlist the symyathies and efforts of that people in disseminating spiritual knowledge among the heathen. The address fully anticipates the reply which the Jews will make to an address of this kind—namely, that they have no faith in any of the leading doctrines of Presbyterianism, and that, therefore, they cannot form any union with it; but a powerful appeal, is made to them to think of, reflect and consider the mighty work devolving upon those who are not of the heathen world, and say if the time is not come when all should unite in the work of spreading the Bible throughout the world. The address concludes:

"We come to you, not as friends of war; nor with clamorous accusations; nor in concealed deceit, but in honesty and love. We come to you not in the storm of opposition, but with "a still small voice," a voice that speaks of the remission of sin and everlasting peace—a voice of heavenly touching invitation—the same voice that was once heard at your temple and in your solemn assemblies."

KANESVILLE MARKET.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 28, 1849.

The market has remained steady since our last with slight variations. We quote

Flour ₩ hundred,	$2 25@$2 50
Beef "	$3 00@$3 50
Sugar, ₩ lb.,	9@10c.
Coffee, "	11c
Rice, "	8c.
Salt ₩ sack,	$3 50@$3 75
Pork, (fresh,)	5@6c.
Bacon, ₩ lb.,	none.
Green hides, ₩ lb.,	2½c.
Dry do. "	4½c.
Iron, (tire,) "	6c.
" (assorted,)	6½c.
Potatoes, ₩ bushel,	25@30c.
Corn, "	25c.
Wheat, "	50@60c.
Flaxseed, "	35c.
Onions, ₩ bush.,	50c.
Tallow, ₩ lb.	10c.
Butter, "	10@12½c.
Cheese, "	10c.
Beeswax, "	16½c.
Honey, ₩ gallon,	25c.
Eggs, ₩ dozen,	5c.

MARRIED,

In this town, on Wednesday, the 14th inst., by the Editor, CALVIN C. PENDLETON, Esq., to Mis SALLY ANN NEWBURY, both of this town.

The printer boys say that this couple is bound to prosper and to pass agreeably through life, from the fact that they not only sent the cake to them, but the wine also.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

TAXES! TAXES!!

THE taxable inhabitants of Pottawatamie County are hereby notified that the indebtedness of the County for County purposes, and the pressing demands of the State Auditor for State purposes, requires immediate collection as the law directs. Therefore sincerely desiring the good feelings and best interests of the people. I do hope that all who have not paid their taxes will come forward promptly and pay them immediately, and thereby save themselves cost and trouble, and relieve one from the most unpleasant task of distraining property, which should be done immediately for the unpaid taxes of 1848, and cannot at fartherest, be put off longer than the first day of January next for 1849.

C. M. JOHNSON, Collector.

Kanesville, Oct. 28, 1849.—3t

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock, than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

WANTED—By the subscriber any quantity of Otter, Beaver, Wolf, Wildcat, Raccoon, Mink, and Deer Skins, for which the highest price will be paid. Also dry hides taken in exchange for goods. HENRY A. TERRY.

Little Pigeon, Nov. 28, 1849.

HEIGHO! HEIGHO!!

Saddle, Harness and Shoe Manufactory.

THE subscribers wish to inform the public generally that they have commenced the above business at ST. FRANCIS or TRADING POINT, where they intend keeping constantly on hand: Saddles, Harnesses, Bridles, Martingales, collars, and boots and shoes, of all descriptions. Persons wishing to purchase any of the above articles will do well to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere: for our motto is,

Small Profits and Ready Pay.

BECK & McENTURF.

N. B. We keep all the above articles at Voorhis' and Johnson's stores in Kanesville. B. & M.

Also 500 hides wanted in exchange for work.

St. Francis, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

STRAYED.

STRAYED from the subscriber on Indian Creek, one mile above Kanesville, in June last, TWO YEARLING STEERS; one is white with red ears, and some red spots about his neck—the other is spotted, red and white, both marked with a crop off the left ear and a slit in the right; whoever knows of their whereabouts will confer a favor by leaving information at Kanesville Mill or with the owner, and will be rewarded for their trouble.

GEORGE FOSTER.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—2t

SADDLE AND HARNESS MANUFACTORY IN KANESVILLE.

THE subscribers, beg leave to inform their friends and the public in general that they have commenced the above business in all its branches in the town of Kanesville, having engaged the services of good workmen, we hope to be able to give satisfaction to all who may favor us with a call. All orders for work attended to with dispatch, and all kinds of repairing done in a neat and substantial manner. All orders received, and a supply of all kinds of Sadlery and Harness constantly on hand at our store. NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1848.

STOVE PIPE—Just rec'd, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARDINES—A good article can be found at nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

APPLES AND PEACHES—A fresh supply just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CIGARS & TOBACCO—An assortment, just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MEALS! MEALS!!

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Oct. 31. 1849.

BOOKS—1000 volumes Times and Seasons, (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.

For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

BUILDING LOTS—I have several lots, which I will sell low, if application is made soon at this office. Also two beautiful lots suitable for stores. JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1849.

From the London Times, Oct 13.

Threats of War from England, on the Nicaragua Question.

The discussion which has arisen between the governments of the United States and this country, with reference to the territorial limits of the State of Nicaragua and the Mosquito country, takes its origin and its importance from the project for establishing a canal between the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans, which shall pass through that portion of the isthmus between the two portions of the American continent. Certain private individuals, citizens of the United States, who describe themselves as members of the Nicarnguan Company, have obtained from the State of that name a canal charter or grant, empowering them to construct this important line of communication, on certain terms. But, as considerable doubt exists (as we shall presently show) with reference to the limits within which the State of Nicaragua has the power to make such a concession, these adventurers are anxious to cause a treaty to be concluded between the government of the United States and that of Nicaragua, whereby the United States should guarantee—1st, the right of sovereignty of Nicaragua over the territory through which the canal may pass; and, secondly, the neutrality and freedom of transit which is essential to the public utility of the undertaking. An American agent has actually been dispatched to Nicaragua, by the cabinet of Washington, for the purpose of effecting these objects. We understand, however, that the New York company does not propose to construct the canal, and has no funds for such an undertaking, but simply to obtain the concession, surmount the political obstacles, and then sell its privilege.

If this transaction were to lead to the speedy execution of a work of such importance and advantage to the commerce of the world, with a due regard to the existing rights of all parties, it is the height of absurdity and injustice to suppose that it could be the interest or the intention of the British government to thwart such a project. On the contrary, we are satisfied that the political and mercantile interests of Great Britain would readily promote any feasible scheme for opening a direct communication between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, and that the people of this country would be of opinion that such a canal ought to be regarded as a free and neutral high road of trade placed for that purpose, not under the exclusive control of any one State, but under the protection of all the maratime powers. If this principle and this plain object be adhered to, there could be no doubt that a public company, prepared to execute these works, would obtain as much support here as in the United States. But, in order to understand the difficulty which seems to have arisen, it is necessary to revert to the peculiar circumstances of the territory in question.

The State of Nicaragua forms a portion of what was termed, under the Spanish rule, "The Captain-Generaley of Guatamala," and it is now one of the independent republics of Central America, bounded to the south by New Grenada, to the west by Guatamala, and to the north and east by the Mosquito territory. This region is stated by Mr. Walker and Mr. Chatfield, British agents at Bluefields and Guatamala, to have belonged to an independent race of Indian kings ever since the fall of Montezumia, having a recognized territory appertaining to themselves. It is an undoubted fact that, for two hundred years or more, Great Britain has been in intimate relation and friendship with the Mosquito chiefs and people. Articles of agreement were actually signed between the Governor of Jamaica and the Mosquito Chief in 1720; and, on many occasions in the last century, these tribes were shown to be not subject to the crown of Spain, but under the protection of this country. The States of Central America which have thrown off the Spanish yoke cannot, of course, pretend to any territorial rights not derived from their mother country, or any provincial rights beyond their own frontiers. Upon a careful examination of the historical evidence collected by the British missions on the spot, which has subsequently been laid before Parliament in the correspondence relating to the Mosquito territory, Lord Palmerston laid down the limits of that State and the nature of its relations to this country in the most precise manner. He instructed the British agents to inform the authorities of the several States of Central America bordering on the kingdom of Mosquito that her Majesty's government consider the King of Mosquito to be entitled to the extent of coast reaching from Cape Honduras to the southern mouth of the river San Juan, and to add that her Majesty's government would not view with indifference any attempt to encroach upon the rights or territory of the King of Mosquito, who is under the protection of the British crown. In spite of this announcement, the Nicaraguan government declared, in October, 1847, that it did not recognize any King of Mosquito, or any such territorial pretensions; it formally laid claim to the northern coast and the port of St. Juan as a part of its own dominions, and declared that it would receive as war on the part of the British government any occupation of the port of San Juan effected by the Mosquitos under its protection. The Council of the State of Mosquito (consisting entirely of such familiar homespun names as George Hodgson, James Porter, and John Dixon,) responded to this defiance by a resolution for "practically establishing the full rights of sovereignty of the king of Mosquito over all the mouths of the St. John, and over the navigation of the lower part of that river, on the appearance of the first British ship of war with orders to co-operate with the Mosquito government." Shortly afterwards, her Majesty's ships Alarm and Vixen arrived off Bluefields, and the spirited expedition under the command of Captain Granville Loch took place. The Nicaraguan establishment was removed from the mouth of the St. Juan, the British forces stormed Serapaqui, and entered the Lake of Nicaragua, where, on the 7th of March, 1848, a treaty was signed by Captain Loch and the Nicaraguan ministers, by which the government of that State solemnly promised not to disturb the peaceful inhabitants of St. Juan, understanding that any such act would be considered by Great Britain as an open declaration of hostilities, and that the Mosquito tariff established in that port should be respected. At the same time, the Nicaraguans refused altogether to forego their claims upon the port of St. Juan, to which they continued to assert a right, whilst the British government treats that port as a part of the Mosquito territory, recognized, protected, and defended for more than a century by Great Britain.

It may readily be conjectured, from the importance attached on both sides to this question, that this protectorate had ceased to be a mere abstract or honorary function. This river Juan is the inlet to the most practicable line of water communication across the isthmus, and on the possession of that port depends the command of the passage The Nicaraguans have therefore proceeded to take to the best market the claims they have not themselves the force to defend. By making a concession of the passage to citizens of the United States, and by obtaining, if possible, the countenance and guarantee of the United States government to their pretended rights over the Mosquitian territory, they evidently hope to extort in the name of the cabinet of Washington what Lord Palmerston peremptorily refused to the ministers of Nicaragua. It is clear, however, that the strong measures and determined language of the British government admit of no qualification, and we are as much bound to defend Bluefields and the San Juan as any part of the British empire. The interference of the United States government in support of what is at most no more than the private interest of a trading company, it is less easy to explain or to justify, and we can hardly suppose that they intend to abet the state of Nicaragua in a course of open hostility to Great Britain. The great object of the Nicaraguan canal is, we repeat, common to all nations, and it would be absurd, illiberal, and impolitic to take advantage of our ancient relations, with the Mosquito Indians to frustrate such a scheme. But precisely because it is a great public object, the little state of Nicaragua has no right to claim sole possession of such a passage by a direct violation of the territories of an independent neighbor. If the canal is to be made it may fairly be the subject of a treaty or equitable convention between the different States through whose territories it may pass, and terms of such a treaty ought to be of the most liberal kind; but if the exclusive and unfounded pretensions of the state of Nicaragua are taken up by the United States, instead of amicable combination for a great pacific purpose, the two countries most interested in the success of the undertaking may be exposed to a serious misunderstanding.

THE NEW STATE OF DESERET.—Without doubt, says the Illinois Oquawka Spectator, the petition of the memorialists will be granted by Congress—perhaps under some constitutional changes—and we shall then have a sister State, stretching along the shores of the great Salt Lake in the "Far West," with a name partaking of the political custom of the past. We hope, if they are admitted as a State, the Mormons will honestly live up to the precepts inculcated by the name they have chosen—the State of the Honey Bee—an emblem of industry and its kindred virtues.

THE WHEELING SUSPENSION BRIDGE.—A dispatch dated at Wheeling on Saturday says that Mr. Ellet had just rode across the wire suspension bridge for the first time, and that the experiment proved eminently successful:

"A large concourse of persons was assembled upon each side of the river to see the apparently hazardous feat. When the intrepid and daring projector and builder started his horse and buggy upon the noble span, he was saluted by the firing of cannon and loud cheers from the admiring multitude. The animal attached to the vehicle progressed steadily, and Mr. Ellet gained the opposite shore in triumph, where he was again greeted with loud huzzars.

"The bridge is a noble structure, affording another successful evidence of the skill and ingenuity of him who has similarly spanned the wild foaming flood of Niagara by the power of his genius. Our citizens are justly proud of this bridge, and are now rejoicing that the embankments of the Ohio are linked together by so beautiful an arch and pathway."

IMPORTANT DECREES PROPOSED.—The following propositions has been laid upon the table of the National Assembly, by M. Napoleon Bonaparte:

"Considering that generosity, grandeur, and justice are the best auxiliaries to found and fortify the Republic—considering that reasons of State can no longer be interposed—considering that Governments have never been saved by laws of proscription and violence—the undersigned proposes the following decree: 1st. The laws of April 10, 1842, and May 25, 1848, which exile the family of the Bourbons, are abrogated. 2d. The peace of the Constituent Assembly of June 27, 1849, is revoked. The insurgents of June transported without trial, shall be set at liberty.

NAPOLEON BONAPARTE."

TREATY WITH THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.—The Boston Traveler makes the important announcement that Kamehameha, King of the Sandwich Islands, has appointed James J. Jarves, of Boston, a special commissioner to Washington, London and Paris, with the request that he should negotiate treaties with the governments of the United States, Great Britain and France, by which the islands will in future be untrammeled with regard to political independence. Mr. Jarves was for many years a resident of the islands.

ENORMOUS INHERITANCE.—It is said that Lieut. Colonel Gold, of the British army, will come into possession of the enormous wealth left by Mr. Charles Bullen, the late banker, of Liverpool. The property is said to amount to between £5,000,000 and £6,000,000 sterling.

FURTHER PARTICULARS OF THE LATE TRAGEDY IN St. LOUIS—We copy the following from the St. Louis Republican; the two Montesequoises who committed the murder were men of rank in France under the old regime, and also occupied a high position in the French Army:

The excitement which was manifested in our city during Tuesday, the 31st ult., in consequence of the late tragedy at the City Hotel, and the feeling displayed in the evening of that day, to obtain the perpetrators of the outrage and administer summary punishment, to a great extent subsided yesterday, and no further demonstration of a lawless character was made. Indeed, even if better judgment had not taken possession of the minds of those engaged in the proceedings of Tuesday night, and a disposition shown to allow justice to be administered by due course of law, their inclinations would have been disappointed by any further demonstration. Between seven and eight o'clock on Tuesday night, and while the crowd were assembling around the jail walls, the jailor and Sheriff, deeming it unsafe to keep the prisoners longer in jail, quietly took them from their cells, conveyed them over the back wall through the church yard to Fifth street, where cabs were in waiting, and run them down to Jefferson Barracks, where they are now confined, and probably will remain until the State is ready to proceed with their examination. On the way to the Barracks, the elder of the two seemed perfectly composed, and when they reached the gate took advantage of the sheriff's absence from the cab, sprang from his seat and made a slight effort to escape; the younger appeared very much frightened and used every precaution, while being conducted from the jail, to prevent his being recognized.

An examination of the effects and papers found in the trunks of the prisoners, confirms the belief that they are what they represent themselves to be, and dispels the impression so earnestly entertained Tuesday, that they were "genteel thieves," or men traveling in the style and under the title of counts in order to allay suspicion and render their chances for robbery more complete." We say this is no extenuation of either, but with a desire that they may have a full examination, and be awarded that justice which their crimes may merit under our law. And this justice, we feel confident in saying, is all that is desired by an indignant public or the immediate friends of the deceased or those who have suffered from the acts of the accused.

T. Butler King's Report from the Mines.

The New York Post publishes the following extract from a letter, addressed by an intelligent gentleman now in California to a correspondent in New York city, which deserves to be generally read. It is dated Aug. 20th, 1849:

"Not one that I have seen, varies in his report from what I have previously related, but there is gold in abundance, but only to be obtained by excessive labor, in a temperature of 110 to 130 deg. Notwithstanding the universal reports of the miners themselves, you will, however, receive by the mail, an official report from Senator King, of Georgia, in relation to the extent and value of the mines, which, without perhaps making a single erroneus statement, will go far to deceive the public, and to draw thousands on to their ruin.

"It appears that Mr. King was sent out by the Government for the purpose of making a survey of the mining district, which he has just completed, and it is reported here, that his statements will be, that one hundred thousand men cannot exhaust the gold in a hundred years—that it extends over eight hundred square miles of territory, and that the richness of the diggings will necessarily cause the building up of San Francisco within five years to a population larger than New York city.

"This last opinion he expressed within a day or two to a gentleman who related it to me. But in his report he will carefully avoid saying anything of the immense toil and great sacrifice of life.

"A gentleman who has read the report about to be made, characterizes it as superficial and wholly unworthy of the subject and the country. The result, however, will be that thousands upon thousands will rush out here; and as a large portion of them will not soon get means to return, it will be a sure mode of populating the country. Symptoms of this state of things already exist. I have had repeated offers of the services of respectable young men—law students and others, for their board and one dollar a day.

"Business here is already overdone. There are too many sellers and too few buyers; too many goods for the number of consumers, and the result, so far, is a gradual reduction of profits—and the final result will probably be within a year, a blow-up, which will scatter about half of those now in business here, to the four winds, and reduce rents and real estate to a comparatively moderate rate.

"Nothing will probably avert this but the effect of such reports as Senator King proposes to send home, which may cause a few month's delay—but the end must come. Such is the general opinion here."

Before us lies a real California newspaper, with all its politics, paragraphs, and advertisements printed and published at San Francisco on the 14th of last June. In a literary or professional point of view, there is nothing very remarkable in this production. Journalism is a science so intuitively comprehended by American citizens, that their most rudimentary efforts in this line are sure to be tolerably successful. Newspapers are to them what theatres and cafes are to Frenchmen. In the Mexican war the occupation of each successive town by the invading army was signalized by the immediate establishment of a weekly journal and of a "bar" for retailing those spirituous compounds known by the generic denomination of "American drinks." The same fashions have been adopted in California, and the opinions of the American portion of that strange population are already represented by journals of more than average ability and intelligence.—[London Times.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY,

JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers.

Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens of various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Jotters Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.

Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

NEW GOODS.

C. VOORHIS & Co.,

ARE now in receipt of their FALL AND WINTER STOCK OF GOODS. Being one of the largest stocks ever brought to this village. It will be the interest of every body wanting cheap goods to call and look at our assortment, Give us a call and you will find all kinds of

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES,
HARDWARE, & QUEENSWARE,
COOKING STOVES & CASTINGS,
IRON, a large asrortment,
LEATHER of all kinds,
BOOTS & SHOES, &c.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again!

MR. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Hollowware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high,; in a word, we only want to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent," for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN, at Brown & Millers store.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

MEDICINES! MEDICINES!

Just Received at the

EMPORIUM STORE,

Kanesville, Iowa.

10 dozen Syrup Sarsaparilla;
10 " London Mustard;
70 " Inks, assorted;
6 " Nerve and Bone Liniment;
6 " Tooth Wash, assorted;
35 " Tooth Powders;
3 " Worm Syrup;
35 " Vermifuge, assorted;
150 " Court Plaster;
150 " Pill Boxes;
6 " Cough mixtures;
150 " Pills, assorted, of every kind;
6 " Cough Candy;
12 " Childrens Cordial;
12 " Cologne, assorted;
3 " Cayenne in Phials;
12 " Blacking;
2 " Seidlitz, also tooth paste; balsam; shaving cream, hair tonic, embrocations; lavender water; Beatties Remedies: antimonial wine; Rowanes tonic mixture; Batemans drops; laudanum; paregoric; essence of life; British and Harlem oils; opodeldoc; bears oil; ox marrow; hair oils, all kinds; spirits nitre; hartshorn; syrup wild cherry and tar; Balsam of wild cherry; Cullins remedies; hair dye; headache snuff; ointments, all kinds; capsicune; venerial mixture; castor oil; sweet oil, turpentine; essences and drops of all kinds. Liberal deductions made to country dealers and Physicians.

☞ COME AND SEE.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 14th, 1849.

UNION HOTEL.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.

Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware,

LATEST ARRIVAL

OF

FALL & WINTER GOODS.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON have just received a large and choice selection of Fall and Winter Goods, consisting of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident that we have the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

We return our thanks for the liberal patronage we have heretofore received, and hope by strict attention to the wants of the public to merit a continuance of their favors.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

NOTICE—In my absence at any time Jane Sloan, Esq., will attend to any case arising on the part of the State. S. M. BLAIR,
Kanesville, Oct., 14, '49. States Attorney.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Motoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery; Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles too numerous too mention.

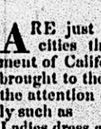
There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an Extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweetmeats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

The Barberous Notice.



THE subscriber having opened a shop in Kanesville, takes this method of informing the gentlemen of the town and vicinity, and the traveler, that they can be shaved at all reasonable hours. Hair cut and dressed at the following prices:

Twice a week, for shaving, only 50 cents per month. An addition of fifteen cents for hair cutting.

My monthly customers can have their hair dressed at all times for a party gratuitously.

Traveling customers, single shave, 10 cents. Hair cutting, fifteen cents. W. A. WESTON.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street. And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins;	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the BIG BOOT, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money.

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,

Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman

Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo, which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled

J. W. COOLIDGE.
S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets; the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; suttinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; cuttings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their stating point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the fair opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

MEAT! MEAT!!

WANTED—I want to purchase beef cattle, on the hoof, for which I will pay $2 per hundred. Also want to purchase fattened hogs, sheep, calves, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

Persons wishing meat can have it left at their residences on Tuesdays and Saturdays of each week. Meat constantly on hand at the Slaughter House. A share of the public patronage is solicited.

JOSEPH WARTHAN

Kanesville, Oct. 17, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store, hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, bees wax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press; and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform their citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

FRASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STRAYED.

STRAYED away from the subscriber on Musquito Creek, half a mile below Centerville, a red and white ox mixed, (he is called a roan ox,) four years old, a good size; he is branded on the right horn with the letters E. H.; his tail is rather short, any person returning said ox or giving information so that the subscriber can get him shall be liberally rewarded.

Centerville, November 14th, 1849.—3t. EDWIN HARLEY.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

From the Literary American.

Sabbath Musings.

BY MRS. ANNA SALTUS.

"Oh! that I had wings like a dove, for then would I flee away and be at rest."—[Psalm iv., 6.

Oh! that I had thy wings fair dove!
Then would I joyful rise
To gain in blissful realms above,
The lowest seat my prize,
Content to leave this beauteous earth,
Its treasures all resign,
Esteeming them of little worth,
To call the Savior mine.

Remembrance crowns the happy days
Of first and early love,
When in communion with the saints,
My spirit soared above.
A dove of heavenly plumage
Hung, smiling, constantly
Upon a supplicant's fervent prayer,
And deep humility.

The souls Thou to my nurture lent
Were grafted on Thy vine,
Baptism's holy sacrament,
With promises divine.
Omnipotent! great Source of light!
May these accepted stand,
Arrayed in robes of spotless white,
Heirs of the promised land.

When evil struggled with the soul,
To battle Satan's pride,
I girded on Truth's two-edged sword,
And bravely him defied.
The warfare was victorious,
With the Dove's surpassing care,
And shielded by the panoply,
What had my soul to fear?

Alas! Alas! where have they fled,
Those Heaven foretasting days—
When rapture woke upon my harp,
And angels echoed praise
To Thee, Creator of all good,
Thy Spirit, and dear Son?
But now, affrighted and amazed,
I miss the Holy One.

Oh, wicked heart! oh, reckless soul!
That lodged this precious Dove,
Nestling within thy bosom,
Mid flowers of sacred love.
What tears of deep remorse I shed,
How agonised my heart,
When conscience owns how cruelly
I bade the Dove depart.

Return, return, celestial guest!
Purest emanation, come!
Revisit this unfaithful breast.
And fit it for thy home.
I languish for thine attributes,
Peace, meekness, joy, and love—
To have my sins laved in the stream
That intercedes above.

False world! I value not thy joys,
Alluring to betray,
Kingdoms will be but kindling toys
On God's avenging day.
The sun in black, the moon blood-red,
Stars falling, raging sea,
While Mercy's bow in colors dread,
Reveals Time's destiny.

Return, sweet messenger of peace,
And heal the wounded heart,
Guiding me, by forgiving grace,
To choose the better part.
Oh! That thy wings were mine, fair Dove!
My soul would take its flight
To bathe in streams of holy love,
And rivers of delight.

MISCELLANY.

THE FISRT KISS.

BY AN AMATEUR.

When I speak of kissing, I don't include kissing mother, or sister, aunt, grandma," or the little people; that's all in the family, and a matter of course. I mean one's wife, sweet heart, and other feminines, that are not kin or blood connection. "That's the sort to call kissing," and that's the sort I am going to describe.

There is a beautiful village about twenty-four miles north of New Haven, called in the Indian tongue Pomperany. What it means in Indian I don't know. It was not taught us in the district school up there, where we learned our A B C's, and afterwards progressed as far as B-A, BA; K-E-R, KER; BAKER; when I was allowed to graduate and enter the "Youth's Seminary," under the charge of the Reverend Mr. Fuller. One of my school-mates in the latter place was a bright, intelligent boy, of the name of Walter Marshall. I loved him; so did every body else in the old village love him. He grew up to manhood, but not there. No: New England boys don't grow up at home: before they reach manhood they are transplanted, and are flourishing in all parts and ports of the known world, wherever a Yankee craft has been, or the stars and stripes.

Walter Marshall, when he reached the age of fourteen, arrived at New York from his native village, in the destitute situation that is frequent among New England boys; that is to say, he had only the usual accompaniments of these unfledged chips, who afterwards make the merchants and great men of this country, and not unfrequently of other lands. He had a little wooden trunk, pretty well stocked with "hum mades," a sixty-eight cent Bible his mother packed in for him, fearful that he might forget it, a three dollar New Haven City bank bill, and any quantity of energy, patience, peserverance, and ambition. He entered the counting-room of a large mercantile house in South street. His honesty, activity, and industry won him many friends. Among them was an English merchant, who had a large commercial house in Calcutta, and a branch at Bombay. He was in this country on business connected with his commercial firm in Calcutta, and did his business with the firm Walter clerked it with; and the latter attracted his notice. He was sixteen years of age only; yet the Bombay gentlemen fancied him, made him a liberal offer to go to India with him; which, after very little palaver among his friends, Walter accepted. New England boys don't often start off on their unusually long, wandering excursions, without first getting leave of absence for a few day's preparatory exercise, which they spend in going where they originally came from, and then, having a few good looks at the weather-beaten old village church, the high old steeple, which has wonderfully reduced in size and elevation since they first saw it, to notice it, in school-boy days: then they must hear the bell ring once more, even if they have to take a spell at the rope; then take a turn among the white grave-stones, see if there are any very green mounds, fresh made, and if so, to ask who among old friends has gone to his last resting-place: then to kiss mother and sisters, shake hands with father—and the stage is at the door of the tavern, and they are ready for a start to go "any where."

Walter went up to do, and did do all this: but he did not get into the stage at the tavern. He walked down the road ahead of the coach towards the old bridge, and told the stage-driver to stop and let him in at the minister's house — at Parson Fuller's. Mary Fuller lived there too, for she happened to be the Parson's only daughter. She was the merriest, loveliest little witch that ever wore long, loose tresses of auburn hair, and had blue eyes. She was only twelve years old, Walter was nearly seventeen. She did love him though; he was all in all to her; he had fought her battles all through her childish campaign, and she had no brother. She was Walter's cousin too; and a sort of half first cousin, for her mother had been the half sister of Walter's mother. They were not too near related for purposes hereafter to be named.

Poor Molly! she would have cried her eyes out on this occasion, had it not been that Walter's solemn phiz set her ideas of the ridiculous in motion; and she made a merry ten minutes as a wind up to their parting scene. Three days afterwards Walter was in New York; and just four months and twenty days farther on in time's almanac he was making out invoices and acting as corresponding clerk to "the firm" in Bombay.

I shall not stop long enough to relate how many times he went to the exhibition of venemous-looking corba de cadpellos biting Sepoys, just for fun, and to show how innocent the beauties were, and how easy their bite was cured; how often he visited the far-famed Elephant Caves; how many times he dined with the good Sir Robert Grant, the Governor of Bombay, and how he was with him, and what he said the very morning of the day the old scourge, the cholera, made the excellent Sir Robert its victim—all these things I shall leave to another time, and a more appropriate heading. I skip all these and six years of time besides, and land Master Walter at Staten Island, bring him up to the city in a steamboat, and leave him at a respectable hotel, and there let him sleep all night, and take a good "short rest," after a tedious voyage of four months and more.

The next morning we awaken him; make him get up, pay his bill, take a hack, and ride down to New Haven steamboat and go on board. It is seven o'clock, A. M. At one P. M. the boat has reached the landing; his trunk and "traps," are on board the Litchfield stage; he has taken a seat inside; his destination is an intermediate village. He is not alone in the stage; no, not alone; there is an old woman on the front, and a Presbyterian clergyman on the middle seat. The stage is up in the city, and slowly meandering about New Haven town, picking up passengers, who have sent their names to the stage office, and is still customary in that staid and sober city of minerology, theology, and other 'logies in general. The stage Jehu pulls up at the door of a neat little cottage in Chapel street. A passenger, young lady of sweet seventeen or thereabout. Before she has fairly got inside, Walter has noticed her, and she has noticed him too. He gazes in astonishment at the perfect vision of loveliness before him; he hasn't seen anything of the kind for many years. There is not a particle of copper about her. She, on her part, half-laughing, has regarded him very attentively; pushes back the golden ringlets that almost shut in her face, and takes another look, as if to be certain that she made no mistake.

"Here is a seat, miss, beside me," says the gospel preacher.

"Thank you, sir, but I prefer sitting on the back seat with that gentleman, if he will let me," said the most electrical voice that Walter had listened to in some time.

"Certainly, miss," said the delighted Bombayite; and when she seated herself by him, she gazed into his face with such a queer kind of a mixed-up delight and astonishment, that Walter actually took a look down upon himself, to ascertain what there was about his person that appeared to be so pleasing to the fair maiden: but he discovered nothing unusual. The stage rolled on toward Derby, at its usual rapid rate of five miles an hour, and Walter and the merry maid seemed as chatty and chosey together as though they had known each other for years instead of minutes. The minister tried to engage the ringlets in conversation, but he soon found himself "no where." She had neither eyes nor ears for any body else but Walter; and he had told her more about his own travels, and Bombay scenery, than he ever told anybody else before or since.

At last they came to Derby. There horses had to be changed, and four fresh skeletons were harnessed up and tackled on to the old stage. Walter handed the gentle girl back to her old seat as gracefully as he could have done had he never lived in Bombay, but always stopped in New York. They were alone now; the minister and the other old woman had got out at Derby.

"Well we are off once more: how far are you going?" said Walter as the stage went off.

"Not quite as far as Litchfield. You say that your friends reside at Pomperany?—

"How glad they will be to see you!"

"Very probably, unless they have forgotten me, which is likely, for I suppose I have altered some in six years."

"Not a particle, I ——"

The pretty maid forgot what she was going to say, but at last remembered and continued:

"I should suppose you had not altered, for you said you were seventeen when you was last at your home, and now you are only twenty-three. You must have been grown nearly as large as you are now."

"Perhaps so; but still, I am somewhat tanned by exposure in an East India climate."

"Yet I think you will be recognized by every body in the village. Do you know a young lady in Pomperany of the name of Mary Fuller."

"What! little Mary? my 'little wife' as I used to call her? Why, Lord love you, do you know her? Bless her heart! My trunk is filled with knick-knacks for her especial use. Do you know her? Why, I have thought of her ever since I was away. Young lady?—why, she is a little bit of a girl; she is only ten years old. No; she must be older than that now. I suppose I shall find her grown considerably. By the way, are you not cold? It is getting chilly."

The delighted young lady was trying to conceal her face, which had called forth Walter's exclamation.

"Yes, it is getting colder; it is nearly dark;" and so it was. Walter had a boat-cloak, and after a very little trouble he was permitted to wrap it around her lovely form; and somehow or other his arm went with it, and in the confusion he was very close to her, and his arm was around her waist, outside the cloak though: then he had to put his face down to hear what she said, and somehow those long ringlets of soft silky hair were playing across his cheek. Human nature could not and would not stand it any longer; and Walter drew his arm closer than ever, and pressed upon the warm rosy lips of his beautiful fellow-traveler, a glowing, burning, regular East India, Bombay kiss, and then blushed himself at the mischief he had done, and waited for the stage to upset, or something else to happen; but no, she had not made any resistance; on the contrary, he felt distinctly that she had returned the kiss; the very first kiss, too, he had never pressed upon a woman's lips since he gave a parting kiss to little Mary Fuller, and he would have sworn he heard her saying something, (about the very moment he had given that first long kiss of youth and love,) that sounded like "dear, dear Walter." He tried the experiment again, and before the stage had fairly reached the village, he had kissed and re-kissed her, and she had paid him back kiss for kiss at least a hundred times.

The stage was now entering the Village. In a few moments he would be at Mary Fuller's house. He thought of her, and he felt ashamed and downright guilty. What would Mary, his "little wife" that was to be, say if she knew he had been acting so? As these things passed rapidly through his mind, he began to study how to get out off the affair quietly and decently.

"You go on in the stage, I suppose, to the next town, or perhaps still farther?"

"Oh; no! not me:"

What could she mean? But he had no time to indulge in conjecture; the stage drove up slap in front of Parson Fuller's door, and here was the venerable parson and his good lady in the doorway; he with a lamp in hand, all ready to receive—Walter, as he supposed.

"Where will you stop in the village? I will come and see you."

"I shall stop where you stop. I won't leave you. Here you have been kissing me this last half hour, and now you want to run away and leave me. I am determined to expose you to that old clergyman and his wife in the doorway yonder. More than that, your darling "little wife" that is to be, as you called her in the stage, shall know all about it."

What a situation for a modest moral man! It was awful. To be laughed at—exposed: and who was she? Could it be possible? He had heard of such characters! It must be; but she was very pretty; and he to be the means of bringing such a creature into the very house of the good and pious clergyman, and his sweet old pet and playmate—his Mary Fuller. He saw it all. It was a judgment upon him. What business had he to be kissing a strange girl, if, she was pretty? His uncle and aunt had come clear down the stone walk to the door-yard gate, almost to the stage-door, which the driver had opened. Walter felt that he was doomed: he had to get out.

"Don't, for God's sake, expose me, young woman!" "I will—get out."

"Oh," thought Walter, "it is all over with me;" and now he shakes hands with the clergyman, and flings his arms around the aunt.

"Mary!" exclaimed the mother; "our Mary in the stage, as I live; so so, you would come up with your cousin, eh?"

"Yes, mother; and what do you think the impudent East Indian has been doing? He has kissed me at least a hundred times, and that isn't all; he tried to persuade me to keep on in the stage, and not get out at all."

"Ah, no wonder he kissed you; he hasn't seen you for some years. How glad you must have been when you met! But what is the matter with you, Walter? Let the driver stop and leave your trunk at your father's, as he goes by, and do you come into the house. Why; what is the matter! Are you dumb?"

"Arn't you ashamed of yourself, Walter, not to speak to my mother when she is talking to you?" chimed in Miss Molly.

Walter now found his voice, and, before he got fairly inside, Miss Mary was his debtor for a round dozen of kisses, which she took very kindly. But as for Walter, his mind was made up. He had turned over the subject during the last three minutes. He would marry that strange girl. He was grateful; she had saved him from degradation, loss of character, and everything else; but would she forgive him for being so free with a strange girl in a stage-coach. Doubtful; but she should have the chance at any rate.

The wanderer received a glad welcome from his family and friends in his old native village; and Mary Fuller was his traveling companion about the place; and together they crossed the door-sill of every old farm-house within a circle of five miles round. Walter had seen enough of the outside of the great world. He had made some money, too, enough for his modest wants; he was old enough to marry—and so was Mary Fuller; and before three months more had rolled over their heads, the venerable old father made them one in the front parlor of the old glebe. When the vows had been spoken, the last prayer made, and the blessings pronounced, Walter clasped Mary to his breast, and imprinted on her sweet lips another first kiss; but now it was the first, thrilling kiss of married love; and as he held her for a moment in his ardent embrace, she whispered gently in his ear—"Walter, dear, it is understood in the vow, no more kissing strange girls in a stage-coach."

Years have flown by since then, and now Walter Marshall and his gentle wife, and the little people they call their "stock in trade," are living pleasantly and happily somewhere on the other side of the Alleghanies, near a place called Pittsburg, where he owns large tracts of mines, not humbug, wishy-washy, shining gold, but real, hard, substantial coal mines, productive to himself and to the country he lives in.

The World as it Is.

The world is not so bad a world
As some would like to make it;
Though whether good or whether bad,
Depends on how we take it.
For if we scold and fret all day,
From dewy morn till even,
The world will ne'er afford to man
A foretaste here of heaven.

This world in truth's as good a world
As e'er was known to any,
Who has not seen another yet,
And there are yet very many;
And if the men and women too
Have plenty of employment,
Those surely must be hard to please
Who cannot find enjoyment.

This world is quite a clever world,
In rain or pleasant weather,
If people would but learn to live
In harmony together;
Nor seek to burst the kindly bond
By love and peace cemented,
And learn the best of lessons yet,
Always to be contented.

Then were the world a pleasant world,
And pleasant folks were in it,
The day would pass most pleasantly
To those who thus begin it;
And all the nameless grievances
Brought up by borrowed troubles,
Would prove, as certainly they are,
A mass of empty bubbles.

LITTLE GRAVES.—Sacred places for fine thoughts and holy feelings are the little graves in the church-yard. They are the depositories of the mothers's sweetest joys—half unfolded buds of innocence—humanity nipt by the first frost of time, ere yet a single canker worm of pollution had nestled among the embryo petals. Call us, indeed, must be the heart of him who can stand by a little grave's side and not have the holiest emotions of his soul awakened to the thoughts of that purity and joy which belong alone to God and heaven; for the mute preacher at his feet, tells him of life begun and life ended without a stain. And surely, if this be vouchsafed to humanity, how much purer and holier must be the spiritual and, enlightened by the Sun of infinite goodness, whence emanated the soul of that brief young sojourner among us! How swells the heart of the parent with mournful joy while standing by the cold earth-bed of lost little ones. Mournful, because the precious treasure glittered in the diadem of the Redeemer.

THE COUNCIL OF THE CATHOLIC HIERARCHY OF FRANCE.—The Archbishop of Paris has convoked a Provincial Council, which met in the chapel of St. Sulpicias, in Paris, on the 17th ult. Besides the Archbishop of Paris, there were present the Archbishop of Meaux, the Bishops of Versailles, Blois and Orleans, and a host of the most distinguished theologians of the French church, among whom were M. M. Cousson and Icard of the Sulpicians, the Jesuit Ravignan, and other writers of scarcely less reputation. This body very rarely meets, and only in great emergencies, and a thousand reports are circulated as to what can have brought it together. Its ceromonial is peculiar, as the members sit in conclave, worship together, and go through the formulary of the church with the greatest severity. All the proceedings of the Council are secret, and a portion only of its acts are ever made public. It is maintained by many, that the concordat to the Emperor Napoleon prohibits the reunion of this body, and the President has therefore issued a decree, legalizing it.—[N. Y. Express.

MR. CALHOUN.—The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says in his letter of the 4th ult.:

It is supposed that Mr. Calhoun will soon resign his seat in the Senate. His health is very bad, and he, as I am told by those who have seen him since the late session, is as uneasy in mind as feeble in body. One of the most intimate as well as one of his earliest friends expressed to me the opinion last summer that he could not live much longer, unless, indeed, he would exchange his seclusion in the country for the society that would delight and enliven him as well as afford exercise for his intellectual faculties in Charleston.

Revolution Begun in Canada.

The news begins to be really interesting from Montreal and other parts of Canada. We publish, this day, an account of the first movement in what may be called a peaceful revolution in Canada, soon to end in its complete separation from the crown of England, and annexation to the United States. The document purports to be an address of the citizens of Montreal, and is signed by nearly four hundred of the most respectable names in that city—men of business, professional men, and people of all ranks of life.

This is the first decided and positive movement made in Canada; and from indications thrown out, from other quarters, it is probable it will be followed up with great force and energy. Of course we cannot expect perfect unanimity in the first steps. The principal journals, however of Montreal are in favor of the movement, and we see only a qualified carping at it in some of the papers of lesser influence. The plan of this revolution appears to be wise and judicious. The movement will be watched in this country, and on both sides of the Atlantic, with a great deal of interest and attention. It involves vast principles and elements of good or of evil, to both the continents of both worlds. If a peaceful seperation of Canada should be effected, and annexation with the United States should follow, similar attempts may be made in other British colonies—the West Indies and elsewhere. Again, the accession of such a vast territory, extending from the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans, down to the North Pole, would involve deep considerations, affecting the Southern section of the Union, and our destiny as a united people hereafter.—[N. Y. Herald.

From the Boston Traveler.

Housekeeping in California.

We have had any amount of information respecting the our-of-door life of California. The first glimpse of in-door life, however, is furnished by a good housewife from Winthrop, Me., whose letter to her children is published in the Portland Advertiser of Saturday, and is a capital account of housekeeping in El Dorado.

The following is her description of her domestic arrangements:

"We have now been keeping house three weeks. I have ten boarders, two of which we board for the rent. We have one hundred and eighty-nine dollars per week for the whole. We think we can make seventy-five of it clear of all expenses, but I assure you I have to work mighty hard—I have to do all my cooking by a very small fire place, no oven, bake all my pies and bread in a dutch oven, have one small room about 14 feet square, and a little back room we use for a store room about as large as a piece of chalk. Then we have an open chamber divided off by cloth. The gentlemen occupy one end, Mrs. H—— and daughter, your father and myself, the other. We have a curtain hung between our beds, but we do not take pains to draw it, as it is no use to be particular here."

She says that they have bought no furniture; and from her account they get along very comfortably without such superfluities; for she adds: "The gentleman of whom we hire the house had been at housekeeping; he loaned us some few things, but I assure you we do not go into luxuries. We sleep on a cot without any bed or pillow except our extra clothing under our head." The price of these accommodations is $21 a week. The good lady, nevertheless, entertains no great love for San Francisco, and has a decided yearning for "Down East." There is not a pleasant thing there, she says, but gold. Of that there is plenty, but you must work hard for it.

"Tell Betty," she adds, "they have to pay twenty-five dollars for making a dress. If there was any thing pleasant here I should like to have you all come immediately. But there has been no rain for three months, nor wont be for so long to come; not a green thing to be seen except a few stunted trees, and so cold we have to keep a fire to be comfortable. When you are eating corn and beans think of your poor mother, who does not get any fruit or vegetables excepting potatoes, and those eight dollars a bushel, and as soon as we are worth ten thousand I shall come home, if I do not find some pleasanter place than this, which I an in hopes will be one year from the time I left. Mrs. H—— took some ironing to do, and what time I have helped, and made seven dollars in as many hours. I have not been in the street since I began to keep house; I don't care to go into a house until I get ready to go home; not that I am home-sick, but it is nothing but gold, gold—no social feelings—and I want to get my part and go where my eye can rest upon some green thing."

Horrid Murder.

One of the most bloody and mysterious transactions which transpired in our city for a number of years past, occured at Barnum's City Hotel, between the hours of eleven and twelve o'clock last night. The circumstance under which it took place—the dreadful and fatal result to one of our most respectable and worthy citizens—the doubt in which the whole is envolved—prevents us from giving more than a mere statement of the fact as we derived them amid the confusion which ensued.

Two men; giving their names as Gonzales de Montezquieu and Rignard de Montezquieu, arrived at the City Hotel yesterday morning, armed with sundry pieces of shooting irons, and represented that they were from Chicago, but recently on a general hunting tour. A room was assigned them, and nothing singular in their conduct noticed by any during the day. They both have the appearance of hardened, consumate villains, and beyond what is instamped upon their features in this particular, nothing unusual is manifested about them.

The cause of their shooting is a mystery. It appears that Mr. Albert Jones, T. K. Barnum, Capt. W. Hubbell and H. M. Henderson, lodgers in the same room, were preparing to retire, when the two Montezquieus rushed in upon them, armed with double barrelled guns, and commenced an indiscriminate firing upon them. Mr. Albert Jones, coach maker, on Third street, was instantly killed, a ball passing through his head; Mr. T. K. Barnum, nephew of the proprietor, was badly, and is feared seriously wounded; Capt. W. D. Hubbell, of Liberty, Mo., wounded through the wrist; H. M. Henderson, wounded over the left eye; and Macomber, steward of the house, badly wounded in the wrist. The latter person was wounded by one of the assailants after the alarm had been given, and while in the act of arresting one of the parties.

These two desperadoes, after they were secured, presumed to be crazy—one asserting that they were ordered by God Almighty to do the shooting, the other, showing an indisposition to talk, and entirly dumb. The motive for committing the act—no offence whatever having been given—remains in a mystery. They were arrested and lodged in jail.—[St. Louis Rep. 30th.

ABDUCTION AND MARRIAGE.—Henry Pitt of Jersey City, has been arrested for enticing away, and abducting, and marrying Eliza Smith, who, the mother swears, was 13 years old in February last.

The young lady herself testified that she told the accused her age, but he insisted that she was older. She says that she went to New York with him freely and of her own accord, with the view of being married, and that her mother felt bad about it, but did not scold her. Counsel for the accused moved to discharge the complaint, but he was held to bail in $500 to answer. If a few ministers were punished for marrying children, we should hear no more of it.

An exchange heads an account of the shooting of a sheriff, by the anti-renters, with the words "Commencement of the Sporting Season."

ADVERTISEMENTS.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRESH ARRIVAL
OF
FALL AND WINTER GOODS
AT
DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S
CHEAP STORE,
ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods: Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

NEW FIRM.
TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,
(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)
St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

St. Joseph, Mo.
DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!
HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,
On Main Street, at the Sign of the
MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, Dyestuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!
JOHN MARTIN,
North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets
St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

JESSE HOLLADAY.
St. Joseph, Mo.,
Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY,
Attorney and Councillor at Law.
Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that I the undersigned have obtained from the Judge of Probate Court, of Fremont county, letters of administration upon the Estate of P. Benoist, deceased, bearing date the 4th day of October, 1849. That all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against said estate are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate; and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred. T. S. BENOIST,
Admistrator.

St. Francis, Pottawatamie Co., Iowa, Oct. 4, 1849. 3t*

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectully Inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take hom with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 12, 1849. VOLUME I.---NUMBER 23.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. Mower, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
Preston Thomas, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder James McGaw, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. John M Burnhisel, Travelling Agent.
Mr. Henry Sanford, Linden, Mo.
Mr. Graham Coultrin, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. James Townsend, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder Nathaniel H. Felt, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. Jacob Gibson, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder Thomas Cartwright, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder Wilford Woodruff, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. Merryweather, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. John Bowen, Montrose, Iowa.
Murdock McKenzie, Quincy, Ill.
David Whitmer, Richmond, Mo.
Benj. R. Hulse, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
George Peacock, Westou, Mo.
Wm. Martindale, traveling agent, throughout the United States.

GIFT OF THE HOLY GHOST.

Various and conflicting are the opinions of men in regard to the gift of the Holy Ghost. Some people have been in the habit of calling every supernatural maifestation, the effects of the spirit of God, whilst there are others that think there is no manifestation connected with it at all; and that it is nothing but a mere impulse of the mind, or an inward feeling, impression, or secret testimony or evidence which men possess, and that there is no such thing as an outward manifestation. It is not to be wondered at that men should be ignorant, in a great measure, of the principles of salvation, and more especially of the nature, office, power, influence, gifts and blessings of the Gift of the Holy Ghost; when we consider that the human family have been enveloped in gross darkness and ignorance for many centuries past without revelations, or any just criterion to arrive at a knowledge of the things of God, which can only be known by the spirit of God. Hence it not unfrequently occurs, that when the elders of this church preach to the inhabitants of the world, that if they obey the gospel they shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, that the people expect to see some wonderful manifestation; some great display of power, or some extraordinary miracle performed; and it is often the case that young members in this church, for want of better information, carry along with them their old notions of things and sometimes fall into eggregious errors. We have lately had some information concerning a few members that are in this delima, and for their information make a few remarks upon the subject.

We believe in the gift of the Holy Ghost being enjoyed now, as much as it was in the apostles days;—we believe that it is necessary to make and to organize the priesthood; that no man can be called to fill any office in the ministry without it; we also believe in prophecy, in tongues, in visions, and in revelations, in gifts, and in healings; and that these things cannot be enjoyed without the gift of the Holy Ghost; we believe that holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, and that holy men in these days spake by the same principle; we believe in its being a comforter and a witness bearer, "that it brings things past to our remembrance, leads us into all truth, and shews us of things to come:" we believe that "no man can know that Jesus is the Christ, but by the Holy Ghost." We believe in it in all its fulness, and power, and greatness, and glory: but whilst we do this we believe in it rationally, reasonably, consistently, and scripturally, and not according to the wild vagaries, foolish notions and traditions of men. The human family are very apt to run to extremes, especially in religious matters, and hence people in general, either want some miraculous display; or they will not believe in the gift of the Holy Ghost at all. If an elder lays his hands upon a person, it is thought by many that the person must immediately rise and speak in tongues, and prophecy; this idea is gathered from the circumstance of Paul laying his hands upon certain individuals who had been previous (as they stated) baptized unto John's baptism; which when he had done, they "spake with tongues and prophesied." Philip also, when he had preached the gospel to the inhabitants of the city of Samaria, sent for Peter and John, who when they had came laid their hands upon them for the gift of the Holy Ghost, for as yet he had fallen upon none of them; and when Simon Magus saw that through the laying on of the apostles hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money that he might possess the same power. Acts viii. These passages are considered by many as affording sufficient evidence for some miraculous, visible, manifestation, whenever hands are laid on for the gift of the Holy Ghost.

We believe that the Holy Ghost is imparted by the laying on of hands of those in authority, and that the gift of tongues, and also the gift of prophecy, are gifts of the spirit, and are obtained through that medium; but then to say that men always prophesied and spoke in tongues when they had the imposition of hands, would be to state that which is untrue, contrary to the practice of the apostles, and at variance with holy writ; for Paul says, "to one is given the gift of tongues, to another the gift of prophecy, and to another the gift of healing"—and again, "do all prophecy? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?" evidently shewing that all did not possess these several gifts; but that one received one gift and another another—all did not prophecy; all did not speak in tongues; all did not work miracles; but all did receive the gift of the Holy Ghost; sometimes they spake in tongues and prophesied in the Apostles days, and sometimes they did not. The same is the case with us also in our administration, while more frequently there is no manifestation at all that is visible to the surrounding multitude; this will appear plain when we consult the writings of the apostles and notice their proceedings in relation to this matter. Paul, in 1 Cor. xii. says, "Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant;" it is evident from this that some of them were ignorant in relation to these matters, or they would not need instruction. Again, in the xiv. chapter, he says "Follow after charity and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophecy." It is very evident from these scriptures that many of them had not spiritual gifts, for if they had spiritual gifts where was the necessity of Paul telling them to follow after them! and it is as evident that they did not all receive these gifts by the imposition of hands, for they as a church had been baptized and confirmed by the laying on of hands—and yet to a church of this kind, under the immediate inspection and superintendance of the apostles, it was necessary for Paul to say "follow after charity and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophecy," evidently showing that those gifts were in the church but not enjoyed by all in their outward manifestations.

But supposing the gifts of the spirit were immediately, upon the imposition of hands, enjoyed by all, in their fulness and power; the skeptic would still be as far from receiving any testimony except upon a mere casualty as before, for all the gifts of the spirit are not visible to the natural vision, or understanding of man; indeed very few of them are. We read that "Christ ascended into heaven and gave gifts unto men; and he gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers,;" Eph. iv. The church is a compact body composed of different members and is strictly analagous to the human system, and Paul after speaking of the different gifts says, "Now are ye the body of Christ and each one members in particular; and God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, helps, governments, diversities of tongues. Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?" It is evident that they do not; yet are they all members of the one body; all members of the natural body, are not the eye, the ear, the head or the hand—yet the eye cannot say to the ear, I have no of thee, nor the head to the foot, I have no need of thee; they are all so many component parts in the perfect machine—the one body;—and if one member suffer, the whole of the members suffer with it; and if one member rejoice all the rest are honored with it.

These then are all gifts; they come from God; they are of God; they are all the gifts of the Holy Ghost; they are what Christ ascended into heaven to impart; and yet how few of them could be known by the generality of men. Peter and John were apostles, yet the Jewish court scourged them as impostors. Paul was both an apostle and prophet, yet they stoned him and put him into prison. The people knew nothing about it, although he had in possession the gift of the Holy Ghost. Our Savior was "anointed with the oil of gladness above his fellows," yet so far from the people knowing him, they said he was Beelzebub, and crucified him as an impostor. Who could point out a pastor, a teacher or an evangelist, by their appearance; yet had they the gift of the Holy Ghost. But to come to the other members of the church and examine the gifts as spoken of by Paul, and we shall find that the world can in general know nothing about them, and that there is but one or two that could be immediately known, if they were all poured out immediately upon the imposition of hands. 1 Cor. xii. Paul says, "There are diversities of gifts yet the same spirit; and there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord; and there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all. But the manifestation of the spirit is given unto every man to profit withal. For to one is given, by the spirit, the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge, by the same spirit; to another faith by the same spirit; to another the gifts of healing, by the same spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues. But all these worketh that one and the self same spirit, dividing to each severally as he will." There are several gifts mentioned here, yet which of them all could be known, by an observer, at the imposition of hands? The word of wisdom, and the word of knowledge, are as much gifts as any other, yet if a person possessed both of these gifts, or received them by the imposition of hands, who would know it? Another might receive the gift of faith, and they would be as ignorant of it. Or suppose a man had the gift of healing, or power to work miracles, that would not then be known; it would require time and circumstances to call these gifts into operation. Suppose a man had the discerning of spirits, who would be the wiser for it? Or if he had the interpretation of tongues, unless some one spoke in an unknown tongue, he of course would have to be silent; there are only two gifts that could be made visible—the gift of tongues and the gift of prophecy. These are things that are the most talked about, and yet if a person spoke in an unknown tongue, according to Paul's testimony, he would be a "barbarian to those present." They would say that it was giberish; and if he prophesied they would call it nonsense. The gift of tongues is the smallest gift perhaps of the whole, and yet it is one that is the most sought after. So that according to the testimony of scripture and the manifestations of the spirit in ancient days, very little could be known about it by the surrounding multitude; except on some extraordinary occasion as on the day of Pentecost. The greatest, the best, and the most useful gifts would be known nothing about by an observer. It is true that a man might prophecy, which is a great gift; and one that Paul told the people—the church—to seek after and covet, rather than to speak in tongues; but what does the world know about prophecying? Paul says that it "serveth only to those that believe." But does not the scriptures say that they spake in tongues and prophesied? Yes; but who is it that writes these scriptures? Not the men of the world or mere casual observers, but the apostles—men who knew one gift from another, and of course were capable of writing about it; if we had the testimony of the scribes and pharisees concerning the out-pouring of the spirit on the day of Pentecost, they would have told us that it was no gift, but that the people "were drunken with new wine," and we shall finally have to come to the same conclusion that Paul did, that "no man knows the things of God but by the spirit of God," for with the great revelations of Paul, when he was caught up into the third heavens and saw things that were not lawful to utter, no man was apprised of it until he mentioned it himself; fourteen years after; and when John had the curtains of heaven withdrawn, and by vision looked through the dark vista of future ages, and contemplated events that should transpire throughout every subsequent period of time until the final winding up scene—while he gazed upon the glories of the eternal world, saw an innumerable company of angels and heard the voice of God—it was in the spirit on the Lord's day; unnoticed and unobserved by the world.

The manifestations of the gift of the Holy Ghost; the ministering of angels; or the developement of the power, majesty or glory of God were very seldom manifested publicly, but generally to the people of God; when angels have come, or God has revealed himself, it has been to individuals in private—in their chamber—in the wilderness or fields: and that generally without noise or tumult. The angel delivered Peter out of prison in the dead of night—came to Paul unobserved by the rest of the crew—appeared to Mary and Elizabeth without the knowledge of others—spoke to John the Baptist whilst the people around were ignorant of it. When Elisha saw the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof, it was unknown to others. When the Lord appeared to Abraham it was at his tent door, when the angels went to Lot no person knew them but himself, which was the case probably with Abraham and his wife; when the Lord appeared to Moses it was in the burning bush, in the tabernacle, or on the mountain top; when Elijah was taken in a chariot of fire, it was unobserved by the world; and when he was in the cleft of the rock, there was loud thunder, but the Lord was not in the thunder; there was an earthquake, but the Lord was not in the earthquake; and then there was a still small voice, which was the voice of the Lord, saying, what dost thou here, Elijah?

The Lord cannot always be known by the thunder of his voice; by the display of his glory, or by the manifestation of his power; and those that are the most anxious to see these things, are the least prepared to meet them; and were the Lord to manifest his power as he did to the children of Israel, such characters would be the first to say "let not the Lord speak any more, lest we his people die."

We would say to our brethren seek to know God in your closets, call upon him in the fields; follow the directions of the Book of Mormon, and pray over, and for, your families, your cattle, your flocks, your herds, your corn, and all things that you possess; ask the blessing of God upon all your labors, and every thing that you engage in; be virtuous, and pure, be men of integrity and truth, keep the commandments of God, and then you will be able more perfectly to understand the difference between right and wrong, between the things of God, and the things of men; and your path will be like that of the just, "which shineth brighter, and brighter, unto the perfect day." Be not so curious about tongues, do not speak in tongues except there be an interpreter present; the ultimate design of tongues is to speak to foreigners, and if persons are very anxious to display their intelligence, let them speak to such in their own tongues. The gifts of God are all useful in their place, but when they are applied to that which God does not intend, they prove an injury, a snare, and a curse instead of blessing. We may at some future time, enter more fully into this subject; but shall let this suffice for the present.

We see every day those who were in life good and peaceful, though undistinguished and unimportant, go forth from the world more loved, more regretted, than one more talented, more richly endowed, who has misused his powers—who, with all his beauty, his genius, his warmth of heart, has not made a single being happy.—Frederika Bremer.

Laziness grows on people; it begins in cobwebs and ends in iron chains.

Original.

Signs of the Times.

Have you heard the last news, that has come from afar,
Nations and kingdoms preparing for war;
The French, and the English, are willing to go,
To help the old Sultan from misery and woe.

Now Russia, prepare, for your trouble is near,
Unless you keep quiet, you'll be found in the rear;
A fleet from Old England, another from France,
Are now on the ocean, taking part in the chance.

But this is not all, have you heard how the Jews
Are holding Conventions, and these are their views,
To gather once more, to Jerusalem to rest,
To the land of their fathers, for now it is blest.

But this is not all, have you heard of the west
How the righteous, are gathering to Zion for rest,
Zion will flourish, o'ercome all her foes,
For the day is approaching to take her repose.

But this is not all, the prophets foretold
That she would have plenty of silver and gold;
The truth is made manifest over this land;
Truth is eternal, and ever will stand.

But this is not all, the world's in commotion,
Sectarian delusion, and priestly devotion;
Are blinding the minds of the children of men,
While God is withdrawing his spirit from them.

But this is not all, the day is approaching
That men will acknowledge, the Lord's hand is touching,
The wires that secures, the salvation of man,
Though now they are few, who will honor his plan.

But this is not all, midst scenes of confusion,
Political clique, intrigue, and intrusion;
He's revealing himself, to men on this earth,
On purpose to save all those that are worth.

The signs of the times, are truly alarming
To the Saints of the Lord, they ought to be charming,
For in him we trust, and through him we stand
Obtaining inheritances on a blest land.

Now reader consider, and look all around,
In my broken remarks, some truth can be found,
Creation stands witness, to prove unto you
These lines, I have penned, are faithful and true.

Original.

"What is Truth?"

This important question was once asked by Pilate, while interrogating the Son of the Virgin, respecting his divine authority, or assumption to be called, the King of the Jews. Since then, ages have rolled into oblivion, and millions of human beings have laid their mortal tabernacles to mingle with "mother Earth," and their spirits returned to God that gave them, without a full development of this question.

But in these last days, God, through the mouth of his servant, Joseph Smith, was pleased to give a satisfactory solution of the same. "Truth is the knowledge of things as they were, as they are, and as they are to come;" and within this definition of the term is embodied all that can be known.

Sacred history furnishes us with the benefits to be derived from obedience to this immutable attribute of deity. In the first place, it puts us in possession of that knowledge with which the Almighty governs every thing after the counsel of his own will that lives, moves, or that has a being. The fact is, it raises man in the scale of intelligence and being, far above what he is able to conceive while remaining in a state of alienation from God, his Father; for we are made after his image and likeness. Its properties and influence are clearly set forth on the pages of divine writ.

The Savior said, sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth. The Apostle Peter, in another place says, "all flesh is as grass, and the glory of man as the flower of grass; the grass withereth and the flower thereof falleth away, but the word of the Lord endureth forever, and this is the word by which the gospel is preached unto you—"

Question—Peter: what word by the gospel did you preach?

Answer—On the day of Penticost, I stood up with the Eleven, and told the people that this same Jesus, whom the Jews crucified was both Lord and Christ. That was the word of the Lord to us, for he told us that we were called to be witnesses of his name, and the things that we saw.

Question—Did the people believe you, Peter?

Answer—Some did: and on that day, three thousand souls were added unto our number.

Question—In what way did you receive them?

Answer—Upon conviction that I testified to the truth, they were pricked in their hearts, and said to me, and to the rest of my brethren, "what shall we do?"

Question—Well Peter, what did you, and the rest of your brethren say to them in reply?

Answer—I said unto them, repent and be baptised, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of your sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, for the promise was unto them, and to their children, even as many as the Lord our God should call.

Question—Did they obey your word?

Answer—They that gladly received the word were baptised.

Question—Then faith must be the first principle, according to your doctrine Peter? for the people would not ask what they should do, unless they believed your word. But do you mean to say that your word is the word of the Lord, and you a mere man like myself?

Answer—Yes Sir. Before the Lord ascended up on high he commanded me and the rest of my brethren, (after informing us, that all power was given unto him in heaven and on earth,) thus: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptising them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo I am with you, unto the end of the world. (Mathews' record.) Mark records also what he said unto us, viz: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned," &c.

Question—Do you mean to say Peter, all those that received your word on that day, repented, and were baptized, were in a saved condition.

Answer—Most assuredly. The Lord said he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, this is his word to me. I told the people so, and his word is truth, and endureth forever, and that was the word binding on me to preach unto them.

Question—Peter, you promised the gift of the Holy Ghost, if they would comply with your request. Did they receive it?

Answer—Read Acts, chap. ii. verse 42. One part of our doctrine is the laying on of hands, (after the candidate has been baptised by water in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins,) for the reception of the gift of the Holy Ghost, which you will find exemplified in the case of "Samaria" when they received the word of God. I (Peter,) and John, were sent from Jerusalem expressly to administer this ordinance, for as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptised in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Question—In laying your hands upon them, did they receive the Holy Ghost?

Answer—Certainly: they received the "Gift," through the imposition of our hands. Acts viii., 16—17.

Question—Well Peter, I am rather troublesome; will you inform me, what relationship, and standing they had before God, after receiving the gift of the Holy Ghost.

Answer—In the first place, they were all baptised by one spirit into one body, and had all been made, to drink of that spirit.—1st Corinthians, chap. xii., 13. In the second place, they were made partakers of the body and blood of the Lord, (1st Corinthians, chap. xi.,) through which, their life was to be perpetuated. Jesus says, "verily, verily, I say unto you, except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day.—John, chap. vi., 53—54.

Again, they had received the spirit of adoption, whereby they could cry "Our Father." Consequently, God being their Father, they were his children, and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ, if so be that they were willing to suffer with him, or in other words undergo the same ordeal of suffering that they might be glorified together. Now you can see clearly their position respecting their relationship and standing towards God.

Question—Holding this relationship to God, that you speak of, what benefit is the Holy Ghost to them, after receiving it; standing thus approved as his children?

Answer—The Holy Ghost is called the Spirit of Truth, the benefit to be derived from it, Jesus says, "is to guide into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak, and he will shew things to come."—John, chap. xvi., 13. A man receiving this spirit without measure, the same as Jesus received it, can lift up the vail of obscurity that covers the past and see through this mighty agent, things as they really did exist before the foundation of this world; things as they really are, and things in the future as they actually will come to pass. In fact, the vail of ignorance is drawn aside, and by progressing from one degree to another, he ascends the scale of intelligence and power, until he attains to the knowledge of the Son of God; unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ, and this also proves that Jesus spoke the truth, when he enjoined upon his disciples: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect."

Question—Would you inform me, what fulness Jesus received of the Father?

Answer—He received the fulness of Him, that filleth all in all.—Ephesians, chap. i., 20, 21, 22—23.

Thus, a man having the fulness of the Holy Spirit, and being glorified thereby, may behold the past, the present, and the future at a glance, and time ceases to disclose ought to him; for with him as it is with his God, all is one "eternal now!" Men may dwell with God when they become like him.

Hungary.

The condition of things in Hungary is lamentable. The currency has almost wholly disappeared. Men who were rich find themselves without the means of supporting their families. Debts are not paid. The sons of many of the nobility have been forced to enlist as private soldiers in the Austrian army. The aged and venerable bishop of Neusohl has been deprived of his office, and sentenced to five years solitary confinement. Women are punished for having aided their husbands; and daughters for having conversed with their fathers who are rebels. In Transylvania the Saxons and Romans, hereditary enemies of the Magyars, have hunted them down like wild beasts — shooting them at sight. Enormities of this kind were so frequent, that the Austrian authority has been forced to declare the state of siege in one part of Hungary. Radetzki, the Austrian general, has been disgusted with their barbarity, though he had considerable experience in the same thing in Italy. Haynau appears anxious to keep the infamous reputation he has acquired.—[Phil. Ledger.

Christianity a Failure.—An Episcopalian paper charges that Mr. Woods, President of Bowdoin College in New England, has arrived at the conclusion that Christianity is a failure.

Emigrant and Imigrant.—Some people are puzzled to see any distinction between these two words. Let us illustrate it. Patrick, just starting from Liverpool for New York, is an em-igrant. Patrick just landed at New York is an im-igrant.

Turkish Honesty.

An open gallery, extending along the whole of the bothren side of the edifice (Solimanie, Constantinople) is filled with chests of various sizes and descriptions, piled one on the other, and carefully marked; these chests contain treasures, principally in gold, silver, and jewels, to a vast amount, and are all the property of individuals, who, in the event of leaving the country, family misunderstandings, or other causes, require a place of safety in which to deposit their wealth. Each package, being accurately described, and scrupulously secured, is received and registered at Solimanie by the proper authorities, and there it remains intact and inviolate, despite national convulsions and ministerial changes. No event, however unexpected, or however extraordinary, is suffered to affect the sacredness of the trust; and no consideration of country or of religion, militates against the admission of such deposits as may be tendered by persons anxious to secure their property against casualties. On one side may be seen the fortune of an orphan confided to the keeping of the directors of the institution, during his minority; on the other, the capital of a merchant who is pursuing his traffic over seas. All classes and creeds alike avail themselves of the security of the depository; and although an individual may fail to reclaim his property for twenty, fifty, or even an unlimited number of years, no seal is ever broken no lock is ever forced. And despite that this great national bank, for such it may truly be considered, offers not only an easy, but an efficient and abundant means of supply, no instance has been known in which the government has made an effort to avail itself of the treasures of Solimanie.—[City of the Sultan.

Translated for the Newark Daily Advertiser.

A long communication in the Courier des Etats-Unis of the 19th instant, contains the following views on the Roman question, which are probably entertained by many in France, and may eventually be carried into effect by that nation:

"There is but one way, then, of avoiding the evils of the futture, a noble, a decisive way, which is, that France, the eldest daughter of the Church, should retain perpetual possession of Rome. Unless this be done, diplomatists will only be building on sand, and Rome will continue to be the most unhappy of cities. But what will Austria and England say or do? Nothing. What part will the colossus of the north enact? That is a dwarf, as before. Rome is an exception to all other cities; it has been built, ornamented, furnished, and supported by the whole Catholic world, and no more belongs to the Cardinals than to Garibaldi. It is the city of the universe, a religious, a moral intimacy, an hotel for pilgrims. It was French gold that preserved the crumbling walls of the Coliseum, built the church of St. Louis, restored la Trinitedu-Mont, and many other works. When Austria and England revolted against the tribute of the indulgences, levied to enrich the artistical world, by sculpture, painting and music, France did not revolt; comprehending the noble designs of Paul, Jules and Leo, she contributed her gold for the embellishment of Rome by the arts; she, with Michael Angelo, added an eight hill of marble, St. Peter's, to the seven-hilled city of Romulus. Thus France, above all other nations, has a right to hold possession of Rome, and to guard it against the Germans, who might again ravage it as in 1527. The eternal city will perish, unless sustained by the arm of France."

By the way, this last sentence sounds somewhat like a bull; it is not very plain how an eternal city could perish.

From the Literary Americam.

The Bible.

FROM THE FRENCH OF FENÉLON.

The Scriptures surpass in naiveta, in vivacity, and grandeur, all the writings of Rome and Greece. Never does Homer himself approach the sublimity of Moses in his canticles, particularly the last, which all the children of the Israelites had to learn by heart. Never has any Greek or Latin ode been able to attain the loftiness of the Psalms; that one, for example, which commences thus, "The mighty God, even the Lord hath spoken, and called the earth," surpasses all human imagination. Never has Homer or any other poet equalled Isaiah, painting the majesty of God, in whose eyes "the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the small dust of the balance—who taketh up the isles As a very little thing." At one time the prophet has all the sweetness and all the tenderness of an eclogue, in the smiling pictures which he draws of peace: at another, he rises till he leaves all beneath him. But what is there in profane antiquity comparable to the tender Jeremiah, deploring the sins of his people: or to Nahum mentally beholding in the far future the haughty Nineveh fall before the efforts of an innumerable host. The reader hears this host, and hears the noise of arms and chariots; all is depicted in a lively manner which enchains the imagination. He leaves Homer far behind him. Again read Daniel threatening Balthazar with the vengeance of the Lord ready to descend upon him, and seek, in the most sublime originals of antiquity anything that will bear comparison.

Moreover all in Scripture is consistent; every particular preserves the character which it ought to have—the history, the detail of laws, the descriptions, the vehement passages, the mysteries, the moral discourses. Finally, there is as much difference between the profane poets and the prophets, as there is between true enthusiasm and false. The latter, truly inspired, express everything divine; the former endeavoring to rise above themselves, always betray their human weakness.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE.....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail, will be at the risk of those who send it.

Response.

In coming before the public in the capacity of an Assistant to the Editor of the Frontier Guardian, Mr. Orson Hyde, I feel deeply impressed with a sense of the responsibility that must inevitably rest upon any one, who occupies, satisfactorily, such a position. On my part, it is with fear and trembling, that I step forward to undertake such an arduous task. However, I am resolved, under the direction and counsel of my superiors, to persevere in the good cause, and call into action my powers of mind and body, to help sustain the reputation that the Guardian has attained to, through the talent, diligence and wisdom of its present Editor and proprietor. I feel my own inability to fulfil with dignity and honor, every requirement which the character of the paper demands, so as to secure the good will and patronage of a generous and liberal community.

Bear a little with me, and I will do my best, to serve the public acceptably, and not only the public, but my employer also.

Respectfully,
DANIEL MACKINTOSH.

Tithing.

The season of the year has now arrived when every honest hearted person who wishes an honorable standing in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, should pay in one tenth of what he has raised the last year, or one tenth part of his increase. The free-will offerings have relieved the immediate necessities of the poor; but it will be remembered that this was aside from the law of tithing. It is now expected that all who desire to fulfil the law of the Church, and to honor her institutions, will, with the least possible delay, deliver to Bishop Johnson at the west part of this town, or at some other places, such as he or his agents may designate, one-tenth part of their products, profits, or income for the past season, if they have not already done so. The poor must be substantially provided for, such as are worthy, and those whose conduct does not give them claim on the tithing, must work and eat their own bread. The church has son e liabilities which must be met, and met from the tithing. Do not say, "I will pay my tithing when I get to the Valley and not before;" for this is only another way of saying, "I will not pay it at all!"

The Presidency in the Valley have directed us to collect the tithing here, and if there is any that can be used for the benefit of the Church in the Valley, they want it sent to them in such articles as they have ordered and will order through the authorities here. We therefore want the means paid here according to their direction. It is further expected that those who have money or property that has not been tithed by the church, will pay in one tenth part of it as soon as possible after they read or know of this call. There is never a better time to show our liberality than when we have the means to do it, and when it is needed. We are placed here to be a blessing to one another, and as "it is more blessed to give than to receive," every one should be eager to do his duty when he is required; for by and by, we shall pass behind the vail, sleep in the dust and go beyond the reach of charity or want. While, therefore, the cuaures and wants are felt, let it be the pride of every one to drive away as many wants as possible, and fill up our few remaining days by blessing and comforting the sons and daughters of sorrow and want, and thereby secure to our children a greater blessing than all our substance would be if reserved for them. Let not this business linger, but execute it with promptness as it becometh just and good men, whose hope reaches beyond the god of this world.

From Fort Hall.

Mr. Dayton, a young man whose parents reside near this place, has just come in from the above station. He reports that some men came up to the Fort from Salt Lake City a short time before he left, and reported there that the mail was to leave the City on the 12th of October for this place. Mr. Dayton and a small company left Fort Hall with the United States Mail from that place on the 12th of October, the same day on which it was reported that our mail was to leave the Valley. As their company was small, they were in hopes of falling in with our mail company near the junction of the roads for mutual protection across the plains. But they did not fall in with them. Our mail might not have left so soon as it was expected; and it may be that the snows on the mountains compelled them to return after they started.

Mr. Dayton says that he ate very fine potatoes at Fort Hall that were raised in the Valley, and also other excellent vegetables that were sent up to sell. He says that the men who came up to the Fort from the Valley just before he left, reported excellent crops there of all kinds; and that the Gold Diggers that passed through, left a great deal of provisions, and those of them that winter in the Valley, will have provisions enough of their own without taxing any raised there. If this be so, it will be very favorably for the emigration next year. God grant that they may have plenty of the products of the soil in their new and secluded home! They will certainly do their part towards it; for the Mormons will work as diligently and as faithfully as the bee. The faith and creed of our church is "that an idle or lazy person cannot be saved, neither one who is unfaithful or untrue in his station." We still hope that our mail will come through safely this winter. Indeed, we look for it daily and hourly.

Mr. D. says that all the companies of our emigrants got safely into the Valley before he left Fort Hall. This is good news.

Consistency and Inconsistency.

In this age of literature, science and art, when everything in a progressive ratio seems to develop itself to the natural eye and to the mind, can a man possessing a ray of common sense, or a spark from the bosom of the Eternal, help reflecting and asking the question. "What is to come?" Before answering this question, another starts right in the face of it. "What has been?"

To enter the field of political strife or religious sarcasm is entirely out of our path. We take the position of friends of truth and righteousness and of all sincere and conscientious people. Much has been said, written, and acted upon, concerning the Roman Catholic Church. She has been for centuries, denominated by the Protestant churches, "The mother of harlots, and the abomination of the earth." If the Catholic Church is the mother of harlots, where can we find her daughters? We conclude they must be those, that descended or dissented from her. Who dissented from her? With due deference toward both parties, we are forced to the conclusion, that it cannot be any other, than those who protested against her institutions and laws, and came out from her,—denounced her practice, disdained to have her reputation, and took to themselves a new name, or names, such as Lutherans, Calvinists, &c., &c. According to the language of the beloved disciple, John, the Protestant world are in as bad a dilemma as they say the Catholics are. Because they are of Catholic descent, not only so, but a little uncharitable, and inconsistent in this respect. They have left her alone, and set up on their own responsibility. What was the result? The Catholic Church held them as heretics, and for this reason, denounced and excommunicated them from their fellowship, and from holding the priesthood, and privilege pertaining to their Church. Query? If the Catholic Church did so, from whence did the Protestant Churches receive their ordination and authority to preach and administer the ordinances in the name of Jesus? They do not profess to believe in revelation, Paul, writing on this very subject to his Hebrew brethren, says: "No man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God as was Aaron." Consequently, the Protestants, acknowledging no later revelation than that given to John on the Isle of Patmos, are left without a legal authority or priesthood, either through the Catholic Church or from Heaven, by their own confession. It is not our purpose to cast any reproaches upon either Catholics or protestants; neither is it our purpose to vindicate the legitimacy of either, as we are not dependent upon either source for our authority and priesthood:—consequently, we have no occasion to wage warfare, or to harbor any ill-feeling against them. Our priesthood and authority came direct from Heaven by the agency of an Holy Angel, who honored one, with his visit that was "despised of men, but chosen of God, and precious. In him were the seeds of truth early sown by the celestial teacher; in him were the elements of power and wisdom discovered at an early age, sparkling through the vail of ignorance like the diamond through its "exterior incrustation." Clearly, and still more clearly was it made manifest that which John the beloved disciple saw on the Isle of Patmos, was being fulfilled through Joseph Smith.

"I saw," says John, "Another angel flying through the midst of Heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell upon the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and people," &c., &c.

This same Joseph Smith, under this heavenly influence and inspiration, planted a church, or tree in the midst of Columbia's soil. He nourished and cherished it with care, and with a thousand anxieties until, at length, in a time of dearth, he watered its roots with his own blood, bade adieu to earth, and returned to his original home. Since then, the tree has grown and flourished. The testator is dead, and the testament is of force. Welcome! welcome! therefore, every meek and contrite heart, to come and repose, beneath the shade of its branches.

In faith he stood before the Lord
Until his earthly task was done;
He sealed his labor with his blood,
And now is gone to live at home.

"Shed not for him the bitter tear,
Nor give the heart to sore regret;
'Tis but the casket that lies here,
The gem that fill'd it sparkles yet."

A crimson wreath his brow entwines
With laurels that can never die;
He waits to greet his friends so kind,
In mansions bright prepared on high.

Counsel.

It has been agreed to in Council, that all the members of our church who can fit themselves out for the Valley next Spring, and take useful goods enough with them to purchase their necessaries after they get there till they can produce them from the soil, make themselves ready and go, and the blessing of the Father be on them: but those who can just barely get there, and be a charge and burthen upon those already there, we cannot advise them to go unless the Presidency there send us written instructions to that effect between now and next May. If they do, we will faithfully give it to the public through the Guardian if all be well. Every item of counsel touching the emigration that comes officially will be laid before you, and nothing suppressed that they wish you to know.

Offerings.

It has afforded us much pleasure to be able, by the liberality of our friends, to administer to the wants of the poor and the needy among us. None have gone away empty that have applied to us for help. As a general thing our brethren and sisters have opened their hearts and hands liberally to supply the wants of the poor; and those who have not seen cause to do so, we will not censure.

We adopted the most effectual means in our power to help the poor and the distressed, and we have spared no pains to hunt them out, and to find the place of their abode. It is the earnest and sincere prayer of our heart that those who have helped the poor at this time may themselves never become real objects of charity, nor their children after them. David, the king of Israel hath said, "Blessed is he that considereth the poor, the Lord shall deliver him in time of trouble."

Ye poor that have been partakers of the offerings of your friends and brethren, pray earnestly for the health, prosperity, and salvation of those whose liberality has brought you timely relief. The blessings of the poor be on that house and on that person that have imparted of their substance for the benefit of such as had need at this time. May their names never perish, but may they be found written in the "Book of Life of the Lamb that was slain from the foundation of the world."

Wanted in Exchange for the Guardian.

Pork, beef, butter, eggs, lard, mutton, potatoes, flour, common fence rails, lumber, cord wood and even cash or California Gold Dust will not be particularly objected to. Also corn.

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

The following article from the Republic, we copy with much pleasure, because the sentiments which it contains must come home to every man's conscience who is at all conversant with the course of Gen. Taylor's Administration, with the conviction of truth. It is our opinion that the manly firmness and decision of character exhibited by the present administration in the late Diplomatic relations with France, must be secretly admired and respected by those who affect displeasure at the policy. We cannot see how any man that cherishes an American feeling, or that has generosity enough to confess true merit, if found in a rival, can find grounds to take exceptions to the course of Gen. Taylor with the French Minister:

"It is easy to say that "General Taylor's experiment as President of the United States has turned out to be a complete failure." It is easy to say that he has shown himself a dishonest man. It is easy to charge him with abandoning the people; and to denounce him as having falsified the sacred word of a soldier. It is easy to accuse him with having procured his election by false pretences, and with having broken his plighted faith with the country. All these charges, sayings, and denunciations, are as easily uttered now by his maligners as it was said by them, before the election, that he would make no pledges at all. They have but to write down the words, and they are said. He has been accused of imbecility, of breaking faith, of being a dishonest man, of conduct which would disgrace a gentleman; with endless reiteration he has been so accused, and with a bitterness and perseverance which wax bolder and fiercer as events make it more and more palpable that these allegations are as mendacious as they are brutal. It would be an insult to the people of the United States to attempt to defend General Taylor against a charge that he is a "disgraced gentleman" or a "dishonest man." Such miserable profligacy of speech carries no conviction to honest minds, nor corruption to any honest heart. Accusation of this nature may be safely left to seek their way to the slough of festering calumnies, by the gravitation of their own infamy.

"And in respect to the accusations of "imbecility" and "failure," coming as they do from the same source, little heed might be paid them. I had not fallen to the lot of any of General Taylor's predecessors to be called upon, in the first months of his Administration, to do so many acts requiring intelligence, judgment, and firmness, as he has been summoned to perform within that space of time. The duties he has been specially invoked to discharge, are precisely such as taxed powers and capacities which were denied him by his assailants; and the thorough manner in which they have been executed is a better vindication of his ability and energy than any amount of argument or eulogy could afford. In what has he failed that he has attempted? Did he fail in vindicating the neutral rights of the nation in the matter of the steamship United States? Did he fail in bringing Rey back to liberty and the jurisdiction of the United States? Did he fail in suppressing the Cuba expedition? Whatever opinion men may entertain of the policy of the Administration in these transactions, none will say that it failed in execution. So far from exhibiting a want of energy, the Union itself has charged the President with a vigor beyond the law. It accused him with usurping power in California, and grasping the prerogatives of the judiciary in the dispersion of the Round Islanders. These are not the acts of an "imbecile." Nor can the complete success of the measures adopted by his Administration be pleaded to prove the President a "failure."

With equal confidence might we appeal to the policy of the Government in Florida as evincive of a safe discretion, sound judgement, and a firm purpose. When the news of an Indian outbreak in that State reached the Executive, General Taylor adopted at once a plan of proceeding, from which he could not be moved by the threats of opponents or the entreaties of friends. His ground was taken with the rapidity of military decision, and adhered to, despite the reproaches of the selfish or the clamor of alarm. The sequel has demonstrated the wisdom of his measures, whilst it put to shame the apostacy of those whose faith had been shaken by the scoffing of his enemies. Assailed on all sides by the opposition press, and meeting with little encouragement from even his friends near the scene of action, he yet pursued a steady course, which has been fruitful of results which might quell a less inveterate opposition, whilst they promise other and better things for Florida and the Union.

"In no instance has the Government failed to carry through its measures since General Taylor's induction into office. From Texas as from Florida, the intelligence is of the most encouraging character. Not only his current difficulties been met and subdued, but the legacy of evils bequeathed to the present administration by the last is being satisfactorily disposed of. The opposition has been reduced to its invention—a prolific one it is true, to fabricate matter of complaint, and, in doing so, has made amends for its poverty in just grounds of condemnation, by the monstrousness of its fabrications.

To Our Agents.

Instead of sending packages of papers to our agents for distribution to subscribers, we shall henceforth send the papers to the Post Office, and subscribers can call individually at the respective Post Offices wheir their papers come, and pay their own postage without troubling an agent. This will, hereafter, be our course in all cases where we send by regular mail.

Almanacs for 1850

For sale at this office. Who would not have one when it only costs 5 cents? It will make you weather wise, besides telling you when to get up in the morning; and also when Sunday comes, so that you may not go to mill instead of going to meeting through mistake for want of knowledge of the day.

THE EMBEZZLEMENT CASE.—If we are to judge from the progress, so far made in the case of the State of Missouri vs. N. Childs, Jr., for the embezzlement of money, belonging to the Bank of the State of Missouri, it will be three or four weeks, before it can be brought to a conclusion.

Our Foreman is a regular Teaser.

He has just popped in and said. "Have you any copy Sir, for the inside?" No, not a line! It is so long since we have seen a newspaper that we have lost the track of the news; and what makes it still worse, our friends have borrowed, begged and cabbaged all our old exchanges and we are left as bare as a "picked chicken." Here we are, "hard up," sure enough. We have spun a yarn about mails long enough to reach to Washington City, and nearly back again. We wont whine any more about mails, for we have none to whine about, and it is so long since we have have had any that our devil has marked the word "mail" obsolete.

Well,—the news! What is it? Nobody has committed suicide exactly, but several marriages have been perpetrated. Its fine weather, and the way our merchants have to step about, and look two or three ways at once to attend upon their customers, would furnish plenty of business for a cross-eyed man. The hollow and sepulchral rumbling of the money making apparatus occasionally underground in two places, on the Island or elsewhere, comes floating on a confidential breeze. Six hundred dollars is rather too much to give for the concern, and that in advance too, unless the silver leaf in the chest, kept in the house were thrown in with the bargain. "They can't prove anything!" No, nothing at all. But this going alone to the sepulcher in the night, and with loaded pistols to negotiate a trade for the machine, looks rather sort o' queer, after the money is deposited with the wife. This kind of dealing is too much like a jog handle, all on one side. We can't stand it. But we would just give a friendly caution. Don't boast too confidentially of your friends and accomplices who trade off your commodities. They may not thank you for your compliments. It might prove a serious injury to them in various ways. Your wisdom in this ought to exceed your skill in drafting.

But we must ask pardon of our readers for troubling them with such trash; still we have to put in something to fill up; and as we can get no news from abroad, we must manufacture it at home.

But how do you get hold of material for manufacturing it? Why, we Twelve happen to meet a "Green Horn," and one of us asks him certain questions and take notes of the conversation, and the "Green Horn" passess on to the next one, who serves him in like manner, and so on with the whole Twelve. Then we Twelve come together, compare our notes, add up the items, and divide the sum total by the number, twelve. The suggestions of this operation has produced the foregoing result, which gives us materials for manufacturing news. We reserve the balance till a future time,—such as drafts and specimens deposited, somebody knows where, but will hate to tell.

But to our surprize! While we are right here on this article, our junior has come in with a bundle of papers right up from St Louis, by the hand of a friend and neighbor. He laid his grappling irons on them and ran right into the "sanctum." So we stop our homespun review to give place to commodities from abroad.

Returned.

Elder Thomas Clark has returned from England after successfully laboring there about one year and a half. He came at the head of 246 emigrants for this place on board the ship "James Pennell." A fine passage across the sea, good health and good luck. Most of the emigrants will winter below.

Request.

We would esteem it a great favor, if persons who may be going St. Louis, at any time, from this section of country, would call on us and let us know the fact. As we have no regular mail, we wish to send our papers off by any private souveyance that may be disposed to accommodate us and the public in this respect.

Public Meeting.

A public meeting will be held, we learn, at St. Francis on This morning, at 11 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of consulting measures, on the propriety of organizing a Circuit Court to embrace Pottawatamie and Fremont counties. A meeting for the same purpose will be held in this town at 11 o'clock, A. M., on Wednesday next. The attendance of the citizens is respectfully solicited.

Highly Important.

We hear, by a gentleman direct from the Eastern part of the State, that from one hundred and fifty to two hundred persons had been killed by the explosion of a steamboat boiler on the Mississippi between New Orleans and St. Louis — that the cholera had re-appeared in St. Louis, and 25 deaths, and also another great fire there, loss, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars. A great freshet in the Hudson river—damage supposed to be immense.

Lines written by Miss Eliza R. Snow, upon the martyrdom of Joseph Smith, the Prophet and Seer.

JOSEPH SMITH.

TUNE—Star in the East.

Praise to the man that commun'd with Jehovah,
Jesus' anointed "that Prophet and Seer,"
Blessed to open the last dispensation;—
Kings shall extol him, and nations revere.

CHORUS.

Hail to the Prophet, ascended to heaven,
Traitors and tyrants now fight him in vain,
Mingling with Gods, he can plan for his brethren,
Death cannot conquer the hero again.

Praise to his mem'ry, he died as a martyr;
Honor'd and blest be his ever great name;
Long shall his blood, which was shed by assassins,
Stain Illinois, while the earth lauds his fame,

CHORUS—[Hail to the Prophet, &c.

Great is his glory, and endless his priesthood,
Ever and ever the Keys he will hold;
Faithful and true he will enter his kingdom,
Crown'd in the midst of the prophets of old.

CHORUS—[Hail to the Prophet, &c.

SACRIFICE brings forth the blessings of heaven;
Earth must atone for the blood of that man;
Wake up the world for the conflict of justice,
Millions shall know "brother Joseph" again.

CHORUS—[Hail to the Prophet, &c.

Mr. Roberts, the Potter,

Wishes us to say that he is now manufacturing "Vessels of honor" from clay of another "lump." He has supplied the market with vessels of dishonor heretofore, and not to his own profit either: but he has found the genuine clay now, and is turning out some handsome ware. Come buy his vessels, and let the Potter live.

ACCIDENT.—On Thursday, 6th inst, about 11 o'clock, A. M., one of our fellow citizens, Mr. Geo. Garner, was severely injured, through his high spirited horses running away. We have not learned the particulars, but sincerely hope that he will soon recover. His head is badly bruised and cut, but his scull we believe not fractured.

Moving of the Waters.

In another place it will be seen that public meetings have been notified at Trading Point and also at this place to take into consideration the propriety of electing a circuit judge, and of establishing a judiciary, a work which the legislature in their wisdom or in their folly did not think it best to perform for us. The Counties of Pottawatamie and Fremont are without a judiciary, and many of the citizens feel that it is our right and privilege to establish one of our own. For our part, we are not well enough acquainted with law and usages relating to these matters to hazard an opinion. We have written to our friends in the Eastern part of the State to get their opinion with regard to the Constitutionality or legality of this contemplated movement. With all respect to the wisdom of the wise in this section, we should feel safer to have the views of some knowing ones who reside nearer head quarters than we. We are so far remote from the seat of government, that we may not comprehend all the particulars and consequences of such an operation. From the papers and documents with which we have been favored, we discover that this move for the organization of a judiciary in this part of the State, assumes the name of "an association for the mutual protection of the personal rights and property of the citizens of Pottawatamie County." If this move is in reality for the purpose of organizing a judiciary in good faith, and if we can honorably, legally and constitutionally do it, we are in for the measure with whatever influence we may be able to exert. But the above language would rather seem to convey the idea that some other measure was contemplated. But perhaps we do not exactly understand, or may be led through some erroneous influence to discover a "white heap" where there is none. But the officers of the law have informed us that in no part of the county have they met with such decided resistance, and threats of violence if they attempted to enforce the law as in the place where this movement originated. Still if there are honorable feelings enough cherished there (of which we have little doubt,) to rise up and break the spell, we shall be most happy to second any legal or constitutional measure that may effect the object. When we get the views of some of the leading men on the other side of the State, touching this measure, we will publish them forth-with for the benefit of all concerned. Till then we would not wish to be very officious in the enterprize.

Weather.

About a week ago we were visited with some of the laurels of winter. The fleecy flakes fell thick; since then we have had several repetitions of the same, accompanied with keen frost and chilling winds. But, however, our prospects are good and our faith firm, that the Holydays which commence on the 20th inst., will cause a reaction in the blood. Whether it will affect the weather, we leave the public to judge. It would augment our recreations considerable if we could only get a confidential breeze from the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, and another from Fort Desmoines, &c., to ascertain how the Thermometer stands in the world, for we have imagined ourselves out of it, for want of mail matter.

QUEER DOINGS IN CUBA.—The New York Sun of Saturday, hints at secret movements still going on in Cuba, and promises in a short time "stirring and glorious news from the beautiful Cuba." The same paper confirms the following from a correspondent of the Tribune at Havanna, Oct. 19:

"While the U. S. ship Germantown was at Matanzas, a number of gentlemen proposed to give the officers a ball, and the day selected was St. Zackary's day. Leave was refused by the Governor, for fear that it might be esteemed a compliment to the President of the United States. But the committee were informed that on the Queen's birthday it would be necessary to give one, and the officers, could be invited to attend it, which would answer the same purpose. The parties did not think so, however, and as they were denied the one, they declined the other, all the preparations were made, but no dancers were in the halls. The music piped to empty walls, save that his excellency, the Governor, his wife and daughter, were present. Six young gentlemen, Custom House officials, have been sentenced to five years residence in Corruna for the crime of staying away from this ball, and four have been ordered home by Alcoy, and sailed this morning, placed on board the Courier, which sailed for Cadiz.

Another letter says that five of the young men had secretly printed and forwarded circulars to the parties expected to "assist" at the entertainment, in honor of the Queen, that the ball would not take place.

The New Orleans Picayune gives the following as to government espionage in Cuba.

"Jealousy the most intense of our countrymen haunts the mind of the Captain General and the Camarilla. Measures have been taken to register the names, residences, business, and political opinions of all Americans on the island. They are thus, to use the language of our informant, 'exposed to a vigilant and suspicious observation that renders life in Cuba exceedingly disagreeable.'"

Rioting in the Ascendant.

All four of the chief Atlantic cities—Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston, have been keeping one another company the past few days, in the disreputable work of rowdyism. The Baltimore Sun says, "the outlaws in each appear to be vieing with one another, just at this time, for the ascendancy. In our local columns yesterday and to-day are recorded more numerous demonstrations on the part of those fierce and destructive spirits, which are a curse in the community, than have come off in the like period of time for more than a twelve months. We gather the following from our exchanges as to other cities:"

In Philadelphia numerous outrages were committed in the southern part of the town in the course of Saturday night.

About half past ten o'clock, a painting house attached to the ship yard of Mr. Vogel was fired.

As the Marion Hose Company were returning to their house, they were attacked, and two of their members—youths, named Tittermary and Mchatty—shot with pistols and slightly wounded.

Between two and three o'clock on Sunday morning, some heartless incendiary set fire to an old barn.

Two or three of the up-town hose companies, in returning from the latter fire, through Moyamensing, were attacked by the Killers, and their carriages taken from them. The watchmen interfered, restored the apparatus, and arrested one or two of the offenders.

On Sunday evening, a party of rioters, reported to be members or adherents of the South Penn Hose Company, came into the district of Spring Garden, and, without warning, made a furious onslaught, with missiles and firearms, upon the house of the Hand-in-hand Engine Company. Officer Keyser arrested two of rioters, but was himself severely injured by brickbats.

The New York Herald has a report of what it calls "a riot in a small way," in that city, on Friday night, in which a crowd of persons attacked the house of one Kelly, broke all the windows, and in the fight two women were wounded by pistol shots. One of the women was Mrs. Fairgrieve, in whose boarding house Mrs. Kelly had sought protection from the violence of her husband. Kelly was arrested.

The Boston Evening Journal has the following:

Outrages upon the person and property, are, we regret to say, becoming quite frequent in this and the neighboring cities and towns, so that it is absolutely unsafe to walk abroad at a late hour in the evening. Incendiarism is rife also, and scarcely a night passes without one or more incendiary fires within a short circuit around Boston.

As the wine comes in we stop the press to congratulate our friends and fellow townsmen, Messrs. Stutsman & Pitt upon the prosperity and manly strength added to their families. Long live the little strangers, and welcome their ingress into our peaceful town.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

OPENING OF THE SEASON.

Plain & Fancy Dress Ball.

THE citizens of this town feeling to appreciate the praiseworthy enterprize of our fellow citizen, Mr. Orson Hyde, in the erection of a "Music Hall" for the cultivation of that important science, and for accommodation of the people generally, and feeling that he is entitled to a compliment, have designed giving on Thursday the 20th inst., a Grand Plain and Fancy Dress Ball in the MUSIC HALL.

The friends of the Erector and of the object for which the Hall was built are respectfully invited to attend. The number of tickets is limited.

Tickets—$1.00 a couple, including refreshments
A full Band in attendance. No free tickets.
Tickets can be procured at the Guardian Office.

AARON JOHNSON,
DAVID CANDLAND,
JOHN GOOCH, JR.,
JOHN NEEDHAM,
CHAS. BABBITT,
J. E. JOHNSON,
Managers.

WM. PITT, Music and Floor Manager.
Dancing to commence at 5 o'clock, P. M.
Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—1t.

HORSE AND OX SHOEING.

WILLIAM F. CARTER,

OF this town, would avail himself of this opportunity to tender his thanks to the citizens of this county, and also to the traveling community, for the liberal patronage with which they have favored him heretofore; and having enlarged his shop and obtained a heavy stock of iron and steel of all kinds, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuation of public favor.

He is prepared to shoe Horses and oxen on the shortest notice, having every facility for these branches that can be had any where. He will also have on hand a good supply of his superior Steel Plated Horse. Emigrants would do well to purchase this article here instead of purchasing elsewhere, as has been proven by the last three years experience. He will also execute with neatness and despatch any jobs in the general line of BLACKSMITHING.

Shop at the Old Stand Opposite the Log Tabernacle.

N. B. Mr. C. has an excellent Lathe, for turning iron, connected with his establishment.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—3m

ESTRAY NOTICE.

TAKEN up by Andrew Burnam, living near Kanesville, on the road leading from Kanesville to Council Point, TWO STRAY COWS, described as follows, viz: one of them is red, white faced, line back, white under the belly, ears supposed to have been cropped or frozen, judged, five years old, about common size, prized at nine dollars and fifty cents. The other is a small red Cow, white face and belly, end of her tail white and three white feet, a red spot under her right eye, two white spots on her back, ears supposed to have been cropped or frozen; judged, four years old, last spring, prized at nine dollars.

T. EURDICK,
Clerk, Board of Co. Com.

Kanesville, Nov. 29, 1848.—d12 3t*

GREAT BARGAIN.

CAPT. R. C. PETTY, residing at the OLD AGENCY, on the Missouri river, directly opposite the mouth of the Platte river, where the Great National Railroad must cross, if it is constructed, offers for sale his splendid and extensive claim of land, well improved, excellent timber and water, with good and commodious buildings, at a price that cannot fail to ensure a fortune to him who is lucky enough to invest a little capital in such an eligible location.

Call and take a look, and see what advantages this point holds out in this age of improvements.

Old Agency, Dec. 12, 1849.

STRAYED.

STRAYED away from the subscriber in July last, Two THREE YEAR OLD OXEN, on the bottom near Kanesville. Color—dark red and brindled; horns—long, wide set and slender. Supposed to be about Highland Grove or Keg Creek; any one giving information leading to the discovery of the said oxen, or bringing them home, will be rewarded by

T. D. BROWN,
At Brown & Millers' Store

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—1t

PRIVATE BOARDING.

TWO or three single gentlemen can be furnished with genteel board and lodging on reasonable terms, at the WHITE HOUSE, one door West of the Printing Office.

Transient persons desirous of taking Dinner or staying for the night can also be accommodated.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—tf

MEALS! MEALS!!

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

NEW MEAT STORE.

MR. JOSEPH WARTHAN respectfully informs the inhabitants of this town that he has opened a MEAT STORE, where he is prepared to furnish meat of all kinds, and meat cut to suit purchasers. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited. Store, second door west of the Printing Office.

I want to purchase beef cattle, on the hoof, for which I will pay $2 per hundred. Also want to purchase fattened hogs, sheep and calves, for which the highest price will be paid in cash.

JOSEPH WARTHAN.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1849.

Extract from a Speech delivered before the High Priests' Quorum in Nauvoo, April 27, 1845, by the Editor of this paper.

Mr. President: I am happy to enjoy the privilege of meeting, this afternoon, so goodly a number of the chosen men of God, on whom the holy priesthood has been placed, to carry into execution the purposes of the Most High—to spread abroad the light and knowledge of the glorious gospel of God's own Son, and to hold the reins of government, in conjunction with others, over the destinies of that people who have acknowledged the authority of Jehovah, bowed the knee to the Prince of Life, and placed their necks beneath his yoke.

As I looked around me over this vast and honorable assembly, I beheld some whose faces I first saw on the other side of the Atlantic, and others whose acquaintance I have made in other States and Territories some years since. The trials, Mr. President, through which we have passed together, at home and abroad, on the land and on the sea, have begotten in my breast a love, a sympathy, and an attachment for these men that time cannot sever; and as our priesthood is an everlasting priesthood, without the beginning of days or end of life," I indulge the fond anticipation of meeting you all beyond the grave where this power and authority will have perfect and complete jurisdiction, and will be a mark of greater honor, there to those who have it, than crowns set with the most costly diamonds upon the heads of earthly monarchs here. Priesthood is the same to this church that the government is to the nation. It is, indeed the only perfect system of government that was ever established. It emanated wholly from God. It is born from above, and is destined at some future period to rule all nations. "The kingdoms of this world must become the kingdoms of our God." Earthly governments possess many good and noble principles; but where is a perfect one? It cannot be found. Man has intermingled the alloy and imperfection peculiar to his own nature and being with the most brilliant and noble principles that have survived the general wreck; so earthly governments now present to the discerning eye a similar picture to Jacob's herd of ringed streaked and speckled." Under this view of the subject, is not the aspiration spontaneous, "thy kingdom come, and thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven!"

There now exists a strong prejudice against men of God having anything to do with political matters, or the temporal interests of men; just as though God managed the spiritual affairs of his kingdom only, and left temporal and political concerns in the hands of the devil, or abandoned them to their own fate. But God presides over all things both temporal and spiritual — both church and state. He orders the events of nations, and controls the universe at pleasure: and if his servants are like him, if they partake of his spirit and of his disposition, they will seek to be co-workers with him in all things. The policy of God's kingdom being perfect, it must, of course, embrace every good thing, whether temporal or spiritual, that can possibly contribute to the happiness and perfection of man. The power that governs this kingdom is the power of God conferred upon man by the commandment of the Holy One through the laying on of hands, and the annointing with oil. This power is called the priesthood, and it must become universal in jurisdiction at some time; for the full tide of Millennial glory cannot set in till this is the case. We are also expecting the will of God to be done on earth as it is done in heaven; and we are certain that none can bear rule there except such as are appointed and ordained of God. Lucifer once undertook it, but he, with all his adherents, was cast out and thrust down to hell, because of an unlawful ambition in aspiring after a station that Heaven was not pleased to give.

Sugar is very sweet, and lemon is very sour. Any great portion of the former will sicken, and any considerable quantity of the latter will set the teeth on edge. But the two united counteract or neutralize the qualities of each other and form a combination from which is made a most agreeable beverage, and adapted to the taste of all grades and classes of people. Beasts only refuse it. Sugar is spiritual, and lemon is temporal matters. A false religion keeps them separate. This continues the religious world in an unhealthy state, and sets the teeth of the political world on edge, fitting them to "bite and devour." The Latter-day Saints should think proper to lose sight of this distinction by uniting the two in one, and calling every thing an ordinance of religion that tend to man's perfection and happiness; whether it be to plough and sow the fields, to buy and sell goods, ware and merchandize, houses or lands; to go to the polls and vote, to the prayer meeting, or to the sacrament of the Lord's supper. All these with us, should be ordinances of religion and whatsoever we do, we should do all to the glory of God. "For whatsoever is not of faith is sin." The term breakfast includes every article necessary to satisfy a man's appetite in the morning; but should he continue to eat after he has taken a sufficient quantity of food, he would receive harm rather than good. So also the kingdom of God includes every thing necessary for man's present and future well being; but should he attach to himself appendages of his own formation, not connected with the kingdom of God, he may expect to sink rather than rise in the scale of intellectual enjoyments. But, because of the hardness of men's hearts and the stubbornness of their wills, and their great unbelief, these things are suffered to be different from the design in the beginning. If we cannot now lawfully act on these principles in every respect, it is not unlawful to pray that the day may soon come when we can.)

The priesthood is the power by which all things are sustained, and it holds the keys of death and hell. It can bind on earth and it is bound in heaven. It can loose on earth and it is loosed in heaven. It can forgive sins on earth and they are forgiven in heaven. It can sit in judgment on earth and that judgment is sanctioned and recorded in heaven. Wherever you find a church, Mr. President whose priesthood does not possess this power, know ye that that church is not the church of God according to the New Testament, neither according to the dictates of the spirit of truth.

No doubt but that some of those who drove the Saints from Missouri, who robbed and murdered a portion of our brethren, either have, or will at some time, pray to God to have their souls converted, their sins forgiven, and to be prepared for a heavenly inheritance; but they should be told, that unless they first get pardon of those whom they have offended, by reparing the wrongs they have done them, and conciliating their favor, that all their prayers and supplications are an abomination before God, and will only be accounted as sin upon their own heads, upon the heads of their children, and upon the heads of their children's children unto the fourth generation.

The Saints hold the keys of these matters; and this arouses the contempt and indignation of the unbelievers, and they take occasion from these considerations to tantalize and offend us. Truly did Christ say that "offences must come; but woe to them by whom they come." "Better that a millstone were hung about their neck and they be cast into the depths of the sea than to offend one of these little ones that believe in me:" for as these hold the keys, they may turn them forever against those who offend them, and that refuse to repent or make any satisfaction. In that case it were better for the offender if he had never been born. For whosoever sins the Saints retain, they are retained.

These wretched men of blood that slew the prophets within the walls of Carthage prison, WOE UNTO THEM! and woe to them who justify and fellowship the deed!! Oh ye murderers! and you that rejoice in blood. Do you think the wives and children of your murdered victims will forgive you? Do you think the church at large will forgive you? If they will not, you must be damned. If these retain your sins, remember they are retained: and all your prayers and your supplication to any other source for mercy will become sin. The angel of God will persecute you, and evil angels will torment and affright you in your night visions; and in your expiring moments when sinking in the agonies of death let the bloody ghosts of the martyred prophets appear before you, and let the yawning grave close over your memory, and the earth receive the accursed treasure with garments rolled in innocent blood until the last resurrection, when your guilty souls shall receive your bodies again to stand and hear your sentence and final doom from the mouth of those whose blood you have shed; for it stands recorded in sacred writ:" "the Saints shall judge the world."

Mr. President, for this plainness, I may yet have to lay down my life. I may be regarded as a treasonable blasphemous character; but I wanted to express my feelings. I want those murderers to know that their lies cannot always screen them; that although they join the "fraternity of brethren" to save them from the just penalty of their crime, this cunning resort cannot rescue them from punishment. But it may possibly postpone it, and give it a chance to stand on interest till the Saints judge the world. All the apology that I have to offer is, that these principles are true; and I hope to live to sound them in the ears of my fellow-men and plant them in their hearts; yet I am willing to die to seal this my testimony with the greatest assurance that is in my power to give; and should I fall a martyr to these sentiments by the chidren of this world, I should consider that they had conferred on me a mark of greater honor, than to place on my head the richest crown the proudest monarch ever wore.

I ask your pardon, Mr. President, for this digression from the subject; but as I have touched a matter of vital and lasting importance unto us—a matter to be remembered on both sides of the grave, I trust you will grant my request, desiring, also, the privilege as I pass along, of giving to every man a portion in due season.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CAMBRIA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—8 P. M.

The Cambria arrived at Boston on Saturday morning. The wires not working between Boston and New York, kept us without news until yesterday.

In relation to the existence of the Hungarian refugees, the attitude assumed by France and England, places the Czar on the horns of a dilemma, he having no other alternative than to fight or to cease bullying. He has, however, chosen a more pacific course. It was reported in Paris, on the 25th October that the French Ambassador at St. Petersburgh had forwarded dispatches to his government intimating a change in the hostile determination of Russia, in its disagreement with Turkey, upon the subject of the extradition of the Hungarian refugees. So far from forcing matters to extremities, Russia expresses itself anxious to settle the difficulty quietly; provided no warlike interference was threatened on the part of England. The same rumor was prevalent at Vienna, on the 21st.

Turkey.

The change of creed of Bem, Dembinski, and others is confirmed. The English squadron has left the Adriatic, for the neighborhood of the Dardanelles, at the request of Sir Stratford Canning. The Austrian fleet, consisting of frigates and brigs, is under sail for the Dardanelles, at Gobastopel there was a Russian fleet of twenty-six vessels only four hours sail from the mouth of the Bosphorus. The turkish fleet is anchored across the mouth of the Bosphorus, to defend the passage. The Turkish army in Wallachia, under the command of Omer Pacha, had been ordered back to Constantinople. The Dutch Zeitung contains a letter from Constantinople, of 8th inst., announcing the arrival, in the Bosphorus, of a British fleet of observation. A salute of twenty guns were fired by the Turkish ships, in honor of the British flag.

Austria and Hungary.

It is said that Haynau has resigned his post, in consequence of the Emperor having ordered the executions to be stopped. He complained bitterly of his authority having been disregarded by those who shot Bethyany—it having been his express orders that he should be hung. According to accounts from Pesth, the crown of Hungary is now in England, whither it was sent by Kossuth. Simese having executed this commission for Kossuth, the rumor that he had robbed Kossuth of jewelry, on the afternoon of the 12th inst., is thus explained. A courier had arrived at Pesth, from Vienna, with orders to stop the butcheries in that city. The organization of the Austrian army, is going on with great activity. The newphew of the unfortunate Bethyany, has been forced to enlist as a private hussar, in an Austrian regiment. Dembinski's sister and brother-in-law, were arrested in Cracow, on the 17th. They never interfered in politics.

Prussia.

The convention between the courts of Prussia and Austria, was ratified on the 12th inst., at Vienna. The exchange of the act of ratification, took place on the day following, when the Archduke John announced his intention of resigning his office, as soon as the other German governments had assembled in convention. One hundred and sixty Hungarian officers are expected to ship themselves at Bremen, for New Orleans.

Rome.

Much excitement prevails in the city—several young men had been arrested for singing the Marseilles hymn in the streets, and now instead of singing, the people indulge in prose compositions. Placards with enormous letters of "Death to the infamous red triumvirate," cover the walls—several attempts on the lives of the French officers have been made.

Naples and Sicily.

The violence of the government was on the increase; it is reported that a regicide association has been discovered, in which are implicated 20.000 persons. An attempt to arrest Prince Gidecomi produced such an impression in Naples that all the shop doors were shut and the city deserted. A special commission was selected from the judges of various tribunals and appointed to try the thousands of political offenders, by whom the prisons are now filled. The American frigates Independence and Cumberland were in port, under the command of Commodore Morgan.

France.

The leading features in the debates of the French Assembly have been the adjourned disposition of credit for the Roman expedition, which was thought would involve the resignation and change of ministry in France. Eighteen of the June insurgents have been tried during the last few days at Lyons. Disturbances of a serious nature took place at Rheims on the 21st. Lord Normandy has frequent correspondence with the President of the republic, caused by the jealousy of Thiers, who says that French honor and feelings are rendered subservient to foreigners. Mons. de Persegny, who was sent to Vienna for the remains of the Duc de Reichstadt, to have them placed alongside those of Napoleon, has returned unsuccessful, the Emperor of Austria flatly refusing.

It is stated that the Sultan of Turkey has granted Lamartine gratuituously an immense tract of land within a few hours journey of Smyrna.

England.

Lord Dudley Stewart has published in the London Daily News an appeal to the mothers, wives and daughters of England, to furnish a home for Kossuth, and to extend to him a welcome becoming the British race, who are the friends of freedom.

Abbott Lawrence had been introduced to the Queen at Windsor Castle, and presented his credentials.

Sir Lyton Bulwer had taken leave of the Queen, prior to his departure as Minister to the United States.

Sixty wrecks took place in Great Britain during the equinoxtial storm.

Ireland.

The country is in the same distracted state, murders and assassinations are daily occuring.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—P. M.

From California.

The Empire City from Chagres, arrived yesterday, bringing half a million of gold dust, and one month's later dates from San Francisco. Among the deaths is that of Col. Henry Helm, late of Cincinnati. Feather river has been nearly drained of the precious metal, places on Yuba river are most productive, where there are about 5 000 persons, mostly Americans. Much sickness had prevailed, but was disappearing. Dr. Boynton's company, consisting of six persons, had gathered $8 000 in 7 days! The aggregate number of Americans at present in the gold region, is probably 30,000, and they are incapable of exhausting the treasures. Many are returning from the mines in consequence of the extreme heat.

One hundred and twenty-two females arrived at San Francisco during September, worth their weight in gold.

Thomas Butler King was recovering, and expected to reach Washington before the opening of Congress.

The French have seized Honolulu, in consequence of the natives refusing to reduce the rates on French brandies; they likewise took Hawaian Fort, lowered the flag, and destroyed all the ammunition, &c.; they occupied the Fort for three days, then abandoned it and left the Islands.

The Convention for framing a Constitution for California, had been in session for three weeks, and was expected to adjourn the first week of October. The question of suffrage caused considerable debate; it was finally agreed to admit all male citizens who had six months residence in California, of twenty-one years of age, to the privilege of electors. The legislature to consist of two branches—banking corporations and lotteries prohibited. State officers elected in the usual manner of the U. S. The slave question caused considerable discussion but is now finally settled. A number of vessels from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, had arrived at San Frvncisco. American flour $10 per bbl; American beef $6; pork $22. Many articles are cheaper than in the United States.

The steam ship Falcon had arrived at New Orleans from Chagres.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—8 P. M.

The New York papers are filled with California news. The Empire City brought about 50,000 letters, and nearly a million of gold. Among the passengers is S. S. Thornton, U. S. representative delegate from Oregon.

The correspondent of the Tribune, says that an immense vein of gold has been found on Col. Fremont's rancho. A geologist had been sent out to examine the place, says it is a vein in a solid rock two leagues long, with an average breadth of 150 feet. A rich place has been discovered on Thrinity river, where each man daily gathers $100.

It was decided by an unanimous vote in the convention, that no slavery shall ever be permitted in California. The health of the country is improving; the population amount to 100,000. Upwards of three hundred square rigged vessels are anchored in the Bay of San Francisco. American gold dollars sell at three dollars a piece. San Jose will be the sent of government. The legislature meets in December, and will elect two Senators to Congress, and proceed to organize a State government forthwith. The negroes are not permitted to enter the State.

A most disastrous hurricane swept through the West Indies, between the 12th and 20th of last month, inflicting immense injury on shipping and among the plantations. We have the accounts of the wrecking of two vessels. That of the Spanish brig Gessoria from Havana bound to Marseilles, whose passengers and crew were saved by the exertions of Captain Doane, and officers of the American brig Sabine, from Halifax, bound for Jamaica, as noticed some days since, and the fast clipper mail packet, the Hispano-Cubana, running between Cadiz and Havana. She had on board in all two hundred passengers. When the hurricane struck her, her mast and all her upper works were swept off, though by a miracle no one was lost. All the passengers, one hundred and sixty in number, were fastened below, and the hatches nailed down; soon, however, they began to suffocate, and, driven to desperation, burst open the hatches. The sea was at this time making clean breaches over the helpless vessel, and it poured down the hatches; the vessel soon began to founder, and the helm became utterly useless. All at once a shriek, "to the pumps!" was heard from the Captain, and in a moment all four pumps were in operation, the hatches were finally again secured, and the passengers and crew began systematically to relieve each other. After pumping all night, the vessel was freed from water, the weather moderated, and after several more days of suffering, the vessel was finally brought into Nassau under try sails. The American ship Mompan brought over the news and several of the passengers to Cardenas.—[N. Y. Sun.

A QUONDARY.—A baker with both arms in the dough up to his elbows, and a flea in the leg of his trowsers.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

TAXES! TAXES!!

THE taxable inhabitants of Pottawatamie County are hereby notified that the indebtedness of the County for County purposes, and the pressing demands of the State Auditor for State purposes, requires immediate collection as the law directs. Therefore sincerly desiring the good feelings and best interests of the people. I do hope that all who have not paid their taxes will come forward promptly and pay them immediately, and thereby save themselves cost and trouble, and relieve one from the most unpleasant task of distraining property, which should be done immediately for the unpaid taxes of 1848, and cannot at fartherest, be put off longer than the first day of January next for 1849.

C. M. JOHNSON, Collector.

Kanesville, Oct. 28, 1849.—3t

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock, than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m*

WANTED—By the subscriber any quantity of Otter, Beaver, Wolf, Wildcat, Raccoon, Mink, and Deer Skins, for which the highest price will be paid. Also dry hides taken in exchange for goods. HENRY A. TERRY.

Little Pigeon, Nov. 23, 1849.

HEIGHO! HEIGHO!!

Saddle, Harness and Shoe Manufactory.

THE subscribers wish to inform the public generally that they have commenced the above business at ST. FRANCIS or TRADING POINT, where they intend keeping constantly on hand: Saddles, Harnesses, Bridles, Martingales, collars, and boots and shoes, of all descriptions. Persons wishing to purchase any of the above articles will do well to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewher): for our motto is,

Small Profits and Ready Pay.

BECK & McENTURF.

N. B. We keep all the above articles at Voorhis' and Johnson's stores in Kanesville. B. & M. Also 500 hides wanted in exchange for work.

St. Francis, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

BOOKS—1000 volumes Times and Seasons, (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.

For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY,

JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers.

Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens of various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Joiners Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.

Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

NEW GOODS.

C. VOORHIS & Co.,

ARE now in receipt of their FALL AND WINTER STOCK OF GOODS. Being one of the largest stocks ever brought to this village. It will be the interest of every body wanting cheap goods to call and look at our assortment. Give us a call and you will find all kinds of

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES,
HARDWARE & QUEENSWARE,
COOKING STOVES & CASTINGS,
IRON, a large asrortment,
LEATHER of all kinds,
BOOTS & SHOES, &c.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

UNION HOTEL.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber, takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.

Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again!

MR. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Holloware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high,; in a word, we only wan to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent," for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN, at Brown & Millers store.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware,

LATEST ARRIVAL

OF

FALL & WINTER GOODS.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON have just received a large and choice selection of Fall and Winter Goods, consisting of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c. fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident that we have the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

We return our thanks for the liberal patronage we have heretofore received, and hope by strict attention to the wants of the public to merit a continuance of their favors.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

SADDLE AND HARNESS MANUFACTORY IN KANESVILLE.

THE subscribers, beg leave to inform their friends and the public in general that they have commenced the above business in all its branches in the town of Kanesville, having engaged the services of good workmen, we hope to be able to give satisfaction to all who may favor us with a call. All orders for work attended to with dispatch, and all kinds of repairing done in a neat and substantial manner. All orders received, and a supply of all kinds of Sadlery and Harness constantly on hand at our store. NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1848.

STRAYED.

STRAYED from the subscriber on Indian Creek, one mile above Kanesville, in June last, TWO YEARLING STEERS; one is white with red ears, and some red spots about his neck—the other is spotted, red and white, both marked with a crop off the left ear and a slit in the right; whoever knows of their whereabouts will confer a favor by leaving information at Kanesville Mill or with the owner, and will be rewarded for their trouble.

GEORGE FOSTER.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—2t

BUILDING LOTS—I have several lots, which I will sell low, if application is made soon at this office. Also two beautiful lots suitable for stores. JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

APPLES AND PEACHES—A fresh supply just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CIGARS & TOBACCO—An assortment, just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRSH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle,)

St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectfully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

MEDICINES! MEDICINES!

Just Received at the

EMPORIUM STORE,

Kanesville, Iowa.

10 dozen		Syrup Sarsaparilla;
10	"	London Mustard;
70	"	Inks, assorted;
6	"	Nerve and Bone Liniment;
6	"	Tooth Wash, assorted;
25	"	Tooth Powders;
3	"	Worm Syrup;
75	"	Vermifuge, assorted;
150	"	Court Plaster;
150	"	Pill Boxes;
6	"	Cough mixtures;
150	"	Pills, assorted, of every kind;
6	"	Cough Candy;
12	"	Childrens Cordial;
12	"	Cologne, assorted;
3	"	Cayenne in Phials;
12	"	Blacking;
2	"	Seidlitz, also tooth paste; balsam;

shaving cream, hair tonic, embrocations; lavender water; Beatties Remedies; antimonial wine; Rowanes tonic mixture; Batemans drops; laudanum; paregoric; essence of life; British and Harlem oils; opodeldoc; bears oil; ox marrow; hair oils, all kinds; spirits nitre; hartshorn; syrup wild cherry and tar; Balsam of wild cherry; Callins remedies; hair dye; headache snuff; ointments, all kinds; capsicune; venerial mixture; castor oil; sweet oil, turpentine; essences and drops of all kinds. Liberal deductions made to country dealers and Physicians.

☞ COME AND SEE.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 14th, 1849.

STOVE PIPE—Just rec'd, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARDINES—A good article can be found at nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Who is it that takes the Guardian?

BY JAMES TAYLOR.

I'll tell you who it is and why,
At least I'll take my pen and try,
The good may laugh, the rest may cry,
For they won't take the Guardian.

They who are always discontent,
And run the way that Judas went;
Who for the cause can't spare a cent,
These never take the Guardian.

Those who pretend to be so good,
Whose deeds are dark when understood,
They're always drunk or some such mood,
These never take the Guardian.

Those who are poor but meek in heart,
And always first to take a part
In any good that God may start,
These always take the Guardian.

Those who are found with means of grace,
Who Zion-ward do keep their face;
Its holy cause they ne'er disgrace,
Because they have a Guardian.

Those who christ's coming would abide,
Though by afflictions sorely tried,
Will come and help our Br. Hyde,
And take the Frontier Guardian.

The Marriage Vow.

Speak it not lightly!—'tis a holy thing,
A bond enduring through long distant years,
When joy o'er thine abode is hovering,
Or when thy eye is wet with bitterest tears;
Recorded by an angel's pen on high,
And must be questioned in eternity!

Speak it not lightly!—though the young and gay
Are thronging round thee now, with tones of mirth;
Let not the holy promise of to-day
Fade like the clouds that with the morn have birth,
But ever bright and sacred may it be,
Stored in the treasury-cell of memory.

Life will not prove all sunshine!—there will come
Dark hours for all: O will ye, when the night
Of sorrows gather thickly round your home.
Love as ye did, in times when calm and bright
Seem'd the sure path ye trod, untouched by care,
And deem'd the future like the present fair?

Eyes that now beam with health may yet grow dim,
And cheeks of rose forget their early glow;
Langor and pain assail each active limb,
And lay, perchance, some worship'd beauty low;
Then will ye gaze upon the altered brow,
And love as fondly, faithfully as now?

Should fortune frown on your defenceless head,
Should storm o'ertake your bark on life's dark sea;
Fierce tempest rend the sail so gaily spread,
When hope her syren strain sang joyously;
Will you look up, though clouds your sky o'ercast,
And say, "Together we will bide the blast?"

Age, with its silvery locks, comes stealing on,
And brings the tottering steps, the furrowed cheek,
The eye from which each lustrous beam had gone,
And the pale lip, with accents low and weak;
Will ye then think upon your life's gay prime,
And, smiling, bid love triumph over time?

Speak it not lightly! Oh, beware, beware!
'Tis no vain promise, no unmeaning word;
Lo! men and angels lisp the faith ye swear,
And by the high and holy ONE 'tis heard;
Oh, then, kneel humbly at His altar now,
And pray for strength to keep your marriage vow!

MISCELLANY.

Truth and Falsehood.

These two subjects relate to two parties: 1. That one who speaks truth or falsehood: 2. That one to whom it is spoken. We propose to consider this matter only in relation to the fist party, and as to him in two views. 1. Whether there be any, and what law, which requires that the truth should be spoken; and. 2. What good or evil one may do to himself by lying.

1. One reason why truth should be spoken is, that the knowledge which any person can have from the use of his own senses, in many things which it most materially concerns him to know, is very limited. He must therefore often depend for his knowledge on what others say to him; and when the thing is exclusively known to the party speaking, the other must rely entirely on what he says. If, therefore, it be considered how great a part of the most serious concerns in life proceed on declarations made by one person to another, we may readily conceive, that, if these could not be relied on, the affairs of mankind would be greatly embarrassed, and confidence in each other would be destroyed. As this matter of speaking the truth is one which concerns all persons, so all persons agree in holding liars in contempt. Even the very lowest consider themselves to be disgraced when charged with the guilt of lying. They can endure charges which would subject them to public punishment, with more composure than they can endure this. A lie is always understood to be resorted to, to secure some advantage or prevent some evil to the person who resorts to it; or to occasion some disadvantage or injury to the person to whom, or of whom, the lie is told: sometimes both these purposes concur. The object in view is always an immoral one, and the means used are always regarded as disgraceful. It is at once obvious that wilful falsehood is forbidden by natural law, which is intended to regulate our social relations, and is expressly forbidden by divine law, which condemns all acts of fraud and deceit, and commands us to do to others as we have them to do to us.

2. It is a rare occurrence that any one who descends to falsehood succeeds in the object which he may have in view. He is commonly detected, and, if not, is suspected, which may operate quite as much to his disadvantage. If he should escape detection and suspicion, he lives in constant fear of both. He has a very troublesome secret to keep. If he should be able to do this, still he cannot hide it from himself that he is a liar; and such a person, by natural justice, is compelled to pass that sentence upon himself, which he knows that others would pass upon him if they were as well informed as he is. A liar is therefore obliged to feel like a guilty person, and a habitual liar very soon comes to look like one. If there be no higher motive than one's own interest and welfare in speaking the truth and avoiding falsehood, this is a very sufficient one. If a man is known to be a person unworthy of confidence when he speaks, he has not the benefit of being credited even when he speaks the truth; he voluntarily deprives himself of the advantages of social life; his assertions secure to him no credit; his promises are contemned; he makes himself to be alone in the very bosom of society, for every one shuns him. In the administration of justice in courts, a person is not regarded as a witness, whose common reputation is that he is not believed when he speaks. The objection to him is not that he might not tell the truth in the matter which is on trial, but that such a person ought not to be received as a witness, because he cannot be credited in any thing that he says. When such a person has been called and examined as a witness, it is usual to examine other witnesses to prove his character; and if it be proved that he is unworthy of credit, what he has sworn to is disregarded, though he may have declared the truth. This is the common fate of all such unfortunate persons in society, as well as in courts. Independently of the criminality, lying is very poor policy. If the object be to obtain a supposed good, it rarely is obtained by such means; and if it be, the price so paid must always be greater than the good is worth. If the object be to conceal a wrong done, it is rarely successful; and if not, it leaves the offender without excuse for his error, and adds another wrong. If the object be to charge an innocent person with a wrongful act, or to deprive one of his good name, or of some lawful possession, or subject him to some evil which he ought not to endure, the offence is of that cast which the law of the land holds to be malicious, and it deals with such offence accordingly. In short it is very difficult to violate any law of natural justice or divine prohibition without encountering an adequate punishment; and it may be assumed that the punishment which follows lying is as certain and just, as in any instance of criminality. If every tenant of every prison, and if every person who is in the custody of a goarding conscience, were asked this question, What was your first step from innocence and purity? he would probably answer, Telling a lie.

SINCERITY AND INSINCERITY.

These are other names for truth and falsehood. They are not commonly applied to the most serious concerns of human life, but to what are called the "imperfect obligations." Such obligations, it is well known, are not enforced by the law of the land, but are binding as duties arising as well from natural law (reasonably expounded) as from divine law. Sincerity is a duty to one's self, because it is demanded by self-respect. As every one has an individual separate physical being, so every one has a seperate circle within which he exists, and into which no one has a right to intrude. His thoughts, motives, opinions, and policy are his own. What he will or will not do (so that no wrong be done to others, and no act of duty be withheld from them) is for him to decide upon. Within this circle, he makes up his judgments on all persons and things. In his outward deportment, he must frequently act in a manner not consistent with these judgments. As an example: one has made up, from repeated observations of a certain individual, a very clear but very unfavorable judgment of his qualities; but there is no occasion to disclose what the judgment is. The observer is obliged, or finds it convenient, to meet this individual, and to deal with him; and perhaps to interchange courtesies with him. It is undoubtedly proper to manifest the respect, in such case, which the decencies of life require, and to show the common proofs of good will. There is no insincerity in this. Though no one can avoid forming judgments of others, nor avoid liking or disliking them, even including very near friends and relatives, yet there may be a positive violation of duty in publishing these judgments or in disclosing these feelings. The Divine law, "judge not, that ye be not judged," does not, it is believed, interdict these judgments, because they cannot but be made; but it forbids the wanton, unnecessary, and injurious publication or manifestation of them. Those who are keen observers of their fellow-men, see in their faces, in their manners, in their modes of speaking, in their tones of voice, in the sentiments which they express, &c., causes for respect, esteem, confidence, and approbation; or they may see causes for disrespect, suspicion, strong disapprobation, and disgust. But all these things belong to the individual circle. It is not insincere to keep them there. On the contrary, society would be intolerable if they were not kept there; it is very hazardous to the observer to let them out unnecessarily. He may be mistaken both as to the favorable and unfavorable judgments which he forms. Further observation, new circumstances, unexpected changes, may essentially correct his judgment; and, therefore, a prudent man will keep them to himself; they are his own peculiar property, and were obtained for his own use. Insincerity is often demonstrated by paying false and silly compliments, which assume the form of flattery—a word which is derived from the Latin, and signifies wind, breath, puff. This is a kind of aliment which perverted self-love finds to be exceedingly pleasant. Although it is in truth precisely what its origin indicates, there is hardly a man, woman, or child, who is not disposed to partake of it, if it be artfully disguised. But, on the other hand, all sensible persons, of whatever age or sex, who see what it is, and why offered, feel for the flatterer the contempt which he deserves. This insincerity is, and ought to be deemed a high offence. It implies art and deceit in the flatterer, and sufficient weakness in the flattered, to be subdued to the purpose in view. The flatterer's purpose may be more than to secure to himself a better esteem than he can have any pretence to, and it may be, through that to secure to himself something which may be very costly to his victim.

The editorial correspondent of the Charleston Courier presses Mr. Calhoun's claims upon the public as a candidate for the next Presidency, in a series of able articles. When Mr. Calhoun can secure the loyalty of his own State, and the support of the South, he will be a successful candidate for the Presidency.

The following excellent remarks are gathered from the novel of "Clarissa;" and as few of our readers, probably, ever had opportunity or patience to glean the true wisdom of Richardson from its mass of verbage, we will set these real diamonds of thought in our Book, and hope our young readers will transfer them to their hearts.

MAXIMS FOR LOVERS.

Love takes deepest root in the steadiest mind.

It is a degree of impurity in a woman to love a sensual man.

True love is ever accompanied with fear and reverence.

Platonic love is Platonic nonsense.

The proof of true love is respect, not freedom.

But few first impressions ought to be trusted or encouraged in love.

A lady can have but small hopes of a lover, over whom his worthy relations can have no influence.

MAXIMS ON MARRIAGE.

It is neither jest or honest to marry, where there can be no love.

Marriage with the best prospect is a very solemn engagement, enough to make a young creature's heart tremble, when she thinks seriously of it.

Marry first, and love will come after, is a shocking assertion; since a thousand things may happen to make the state barely tolerable, even when it was entered into with mutual affection.

How unhappy must that marriage be in which the husband can have no confidence in the affection of his wife!

How much easier and pleasanter it is for a women to obey the man of her choice, than one she would not have married could she have avoided it.

Invectives against marriage are a reflection upon the laws and good order of society.

Marriage is the highest state of friendship

No matter whom that woman marries, who has a slight notion of the matrimonial duties she will surely be unhappy.

It is dreadful as well as dishonest to marry a man for his wealth, in the hope of his death.

Exalted qualties may be sunk in a low and unequal marriage.

REFLECTION ON WOMEN.

The uselessness and the expensiveness of modern women multiply bachelors.

Vile men owe much of their vileness to women of character, who hardly ever scruple to receive them into their society, if the men are rich, talented and fashionable, even though they have been guilty of ever so much baseness to other women.

"Had I found a character for virtue had been generally necessary to recommend me to the sex, I would, says Lovelace, "have had a greater regard for my morals."

SLAVERY AGITATION.—A religious protest against slavery has been made by the New England Association of Congregational Ministers, numbering some 500 members.

The positions assumed are that slavery is repugnant to religion and humanity; that all classes are opposed to it, but differ in regard to its origin, effects, and removal; that the "Bible argument" of the south in favor of its continuance, has been the cause of extreme anti-slavery men denying the hand of fellowship to the slaveholder, and that both these positions are wrong and injurious to the cause of final emancipation.

THE RUSH TO CALIFORNIA.—This is again renewed at the East. The New York Commercial, a very cautious journal, remarks:

We have good reason to believe that much of the renewed eagerness to reach California is owing to the favorable character of private advices. We know of many men of sobriety and judgment, who have written urgently from San Francisco, assuring their relatives that the prospect of competence is most flattering for all who are active, steady and industrious.

The recent news from California has created more excitement in reference to that country than was ever before experienced; and as the secret of the trade there begins to be understood, enterprising men are making heavy purchases for that market. The accounts which have represented the prices for goods as entirely broken down, are now ascertained to be predicated upon forced sales. A cargo arrives and the owners have no place to store it, and are thus forced to dispose of it at once. This breaks the market entirely down, the bulk of the assortment falling into the hands of the established houses, who re-sell it at a large profit. There has never been a time when a regular house, with good business arrangements, has been compelled to sacrifice desirable goods. The venture committed to the care of honest, responsible persons, acquainted with the country, have invariably paid a handsome profit, averaging from 25 to 200 per cent.

COST OF SURVEYING THE PUBLIC LAND.—The average cost per acre thus far is one cent and 94 hundredths of a cent.

Abbott Lawrence, Minister to England, has arrived in London and entered upon his official duties.

ICE SWAMP NEAR THE SOUTH PASS.—A correspondent of the Rochester Advertiser, writing from the Salt Lake, describes a natural curiosity existing on the Sweet Water River, a few miles above the well known Devil's Gate, below the South Pass in the shape of what he calls an ice swamp,—that is, a marshy glen on the south bank of the stream, in which, after digging through about eighteen inches of peaty soil, a stratum of ice is reached, from two to six inches thick. He says it is pure and perfect ice, but adds, somewhat contradictorily, that it has "a saline or alkaline taste." Be this, however, as it may, we need not go so far as the South Pass to wonder over the rarity of a soil beneath which ice is to be found in the summer time. There is a similar curiosity existing in Hampshire county, Virginia, in the ice mountain, as it is called, a high hill, upon the northwestern side of which is a stratum of lose rock, some three feet deep, on removing which ice may be discovered at an unknown abundance, at all seasons of the year.—[North American.

Railroad Mania.

The people in every section of our country are running almost wild on the subject of railroads. We can take up scarcely a paper but is filled with accounts of public meetings, editorials or communications, with reference to some new railroad project. Indeed, this may be called an age of railroad literature, with a spice of telegraphic writing to illustrate the brevity and expedition of the times.

It has been found that these improvements work like a charm in behalf of capital—enhancing, prodigiously, the value of real estate—and in building up cities, towns and villages where no prophet would have dreamed it possible to sustain them. Not only do these works accomplish wonders in this respect—adding from 20 to 150 per cent. to real estate, and fixing strange sites for towns in which land is sold by the foot; but it is being discovered that they pay for their cost wonderfully well, dividing from four to fourteen per cent. on the capital paid in. Such profitable roads are:

Auburn and Rochester,	-	8 per cent.
Boston and Lowell	-	8 " "
Boston and Maine	-	8½ " "
Boston and Worcester,	-	8½ " "
Connecticut River Road,	-	8 " "
Eastern Road	-	8 " "
Fitchburg Road	-	8½ " "
Nashua and Lowell	-	10 " "
Philadelphia and Trenton	-	10 " "
Utica and Schnectady	-	10 " "
Western	-	8 " "

Besides these dividends for 1848, many have been made for 1849, at a still higher rate. The

Utica and Schnectady	-	14 per cent.
Michigan Central	-	14 "
Madison and Indianapolis	-	14 "

With such promises of remuneration, it is no wonder that capitalists are becoming crazy for railroad investments. This mania has spread through Great Britain for the past few years at such a rate, that the fast anchored isle has been tracked all over with these roads. It was recently stated in Parliament, that 12,000 miles of railway had been sanctioned, requiring a sum equal to $1,500,000,000 for their completion; and, up to September, 1848, about one-half this amount, or $719,740,000, had actually been expended on railways then in operation.

We have now in the United States about 8,500 miles of railway completed, at a cost of $230,000,000, and, before the close of this year, at least 5,000 miles more will be in contemplation, and capital will be found rapidly centering toward them. Among these are two stupendous lines—one from Cincinnati to St. Louis, to cost $5,000,000; and another from Lake Michigan or the Mississippi to the Pacific ocean, to cost over $60,000,000, for a distance of more than 2,000 miles. Besides these, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, and, indeed, almost every State has various routes surveyed and in contemplation.

There has been a railroad collapse in England; and Hudson, the rail-king, who was near being knighted for his services, has been found to have carried on a mammoth system of embezzlement. The mania will doubtless extend in this country until there is an explosion, when reason will be restored.—[Cin. Nonp. and Herald.

FEMALE PRISONER OF WAR.—The Austrians, in their animal fierceness, still appear to keep up their war against the women and children of the vanquished. According to the Cologne Gazette, "the aged mother of Kossuth was brought into Pesth, a few days back, a prisoner of war."

A Cool Operation.

"Hello, there, Capting!" said a brother Jonathan to a captain on the Erie canal, "what do you chargd for passage?"

"Three cents per mile and boarded," said the captain.

"Wall, I guess I'll take passage, capting, seein as how I'm kinder gin eout walking so far."

Accordingly he got on board just as the steward was ringing the bell for dinner. Jonathan sat down and began to demolish the "fixins" to the utter consternation of the captain, until he cleared the table of all that was eatable, when he got up and went on the deck, picking his teeth very comfortably.

"How far is it, capting, from here to where I came aboard?"

"Nearly one and and a half miles," said the captain.

"Let's see said Jonathan, that would be just four and a half cents; but never mind, capting, I won't be small; here's five cents, which pays my fare to here; I guess I'll go ashore now; I'm kinder rested eout."

The captain vamoused for the cabin, and Jonathan went ashore. The captain did not take any more "way passengers" the remainder of the summer.

"Know thyself," was the remark of a gentleman to his son, in course of a parental lecture.

"Thank you, my list of acquaintance is sufficiently large already," said the aspiring youth.

"What do I consider the boundaries of my country, sir!" exclaimed a Kentuckian. "Why, sir, on the east we are bounded by the rising sun—on the north by the aurora borealis—on the west by the precession of the equinoxes—and on the south by the day of judgment."

A census of the free white population of South Carolina has just been taken, showing the number to be 280,385, being an increase of 23,269 in the last ten years.

HEROINE.—At a railroad depot in Boston a few days ago, a lady from Maine having detected a thief picking her pocket, seized him and held him firmly until a policeman arrived.

A letter from Rome says: "Last night nine priests escaped from the prison of the Inquisiton. It is said that they were assisted in their evasion."

Miss Elizabeth Demilt, deceased in New York city, bequeathed $82,000 to twenty charitable and literary institutions, and $50,000 to her friends.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Matte's, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles too numerous to mention.

There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweetmeats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

The Barberous Notice.

THE subscriber having opened a shop in Kanesville, takes this method of informing the gentlemen of the town and vicinity, and the traveler, that they can be shaved at all reasonable hours. Hair cut and dressed at the following prices:

Twice a week, for shaving, only 50 cents per month. An addition of fifteen cents for hair cutting. My monthly customers can have their hair dressed at all times for a party gratuitiously.

Traveling customers, single shave, 10 cents. Hair cutting, fifteen cents. W. A. WESTON.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street. And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the MAMMOTH BOOT, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money. DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,

Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.

Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled.

J. W. COOLIDGE,
S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them. And they will have the man opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store, hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. Gm.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense, in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Brest. Willard Richards

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 26, 1849. VOLUME I.----NUMBER 24.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PARSON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES MCGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M. BERNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
BAZ. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
GEORGE PEACOCK, Weston, Mo.
WM. MARTINDALE, traveling agent, throughout the United States.

IMPORTANT FROM SALT LAKE CITY.

SECOND GENERAL EPISTLE,

Of the Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, from the Great Salt Lake Valley, to the Saints scattered throughout the earth.

GREETING: Beloved brethren since our communication of April, many events interesting in there nature, as relating to the progress of truth, and the happiness of the faithful have transpired, and we improve the earliest moment to write of the same, that the hearts of all may be united with us in praise to Israel's God for the fulfillment of his promises and of the prophecies in these last days.

On the 12th of April, Elder Amasa Lyman left this place in company with several brethren for Western California, carrying our former epistle; and Capt. Allen Compton, started with a mail containing the same, for the States, two days after, and although the snow was unusually deep, and had been long considered impassible, we are happy in having learned that Br. Compton and the little band of the brethren accompanying him, arrived safe in Kanesville after a speedy and toilsome journey.

The heat of summer, began to be exhibited at midday about the middle of April, which rapidly dispersed the snow upon the mountains;—though more or less continues in sight of our beautiful valley perpetually, and the weather continued variable until the 23d of May, when it was very severe, accompanied by a heavy fall of snow, and was followed the succeeding day by a severe frost; since which time the weather has been mild and warm, generally, with occasional slight frosts in the valley every month and almost every week, until the last, when two or three successive and severe frosts put an end to vegetation generally.

The Nauvoo Legion has been re-oganized in the valley, and it would have been a source of joy to the Saints throughout the earth, could they have witnessed its movements on the day of its great parade; to see a whole army of mighty men in martial array, ground their arms; not by command but simply by request, repair to the temple block, and with pick and spade open the foundation for a place of worship, and erect the pilasters, beams and roof, so that we now have a commodious edifice 100 by 60 feet, with brick walls, where we assemble with the Saints from Sabbath to Sabbath, and almost every evening in the week, to teach, counsel and devise ways and means for the prosperity of the Kingdom of God; and we feel thankful that we have a better house or bowery for public worship the coming winter, than we have heretofore had any winter in this dispensation.

The inhabitants of this great Basin have instituted a provisional state government adopted a constitution, elected officers, and we anticipate that, at the next session of Congress we shall be admitted into the Union, free and independent like our sister States. Our city lies near the Great Salt Lake, which borders on the west on an extensive desert which runs through the Basin from north to south. We call our new state, Deseret.

A number of the brethren left here in May and established a ferry on the Upper Platte during the high water, and another company opened a ferry at each crossing of Green river. Both companies have returned in safety, and we anticipate the same ferries will be re-opened in season for the emigration next spring.

The 24th of July was a day long to be remembered by all present in this valley, and all saints who shall learn of our celebration, as the anniversary of the arrival of the Pioneers two years previous. To behold twelve or fifteen hundred feet of tables, filling the bowery and all adjoining grounds, loaded with all luxuries of the field and gardens, and nearly all the varieties that any vegetable market in the world could produce, and to see the seats around those tables filled and re-filled by a people who had been deprived of those luxuries for years by the cruel hand of oppression, and freely offering seats to every stranger within their borders, and this too, in the valley of the mountains, a thousand miles from civilization, where two years before, naught was to be found save the wild root of the prairie, and the mountain cricket, was a theme of unbounded thanksgiving and praise to the giver of all good, as the dawning of a day when the children of the Kingdom, can sit under their own vines and fig-trees, and inhabit their own houses, having none to make them afraid. May the time be hastened when the scattered Israel may partake of such like banquets from the gardens of Joseph.

Thousands of emigrants from the States to the Gold Mines have passed through our city this season, leaving large quantities of domestic clothing, wagons, &c., in exchange for horses and mules, which exchange has been a mutual blessing to both parties.

The Elders who received appointments for foreign missions last spring, were generally detained in the valley to raise grain and locate their families, until recently; when Elder Addison Pratt, started on his return mission to the Society Islands accompanied by Elders James Brown and Hiram H. Blackwell. Elder Charles C. Rich left on the 8th inst., to join Elder Amasa Lyman in the Presidency of Western California.

Elder Orson Spencer arrived from England on the 23d inst, in good health, welcomed by many friends, having traveled from the States with a company of Saints, in connection with a large quantity of merchandize now open in this place, by merchants from St. Louis; and several others who started with goods for the mines, have left them in this place this season.

Elder Dan Jones from Wales is within a few days travel, accompanied by a portion of the Welsh brethren: and the remainder are located on Pottawatamie lands.

Elders Geo. A. Smith and Ezra T. Benson are in the same vicinity with Dan Jones, accompanied by their families, and large companies of Saints from whom we received an express five days since, which left them in universal health and prosperity. They will probably be hear in two weeks. We have sent teams to help them on their journey.

The direct emigration of the Saints to this place will be some five or six hundred waggons this season, besides many who came in search of gold, have heard the Gospel for the first time and will go no farther, having believed and been baptized.

Sept. 28th, fourteen or fifteen of the brethren arrived from the gold country, some of whom were very comfortably supplied with the precious metal, and others, who had been sick came as destitute as they went on the ship Brooklyn in 1846. That there is plenty of gold in Western California is beyond doubt, but the valley of the Sacramento is an unhealthy place, and the Saints can be better employed in raising grain, and building houses in this vicinity, than digging for gold in the Sacramento, unless they are counselled so to do. The true use of gold is for paving streets, covering houses and making culinary dishes, and when the Saints shall have preached the Gospel, raised grain and built up cities enough: the Lord will open up the way for a supply of gold to the perfect satisfaction of his people; until then, let them not be over anxious, for the treasures of the earth are in the Lord's store house, and he will open the doors thereof, when and where he pleases.

The grain crops in the valley have been good this season; wheat, barley, oats, rye and peas, more particularly. The late corn and buckwheat, and some lesser grains and vegetables, have been materially injured by the recent frosts; and some early corn at Brownsville, forty miles north, a month since; and the buckwheat was severely damaged by hail at the Utah settlement, sixty miles South about three weeks since; but we have great occasion for thanksgiving to him who giveth the increase, that he has blest our labors, so that with prudence we shall have a comfortable supply for ourselves, and our brethren on the way, who may be in need, until another harvest; but we feel the need of more laborers, for more efficient help, and multiplied means of farming and building at this place. We want men; brethren come from the States, from the nations come! and help us build and grow, until we can say enough, the valleys of Ephraim are full.

Any of the brethren, master workmen in cotton or woollen factories, who will come on with their means, machinery, and hands to work it, will meet a warm reception, and have every possible facility rendered them to prosecute their business, for we need such establishments in our midst.

The Bowery was crowded on the 6th of Oct. Conference, so that the cry was "our place is not large enough," a sweet and heavenly influence prevailed, and much important business was transacted; as may be seen more particularly by the minutes accompanying this.

It was decided to locate a town or city at Brownsville, and also at Utah, near the settlements now existing, the Presidency having previously visited those places and selected sites.

Early in the fall we sent messengers to Sandpitch valley, who selected a place for a settlement, about 200 miles South of this, and we expect that from 50 to 100 families will start for that place in a few days. They also discovered a plentiful supply of good rock, or mountain salt, toward the contemplated settlement.

The walls of our Council house are nearly completed. The baths at the warm spring house, are in progress, and the foundation is laid and brick prepared for an extensive store house and granary; and no exertions are wanting on our part to push forward the public works, as fast as tithing and means are put in our hands; and we are happy to say that an increasing spirit of liberality and faithfulness is daily manifest among the Saints.

About one month since we suggested the propriety of creating a perpetual fund for the purpose of helping the poor saints to emigrate to this place, agreeably to our covenants in the Temple that we would "never cease our exertions, by all the means and influence within our reach, till all the saints who were obliged to leave Nauvoo should be located at some gathering place of the saints." The Council approved the suggestion, and a committee was immediately appointed to be forwarded east next mail. The October Conference sanctioned the doings of the committee, and appointed Br. Edward Hunter, a tried, faithful, and approved Bishop, a general agent to bear the perpetual emigrating funds to the states, to superintend the direction and appropriation thereof and return the same to this place with such poor brethren, as shall be wisdom to help.

We wish all to understand, that this fund is PERPETUAL, and is never to be diverted from the object of gathering the poor to Zion while there are saints to be gathered, unless He whose right it is to rule shall otherwise command. Therefore we call upon President Orson Hyde and all the saints, and all benevolent souls everywhere, to unite their gold, their silver, and their cattle, with ours in this perpetual fund, and co-operate with Bishop Hunter in producing as many teams as possible preparatory for next spring's emigration, and let the poor who are to be helped, go to work with their mights and prepare wagons of wood for their journey. Such wagons, without any iron, now exist in this valley that have come from the states, having done good business; and so great has been the influx of wagons this season, that they are cheap, and iron comparatively plenty.

This perpetual fund is to be under the special direction of the Presidency at all times, and as soon as Bishop Hunter shall return with the same and his frieght of saints to this place, the cattle and teams will be disposed of to the best advantage, and the avails, with all we can add to it, will be sent forth immediately on another mission and we want you all prepared to meet it, and add to it and so would we continue to increase it from year to year, until, when a "nation is born in a day" they can be removed the next, if the Lord will. Therefore ye poor and meek of the earth, lift up your heads and rejoice in the Holy One of Israel, for your redemption draweth nigh: but in your rejoicings be patient, for though your turn to emigrate may not be the first year, or even the second, it will come, and its tarryings will be short, if all the saints who have, will be as liberal as those in the valley.

All the apostles now in the valley, have had missions assigned them. Elder John Taylor, accompanied by Curtis E. Bolton and John Pack, goes to France: Elder Lorenzo Snow to Italy, accompanied by Joseph Toronto: Elder Erastus Snow to Denmark, accompanied by Peter Hanson, and will start in about a week passing through the States. Elder Franklin D. Richards, accompanied by John S. Higbee, George B. Wallace, Job Smith, H. W. Church, Joseph W. Johnson, Joseph W. Young, and Jacob Gates, will go with the mission to England, to co-operate with President Orson Pratt. Elder John Forsgreen will go out at the same time on a mission to Sweden. For wise purposes, Elder P. P. Pratt's mission to the Western Islands, will be defered until Spring.

Elder Orson Pratt is doing a great work in England, and the cause of truth is advancing rapidly in all her home dominions, and the rejoicing of the Saints there, causes Satan to howl, for he is compelled to be subject to the power of the highest. Elder Woodruff is located at Cambridge Port, Massachusetts, and has been comforting and instructing the Saints in Canada and the Eastern States the past year. If Elder Woodruff now, will gather up all the Saints in his vicinity and come with them to this place, he will do a great work, and will be opening the way for a visit to those nations who have both eyes and ears, and are crying to the Elders of Israel, come, tell us of the things of God for we have heard that God is with you.

By the late arrival of our brethren from the west, we learn that they were attacked on the way by the Snake Indians, and that a company of emigrants going west had shared the same fate. These attacks from a hitherto peaceful tribe, have doubtless arisen from an early company of emigrants that passed through this place from the States to the mines, having shot two or three squaws, and stolen their horses about 150 miles north west of this. It is much to be regreted that such a band of desperadoes and murderers should roam at large, exciting the ignorant Indian to retaliation and revenge on our people, and thousands of honorable men from the States, who are, and will be passing to Western California through the same country; and we make these observations, that such men may be on their guard for their safety, and at the same time by every honorable means endeavor to do away from the Indians the prejudice which a few wicked men have created.

Many of the Western emigrants were met by our brethren on this side of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and from the low condition of their teams, the scarcity of grass, the lateness of the season, the great amount of old snow on the mountains and the prospect of new, they thought more than probable that many would not be able to reach the mountains heights this season, and many had thrown away their provisions, save enough to last them through, also their clothing and other things to make their passage as light as possible, all of which will make their situation more distressing should they be obliged to winter in the monntains.

Brother Parley P. Pratt is opening a new road through the range of mountains from the Weber to this place, which is already so far advanced that this fall's emigration will pass over it. This road will be accomplished at a great expense, and will be a great blessing to the emigrating brethren, and together with bridges in the valley, over the Weber and Ogden fork, all of which we expect will be completed before the next emigrating season; will shorten the distance and greatly facilitate the progress of travelers.

The health of the saints in the valley, is good, and it is so seldom that any one dies, we scarce recollect when such an event last occurred.

Each member of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles is an agent to collect tithing, and donations for the Perpetual Fund for the emigration of the poor saints, and all such collections or funds will be continually subject to our order, and all our agents in Europe will remit all such funds to our office in Liverpool every safe opportunity; and Elder Orson Hyde will receive donations in the states on deposit, for the perpetual fund after Elder Pratt leaves that place in the spring.

Second [illegible] kingdoms, and governments, and [illegible] hardson 25 falling and rising; revolutions succeeding revolutions; and the nations of the earth are overturning; while plague, pestilence and famine, are walking abroad; and whirlwind, fire, and earthquake proclaim the truth of prophecy, let the saints be faithful and diligent in every duty, and especially in striving to stand in chosen places, that they may watch the coming of the Holy One of Israel. We remain your brothers in the New Covenant.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.
HEBER C. KIMBALL.
WILLARD RICHARDS.

Great Salt Lake City,
Deseret. Oct. 12th, 1849.

Minutes of the General Conference held at Great Salt Lake City.

DESERET, Oct. 6th, 1849.

Present—Of thy First Presidency, Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball and Willard Richards. Patriarch—John Smith. Of the Twelve Apostles—P. P. Pratt, John Taylor, C. C. Rich, Lorenzo Snow, Erastus Snow and F. D. Richards. Of the Presidency of the Stake—Daniel Spencer and Willard Snow. Of the High Council—Isaac Morley, Henry G. Sherwood, Eleazer Miller, Levi Jackman, John Vance, Titus Billings, E. D. Wooley, Wm. W. Major, Ira Eldridge and Elisha H. Groves. Presidency of the Seventies—Levi W. Hancock, Zera Pulsifer and Jedediah M. Grant. High Priests' Quorum—John Young, Reynolds Cahoon and George B. Wallace. Of the Elders Quorum—John Nebeker. Clerk of the Conference—Thomas Bullock.

The Conference was called to order by President Daniel Spencer, when the choir sung the Jubilee Hymn; prayer by President H. C. Kimball; singing by the choir.

Prest H. C. Kimball then addressed the Conference, and stated, that there was much business to be done, which will be beneficial to all; and in which all are equally interested. We are all of the same family; we have one God and one Savior, therefore the business interests every one; this ought to be thought of more than it is. We have espoused this cause to continue in it through life and through all eternities. This world is only my second estate, and if I continue faithful in it, it will be glory everlasting, to all eternity. Read the works of Abraham on these matters. We want to feel for the welfare, not only of this people, but all of the inhabitants of the earth. Shall we debar one portion of the inhabitants of the world of what we have obtained. How should we feel if they had received it and would not commit it to us. We want this people to take an interest with us in bearing off the Kingdom to all the nations of the earth. The time is come when some of the Twelve, and others of the Elders will have to go. How do you feel on the subject, ye elders of Israel. You ought to have your hearts prepared and be ready to go; know ye not that God established this work by Joseph Smith, his Prophet; and shall we become like drones in the House of Israel. I say no. Let us arise and shake ourselves and make our election sure.

Elder John Taylor then arose and said; we have met to confer together upon things pertaining to the Kingdom of God, and shall have to attend to the interests of thousands who are not here, &c., &c. There is something different in our religion to any other, for our covenants are all eternal they all lay hold of eternity. Although our bodies may slumber in the grave, our spirits go into another existence, and we go to possess a glory that has been revealed to us, we have a knowledge pertaining to our children, and our children's children, through worlds without end. If we have got to be Kings and Priests to the Most High God, we have to become rulers; and those who do not know how to rule will be in a poor place; they will be similar to Napoleon on the island of Elba, retaining his title as an emperor, but having no one to rule over. Oh, ye elders of Israel! remember, there are Kings and Priests now setting on thrones, who, if they only knew, would be glad to exchange situations with you, and go and preach the Gospel. I believe, in a very short time, the Elders of Israel will come with their hat in hand, (suiting the action to the word,) to President Young and want to go on missions; and I will say, Sir, if you want fifty men to go now, they are on hand to go, &c.

President Brigham Young gave some instructions about fixing the Bowery, &c., and said I feel happy for this shelter from the rays of the sun, and the blasts of winter; I feel well in my mind, my heart is like the chariot of Aminidab, full of joy; I realize we ought to bear off the Kingdom to the nations of the earth; this people as a whole, are a good people and I shall seek to do them good, and bring forth salvation to the whole House of Israel, for I want to see Zion built up.

The Choir sung a hymn. Benediction by Elder C. C. Rich. Adjourned for one hour.

Half past one o'clock, P. M. Conference met pursuant to adjournment, and opened in the usual manner.

Prest. H. C. Kimball rose to present some items of business, the first of which is, to raise funds to bring the poor to this place. Most of you are aware of the covenant made by the Saints in the Temple, in Nauvoo; that we would not cease our exertions until we had brought the poor to this valley, or those that wanted to come. We are here, and are healthy and have plenty to eat, drink and to do, and I prophecy you shall never have less while you live. Shall we fulfil that covenant, or shall we not. The vote was unanimous to fulfil that covenant. Now let every man and woman take hold, and do not send your agent to the states with less than ten thousand dollars, and then you will cause a day of rejoicing among the poor in Illinois.

It was motioned that we raise a fund to to bring the poor to this place: Carried.

It was motioned that there be a committee of five appointed to raise funds, to send back to gather up the poor: Carried. That Willard Snow, John S. Fulmer, Lorenzo Snow, John D. Lee and Franklin D. Richards, be that committee: Carried. That Edward Hunter carry the funds back to the States, buy cattle, take the oversight of the property, and bring the poor to this place: Carried. That Elders Amasa Lyman and Charles C. Rich, be appointed to gather up funds in California, as agents for the perpetual fund: Carried. Elder John Taylor mortioned, that the whole business pertaining to the Perpetual Emigrating Fund for the poor, be under the direction of the First Presidency: Carried. Moved that Elder Charles C. Rich, go on a mission to Western California and assist Elder Amasa Lyman in the duties of his office; to succeed Elder Lyman when he returns here; to receive tithing and donation in behalf of the church; and to perform all other duties as an Apostle of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints: Carried. Moved that Elder Addison Pratt, James Brown and Hiram H. Blackwell, go to the Society Islands to preach the gospel: Carried. Motioned that Lorenzo Snow and Joseph Toronto go on missions to Italy. That Erastus Snow and Peter Hanson, go on missions to Denmark. That Joseph W. Johnson and Joseph W. Young go on mission to England. That John Taylor go on a mission to France; that Curtis E. Bolton go with Elder Taylor on his mission to France, and that Francis M. Pomeroy go with Elder Rich on his mission to Western California. All carried unanimously.

Prest. Young then remarked, that, when the Twelve are abroad in any nation, they dictate the affairs of the Church there, the same as I do here. The enquiry may be made, can Lorenzo Snow dictate any where but in Italy: Yes—The Twelve dictate in all the world, and send elders where they please, and as they deem wisdom. We have appointed Lorenzo and Erastus Snow, to certain missions, have they any right to go anywhere else, Yes; I wish they would open the door to every nation on the earth, and if an Apostle sees any one professing to be an Elder in the Church and bringing disgrace on the priesthood, he has authority to silence him, demand his license and cut him off from the Church.

Moved that Franklin D. Richards, Job Smith and Haden W. Church go on a mission to England: All carried unanimously. Moved that Isaac Morley, Charles Shumway and Seth Taft, be the men to take the Presidency of the settlement in the Sandpitch valley, carried.

Prest. H. C. Kimball, then made some pointed remarks on the propriety of classifying the mechanics, and appointing every man to his own branch of business. Whereupon, it was resolved that Henry G. Sherwood build a glass factory in the valley, as soon as circumstances will admit.

Motioned that Geo. B. Wallace and John S. Higbee take a mission to England: carried. Moved that John Pack go with Elder Taylor on his mission to France: carried.

Elder John Taylor then introduced the subject of organizing a carrying company, and moved that a company be organized to carry goods and merchandize from the Missouri River to this place: carried.

Prest. Young proposed that a passenger train be started from here to the States, and "vice versa." forthwith. Adjourned, until tomorrow, at 10 A. M.

SUNDAY, Oct. 7th, 1849.

Conference met pursuant to adjournment, and opened as usual.

Prest. Young called the congregation to order, and mentioned the different business to be brought before them, and rejoiced to meet with the Saints, and enjoy the society of a people who profess Christianity, and who are followers of the Lord Jesus Christ. I am thankful for this shelter from the rays of the sun in Summer, and a shelter from the inclemency and severity of the cold Winters that we have had hitherto.

On motion, Prest. Brigham Young was sustained as the First President of the Church of J. C. of L. D. S., by unanimous vote of Conference, and also, Heber C. Kimball as first, and Willard Richards as second Counsellors to Prest. Young.

Motioned that John Smith be sustained as the Patriarch of the whole church: carried; that Willard Richards be sustained as Historian to the Church: carried; that Orson Hyde, be sustained as the President of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles: carried; Also, Parley P. Pratt, Orson Pratt, Wilford Woodruff, John Taylor, George A. Smith, Amasa Lyman, Ezra T. Benson, Charles C. Rich, Lorenzo Snow, Erastus Snow, and Franklin D. Richards: carried. Motioned that John Young be sustained as the President of the High Priests Quorum, and also, Reynolds Cahoon, as first and Geo. B. Wallace as second counsellors: carried. Motioned that Joseph Young be sustained as the First President, Levi W. Hancock, second, Henry Herriman, third, Zera Pulsipher, fourth, Albert P. Rockwood, fifth, Benjamin S. Clapp, sixth, and Jedediah M. Grant, seventh, Presidents of the Quorum of Seventies: carried. Motioned that Daniel Spencer be sustained as President of this stake of Zion, and David Fulmer as first, and Willard Snow as second Counsellors of this Stake of Zion: carried.

Prest. Young then said, that as Isaac Morley is appointed to go and preside over the settlement in Sandpitch valley, it will be necessary to appoint another President in his stead; and as Elder Sherwood is the oldest member of the High Council, he is now nominated to fill that office.

On motion Henry G. Sherwood was appointed President of the High Council: carried. On Motion Edwin D. Wooley was appointed a member of that Council, and also, Wm. W. Major, John Vance, Ira Eldridge, Levi Jackman, Eleazer Miller, Elisha H. Groves, Lewis Abbott, Heman Hyde, and John Kempton. On motion Newel K. Whitney was sustained as Presiding Bishop; and John Nebeker President of the Elders Quorum, and Joseph Harker President of the Priests' Quorum.

Prests. Young and Kimball made some remarks on the duties of Teachers, showing their right and duty to teach, and watch over all Saints, in their several wards, High Priests not excepted.

It was moved that we lay off a city in Capt. Brown's neighborhood: carried. And also lay off a city in the Utah valley: carried. Also, that we make a settlement in Sandpitch valley and lay off a city: carried. On motion John E. Fossgreen take a mission to Sweden: carried. Motioned that all the Bishops attend to administering the Sacrament this afternoon: carried. Choir sung a hymn, and adjourned for one hour.

Oct., 7th, 2 o'clock, P. M.

Conference assembled, and opened as usual, when the several Bishops proceeded to administer the Sacrament.

Elder Parley P. Pratt related his experience at the commencement of the work, and the time when the Prophet Joseph Smith stood up in the midst of the congregation, and by revelation, pointed out each individual to be ordained to the Melchisedec Priesthood; and also related a miraculous case of healing a woman, who was near her death. He then delivered a discourse on the subject of tithing: said he, the principle of tithing is not peculiar to this church or people—it is as old as the Bible. We see it illustrated in Abram's day, for when he held the power of the Kingdom of God, Abram paid one-tenth of all he possessed. Where is there a Latter-day Saint who does not know, and understand, that it is by the power of the Melchisdec Priesthood that we receive forgiveness, and justification, and eternal life. To fulfil the law of tithing, a man should make out and lay before the Bishop a schedule of all his property, and pay him the one-tenth of it; when he has tithed his principal once, he has no occasion to tithe again, but the next year he must pay the one-tenth of his increase, and the tenth of his time, of his cattle, money, goods and trade; and whatever use we put it to, it is still our own for the Lord does not carry it away with him to Heaven. We have to establish the Government of God on earth, and that requires means, and a knowledge how to use it, and to have every thing written on "Holiness to the Lord." Let God have what is His, and every thing be under the control of the Lord, and not Cæsar, or the world. If the people do not ho'd themselves responsible to help carry off the Kingdom of God, how do you expect we can do it ourselves The Twelve and the Elders are all minute men, and that is what makes us different to the rest of the world.

Elders Erastus Snow and John Taylor on the same subject. It was moved that Jacob Gates go on a mission to England: carried. Elder Parley P. Pratt then moved that this Conference adjourn to the 6th of April next, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to meet in this place: carried. Choir then sung the Doxology, and were dismissed with Benediction by Willard Snow. Prest. Brigham Young then blessed the people in the name of the Lord, when they separated rejoicing in the Lord for his many mercies, that he has extended to his Saints, and for the happy and glorious Conference that they had been privileged in attending.

THOMAS BULLOCK,
Clerk of Conference.

8 o'clock, P. M.

The brethren who had been appointed to go on missions were called together in the evening for the purpose of receiving instructions, &c., whereupon, the First Presidency proceeded to lay their hands on the Quorum of the Twelve and set them apart for their respective missions.

The Twelve then laid their hands on the Elders who had been appointed missions to the different nations of the earth, and set them apart, predicting their success, and the remarkable scenes that will transpire during their absence from their families. A joyful meeting was continued until twenty minutes past ten, when the meeting dismissed all enjoying the peaceable influence of the Spirit of God, and filled with faith that the Lord God of Israel will speedily work a great and glorious work on the earth.

THOMAS BULLOCK, Clerk.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE.....Editor and Proprietor.
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1849.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail, will be at the risk of those who send it.

☞ For highly important news from the Salt Lake Valley see first page.

The Closing Year.

As the eventful year of 1849 is about passing into the ocean of forgetfulness, leaving naught else than a record of past events, deeply stained with crime, misfortune, accident, plague and death, it may not be unacceptable to our readers if we presume to take a retrospective view of the past and add up our reckoning, and determine, if possible, our true latitude and longitude.

In the first place; we as a community, have great reason to rejoice, and be thankful to HIM whose Providential care has been over us by day and by night, and whose tender mercies have been extended to us in a time of distress and affliction. We now have the means within ourselves to pass the winter comfortably, and it is hoped that spring may open upon us with all the fair prospects which surrounding circumstances now seem to indicate. Patience and perseverance are qualities which should ever prevail with us, for they are more potent than the sword and the spear to advance the interests of Messiah's Kingdom.

As disciples and followers of the HIGH AND HOLY ONE, let each examine faithfully and carefully his or her conduct for the last year. Say to yourselves: Have I done to my neighbor as I would like my neighbor to do unto me? Have I visited the widow and the fatherless, and administered to their wants? Have I kept myself unspotted from the world? Have I freely imparted of my substance to the needy? Have I cried unto the Lord by day and by night for his blessings to continue upon me and upon all others that the gospel makes it my duty to pray for? Have I cherished the spirit of the gospel which is, "good will to man?" Have I written in sand the injuries and wrongs that I may have suffered from others, so that a few drops of repenting tears may obliterate them? Have I written on plates of steel the acts of kindness and generosity shown to me, and are they so deeply engraved that no storm of adversity can obscure their lines? Have I cheated, over-reached, or defrauded my neighbor? Is there any secret sin of which I have been guilty, which corrodes and cankers my bosom? We are not the accuser of any, but a diligent enquirer into the condition of those, more particularly, over whom we are called to preside. The Apostle of old said to his brethren: "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath," for anger resteth only in the bosoms of fools. We would say to all our friends: let not the sun of the present year, set upon any wrongs that you have done, that may be in your power to undo or to atone for. Faithfully examine your accounts, and consider yourselves under oath in the presence of the SEARCHER OF HEARTS, and render a true and impartial verdict. After having done every thing in your power to make good the wrongs that you may have been guilty of doing, and find a balance against you, (as you most certainly will,) remember the poor publican who smote upon his breast, and said: "God be merciful to me a sinner." Do thou likewise.

Cherish not a remembrance of the wrongs that others may have done you, with too much zeal, but forget them as much as possible, and leave them to the disposal of the SUPREME RULER who will justly deal, sooner or later, with all those from whom offences have come. If you do not do this, you may have reason to fear that the consequences of those offences and wrongs may cleave to you. We would say again, cast off disagreeable recollections as much as your nature will possibly allow, and your bosom will not be tormented with them. Let the present year retire from your forgiving hearts, and may the dawn of the next break upon your innocence and guileless spirits with a radiance and a joy that shall influence your course of life during the coming year of 1850.

Cheerful on through life we'll go,
Hampered not with painful thought,
Simple, child-like—free from woe,
We can never be forgot.

Dr. George Coulson, of Council Point, has been appointed by the Council to preside over parties during the Holydays.

Major Sanderson.

The above gentleman commands at Fort Laramie, and showed particular respect and civility to our mail train as they passed along. They were out of some necessaries, but were there supplied with what they needed at very moderate charges. They represent every thing in good order at that post. Such acts of kindness to men in distress on the part of the Government, are not to be forgotten. They are appreciated by a greater number than was personally received from distress. Our men speak in very high terms of their kind and gentlemanly treatment at Fort Laramie.

Mr. Wilson, from Fort Hall.

We learn from the last company in from the Valley, that the above gentlemen visited the people at the Salt Lake with the intention of establishing a trading house there; but he met with no encouragement, they tell us, from the fact, that they did not like his appearance: they took him to be a dissipated, rowdy sort of a man. We have no knowledge of Mr. W., but those who are acquainted with him will be able to tell whether the Mormons at the Valley received him in his true character or not. Mr. Wilson may feel to compliment them a little because they did not like his appearance well enough to encourage him to go there; and they therefore, can but reciprocate his compliments.

Wanted in Exchange for the Guardian.

Pork, beef, butter, eggs, lard, mutton, potatoes flour, common fence rails, lumber, cord wood and even cash or California Gold Dust will not be particularly objected to. Also, corn.

Mr. Robert Wilson, of this place, and several others, have just returned from the plains. They have been out as far as Fort Hall. They bring no news of importance, excepting some intelligence from the Mormon settlement. Mr. Wilson met with Mr. Pomeroy (from Lexington, Mo.) at Fort Hall; and from him he learned the particulars of the recent high-handed and lawless acts of inhabitants of the Salt Lake Valley, in arresting and trying citizens from the States, upon a charge of participation in the expulsion of the Mormons from Missouri and Illinois. The Mormons had arrested and tried Mr. Pomeroy, Gen. Wilson, U. S. Agent, and a number of others, and they only released them upon the production of satisfactory proof of their innocence. They had also, levied a duty of fifty per cent, upon such articles of merchandize as were taken into their city. Mr. Wilson also learned that the Mormons were very much displeased at the Government's stationing troops so near them. —[Weston Reporter.

The above we copy to show how some men love to misrepresent, or even to tell a lie.

There have just arrived in this town about thirty men direct from the Salt Lake, some of whom are the first men for honor and intelligence in that country, or in any other country.

Mr. Kinkade, of the firm of Livingston & Kinkade, merchants from the Salt Lake Valley, and also Col. John Reece, merchant from the same place, not connected with our church, came through with this company. We have not seen them, but we confidently refer the public to them, also to any official documents that Gen. Wilson may write, or unofficial ones, also to any documents from Capt. Stansbury of the topographical engineers whose gentlemanly bearing towards the Mormons has won their confidence and esteem. There were no arrests at all made of Gen. Wilson or of Mr Pomeroy. They lay a tax of one per cent on Dry Goods taken there to sell, of half a per cent on Groceries, and fifty per cent on SPIRITUOUS LIQUORS. This tax makes roads, bridges and various other improvements. We have only one fault to find with this, and that is that they have not put a hundred per cent tax on Liquor instead of fifty per cent.

It was reported that Mr. Pomeroy was in the mob in Missouri and took an active part against our people—that our goods were robbed from his storehouse in Lexington, and boxes filled up with straw, stones, wood &c. The boxes were broken open and robbed; this was certain, and they had been in his warehouse at the time the owners were driven from Missouri.

When Mr. P. arrived in the Valley, there was some little excitement concerning him. A committee was appointed by the citizens to wait on him and enquire into the matter. Elder John Taylor was one of that committee who now sits in our office by our side while we pen this article. It was the intention of the citizens there, en mass, to invite him to pass on with his goods if it should be ascertained that the reports concerning him were true. Mr. P. was not a little frightened, and asked for a hearing and the privilege of extricating himself from the charge. It was granted him. The people were notified of the affair, and turned out pretty generally. He brought evidence to prove his innocence, and that his warehouse was rented to another man at the time our boxes of goods were broken open and robbed. This tribunal was composed of Mormons and a host of California emigrants. Evidence from every quarter was admitted, and after hearing the whole matter, the assembly voted that he was innocent. The Mormons were satisfied with Mr. Pomeroy, and the emigrants all appeared to be satisfied with the way he was treated. Mr. P. himself thanked the meeting for the impartial way that he was dealt with, and in evidence of his entire satisfaction, after selling a part of his goods there, he made up his escort and train of Mormons mostly, and of such as Governor Young could recommend. He was leaving apparently with the best of feeling; in fact he had no just cause for any other. We would advise our friends in the Valley to forget as far as possible those old aggrievances and offences, and let time and circumstances prey upon those offenders as a just and wise PROVIDENCE may direct; and at the same time, we would caution those distinguished mobocrats not to pass carelessly through the Valley, and thereby lay too strong a temptation before some "young men." They will find it equally safe to go by way of Fort Hall—equally comfortable, and perhaps as near to the place of their destination in the end if they don't repent. Mr. Pomeroy's men became very dissatisfied with him, and he declared himself, that he had no confidence in them, and put himself rather under the protection of Egan and his train. Mr. P's men being so dissatisfied with him, sought to fire the indignation of the Mormons against him also as soon as they got into the Valley.

With regard to their being pleased or displeased with the Government having troops there, they have none nearer than Fort Hall, except the topographical engineers who give employment to many of our men. They expect that Uncle Sam will do his own business in his own way, and we have yet to learn that the Mormons are displeased in any way about it.

We wonder if this champion Mr. Wilson, does not want to report that our trains robbed the Government trains of their cattle, when they found stray cattle on the road belonging to the Government, drove them to Fort Bridger and delivered them up to the government officers? What will Anti-Mormons say next to prejudice the Government against us to prevent us having any place on earth? We will wait and see.

Obstructing of Water Courses.

The Statute of the State is very explicit upon this subject, and we think that it provides for the removal of any mill dam that may injure the health of the community, or that may be deemed a nuisance. Every good citizen should be careful, and know that he is acting lawfully, before he commits himself, or lends a hand to tear down what his neighbor has toiled to build up. Be slow to sanction a principle, or to give encouragement, by your presence, to its being enforced, that has deprived us, as a people, of house and home, and sent many into a premature grave. There may be evils around us; but to rid ourselves of those evils unlawfully, may become greater evils in their consequences, than those that we attempt to banish in an illegal way. Instability is insecurity, and insecurity when perfected is robbery and murder.

Some of our exchanges say that the Mormon men at Salt Lake Valley have from five to twenty-five wives, If this is so, they are certainly ahead of us, and if they keep on, they will be as bad as King David and Solomon, and some others of whom we read in olden time: or as righteous as some modern law givers who practise what their laws condemn.

When Shall we Get the Guardian Weekly!

The above question is asked us frequently; and we will take the liberty to ask another. How often can it be expected, with reason and propriety, when we can get no regular mail oftener than once in three months? Indeed, all our mails are worse than none at all! For as it now is, our mail matter is forwarded by way of Fort Desmoines, and there it is left, when, if we had no mail route at all, we could order our communications addressed to us at Saint Joseph or at Austin, Mo. and make arrangements to send for them by private hand.

We will now request that all letters, exchange papers, documents; and in short, every thing sent to us by mail, be addressed to us at Saint Joseph, Upper Missouri, instead of their being addressed to Kanesville, Council Bluffs. Do not forget that you should direct all communications designed for the Frontier Guardian Office, or for the editor of this paper, to Saint Joseph, Upper Missouri.

Many of our friends abroad will doubtless wonder why their letters have not been responded to before this. It is because they have been lying at Fort Desmoine for two or three months through the miserably chicanery and unpardonable neglect of those whose duty it was to send them to us. We cannot be more mild. It would be torture and murder if we should attempt to stretch charity over such criminal neglect. We dismiss the subject and turn away in disgust, and ask our friends to send all our exchanges, letters and communications to Saint Joseph, Upper Missouri.

Goods in the Valley.

It would seem that Mr. Babbitt was a little mistaken with regard to the great surplus of [illegible] and merchandize taken to the Valley. The [illegible] into which deal taken there, it is true, but the [illegible] is much greater than was anticipated by any casual observer. The Messrs. Pomeroys, so far from escaping from the "lawless Mormons" as some poor scamp has represented, to save their lives, were in the Valley of the Salt Lake on the 20th of October, having sold most of their goods at fair prices, and were preparing teams and pack horses to go to the mines. They were satisfied with their treatment among the Mormons; nay, more than satisfied, well pleased. The trial that they had was at their own request in order to do away a prejudice which their own men and some others had raised against them in the Valley.

Tried Gold.

By a chemical test to which the Gold Coin of the United States has been submitted in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake; one hundred and fifty-seven grains of brass were taken out of two eagles.

Amount of pure gold in the twenty dollar pieces of the Great Salt Lake City Gold Coin.	455 grains.
Amount of pure gold in twenty-five dollars, U. S. gold coin. - - -	429 do.
Balance in favor of of G. S. L. gold,	26
Specific gravity of Great Salt Lake gold,	18.5
Specific gravity of United States' Gold	12.10

The above is taken from a certified copy of the test, but it seems almost incredible: Yet we are not skilled in testing the value or quality of metal's; but we give it as we have received it.

We wish a Merry Christmas to all our readers It's lively times here. The boys and girls, old and young, are showing their nerve and activity. Let them be moderate and joyful. God Bless them. They have our best wishes.

Missionaries.

We have several missionaries here from the Salt Lake Valley, destined to various countries in Europe. They have not brought with them a great deal of gold. It is another class of men who brought that article. But, we trust that they have something still more valuable than gold, the word of life and comfort to us. We have advised them to preach in the branches in this county and elsewhere, and pour out the effusions of their souls to us and warm up our hearts, and we will see if we cannot help them to a little of the "unrighteous mammon" to assist them to bear their expenses to the places of their destination. There may be some who are diffident and hate to make known their wants, and perhaps are not so experienced, confidential, and eloquent as some others: yet these should not be passed by unnoticed. They only want a little more experience, and then they will shine. We hope our friends at home and abroad will open their hearts and purses to aid the cause at this time.

Lines writen on the arrival of Elder John Taylor, and a company of the brethren from Great Salt Lake City, Dec. 11th, 1849.

A band of brethren from the west,
Came to our town this day at dusk,
Glad we were to see their faces,
Their rosy cheeks and pleasant graces;

Portrayed at once, that they were hearty,
The gold assured that they were wealthy;
To our surprize they shewed a chunk,
Worth fifty dollars in a lump.

The coin itself they laid before us,
It dazzled almost like phosphorus;
And like the men, in weight and hue,
It proves to us to be the true.

The news is also great and good,
To those who love and serve the Lord;
The rich and poor may both rejoice,
And gather to that land of choice.

The Guadian's always at its post,
A messenger to speak the toast,
And in its columns you will find,
Matter great and good combined.

The saying of Mr. Wilson, that the Mormons at Salt Lake are opposed to the government stationing troops so near them—the declarations of William Smith, an excommunicated member from our church, that the Mormons are sworn enemies to the nation, and the hundred and one catch penny Mormon exposes, will not stay the progress of truth, nor change the purposes of the Most High.

The Mormons may again prove to the government, by sending another battalion into the public service, that these characters are false accusers, that they do lie to obtain revenge. But we hope we may never again be called on for five hundred men till our families have something more than a tent or a wagon to live in while in an Indian country.

Congress.

We have to announce the failure of the House of Representatives to organize. By the ballotings for Speaker, it appears that the result is becoming more doubtful as the contest proceeds. Mr. Winthrop, of Mass., is the Whig candidate, and Mr. Cobb, of Georgia is the Democratic candidate. It is now evident, that neither party thus far has been able to bring their whole vote to bear upon any one candidate.

It is most probable that their will be no choice until there are new candidates. The delay in organizing will defer the receipt of the President's message for several days.

The California emigrants had nearly all left the Valley when our mail left, by the Southern route, which is practicable at all season of the year.

The First this Season.

Thursday the 20th inst., ushered in the dawn of our Holydays at this place. Early in the morning we were apprised of the fact, by the roaring of Mr. W. F. Carter's anvil battery; weather clear and frosty.

In the evening we attended a Plain and Fancy Dress Ball, given by the inhabitants of Kanesville, as a benefit to Mr. Orson Hyde, for his enterprizing zeal and philanthropy, displayed in erecting a Music Hall for the mutual benefit of the community. We were highly gratified to witness the reciprocal decorum observed, by both managers and guests during the evening; we are persuaded that we would not be doing justly were we to omit the commencement.

At 4 o'clock, P. M., according to appointment, the assembly was called to order by President Orson Hyde, after a few appropriate remarks suitable for such an occasion, he offered to the Most High a solemn dedication prayer—then gave place to the order of the evening. Bishop Aaron Johnson then called upon the guests intending to participate in the dance to observe order as much as possible, after which Mr. David Candland, advanced a few salutory remarks calculated to encourage in the harmless recreations about to be entered into. Elder Franklin D. Richards opened the ball by prayer. Mr. John Gooch and lady then waited upon our Senior Editor and lady, and conducted them to the head of the Hall to participate in the social entertainment.

Ladies and gentlemen, from various sections of Pottawatamie and adjacent counties were present; also a deputation of brethren from the Valley of Great Salt Lake; their presence in connection with the joyful tidings they brought, added considerably to our enjoyment.

The hearts and minds of all, manifested by their works, that nothing abounded but the pure spirit of philanthropy and order, and to the credit of our talented musician Mr. WILLIAM PITT and associates composing the orchestre, their cheerful notes animated the hearts to that degree, that the feet acted well their part in the scene. In conclusion the assembly was dismissed with prayer by Bishop Aaron Johnson.

From the Plains.

At a meeting of the California Enterprise Company, Thos. H. Owen, Captain, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we return our united thanks to Capt. Allen Taylor, the other officers and members of the train of Latter-day Saints for their kindness and gentlemanly conduct in stopping and procuring for us our teams which broke from our carrel on the morning of the 25th of July, a part of which were discovered on Wood river, some 130 miles from where they left our camp. Also, for their vigilant exertions in rescuing a number from the hands of some individuals near Fort Childs, who were determined to detain them, in which, had they succeeded, we would have suffered great inconvenience, since our teams are our main dependence here.

Resolved, That the sincere gratitude of our company be extended to the officers and members of this train, for the hospitality shown to several of our number who were in search of our cattle and for giving them the cheering intelligence that they were found.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions signed by the officers of our company be presented to Capt. Taylor.

THOS. H. OWEN, Captain,
THOS. KEALEY, 1st Lieut.
RILEY SENTER, 2d Lieut & cl'k.

Camp of California Enterprize Company, on North Fork of Platte river, 300 miles west of Council Bluffs, Aug. 7th, 1849.

Capt. Taylor, commanding one of our trains, has kindly sent us the above letter by return mail; and for ought we know, it might have been a Mr. Wilson who tried to get the cattle away from Captain Taylor, as we learn that a man by that name reported that the Mormons had stolen cattle and that the Government was going to raise troops to re-take them. The owners were glad to receive their property, and met with no difficulty in obtaining it. But the Mormons being true men, were not disposed to give the cattle up to worthless vagabonds on the plains.

Judge Owen is well known in Illinois and other States. He is an honorable and a high-minded man, if he is a Democrat.

Poor.

The Bishop is instructed and counselled to feed and clothe the Lord's poor according to his ability; but the Devil's poor have no claim on him. The Lord's poor are the sickly poor, the diligent and industrious that have been unfortunate, though have a good and unblemished character. The devil's poor are those who can labor, but feel that they ought to be supported without labor. Wo unto an idle, lazy, sluggish or indolent person, for it is written that such shall go hungry, naked and destitute. It is also written to the Bishop. "Thou shall not give the childrens' meat to dogs."

Music Hall.

This building is now completed at an expense of about three hundred and fifty dollars. The church has the use of it on Sundays and Sunday evenings; and also one evening during the week on their own terms. It was built at individual expense. Every person can pay to the proprietor whatever he or she may think proper, as his or her circumstauces and generosity may allow. It will be a comfortable place for meetings and also cleanly. Give for this accommodation, or for the above privileges whatever you think proper and all will be right. Remember that the proprietor furnishes lights and fuel, and keeps it clean and in order. The High Council will meet in it at their regular sessions during the season. Parties of pleasure and amusement can be accommodated with it during the Holydays at moderate charges.

Desmoine Mail.

Mr. Samuel Ferrin, of Indian Town, situate directly on the above mail route, fifty miles east of Kanesville, proposes to carry the above mail at the rates of the former contractors. He is acquainted with the route—is a go-ahead western man—can raft a barrel of whisky and a corn dodger thrown in, up the Missouri river, if necessary, and we will not say that he cannot make a yoke of steers and wagon out of dry cottonwood withes. He is decidedly fitted for crossing the sloughs, and can go where any Indian can. He can unquestionably give the security which the government would require for the faithful performance of his duty. Will not the department try him. We believe, if he had the contract, we should receive our mails by due course, weather or no weather.

Letter to Orson Hyde.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 16, 1849.

PRESIDENT ORSON HYDE:

Beloved Brother: The Lord has been devising, or rather making manifest ways and means to facilitate the gathering of his Saints in these last days, and we lose no time in cheering your heart with the intelligence, and offering such suggestions as may be wisdom for you to follow, in helping to roll on the glorious work of gathering Israel.

The saints are prospering in this valley, which is a very natural result of their good endeavors to keep the commandments and work righteousness. The desire of the brethren to see Zion built up, is constantly increasing; and their labors are tending more and more to this one great object. Of our proceedings, the circumstances of the saints, and things in general in this region, you will soon learn by our late epistle; and we write you more particularly at this time, concerning the gathering, and the mission of our general agent, for the PERPETUAL EMIGRATING FUND, for the coming year, Bishop Edward Hunter, who will soon be with you, bearing the funds already raised in this place; and we will here state our instructions to Bishop Hunter, so that you may the more fully comprehend our designs.

In the first place, this Fund has been raised by voluntary donations, and is to be continued by the same process, and by so managing, as to preserve the same, and cause them to multiply.

Bishop Hunter is instructed to go direct to Kanesville, and confer with the general authorities of the church at that place, and by all means within his reach, procure every information, so as to make the most judicious application of the funds in the purchase of young oxen and cows, that can be worked effectually to the valley, and that will be capable of improving and selling after their arrival, so as to continue the fund the following year.

We will give early information, to those whom we have directed to be helped, and such others as he shall deem wisdom, being aided in his judgmen by the authorities among you, so that they may be preparing their wagons, &c., for the journey.

Wagons are so plenty here, that it is very desirable not to purchase with the perpetual fund; but let those to be assisted make wagons of wood, when they cannot get iron, such as will be strong and safe to bring them here, so that all the funds may be appropriated to the purchase of such things as will improve in value, by being transferred to this place.

The poor can live without the luxuries of life, on the road, and in the valley, as well as in Pottawatamie and other places; and those who have means to purchase luxuries have monies to procure an outfit of their own, and need no help, therefore let such as are helped, receive as little assistance in food and clothing, wagons, &c., as can possibly make them comfortable to this place, and when they arrive, they can go to work and get their outfit, of all things necessary for comfort and convenience, better than where they are, and even luxuries.

As early in the spring as it will possibly do, on account of feed for cattle, Br. Hunter will gather all his company, organize them in the usual order, and preside over the camp, traveling with the same to this place; having previously procured the best teamsters possible, such as are accustomed to driving, and will be gentle, kind and attentive to their teams.

When the saints thus helped arrive here, they will give their obligation to the Church to refund to the amount of what they have received, as soon as circumstances will permit; and labor will be furnished to such as wish on the public works, and good pay; and as fast as they can procure the necessaries of life, and a surplus, that surplus will be applied to liquidating their debt, and thereby increasing the Perpetual Fund.

By this it will readily be discovered, that the Funds are to be appropriated in the form of a loan, rather than a gift; and this will make the honest in heart rejoice, for they love to labor, and be independant by their labor, and not live on the charity of their friends; while the lazy idlers, if any such there be, will find fault, and want every luxury furnished them for their journey, and in the end pay nothing. The Perpetual Fund will help no such idlers; we have no use for them in the valley; they had better stay where they are; and if they think they can devise a better way of appropriating the emigrating funds, than we propose let them go to work, get the funds, make the appropriation, set us a better pattern, and we will follow it; and by that time we are confident they will have means of their own, and will need no help.

Brother Hunter will return all the funds to this place next season, when the most judicious course will be pursued to convert all the cattle and means into cash, that the same may be sent abroad as speedily as possible on another mission, together with all that we can raise besides to add to it; and we anticipate the Saints at Potawatamie and in the States, will increase the funds by all possible means the coming winter, so that our agents may return with a large company.

The few thousands we send out by our agent, at this time is like a grain of mustard seed in the earth; we send it forth into the world, and among the Saints, a good soil; and we expect it will grow and flourish, and spread abroad in a few weeks so that it will cover England, cast its shadow on Europe, and in process of time compass the whole earth: that is to say, these funds are designed to increase until Israel is gathered from all nations, and the poor can sit under their own vine and inhabit their own house, and worship God in Zion.

If from any cause, there should be a surplus of funds in the hands of our agent, when he leaves the States with a company, he will deposite the same with some good house, subject to our order, or bring it with him as wisdom dictates.

We remain your Brethren in the Gospel,
BRIGHAM YOUNG,
HEBER C. KIMBALL,
WILLARD RICHARDS.

Tallow.—Cash will be paid for tallow at this office.

For the Guardian.

Letter from G. A. Smith—Account of travel—tremendous snow storm—60 head of Cattle Perished—Chickens and Pigs froze to death—no person died on the journey—Companies not to start after the Middle of June.

CAMP OF ISRAEL, Muddy Fork, 930 miles fm Winter Quarters, Oct. 16, '49.

BR. HYDE—Dear Sir: As we expect to meet the Fall express from the Valley to the States in a day or two, we thought it advisable to drop a hasty note to you, for publication in the Guardian, for the benefit of all concerned. You have been informed of our progress and prosperity on our Journey from time to time as opportunities offered. The last we wrote you was at Fort Laramie, since then no opportunity of sending letters to the States has presented itself. After leaving Laramie, we continued our journey slowly as heretofore, but making progress every day, keeping a vigilant eye to the welfare of our cattle, as the first three hundred miles, nearly, of our journey was through mud and mire, after that heavy sand for considerable distance; but pasture was first rate, and our cattle withstood the journey well, and up to our arrival at Laramie, we believe, neither our camp or Br. Benson's had lost a single head, with the exception of one or two cows that got killed in the yoke. After we passed Laramie, the feed became inferior but we found a sufficient supply for our cattle, and indeed, we have found a plenty all the while, with the exception of two or three days in the neighborhood of the Willow Springs, where the alkali or poisonous springs abound. Through these wild plains, lies the bones of hundreds of cattle, that have died the past summer, (no less than the bones of nine head we counted in one heap,) belonging to the gold diggers, bound for California. Through this desolate part of our journey we lost but a few head of our cattle, and those that died, were chiefly worn down by the journey. When we arrived at the Sweet Water river, about 6 miles below Independence Rock, a recruit of some 60 yoke of cattle, together with several wagons and teamsters from the Valley met us, that had been sent by the President to our relief, under the charge of Br. David Fullmer and Joseph Young which was a welcome meeting to us, as our cattle were much fatigued and needed respite. The cattle thus sent were divided, between the three camps, viz: E. T. Bensons, Capt. Richards and ours, which relieved us much, and we rolled along with ease and weather pleasant. Although at Independance Rock, some 25 or 30 head strayed away, but we recovered them all, except one cow, after following some thirteen head about one hundred miles. We crossed over Rocky Ridge on the 2nd of this month, near the summit of the South Pass, with the Wind River chain of mountains on the north; toward night it began to snow and blow quite hard and fast from the North-east, weather increasing in coldness which obliged us to encamp the best way we could (without carrelling,) on a branch of the Sweet water. E. T. Benson and Captain Richard's camp some ten or twelve miles ahead on Willow Creek. We turned our cattle loose and drove them into the willows near by to do the best they could and share their fate; and such a storm of wind and snow as we experienced, we think was never superceded in Pottawatamie. For thirty-six hours, it continued to howl around us, unceasingly, blowing nearly a hurricane, drifting the snow in every direction, and freezing fast to whatever it touched. Being unable to keep fires, (except a few who had stoves in their wagons,) we had to be content without them, and do the best we could. Many were the mother and infant that was obliged to be in bed under their frail covering that sheltered them from the pitiless blast, to keep them from perishing with nothing perhaps, but a piece of dry bread, or a few crackers to subsist upon, while the winds spent their fury upon our camp of Canvass, covering it with a mass of ice, the snow drifting around us in some places to the depth of three or four feet. Many were the reflections that passed through our mind in regard to our situation, and the welfare of our cattle during the storm, but felt resigned to our fate, and Heavens' will. On the morning of the third day, the storm abated and we turned out through the chilling blast, (from off these everlasting snow capped mountains, being at an altitude of about seven thousand feet,) and snow to look for our famishing, and as we expected many perished cattle. As we wended our way down the stream among the Willows; indeed it was a sorrowful sight to behold our perished cattle, one after another cold and stiff, lying in the snow banks food for wolves, ravens, catamounts, magpies, &c., that inhabit these mountainous regions in countless numbers, and live on prey. The greater part of our cattle had made their way during the storm about five miles off to the Sweet Water, where they obtained pasture and fared quite well, not one being found perished, while those that tarried behind fell a prey to hunger and the merciless storm. Upwards of sixty head of cattle perished in the three camps. Those of our cattle that survived the storm, did not recover from its effects for several days, others died in consequence, and some show the effects yet, although they are improving at present, as we find quite plenty of mountain grass, and that hearty and good, and we are in tolerable good rolling order, making from 12 to 15 miles per day, and we hope if we are prospered to reach the Valley in eight or ten days from this time.

Notwithstanding our loss, we consider we have been blessed and prospered considering our late start from Winter Quarters. The goodness and mercy of our Heavenly Parent has attended us on our journey, and surely we have been protected and preserved beyond those that have preceded us. Not a solitary death has occurred of man, woman or child in our camp. Although we have experienced storms, and endured cold weather. It was so cold during the storm, and after, that chickens, pigs, &c., froze to death, and men passed over the Sweet Water on the ice.

Many has been the grave we have passed on our journey, some of friends near and dear, others of strangers, that has fallen by the shaft of the destroyer, while journeying over these boundless plains of sage, and mountains of rock, where the buffalo, elk, antelope, bear, ravenous wolf, &c., ranges undisturbed, except by the red man, or the journeying emigrant.

Many has been the grave of the gold seeker we have seen, whose bodies have been disinterred by the wolves, and the bones, pantaloons, hose, and other things lying strewed around, with the head board lying near, informing the traveler, who had been buried where from, the day they died, age, disease, &c. But we have not seen a solitary instance where one of the Saint's tombs have been disturbed by the wolves. Among the graves of those whose bones lies around their graves, bleaching in the sun, their flesh been consumed by the ravenous wolf, we recognize the names of several noted mobocrats from the States of Missouri and Illinois, who took an active and prominent part in persecuting, mobbing and driving the Saints from these States. Among others, we noticed at the South Pass of the Rocky Mountains the grave of one E. Dodd, of Galatin, Mo., died on the 19th of July last, of typhus fever. The wolves had completely disintered him. The clothes in which he had been buried lied strewed around. His under jaw bone lied in the grave, with the teeth complete, the only remains discernable of him. It is believed he was the same Dodd, that took an active part, and a prominent mobocrat in the murder of the Saints at Hawns Mills, Mo. If so, it is a righteous retribution. Our God will surely inflict punishment upon the heads of our oppressors, in his own due time and way.

We would earnestly recommend to all emigrating companies hereafter, coming to the Valley, not to attempt to leave the Missouri river after the middle of June, for if they start later, they will almost be certain to encounter severe snow storms as we have, in crossing these everlasting snow capped, and rock bound mountains. By starting early they will be apt to miss the snows, and have time and opportunity for recruiting a few days. When their cattle are worn down, or any one sick and not able to travel and not have to encounter the cold weather, &c. The weather at present is quite pleasant, although freezing quite hard every night. The camps are healthy, in good spirits and feel to rejoice in the God of their fathers, and in his goodness and protecting mercies. We hope in a few days to meet our brethren whom we love in the Valley of the Mountains of Joseph, and mingle and rejoice with them, where no doubt you will hear from us again. E. T. Bensons and Capt. Richards companies have broke up into tens, and gone ahead in order to pass through the kanyons of the mountains, one ten of our camp has rolled out also. We have a company of upwards of 40 wagons at present, including the Welch, we expect to continue so, until we reach the Valley, as pasture here is rich and quite plenty. Farewell, may the Lord bless you forever, and all the Saints. Amen.

As ever, we remain your brethren in Christ,
GEO. A. SMITH,
W. I. APPLEBY.

Mr. Rives at the French Court.—The Telegraph announces that Mr. Rives, our Minister at Paris, has had an interview with the President of France, and that he was well received. This must be gall and wormwood to the Foreign Organ at Washington, and to the other Locofoco papers, which have strenuously labored to put the Administration in the wrong, and to show that Mr. Poussin was clearly in the right in this matter. The Washington Union has been the recipient of all Mr. Poussin's views upon the questions at issue between the two countries, and has occupied whole columns in defending his case. Unfortunately for the minister and his organ, the President of the French Republic has himself disavowed his conduct, and has discharged from office the Cabinet Minister who sustained him, and acquiesced in the propriety of Mr. Possin's dismissal from official intercourse at Washington. What will the Foreign Organ try next?

Fatal Accident.

On Thursday, 13th inst., George Fitch, of Knox County Ill., living at Dr. Rust's three quarters of a mile below this place, went out to the woods after breakfast, and while in the act of escaping from a tree which he was falling, he was crushed beneath the top. Dr. Rust a short time afterwards went for the wood, and found him in this position. He was immediately conveyed to the doctor's house, but every means employed to restore him proved unavailing. He died shortly after taken to the house, and left five children to lament his loss.

The company from the Valley met a party of seventeen gold diggers from Virginia, on their way to Fort Hall, at Sweet Water river, 250 miles from the Fort, and the snows were upon them then, and it is very doubtful whether they will be able to reach that point.

Fatal Affray in St. Louis.—A rencontre occurred in St. Louis on Monday last near the Planter's House, between a Mr. Newton Wimer, and a Mr. James S. Thomas, which resulted in the wounding of both, and the subsequent death of the former. Mr. Thomas it is thought will recover. The loss of some money by Mr. Thomas was the cause of the affair. The affray is thus described by the Union:

"Mr. Wimer drew a brace of single barrel pistols, and Mr. Thomas drew a revolver. Their first shots were fired simultaneously. Mr. W's second shot took effect in Mr. T's left side, and passed around towards his back, following the 3d rib. When Mr. T. had discharged the contents of his revolver, W. rushed upon him with a colt, which was suspended from his wrist. With this weapon he inflicted a wound upon the front and another upon the back of Mr. T's head. These blows stunned Mr. T., and caused him to settle to a stooping posture, and Mr. W. then seized him. By this time officer Owens and several other persons reached the combatants, and were in the act of seperating them, when Mr. T. drew a single barrel pistol and shot Mr. W. in the abdomen. Mr. W. soon grew very weak, and would have fallen had he not been supported by friends, who placed him in a cab and conveyed him to the residence of his brother.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1849.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA.

One Week Later from Europe.

Boston, Nov. 25—1½ A. M.

The Caledonia arrived at Boston at 11 o'clock last night. The intelligence by the Caledonia is comparatively of little interest. No event of special importance has occurred in any part of Europe. The aspect of matters in Turkey has not materially changed. In England nothing has transpired of special interest.

England.

The new minister to the United States, Mr. Bulwer, has sailed from Portsmouth, in a steamer sloop of war, according to Hunt's telegraph. His first business on his arrival will be to know what encouragement, if any, the United States gives to the attempted withdrawal of Canada from British rule. It is understood that he has full power to resist, energetically, all attempts at interference on the part of the United States in the affairs of Nicaragua. It is said that the Government has intimated to the Governor of Canada that no coercive measures will be adopted to prevent Annexation to the United States if the popular will should be decidedly expressed in favor of that measure.

The British Parliament was prorogued until the 16th January next. The Queen has issued a proclamation for a day of general Thanksgiving on the 15th inst., on account of the abatement of the cholera in Great Britain and Ireland.

Ireland remains perfectly quiet.

Austria.

In Austria three additional executions have taken place. Haynau has published an amnesty. The Emperor has decreed that all officers who return to the Austrian standard before November 26th, 1849, are to be restored to their ranks. The Jesuits are fast returning to Austria.

Rome.

In the Roman States things remain as before. A deputation has left for Portici to request the Pope to return.

All the Papal States are to remain closed until further orders.

Russia and Turkey.

Fuad Effendi has been informed by Count Nesselrode that the Czar demands that the Hungarian refugees should be located in the interior of Candia, or such part of the British territory as may afford the greatest facilities for keeping them under surveillance. If any of the refugees wish to go to France or England they may be permitted so to do. The Czar will take no notice of their departure, for whether in France or England there can be no doubt but that the refugees will busy themselves in preparing for new revolutions.

Germany.

The relations between the Prussians and Neufchatel are in progress of adjustment. Neufchatel returns to the same position which she occupied before the revolution. England has offered her mediation on the matter. Mr. Carr has received a request from the American residents in Paris, that he would exert himself in favor of the Hungarian refugees.

General Summary.

The Hungarian exiles were still at Widdin, the entire number is stated at about 120, principally officers.

Bem denies his final conversion to Islamism.

By Electric Telegraph from Paris of Friday morning, intelligence was received that Mr. Rives was received on Thursday by the President of the Republic—the President was most gracious, but he observed that in consequence of the difficulties that had arisen between the two governments, he would have been deprived of the honor of receiving him, if instead of being a Republican Minister, he had been a Monarchial Ambassador.

The Presse contradicts the statement that the French Government had despatched a courier from Paris to St. Petersburgh, to explain to the Czar, that the sailing of the French and English fleets towards the Dardanelles was the result of a misunderstanding.

Private latters from Constantinople of October 26th, announce the arrival of a British fleet at the mouth of the Dardanelles. The instructions of the English Envoy, of 24th October, expressed the still greater determination of the English Government to grant material support to the Sultan in case of emergency, and to form a defensive alliance with the Pope in the event of Russia's attempting hostile measures. The French Envoy's instructions were nearly to the same effect; but although there was an evident desire that France and England should act in concert, it was not certain that a defensive alliance would be formed with the Sultan. In the event of a war, it was understood, however, that France would support Turkey as long as she acted with prudence. The Sultan and his Ministers were greatly pleased with the approval of their conduct by the London and Paris press, and with the support of the two great powers. It would be impossible for the Emperor to commence hostilities before next May, and it was hoped that the dispute in the mean time would be adjusted.

The Emperor of Austria has ordered a levy of 15000 men in the Lombardo-Venitian Kingdom.

The Cologne Gazette states that there are many symtoms which tend to the supposition that war will be renewed with Denmark. A report is already in circulation that an army of the Empire, under Gen. Penkar, is in readiness to march.

No communication had been received from the Emperor of Russia, relative to the letter of the Porte.

NEWS PER CANADA.

LATEST FROM LONDON.

Advices from Constantinople to the 1st inst., state that the British fleet was anchored in Alonkai Bay, and would remain there until the arrival of the courier, with the answer of the Czar, to the communication of Fuad Effendi. Should that answer prove unfavorable, the fleet will proceed at once to Constantinople. Sir Stratford Canning has communicated to the Turkish government, that the English cabinet had unanimously agreed to form an offensive alliance with the Porte, in the event of hostile proceedings on the part of Russia. Similar communications have been made by General Aupick, on behalf of the French Government.

France.

The political news is unimportant, the most gratifying feature is the interview between the President and Mr. Rives, at Elysee. The National says: the American minister made an address on the occasion, but observed total silence on the subject of the misunderstanding between France and the United States. The President, however, alluded to the affair in terms flattering to the American minister and his country.

The dispute between the Emperor of Morocco and the French, seems to increase in violence. The French Consul at Mogadore has been treated harshly and ignominiously; a French frigate has been sent to his relief, and there is every probability that this affair will end in the bombardment of Tangier.

Hungary and Austria.

From Hungary, we learn that fresh collisions have taken place. No fewer than fifteen additional executions at Arad were threatened daily. Kossuth's valedictory address to his countrymen, written at Orsova, is published. It is written in his most spiritthusiastic and poetical style. Haynau of this, carrying on the most unrelenting cruelties, unchecked by higher authority.

The Jews at Pesth are threatened with violence, unless they pay up the contributions demanded.

Kossuth's Address.

The ingrate whom thou has fattened with thy abundance, rose against thee, a traitor to his mother, and destroyed thee utterly. Thou hast been betrayed, thou hast been sold, my country! Thy death-sentence has been written, beloved of my heart, by him whose virtue, whose love I never dared to doubt; yes, in the fervor of my boldest thoughts I should almost as soon have doubted the existence of Omnipotence, as believe he should ever be a traitor to his country. Thou hast been betrayed by him into whose hands I had but a little space before, deposited the power of our great country, which he sworeto defend, even to the last drop of his heart's blood; he has done treason to that heart's blood—he has done treason to his mother, and the glitter of gold has been for more seductive than that of the blood shed to save his country—base gain has more value in his eyes, than his country, and God has abandoned him, as he has abandoned his God for his allies in hell. Magyars! beloved companions! blame me not for having cast my eyes on this man, and for having given to him my place; it was necessary, for the people had bestowed on him their confidence, the army loved him and he obtained a power of which I myself would have been proud, and, nevertheless, this man belied the confidence of the nation, and has repaid the love of the army with hatred. Curse him, Magyars, curse the breast that did not dry up before it gave him milk.

New York, Nov. 27, 5 P. M.

The London Times contains a letter from Austria, dated 4th instant, from which it appears that the Emperor of Russia has carried his point with the Turkish government despite the interference of England and France. The Porte has pledged itself to keep in safe custody, in one or more of the Turkish fortresses, all those refugees whose names may be submitted by the Austrian and Russian governments, and immediately banish the others. By this arrangement no chance is left to Kossuth and his compatriots for ever escaping to England or the United States.

Important from Nicaragua.

New York, Nov. 28, 5 P. M.

By an arrival from Balize in Honduras, the Herald received the following important intelligence, dated Balize, 22d Oct.

On the 29th April the American brig M. C. Draper was wrecked 100 miles north of San Juan through the treachery of the pilot—the vessel was abandoned, goods saved and put on shore. The crew and passengers camped on the beach, when they were attacked by Indians, who robbed them of everything. Three days after giving timely notice, the Captain of the brig, accompanied by friendly Indians, proceeded to the village of Quamwatla to rescue the stolen property. The inhabitants, who were the land pirates, had deserted the village, which was then burned by friendly Indians. The party returned to their camp on the beach, where, after twenty days suffering, they were taken and carried to Balize. When the news of the sacking of the Quamwatla reached San Juan, Nicaragua, the Mosquito King and commissioners proceeded to get evidence in the case; they obtained from the pilot, who lured the brig to destruction, false statements relative to almost every particular; rebutting evidence was adduced here, and thus the matter rests.

The Herald says, "the affair has caused considerably excitement among the Indians, and to make the most of the occurrence, the Mosquito King and the English Agent were taking evidence, to be used, most likely, in the correspondence with our government on the Nicaragua question.

From California.

New York, Dec. 5—P. M.

The Crescent City arrived this morning with dates to Nov. 2. She has on board $1,000,000 in gold dust on freight, and $400,000 among the hands and passengers. There is no news of importance. The accounts from California continue encouraging. The health of the miners is generally good, with the exception of some slight attacks of dysentery. There had been large arrivals from Europe and the United States. One hundred British vessels were at San Francisco. It is said that there were 80,000 persons at the mines. Thirteen hundred passengers passed through Chagres on the 22th and 20th October. One hundred persons were awaiting passage for California.

A naval execution had taken place on board the frigate Savannah, for an attempt to murder some of the officers.

The Constitution of the State of California had been adopted and published. The Crescent City brings 160 passengers, including a minister from the King of the Sandwich Islands.

Cincinnati, Dec. 7—5 P. M.

A tremendous fire is raging. Lot, Pugh & Co's extensive pork house, on Sycamore street, is destroyed, Stagg & Shay's pork house is now in flames.

Dec. 7—7 P. M. The fire originated in the smoke-house attached to Lot, Pugh & Co's pork house. It was discovered at half past two o'clock; in a few minutes the whole premises were in flames. The extensive house of Stagg & Shay, adjoining, soon caught, and in an hour the two largest houses in the city were a heap of ruins. For a time, the buildings opposite, on Court and Sycamore streets were threatened, having been several times on fire. The flames are now subdued. Pugh's house was full of provisions and three thousand dressed hogs; all were lost. There was a large quantity of hams, all destroyed. Stock and house insured.

Washington, Dec. 7—5 P. M.

On motion of Mr. Bayly the House proceeded to vote for Speaker. First ballot—Cobb, 63; Winthrop, 102; Richardson, 29; Potter, 14; Wilmot, 8; Gentry, 5; Scattering, 3.

Second ballot—Cobb 62, Winthrop 102, Richardson 20, Potter 18, Wilmot 7, Gentry 5, Scattering 3.

Third ballot—Cobb 66, Winthrop 102, Potter 19, Richardson 23, Gentry 5, Wilmot 7, Scattering 3.

Fourth ballot—Cobb 65, Winthrop 104, Richardson 23, Potter 18, Wilmot 7, Gentry 5, Scattering 5. No choice. Adjourned until to-morrow.

Great Conflagration—$140,000 worth of Property Destroyed!!

About half-past twelve o'clock last night, fire was discovered issuing from the roof of Mr. Henry T. Blow's castor oil manufactory, at the corner of Tenth street and Clark avenue. The flames spread with great rapidity, and soon the whole building was enveloped. There was a light wind blowing at the time from the southeast, which carried the fire across an alley on the north, to a two story dwelling owned by L. Clamorgan, fronting Tenth street. On the rear to Clamorgan's lot, there was another dwelling, which was also soon wrapped in flames, and adjoining this on the north, fronting an alley, a double two story frame dwelling, belonging to R. W. Powell, was also soon on fire, and then a two story brick belonging to the same gentleman, fronting Tenth street, caught. By this time, the heat was so intense, that it set fire to Mr. Blow's white lead factory—and when we left the ground, all these buildings were burning, with a fair prospect for the destruction of many others.

Mr. Blow supposes his loss will amount to something like one hundred and thirty thousand dollars—on which there is an insurance of about one half the entire loss.

There were in the oil factory about $80,000 worth of castor beans, none of which were saved.

We could not learn whether the two houses on Clamorgan's lot were insured or not. Those on the next lot, belonging to Mr. Powell, were insured for $600 each—one of them cost $1200; the other, $1000. Seting down Mr. Blow's loss at $130,000, and taking into consideration the loss of furniture, and fixtures of the other houses burnt, we may safely estimate the loss by this fire at $140,000.

It is not a little strange that we should have three large fires in as many consecutive nights? Can it be that we have amongst us some desperate villians, who are playing the part of incendiaries? Circumstances appear to indicate it.

This fire originated in the room in which castor beans were kept; it is not likely there was any fire in it.

The Montezano House, burnt night before last, was not occupied at all—and the buildings burnt the night before, formed just such a cluster as any incendiary would like to fire. —[St. Louis Union.

The Ship Humboldt.—We notice that the Hannibal Journal expresses some apprehensions for the fate Cook Campbell, a young man of that place, who was a passenger on the ship Humbolt from Panama to San Francisco, and of which vessel no tidings of her arrival have been heard. That paper says, the last heard of the vessel, she was seen in a wrecked condition, by a French vessel, on a reef, and it is supposed she was lost and all her passengers and crew. A letter was received in this city by the last steamer from San Francisco, which expresses the same fears. Nothing had then been heard of the Humbolt, although several months had elapsed since her departure from Panama. We have reason to fear that several young men of this city—one of whom formerly worked in this office—were passengers in her.—[St. Louis Republican.

Gold Diggins.—The National Intelligencer learns that, in an official report to the War department, on the civil affairs of California, Gen. Riley estimates the number of persons actually employed in digging gold, at ten thousand, while the number of persons engaged in other employments at the Placers, would greatly increase this amount. It is probable that the report in question will accompany the President's Message.

Heavy Damages for Stage Accident.—The case of Franklin Somers vs. the Ohio Stage Company, was tried last week in the Superior Court of Cleveland, and resulted in a verdict of $2,500 for the plaintiff. Owing to the reckless driving of a drunken driver, the plaintiff was thrown from the outside seat of the coach and much injured.

More Fraud in Land Warrants.—Geo. H. Hiekman, a young Baltimore lawyer, has been arrested and held to bail in the sum of $2,000, on a charge of procuring money and land on land warrants to which were attached forged and fraudulent powers of attorney. The charge preferred by Justice Denny.

From the St. Louis Republican.

HORRIBLE STEAMBOAT EXPLOSION.

Great Loss of Life.

The steamers Gen. Jesup and Duroc have just arrived from New Orleans, bringing us papers to the 17th inst., containing details of the calamitous explosion on board the steamer Louisiana. We append them.

Capt. Cannon, of the Louisiana, was arrested in New Orleans, and gave bonds in $6,000, to appear and answer to the charge of criminal negligence, by which the accident occurred.

It will be seen, that Maj. Edmondson, of this county, Mr. King, of this city, and Mr Andy Bell, and others of the State, were victims of the calamity.

Capt. Hopkins, of the Storm, was severely injured; and his brother, an engineer, was killed.

On the 16th ult., about five o'clock, the steamboat Louisiana, just putting out from the Levee in order to go down the river and take on board some imigrant passengers, was blown up, her boilers exploding and carrying away not only her own cabin and decks, but also the larboard side of the Storm, and the starboard of the Bostona. The Louisiana was bound for St. Louis, and had on board more than two hundred persons, passengers and crew. The Storm was just coming in from Louisville, having left the principal part of her passengers at Lafayette. The Bostona arrived from Louisville on Wednesday morning, and many persons were on her decks to look at the Louisiana as she went out. The Levee was, of course, crowded with people, as it usually is when a boat is about arriving or departing. The loss of life has, owing to all these circumstances, been enormous, and at present there is no possibility of saying how many persons were killed and wounded.

Of the immense number on the Louisiana, we can say but little. The explosion carried many of them far into the air, and tossed the bleeding fragments upon land and wave. The sight was a terrible one, depriving even those that witnessed it of the faculty of transmitting the picture in words. But a few moments intervened between the explosion and the sinking of the Louisiana, which carried with it all record of its crowded deck.

Capt. Cannon, the commander, was standing at the time on the Levee, as the boat was not to start for fifteen minutes. He escaped with slight injury, but his brother, E. Cannon, of this city, was most seriously hurt.

The destruction of life would have been much greater, had not the explosion passed over the great number of persons on the Levee near the boat. The fragments were hurled in every direction; a large piece of one of the boilers was thrown upon the Levee, and one, entire—a mass of iron, fifteen feet long, and weighing thousands of pounds—was thrown six hundred feet from the river, landing within three steps of the door of the "White Mansion Coffee House," at the corner of Canal street. This almost incredible exhibition of the power of steam can now be seen there. In its passage it struck against some bales of cotton, which lessened its force, or the huge mass would have penetrated the house. In its fall it killed two men, and a mule attached to a dray! another piece of boiler struck a sign in Natchez street, and parts of the wreck were carried for squares from the scene of the disaster. Several limbs of the unfortunate victims were found nearly opposite to Gravier street.

In reference to the mass of iron at the corner of Canal and Levee streets, which is an entire half of one of the Louisiana's boilers, the flue is crushed or rolled together like sheet lead. One end of this huge fragment is smeared with blood, mixed with hair. The effects of the explosion on the ceiling of the Bostona's fore cabin are awful to behold. The whole surface is stained of a claret-color, occasioned by the scattering of the blood of the victims.

Still Later.

To the politeness of one of the pilots of the Duroc, we are indebted for a paper received at Memphis, by the Autocrat, on the evening of the 17th, giving full particulars. From that paper, we copy these affecting particulars. The Delta says:

The event of Thursday was the most disastrous of the kind that ever occurred in this city. The extent of the mortality will exceed our highest estimates. All the facts discovered thus far, gives color to the gloomiest apprehensions of the number killed. More than sixty-four dead have already been recognized—more than forty were exposed in the Baronne street watch house yesterday, and at least twenty were in the dead houses of the several hospitals. Several have died at private houses. Many others have no doubt floated down the stream, and will never be heard of again. Others have been crushed under the weight of the wreck, and their bodies will not rise for some time.

Early yesterday we visited the scene of the disaster. A large crowd was assembled on the Levee. Not a vestige of the Louisiana was visible, but the Storm and Bostona lay in the same position they occupied when the explosion occurred. There they were, the Storm a perfect wreck, riddled and crushed from the boilers to the stern; the Bostona, a costly and beautiful boat, also, with her pilot house knocked off, and her wheel house badly crushed.

The list of killed and wounded is of course very incomplete, and yet truly is it formidable enough. We think it would not be extravagant to estimate the killed and those who will die of their wounds from the explosion at 150, and the wounded at 100 more, making a total of 250 persons, killed and injured by one steamboat explosion.

The advantages of advertising were never more clearly exemplified than in the case of a dry goods dealer in New York, who, in a few months, by the means of advertising, built up a business that would be profitable to any house, of however long standing.

DIED,

Three miles from Newyark, Andrew county, Mo. on the 2d ult., DAVID W. McCALL, son of James A. and Ann McCall, of consumption, aged 20 years and three months.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock, than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m*

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets
St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

WANTED—By the subscriber any quantity of Otter, Beaver, Wolf, Wildcat, Raccoon, Mink, and Deer Skins, for which the highest price will be paid. Also dry hides taken in exchange for goods. HENRY A. TERRY.

Little Pigeon, Nov. 28, 1849.

HEIGHO! HEIGHO!!

Saddle, Harness and Shoe Manufactory.

THE subscribers wish to inform the public generally that they have commenced the above business at ST. FRANCIS or TRADING POINT, where they intend keeping constantly on hand: Saddles, Harnesses, Bridles, Martingales, collars, and boots and shoes, of all descriptions. Persons wishing to purchase any of the above articles will do well to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere: for our motto is,

Small Profits and Ready Pay.

BECK & McENTURF.

N. B. We keep all the above articles at Voorhis' and Johnson's stores in Kanesville. B. & M.

Also 500 hides wanted in exchange for work.

St. Francis, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

HORSE AND OX SHOEING.

WILLIAM F. CARTER,

OF this town, would avail himself of this opportunity to tender his thanks to the citizens of this county, and also to the traveling community, for the liberal patronage with which they have favored him heretofore; and having enlarged his shop and obtained a heavy stock of iron and steel of all kinds, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuation of public favor.

He is prepared to shoe horses and oxen on the shortest notice, having every facility for those branches that can be had any where. He will also have on hand a good supply of his superior Steel Plated Hoes. Emigrants would do well to purchase this article here instead of purchasing elsewhere, as has been proven by the last three years experience. He will also execute with neatness and despatch any jobs in the general line of BLACKSMITHING.

Shop at the Old Stand Opposite the Log Tabernacle.

N. B. Mr. C. has an excellent Lathe, for turning iron, connected with his establishment.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—3m

ESTRAY NOTICE.

TAKEN up by Andrew Burnam, living near Kanesville, on the road leading from Kanesville to Council Point, TWO STRAY COWS, described as follows, viz: one of them is red, white faced, line back, white under the belly, ears supposed to have been cropped or frozen, judged, five years old, about common size, prized at nine dollars and fifty cents. The other is a small red Cow, white face and belly, end of her tail white and three white feet, a red spot under her right eye, two white spots on her back, ears supposed to have been cropped or frozen; judged, four years old, last spring, prized at nine dollars. T. BURDICK,

Clerk, Board of Co. Com.

Kanesville, Nov. 29, 1848.—d12 3t*

GREAT BARGAIN.

CAPT. R. C. PETTY, residing at the OLD AGENCY, on the Missouri river, directly opposite the mouth of the Platte river, where the Great National Railroad must cross, if it is constructed, offers for sale his splendid and extensive claim of land, well improved, excellent timber and water, with good and commodious buildings, at a price that cannot fail to ensure a fortune to him who is lucky enough to invest a little capital in such an eligible location.

Call and take a look, and see what advantages this point holds out in this age of improvements.

Old Agency, Dec. 12, 1849.

PRIVATE BOARDING.

TWO or three single gentlemen can be furnished with genteel board and lodging on reasonable terms, at the WHITE HOUSE, one door West of the Printing Office.

Transient persons desirous of taking Dinner or staying for the night can also be accommodated.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—6t

MEALS! MEALS!!

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.

JOHN GOOCH, Ja.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

NEW GOODS.

C. VOORHIS & Co.,

ARE now in receipt of their FALL AND WINTER STOCK OF GOODS. Being one of the largest stocks ever brought to this village. It will be the interest of every body wanting cheap goods to call and look at our assortment. Give us a call and you will find all kinds of

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES,
HARDWARE & QUEENSWARE,
COOKING STOVES & CASTINGS,
IRON, a large assortment,
LEATHER of all kinds,
BOOTS & SHOES, &c.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARDINES—A good article can be found at nov29 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

Friendship.

"Oh Friendship! Cordial for the human breast,
So little felt, so fervently expressed;
Thy blossoms deck our unsuspecting years;
The promise of delicious fruit appears:

We hug the hopes of constancy and truth,
Such is the folly of our dreaming youth;
But soon alas! detect the rash mistake
That sanguine inexperience loves to make;

Whoever undertake a friend's great part
Should be renewed in nature, pure in heart,
Prepared for martyrdom, and strong to prove
A thousand ways the force of genuine love.

We may be called to give up health and gain,
To exchange ease for trouble, pleasure for pain,
To echo sigh for sigh, and groan for groan,
And wet our cheeks, with sorrows not our own.

The heart of man, for such a task is frail,
When most relied on, is most sure to fail;
Votaries of business, and of pleasure prove
Faithless sometimes in Friendship, as in love.

Retired from all the circles of the gay,
And all the crowds that bustle life away,
Let me enjoy, in some sequestered spot,
Friendship that's true, and there would be my lot.

Society, what is it? without thee,
A reckless mass! confused pomposity,
Thy guardian care, they have not yet explored,
Their future greatness are to be deplored.

Circled within thy balmy breast,
Receiving thy virtues, I would be at rest,
Experience proves thy nature being good,
Thy fountain issues, from the throne of God."

MISCELLANY.

The Pacific Railroad.

The greatest impediment to the construction of a railroad from the Mississippi, overland to the Pacific, has been considered to be in the nature of the country over which the road must be carried. From twelve to fifteen hundred miles, in the selection of any route north of Mexico, must be traversed over plains, mountains, and deserts, without timber, without population, without materials or supplies, and thought to be without anything to contribute to the support of the road, short of the Pacific. This has been justly considered the most formidable drawback to any enterprise of such magnitude that has ever presented itself in the history of the world—this timberless, mountainous, and desert region of from twelve to fifteen or seventeen hundred miles.

But a recent discovery near the foot hills of the Rocky Mountains, of a prime article of commerce and cash, opens a mine of capital on the way. It appears that there is no longer any doubt of the existence of inexhaustible supplies of cannel coal near the sources of the Nebraska or Platte river, which is the route of the overland emigrants to California, via the South Pass, the Salt Lake, and the Great Basin. The destitution of timber in the great plains, were there no substitute for fuel, would render them incapable of settlement even by cattle raisers; for there the snows are deep and the winters cold. The coal supplies the fuel—it also supplies an article of trade with the Mississippi river, and will thus contribute to colonize the plains, and to the sale of the public lands along the route to settlers, who will soon produce all the necessary provisions for the workmen.

It is known, also, that iron is found from the frontiers of Missouri to the Rocky Mountains; and with the coal on hand, the means are on the ground for the manufacture of the rails require. Of the wonderful capacities of the Mormon Valley of the Salt Lake, the reports from that quarter would be incredible if they were not all consistent. In a few years more, at this rate, they will be able to raise bread and cattle for the subsistence of 100,000 souls. Their valley is the half-way station on the great central route; and thus all fears on the score of provisions for the workmen are vanished.

With the road finished to the Salt Lake, another important commercial article comes into market—the article of salt. It exists in the heavy brine of the great lake to an inexhaustible capacity of supply; it exists in a crystaline formation at the bottom, and forms an incrustation of salt for a hundred miles along its shores. Rock salt exists in the sorrounding mountains, and copper and gold. But with the completion of a railroad, the New Jerusalem will become a great place of resort to the fashionable world, on account of its wonderful natural curiosties, the singular salubrity of its climate—the valley being 4,000 feet above the sea—and particularly on account of the number and variety of its medical springs.

Such are some of the intermediate advantages in favor of the construction of the Pacific railroad via the Platte, the South Pass, and the Salt Lake Valley. The completion of the work to the Sacramento will give the road the exchanges between Europe, America and Asia. What are a hundred millions to the consummation of such a work!—[N. Y. Herald.

Night.

Night is beautiful itself, but still more beautiful in associations. It is not linked, as day is with our cares and our toils—the business, and bitterness of life. The sunshine brings with it action; we rise in the morning, and our task is before us; and night comes, and with it rest. If we leave sleep, and ask not for dreamy forgetfulness, our waking is in solitude, and our employment is thought. Imagination has thrown her glories around the midnight—the orbs of heaven, the silence, the shadows are steeped in poetry. Even in the heart of a crowded city, where the moonlight falls but upon the pavement and roof, the heart would be softened, and mind elevated, amid the loveliness of night's deepest and stillest hours.—[Albany Freeholder.

Charades.

I am a word of ten letters. My 1, 7, 3, 10, is the plural of a certain animal.
My 2, 1, 3, 2, 6, 4, is the character of a man.
My 2, 7, 8, 10, is the name of a river in Egypt.
My 4, 2, 6, 10, 3, is a part of a house.
My 5, 8, 2, 1, 10, is the name of a creeping thing.
My 6, 7, 8, 10, is the character of a person.
My 7, 7, 3, 2, 3, 10, is the condition of a person.
My 8, 7, 3, 4, is a noun in Geometry.
My 9, 7, 10, is a deception.
My 10, 8, 2, 7, 3, is the liquid principle of oils and fats. My whole is a compound.

☞ Answer next number.

COUNTING HOUSE Almanac for 1850.

	Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednes.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
January.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31
February.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28
March.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
	31
April.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30
May.				1	2	3	4
	5	6	7	8	9	10	11
	12	13	14	15	16	17	18
	19	20	21	22	23	24	25
	26	27	28	29	30	31
June.							1
	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
	9	10	11	12	13	14	15
	16	17	18	19	20	21	22
	23	24	25	26	27	28	29
	30
July.		1	2	3	4	5	6
	7	8	9	10	11	12	13
	14	15	16	17	18	19	20
	21	22	23	24	25	26	27
	28	29	30	31
August.					1	2	3
	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
	11	12	13	14	15	16	17
	18	19	20	21	22	23	24
	25	26	27	28	29	30	31
Sept'mber.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30
October.			1	2	3	4	5
	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
	13	14	15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22	23	24	25	26
	27	28	29	30	31
November.						1	2
	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
	10	11	12	13	14	15	16
	17	18	19	20	21	22	23
	24	25	26	27	28	29	30
December.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
	8	9	10	11	12	13	14
	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
	22	23	24	25	26	27	28
	29	30	31

DEATHS IN NEW YORK.—The Sanatory Committee of the Board of Health of New York have just made a publication in relation to the Cholera as it prevailed there during the past season. It makes a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and embodies much valuable matter. Among other things, it is stated that the cholera first appeared on the 10th of May, in the rear basement of No. 20 Orange street. It originated there de novo—no connection, mediate or immediate, by persons or things, having been traced or known to exist between the disease prevailing there and and any similar disease in any other locality. In that place all the predisposing causes existed in the utmost intensity. But Dr. Buel, who makes this report, as physician of the Centre Street Hospital, unhesitatingly contends that the subsequent history of the disease did not exhibit any evidence of contagion. On this point, from a close and impartial observation of facts, he has no doubt. The duration of the disease, with the exception of isolated cases introduced into the city from emigrant vessels, was 143 days, viz: from the 10th of May to Oct. 1. The number of persons admitted into the five hospitals was 1901, viz: males, 985; females, 916. Deaths, 1021; cured, 880. Per centage of cure, 46.29; of deaths, 53.71.

The total number of deaths between the periods stated, from all causes, is set down at 15,219. Of this number, 5,017 were of cholera asphyxia; 901 of cholera infantum; 226 of cholera morbus; 615 diarrhœa; 949 dysentery; 344 of inflammation of the stomach and bowels; 34 from other diseases of stomach and bowels; 8,064 from bowel complaint.

Professor Ellet reports that after numerous and various experiments, he could discover no foreign matter in the atmosphere which could be regarded as the source of disease. He could find no substance present in the air capable of producing the chemical effects attributed to "ozone." And, moreover, the investigation convinced him that the experiments of those European chemists who have announced the production by artificial means, of such a new form of matter (as ozone) or such a modified or "allotropic" condition of those forms previously known to us, are unsatisfactory.

Dr. Wells states that of 275 patients received into the Thirteenth street hospital, 111 were habitual drunkards, 59 occasional drinkers, 70 temperate, while of 35 the habits were unknown.

He who reckons without his host, must reckon again.

"I'll tell you, ole feller, I'm a hoss—mane and tail;" bellowed a fellow—whose only symptom of claiming kindred with the noble beast he named, was his being pretty well corned—to a moustached cockney who was putting on hairs, in a public place. "I can't hexactly hagree that you har ha 'oss," said the individual who aspirated his nitches, "but hi may safely say you har ha great hass."

The houses in California are to come from all parts of the world, as well as the people. They are building houses in Bordeaux, France, to send to California, and some have already been shipped from Belgium.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

TAXES! TAXES!!

THE taxable inhabitants of Pottawatamie County are hereby notified that the indebtedness of the County for County purposes, and the pressing demands of the State Auditor for State purposes, requires immediate collection as the law directs. Therefore sincerly desiring the good feelings and best interests of the people. I do hope that all who have not paid their taxes will come forward promptly and pay them immediately, and thereby save themselves cost and trouble, and relieve one from the most unpleasant task of distraining property, which should be done immediately for the unpaid taxes of 1848, and cannot at farthierest, be put off longer than the first day of January next for 1849.

C. M. JOHNSON, Collector.

Kanesville, Oct. 28, 1849.—3t

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRSH ARRIVAL OF FALL AND WINTER GOODS AT DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S CHEAP STORE, ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Full and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortmeet of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH, (Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.) St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL, WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D., PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Bebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—1t

MEDICINES! MEDICINES!

Just Received at the EMPORIUM STORE, Kanesville, Iowa.

10	dozen	Syrup Sarsaparilla;
10	"	London Mustard;
70	"	Inks, assorted;
6	"	Nerve and Bone Liniment;
6	"	Tooth Wash, assorted;
25	"	Tooth Powders;
3	"	Worm Syrup;
75	"	Vermifuge, assorted;
150	"	Court Plaster;
150	"	Pill Boxes;
6	"	Cough mixtures;
150	"	Pills, assorted, of every kind;
6	"	Cough Candy;
12	"	Childrens Cordial;
12	"	Cologne, assorted;
3	"	Cayenne in Phials;
12	"	Blacking;
2	"	Seidlitz, also tooth paste; balsam;

shaving cream, hair tonic, embrocations; lavender water; Beatties Remedies: antimonial wine; Rowanes tonic mixture; Batemans drops; laudanum; paregoric; essence of life; British and Harlem oils; opodeldoc; bears oil; ox marrow; hair oils, all kinds; spirits nitre; hartshorn; syrup wild cherry and tar; Balsam of wild cherry; Cullins remedies; hair dye; headache snuff; ointments, all kinds; capsicum: venerial mixture; castor oil; sweet oil, turpentine; essences and drops of all kinds. Liberal deductions made to country dealers and Physicians.

☞ COME AND SEE.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 14th, 1849.

STOVE PIPE—Just rec'd, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STRAYED.

STRAYED away from the subscriber in July last, Two THREE YEAR OLD OXEN, on the bottom near Kanesville. Color—dark red and brindled; horns—long, wide set and slender. Supposed to be about Highland Grove or Keg Creek; any one giving information leading to the discovery of the said oxen, or bringing them home, will be rewarded by.

T. D. BROWN, At Brown & Millers' Store

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—3t

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY,

JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers."

Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens of various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Joiners Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.

Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

BOOKS—1000 volumes Times and Seasons, (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.

For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and Califonia emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch.

DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

UNION HOTEL.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.

Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again!

MR. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Hollowware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high,; in a word, we only want to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent," for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN, at Brown & Miller's store.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware, LATEST ARRIVAL OF FALL & WINTER GOODS.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON have just received a large and choice selection of Fall and Winter Goods, consisting of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident that we have the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

We return our thanks for the liberal patronage we have heretofore received, and hope by strict attention to the wants of the public to merit a continuance of their favors.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

SADDLE AND HARNESS MANUFACTORY IN KANESVILLE.

THE subscribers, beg leave to inform their friends and the public in general that they have commenced the above business in all its branches in the town of Kanesville, having engaged the services of good workmen, we hope to be able to give satisfaction to all who may favor us with a call. All orders for work attended to with dispatch, and all kinds of repairing done in a neat and substantial manner. All orders received, and a supply of all kinds of Sadlery and Harness constantly on hand at our store. NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1848.

STRAYED.

STRAYED from the subscriber on Indian Creek, one mile above Kanesville, in June last, TWO YEARLING STEERS; one is white with red ears, and some red spots about his neck—the other is spotted, red and white, both marked with a crop off the left ear and a slit in the right; whoever knows of their whereabouts will confer a favor by leaving information at Kanesville Mill or with the owner, and will be rewarded for their trouble.

GEORGE FOSTER.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—2t

BUILDING LOTS—I have several lots, which I will sell low, if application is made soon at this office. Also two beautiful lots suitable for stores. JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

APPLES AND PEACHES—A fresh supply just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CIGARS & TOBACCO—An assortment, just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARDINES—A good article can be found at nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Cost Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt; Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention.

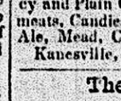
There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

The Barberous Notice.



THE subscriber having opened a shop in Kanesville, takes this method of informing the gentlemen of the town and vicinity, and the traveler, that they can be shaved at all reasonable hours. Hair cut and dressed at the following prices:

Twice a week, for shaving, only 50 cents per month. An addition of fifteen cents for hair cutting.

My monthly customers can have their hair dressed at all times for a party gratuitously.

Traveling customers, single shave, 10 cents. Hair cutting, fifteen cents. W. A. WESTON.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMOTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE. No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street. And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the mammoth boot, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money.

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY, St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,

Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.

Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled

J. W. COOLIDGE, S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 95 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the man opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store, hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GUARDIAN BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY, Attorney and Councillor at Law. Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 9, 1850. VOLUME I.----NUMBER 25.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PRESTON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES MCGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M BURNSIDE, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COUTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
DAVID WHITMER, Richmond, Mo.
BENJ. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
GEORGE PEACOCK, Weston, Mo.
WM. MARTINDALE, traveling agent, throughout the United States.

For the Guardian.

Letter from John Taylor — Incidents of Travel from Salt Lake, &c.

BR. ORSON HYDE: I take great pleasure in communicating to you for the Guardian some of the incidents of our travels, and the objects of our journey from the City of the Great Salt Lake to your beautiful little village on the frontier.

The company principally left the Valley on the 19th October, with the exception of the mail and a few who accompanied it, which left on the 22d. We arrived at Old Fort Kearney on the 7th day of December all in good health and spirits.

The following is a list of the names of the persons composing the company with their destination:

Of the Quorum of the Twelve on Missions.—John Taylor, to France; Lorenzo Snow, to Italy; Erastus Snow, to Denmark; F. D. Richards, to England.

Church Business.—Edward Hunter, E. D. Wooley, Joseph L. Heywood.

On Missions to England.—Jacob Gates, G. B. Wallace, Joseph W Young, Joseph Johnson, Job Smith, H. W. Church, John S. Higbee, Levi Stewart.

On Missions to France—Curtis E. Bolton, and John Pack.

On Mission to Italy—Joseph Toronto.

On Mission to Denmark—Peter Hanson.

On Mission to Sweden—John Forsgreen.

On Business—Robert Pierce, G. W. Hill, W. J. Steward, Dr. Ezekeil Lee, Shadrack Roundy, Russel Homer P. Sessions, A. O. Smoot, J. M. Grant, Charles Decker, Robt. Graham.

Col. John Reese, Merchant of New York; John H. Kinkade, Merchant of St. Louis. Antonio S. Duval, Mr. Kinkades driver. Benj. Homer, returning home.

We found our journey to be very toilsome and unpleasant at this inclement season of the year, and were it not for the missions of a public nature in which many of us were engaged, we should have felt great reluctance at leaving our comfortable homes and firesides, to combat the chilling winds and pittiless storms of the Rocky Mountains and the desert plains. Our journey, on the whole, considering the season, has been a pleasant one. We have scarcely encountered a storm on the way. The snows have fallen on our right and left, before and behind, but with the exception of a slight fall on the Sweet Water, and another on the day of our arrival at Fort Kearney we have escaped unharmed.

Nothing very remarkable occurred on our journey out, except what is common in an Indian country. Between the upper crossing of the Platte and Independence rock we met a company of four men; who were carrying a mail from Fort Laramie to Fort Hall.

They had been robbed the day before, (on the 6th Nov.) by a war party of Crow Indians. The following are the circumstances as they detailed them to us.

As they were traveling on the road, they were attacked by a band of thirty Crows, who took from them their blankets, some of their provisions, one mule, and a quantity of clothing belonging to a gold digger, who accompanied them. After the first shearing they encountered another band who sans ceremonie, subjected them to another fleecing. They did not disturb the mail, nor injure them personally; but according to their testimony, were on the contrary very loving to them: hugging them in their blankets, &c. The gentlemen after getting free from their tormentors made the best of their way, night and day, till they met with us; not wishing again to partake of their loving embraces. They were of course pleased under these circumstances to meet with us, and were full of fiery indignation against their red brethren for subjecting them to such an unceremonious tything. They stated that in their opinion there were about 300 Indians in all, and that they were a war party on a horse thieving excursion against the shyanns (spelt erroneously Cheyannes,) and Siouxs.

Upon the whole we felt a little amused rather than otherwise at the circumstances which they detailed to us. On looking at their equiptments we found that their red friends had not dealt very unmercifully with them—they had left them their guns, ammunition, saddles, bridles, seven horses, the principal part of their clothing, buffalo robes, and some provisions.

We supposed that it was merely a tax or toll they had put upon them as lords of the soil. Being always liberal themselves, and ready to divide, they naturally supposed that the white man ought to possess the same principles; and as they considered according to their notion of things, that they had a quantity of superfluous clothing, provisions, &c., they thought it but right that their more needy brethren should share of their abundance, and no doubt but they thought they had dealt very liberally with them. We thought differently, and consequently furnished them bedding and provisions.

The above occurrence made us more vigilant in guarding our horses, as we rather preferred to be tythed by our own bishops whom we had with us, than be subject to the ordeal of those who officiate without authority.

Two days journey on the other side of Laramie, while we were baiting our horses at noon, on the banks of the Platte we espied a large body of Indians, who came sweeping down a gentle sloping hill east of us. When they first appeared they were about three quarters of a mile from us, and as they were mounted upon excellent chargers, they came with the rapidity of an arrow. It gave us little time enough to gather our horses and prepare ourselves to meet our beligerent visitors. Capt. Roundy ordered the horses to be gathered and securely tied to the wagons. Gen. Grant acted with great promptness and decision on the occasion; immediately forming us into line, leaving two of our number to tie the horses up. The men showed great intrepidity, every man standing at his post undaunted. The efforts of the Indians were to either break our line or turn our flank; but being repulsed at all points, they were brought to a dead halt, about a rod and a half in front of us. During all this and for sometime after they were shaking out the priming from their fire-arms and priming them anew. Many placed their arrows to their bow strings—their lances in rest—and were wetting the ends of their arrows with their mouths that they might not slip too quick from the finger and thumb.

Their chiefs, whom we supposed kept intentionally behind came up after a while, and showed signs of peace: but as they understood neither French nor English, nor we their language, and neither party having interpreters, we could only conveyour ideas by signs. One of the chiefs presented a paper which had been given him by Major Sanderson, commanding at Fort Laramie, certifying that "this tribe was friendly to the whites," upon which, I told him to withdraw his men a little, which was done immediately. We presented them some crackers, dried meat, tobacco, &c., of which they partook, sat down and had a smoke, and thus everything concluded amicably. We then harnessed up our horses and pursued our journey. They very courteously filed to the right and left, and escorted us on our road till we came opposite their village. They were about two hundred in number and were of the tribe of Shyanns, (as they pronounce it.)

They presented the most respectable appearance of any Indians I have met with. Many of them were dressed in American style with clothes of the best broadcloth, beaver hats, caps, &c. And those who were dressed in Indian costume displayed the greatest elegance of taste in their attire. They were adorned with head dresses of feathers of the richest hues—and their various insignia's of office displayed a taste which is at once wild, romantic and beautiful. They were mounted on excellent horses—richly caparisoned in many instances, and painted off in the most fantastic style—they pawed the ground and champed their bits, and seemed as impatient of restraint as their riders. The whole affair was truly grand, and notwithstanding the peculiar situation in which we were placed, we could not but admire the magnificent display which the lords of the prairie presented, as they dashed with lightning speed upon us, arrayed in all the gaudiness and pride of Indian holiday attire. The scene was rich, and exceeded any theatrical representation we have ever witnessed. Messrs. Edward Hunter, Lorenzo Snow and myself, at the request of their chief, visited their encampment which was about three miles off the road—we found there a large number of lodges, and was informed by a Frenchman that they numbered six hundred warriors—they appeared to be wealthy, and I should think had about three thousand horses seen by us. We visited many of their lodges—they appeared very friendly, but a little chagrined at the occurrence of the morning.

The same evening the Crows made a break upon two of their outposts and stole twelve horses from one and nine from the other. One of the places where the Crows stole from was within a quarter of a mile of our encampment, and nothing saved us from a like fate but the strictness and faithfulness of our guard. These Crows stole a number of horses from a trader in our neighborhood the same night. Mr. Shadrac Roundy, our Captain, kept up a guard of four men at a time with scarce an exception all the way through.

On our arrival at Fort Laramie we obtained supplies for ourselves and horses. Those of our number who had passed this Fort the present summer were astonished at the great improvements which have been made here in a few months time. There was an air of quietness and contentment of neatness and taste, which in connection with the kind reception given by the polite and gentlemanly commander, Major Sanderson, made us feel as if we had found an oasis in the Desert. This same feeling of kindness and gentlemanly deportment seemed to pervade all ranks at the Fort.

The route from Laramie to New Kearney was performed without snow, until within 50 miles of the last named Fort and that snow had fallen before our arrival. Here we again obtained fresh supplies. The Major in command and the Quartermaster cheerfully accommodated us with such things as we needed. I mention these acts of kindness because of our peculiar situation. No one can appreciate fully such acts, unless, they, like us, shall have traversed these desert regions in this inclement season of the year.

On our arrival at Kanesville, we were very much pleased to strike hands again with our brethren and friends from whom we had been separated by the western wilds, and if we may judge from appearances these feelings were reciprocal. We were hailed upon our arrival with songs of rejoicing, firing of guns and other tokens of joy.

We feel to tender to them our warmest thanks for their kindness, hospitality and benevolence. We here meet a kindred spirit, and find that the presiding genius of this place drinks from the same fountain, breathes the same air and revels in the same intelligence as do the master spirits of the Great Salt Lake Valley.

Relative to the situation of affairs in the Valley, it is unnecessary for me to enter into details, as the "General Epistle" will be published, containing all the important items pertaining to this matter. Suffice it to say that the crops are sufficient to sustain the inhabitants. Wheat, barley, oats, rye, buckwheat, and the small grains, and peas, beans, turnips, potatoes, beets, and other vegetables grow as well there, as in the Eastern or Western States. The system of irrigation is something new to our farmers, and it will require experience to enable them to cope with the Californians or the inhabitants of the country of the Nile.

It is an excellent grazing country, the grass is very rich and nutritious, cattle an stock of all kinds will become as fat as the best "stall fed" in the east.

We have of course had many inconveniences to cope with, owing to the position we occupy, so far remote from supplies. The emigration the past summer brought many things with them which they found to be superfluous upon their arrival at the Valley, and were glad to give them in exchange for horses, oxen, &c.; besides, there were many small merchants who brought from two to ten thousand dollars worth of goods with them, who found it indispensably necessary to sell out in the Valley, owing to the loss of team and "pack" from thence to the mines. The Messrs. Pomeroy of Missouri, with about fifty thousand dollars worth were of the number who found it impracticable to proceed. And, here, Mr. Editor, allow me to correct a mistake which I perceive Mr. Babbitt has fallen into in a communication to your paper. Mr. Babbitt was in the Valley at the time when the before mentioned goods were being sold out, and supposed very naturally that there would be an abundant supply of goods for the inhabitants from those sources, and that Messrs Livingston & Kinkade, of St. Louis; Col. John Reese, of New York, and other merchants who were carrying goods laid in expressly for the Valley, would be likely to sustain a "heavy loss," which proved to be very different. Mr. Babbitt, perhaps was not aware that the goods which had arrived in the Valley during his short sojourn were intended expressly for the gold diggings and consisted mostly of men's ready made clothing. As. Mr. Babbitt was a batchelor when he was among us, and overhead and ears in politics he of course could know nothing of the wants of a household. Consequently when Messrs. Livingston and Kinkade, Col. Reese and others arrived with an assortment of goods adapted to the wants of the people; they found a very ready sale and large profits; so much so, that if you had been at Deseret you would have thought the ladies were bees and their stores the hives—though unlike in one respect, for the bee goes in full and comes out empty, but in this case it was reversed.

I am assured by Mr. Pack who rented a store to Messrs. Livingston & Kinkade that they took from two to three thousand dollars a day for several days after they commenced sale. Col. Reese, of New York, and others were partaking at the same time with them of the GOLDEN HARVEST. And as the yellow stream continues to flow from the Pacific coast to the Valley, the cry of the people is, goods! GOODS!! GOODS!!!

While on the subject of goods I may as well mention that we were accompanied here by Messrs. Roundy, Grant, Smoot, and others, who have associated for the purpose of forming a carrying company, to convey goods from this place to the Valley. They also intend establishing a Swiftsure Passenger line, to convey persons from this place to Suters Fort. The company were selected and organized by the Government of the State of Deseret; part of their number are in the Valley, part of them here, and part of them are going to the Pacific coast. And as their location and knowledge of the route affords them a facility of obtaining horses, mules, &c., to recruit with—and as they are men of energy, enterprise and respectability, they are more competent to carry out an enterprise of this kind and to establish a cheap, speedy and safe conveyance to and from the diggins than any company that could be organized on this side of the plains.

It is not at present necessary for us to say anything about the "Perpetual Fund" which is under the direction of Bishop Hunter, who came out with us; further than we would remind our brethren who have entered into a covenant along with us, in the Temple of the Lord to emulate our example and fulfil their covenants in helping to gather the poor to Zion. The plan adopted is the best and most satisfactory for those that give and those that receive blessings of any that has yet been designed. As the funds will principally if not entirely be laid out in cattle, which soon after their arrival at the Valley will command full as high a price as they do here. The cattle can be sold and the funds together with the additions both there and here, will furnish fresh outfits from year to year in an increased ratio according to the exigency of those requiring aid, and the liberality of the Saints, without being subject to so heavy a loss in cattle and breakage of wagons as we have heretofore sustained. And as Br. Hunter is a very careful and thorough business man, and is every way competent for the arduous task reposed in him.

It appears to be the general conceived opinion of the people in the States that there would be a large body of gold diggers who would have to winter in the Valley—this idea is incorrect—there are scarce any of them remaining, as the Southern route has been taken by those who arrived too late for the Northern one.

In relation to the various missions in which we are engaged, the peculiar position in which we are placed in the Valley—the little time we have had to settle our families, and the inconveniences we had to labor under, make these as great and important as any that have been entered upon since the commencement of this work. A few years ago a few of the Twelve accompanied by three or four elders visited England for the first time. The Church of Latter-day Saints was then unknown in that kingdom, now they number in that country as near as we can judge, about 50,000.

In the then infantile state of the Church a mission of that kind seemed Herculian; but the power of truth prevailed, superstition and darkness fled before the luminous beams of the Son of Righteousness. And where darkness once reigned, many thousands now rejoice in the fulness of the gospel of peace. That mission, however, was to a people whose language we were acquainted with, whose habits and customs were congenial with our own; whose commercial relations rendered them familiar; and whose blood still flowed in our veins. It was a visit to our father land, the home of our grandsires and friends. It was started from Kirtland, Ohio. But now we have left our friends and homes in the Valley of the distant west; we left on six days notice, wound up our business affairs, bid farewell to our wives and families, and started without purse or script in an inclement season of the year to cross a howling wilderness, having to cope with the mountain storms, the wintry blasts and the savage Indian; and then to wend our way through this vast continent in the winter season, and all this to carry the gospel to nations who know us not, with whose language we are unacquainted, and who are, at present wrapped about with the cloak of mystery and superstition, this is a task which nothing but the "thus saith the Lord" could cause man to encounter. The nations to which we are now destined, have recently been convulsed with revolutions; the thrones of which still sicken the whole system, and render life, person and property insecure. This is literally a "distress of nations with perplexity." Denmark, Sweden, Italy and France have been or are weltering under the sickening influences of this eastern tornado, which, while it sickens, has not power to throw from the body that disease which has been generating for ages, and what with—bigotry, superstition and political frenzy, the nations are mad. Yet to these nations we are sent to unfurl the banner of truth, and publish the glad tidings of salvation; and while the waves of tribulation roll high, and the national earthquake bellows destruction, to whisper to the honest in heart, "what, dost thou hear Elijah." We go therefore in the strength of Israel's God, our trust is in him, we lean upon his arm and all is well. The nations must hear the joyful sound. The power of truth must prevail; the Kingdom of God must be established and all nations flock to her standard. And as the truth has spread in England, Scotland, Wales and on the Islands of the seas, so shall it continue to spread from kingdom to kingdom, until all nations shall bask in the sunbeams of truth till salvation is sounded on every continent, proclaimed on every isle, echoed on every sea and whispered in every breeze; and the "kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of our God and of his Christ," even so, Amen.

Yours, in the E. C.,

JOHN TAYLOR.

God has written upon the flowers that sweeten the air—on the breeze that rocks the flowers on the stem—upon the rain-drop that refreshes the sprig of moss that lifts its head in the desert—upon the ocean that rocks every swimmer in its deep chamber—upon every pencilled shell that sleeps in the caverns of the deep, no less than upon the mighty sun that warms and cheers millions of creatures that live in its light—upon his works he hath written, "none of us liveth to himself." And probably, were we wise enough to understand these works, we should find there is nothing, from the cold stone in the earth, or the minutest creature that breathes—which may not, in some way or other, minister to the happiness of some living creature. We admire and praise the flower that best answers the end for which it was created, and the tree that bears fruit the most rich and abundant: the star that is most useful in the heavens we admire the most

And is it not reasonable that man, to whom the whole creation, from the flower up to the spangled heavens, all minister—man, who can act like God if he will: is it not reasonable that he should live for the noble end of living—not for himself, but for others? [N. O. Pic.

From the New York Tribune.

THE GREAT SALT LAKE.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY,
July 8, 1849.

Perhaps a few lines from a stranger in this strange land, and among a still more strange people, will be judged sufficiently interesting to find a place in your columns.

The company of gold diggers which I have the honor to command, arrived here on the 3d inst., and judge our feelings when, after some twelve hundred miles of trave through an uncultivated desert, and the last one hundred miles of the distance through and among lofty mountains and narrow and difficult ravines, we found ourselves suddenly and almost unexpectly in a comparative paradise.

We descended the last mountain by a passage excessively steep and abrupt, and continued our gradual descent through a narrow kanyon for five or six miles, when suddenly, emerging from the pass, an extensive and cultivated valley opened before us, at the same instant that we caught a glimpse of the distant bosom of the Great Salt Lake, which lay expanded before us to the westward, at the distance of some twenty miles.

Descending the table-land which bordered the valley, extensive herds of cattle, horses and sheep were grazing in every direction, reminding us of that home and civilization from which we had so widely departed—for as yet the fields and houses were in the distance. Passing over some miles of pasture land, we at length found ourselves in a broad, fenced street, extending westward in a straight line for several miles. Houses of wood or sun-dried brick were thickly clustered in the vale before us, some thousands in number, and occupying a spot about as large as the city of New York. They were mostly small, one story high, and perhaps not more than one occupying an acre of land. The whole space for miles, excepting the streets and houses, was in a high state of cultivation. Fields of yellow wheat stood waiting for the harvest, and Indian corn, potatoes, oats, flax and all kinds of garden vegetables, were growing in profusion, and seemed about in the same state of forwardness as in the same latitude in the States.

At the first sight of all these signs of cultivation in the wilderness, we were transported with wonder and pleasure. Some wept, some gave three cheers, some laughed, and some ran and fairly danced for joy—while all felt inexpressible happy to find themselves once more amid scenes which mark the progress of advancing civilization. We passed on amid scenes like these, expecting every moment to come to some commercial center, some business point in this Great Metropolis of the mountains; but we were disappointed. No hotel, sign post, cake and beer shop, barber-pole, market-house, grocery, provision, dry goods or hardware store distinguished one part of the town from another, not even a bakery or mechanic's sign was any where discernible.

Here, then, was something new: an entire people reduced to a level, and all living by their labor—all cultivating the earth, or following some branch of physical industry. At first I thought it was an experiment—an order of things established purposely to carry out the principle of "Socialism" or "Mormonism." In short, I thought it very much like Owenism personified. However, on inquiry I found that a combination of seemingly unavoidable circumstances had produced this singular state of affairs. There were no hotels because there had been no travel; no barbers' shops because every one choose to shave himself, and no one had time to shave his neighbor; no stores, because they had no goods to sell nor time to traffic; no center of business, because all were too busy to make a center.

There was an abundance of mechanic shops, of dress makers, milliners and tailors, etc., but they needed no sign, nor had they time to paint or erect one, for they were crowded with business. Besides their several trades, all must cultivate the land or die; for the country was new, and no cultivation but their own within a thousand miles. Every one had his lot, and built on it. Every one cultivated it, and perhaps a small farm in the distance.

And the strangest of all was that this great city, extending over several square miles, had been erected, and every house and fence made within nine or ten months of the time of our arrival—while at the same time good bridges were erected over the principal streams, and the country settlements extended nearly a hundred miles up and down the valley.

This territory, state, or as some term it, "Mormon Empire," may justly be considered as one of the greatest prodegies of the age, and, in comparison with its age the most gigantic of all republics in existence—being only in its second year since the first seed of cultivation was planted, or the first civilized habitation commenced. If these people were such thieves and robbers as their enemies represented them in the States, I must think they have greatly reformed in point of industry since coming to the mountains.

I this day attended worship with them in the open air. Some thousands of well dressed, intelligent looking people assembled, some on foot, some in carriages and on horseback. Many were neatly and even fashionably clad. The beauty and neatness of the ladies reminded me of some of our best congregations in New York. They had a choir of both sexes, who performed extremely well, accompanied by a band who played well on almost every instrument of modern invention. Peals of the most sweet, sacred and solemn music filled the air, after which a solemn prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Grant, of Philadelphia. Then followed various business advertisements, read by the Clerk. Among these I remember a call of the Seventeenth Ward, by its presiding Bishop, to some business meeting—a call for a meeting of the 32d Quorum of the Seventies, and a meeting of the officers of the 2d Cohort of the Military Legion, &c., &c.

After this came a lengthy discourse from Mr. Brigham Young, President of the society—partaking somewhat of politics, much of Religion and Philosophy, and a little on the subject of Gold,—showing the wealth, strength and glory of England growing out of her Coal Mines, Iron and Industry—and the weakness, corruption and degradation of Spanish America, Spain, etc., growing out of her idle habits.

Every one seemed interested and pleased with his remarks, and all appeared to be contented to stay at home and pursue a persevering industry, although mountains of Gold were near them. The able speaker painted in lively colors the ruin which would be brought upon the United States by Gold, and boldly predicted that they would be overthrown because they had killed the Prophets, and stoned and rejected those who were sent to call them to repentance, and finally plundered and driven the church of the saints from their midst, and burned and desolated their City and Temple. He said God had a reckoning with that people, and Gold would be the instrument of their overthrow. The Constitutions and laws were good, in fact, the best in the world, but the administrators were corrupt, and Laws and Constitutions were not carried out. Therefore they must fall. He further observed that the people here would petition to be organized into a territory under the same Government — notwithstanding its abuses — and that if granted they would stand by the Constitution and Laws of the United States; while at the same time he denounced their corruptions and abuses.

But, said the speaker, we ask no odds of them, whether they grant our petition or not! We never will ask odds of any nation who has driven us from our homes, if they grant us our rights, well—if not well; they can do no more than they have done. They and ourselves and all men are in the hands of the great God, who will govern all things for good, and all will be right and work together for good to them that serve God.

Such, in part, was the discourse which we listened to in the strongholds of the mountains. The Mormons are not dead, nor is their spirit broken. And, if I mistake not, there is a noble, daring, stern, and Democratic spirit swelling in their bosoms, which will people these mountains with a race of independent men, and influence the destiny of our country and the world for a hundred generations. In their Religion they seem charitable, devoted and sincere; in their politics, bold, daring, and determined; in their domestic circle, quiet, affectionate and happy; while in industry, skill and intelligence they have few equals, and no superiors on the earth.

I had many strange feelings while contemplating this new civilization growing up so sudddenly in the wilderness. I almost wished I could awake from my golden dream, and find it but a dream; while I pursued my domestic duties as quiet, as happy and contented as this strange people.

SUNDAY, P. M.

Since writing the foregoing, I have obtained a copy of one of the Mormon songs, which impressed me deeply this morning, being sung to a lively tune, accompanied by the band.

Lo the Gentile chain is broken!
Freedom's banner waves on high;
List ye nation: By this token,
Know that your redemption's nigh;

See on yonder distant mountain,
Zion's standard wide unfurled,
For above Missouri's fountain—
Lo, it waves for all the world.

Freedom, peace and full salvation,
Are the blessings guarranteed;
Liberty to every nation,
Every sect and every creed.

Come! ye Christain sects, and Pagan,
Pope, and Protestant and Priest;
Worshipers of God and Dagan—
Come ye to fair Freedom's Feast.

Come ye sons of doubt and wonder,
Indian, Moslem, Greek or Jew—
All your shackles burst assunder;
Freedom's banner waves for you.

Cease to butcher one another,
Join the Covenant of Peace;
Be to all a friend and brother—
This will bring the world's release.

Lo! our King the Great Messiah,
Prince of Peace shall come to reign;
Sound again, ye Heavenly Choir:
"Peace on earth, good will to men."

Please excuse these hasty and imperfect lines, written while seated on a trunk of goods with the paper spread on a parcel of clothing, and the wind blowing sufficiently to carry away the sheets before they are signed.

A STRANGER IN QUEST OF GOLD.

Evils of Newly acquired Freedom.

There is only one cure for the evils which newly acquired freedom produces—and that cure is freedom! When a prisoner leaves his cell, he cannot bear the light of day:—he is unable to discriminate colors, or recognize faces. But the remedy is not to remand him into his dungeon, but to accustom him to the rays of the sun. The blaze of truth and liberty may at first dazzle and bewilder nations which have become half blind in the house of bondage. But let them gaze on, and they will soon be able to bear it. In a few years men learn to reason. The extreme violence of opinions subsides. Hostile theories correct each other. The scattered elements of truth cease to conflict, and begin to coalesce. And at length a system of justice and order is educed out of chaos.—[Macaulay.

It is often easier to make a man believe that is sometimes right to do wrong, than to convince him that it is for his true interest always to do right.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOCCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1850.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail, will be at the risk of those who send it.

One Number More.

Our readers will bear in mind that the 26th No. of the Guardian closes the first year's subscription. We avail ourselves of this opportunity to tender our thanks to our friends and patrons, and to the public generally for the liberal support which they have given us, which makes us vain enough to think that a full estimate is placed upon our labors. We feel encouraged to continue our exertions, and hope, by unceasing diligence and untiring industry to merit a continuance of public favor.

We trust that our friends, during the merry holydays, will not forget arrearages, nor the propriety of paying six or twelve months in advance for the Guardian. This will enable us even to make our devil smile, and our foreman and junior to straighten out the wrinkles in their foreheads, and they will probably feel much younger and more spirited and determined. No people are more prosperous and happy than those who encourage the printer. Such a people can never be enslaved—can never be brought into bondage, spiritual or temporal—can never long be denied their constitutional rights,—they are respected at home and abroad,—they exhibit minds elevated and dignified,—they are social, intelligent and happy. They are not bound up in "iron jackets," but are frank, generous and free! Support the press, and the press, with a thousand tongues speaks for you, and will beat you out, in flying colors, over the ignorance and superstition that have ingeniously sought, for ages, to lead into captivity minds worthy of a different ruler.

Mr. Levi Stewart, is traveling agent for the Guardian in Illinois and other States.

The New Year.—1850.

Time rolls on and tarries not for any! Days, weeks, months and years steal silently past, leaving the grey hair, the furrowed cheek and the languid eye, as sentinels to mark his stealthy flight. Oh, cruel and unfeeling monarch! Thou rulest over hundreds of millions, and compellest them to bow to thee! Yet thou turnest a deaf ear to the cries and importunities of all thy subjects. Thou makest continued war on the human race, and millions of triumphant victories will not satisfy thy ambition for conquest over poor, frail and mortal existence! Time, thou old tyrant and oppressor! Thou hast had almost unbounded sway on earth for nearly six thousand years. But few, such as Enoch and Elijah, have escaped the galling yoke. The days of thy reign are fast coming to a close, when it shall be said by one whose voice thou wilt be compelled to obey, that "Time is no longer!" Then we will laugh at thy downfall and glory in the light of eternal day. Cheer up then, ye slaves and captives of Time! There is hope in Christ, a home for you in heaven!

Prepare for the Valley.

Every man who expects to go to the Valley in the Spring, should begin to prepare to make good the fences around his fields, and to put them in good condition; and so soon as the frost is out, start the plows, and put in all kinds of spring grain in abundance; and as we have a number of the best kind of blacksmiths, with plenty of coal, Iron and steel on hand, men that intend going to the Valley, should have their wagons ironed—irons for yokes all made, chains, and various other repairs made before the flood and rush of emigration comes on in the Spring, when you can hardly get work done for love or money. Dr. George Coulson, of Council Point, has erected a good blacksmith shop, and is prepared to execute any work in his line with dispatch. He is an old hand at the business; and in fact, we have none other in the county that we know of.

Begin to think about wagons—wagon beds—projections—bows and covers. Be in season, for we do not intend that any companies shall leave here for the Valley later than the 15th day of June—positively. The great snow storm that our last trains were caught in on the mountains last fall is a sufficient admonition to start our last trains one month earlier than the last ones started last year which was in the forepart of July. Be not forgetful! we do not intend to allow any to start later than the middle of June at the very latest.

Captured at last.

On Saturday the 29th ult., some gentlemen from Missouri, hired the old tavern stand at Traning Point, owned and recently occupied by James H. Mulholland. They were about arranging it as a kind of slaughter house for killing and dressing a drove of hogs, when on taking up some plank in the floor they discovered something rolled up in a blanket which they declared to be a "baby." On taking it out, one remarked that it was a very heavy baby, (weighing nearly one hundred pounds.) They took off its robes, when behold, and lo! it was the Pin Screw to a bogus press, as one of the witnesses testified, having assisted in taking a similar one in Indiana, some years since. Mulholland came in soon after the discovery was made, and looked under the floor much confused, and was told of the discovery and showed where the treasure had been put. Mulholland seized it and carried it off and hid it under a pile of manure in a stable. He was arrested and tried before Justice Browning, where many other facts and circumstances were brought to light; all of which went clearly to establish his guilt. No defence was set up. He was held to bail in the sum of two thousand dollars. The citizens of St. Francis have tendered to Mr. Mulholland and to his wife their passports with less etiquette than Gen. Taylor did to the French Minister. (They have left and gone somewhere, or keep their heads under water so that they are not seen. This is the safest course. They have made trouble and excitement enough in this country.

Case of Stout.

We hear that quite an excitement is got up about Linden, concerning Allen Stout not being given up to go back to Missouri, where it is alledged that he committed the crimes. Pause and consider, and ask yourselves, if any will be excited about it after they know the circumstances. There is not a man in Kanesville, nor in Pottawatamie county that would not be glad if Stout were gone back to Missouri, and so far as they are individually concerned, they would not care in what manner he went,—the Editor of the Guardian not excepted. But it will be remembered that Stout was lawfully arrested here and taken into custody by the officers of this county, and they regard their honor and their oath of office sufficiently sacred to require a legal process before they are willing to give him up. The crime of kidnapping they understand, and also of being accessary thereto; and they are not disposed to subject themselves to its penalty, particularly when that can all be avoided in a few weeks time by waiting for a requisition.

Concerning the guilt of Stout we have no doubt. We believe him guilty, and that he richly deserves all the law will inflict. We have been in Missouri and have learned something of his course and character. But since we have heard of the great excitement in Missouri about him, we feel less inclined to have him kidnapped than we did before.

It has been our constant aim and study to have all matters, so far as our own people are concerned, conducted honorably; and being situated on this frontier, and on the borders of another State, and but little law in our own county, we have used every moral influence in our power to have everything go right; and if any persons in Missouri thinks that Stout is retained here by our influence, they do us that injustice which we hope never to do them under like circumstances.

We would say to the officer in charge of Stout, let him not be stout or cunning enough to escape.

Not a little Amusing.

We know of some men who seem to think that that "d——d old Hyde," has too much influence and power; and that he carries too high a hand. Now you should not envy the old fellow, for he has labored hard to earn all the influence he has; and what makes it still better is, he never stole spunged or borrowed a particle of influence from you, so you have suffered no loss.

That spirit is not destined to become very exalted before God or man, that is honey and molasses to your face, and gall and vinegar behind your back. A steady straight forward course, a frank, open and generous soul is destined to pluck the wreath and entwine it around his exalted and honored head. The sun is ever the same, though a momentary cloud obscure its rays, and its genial influence is hailed with joy by every kindred, tribe and tongue on the face of the whole earth. Be like unto this heavenly orb, undeviating and shedding a joyful influence in all your course.

Work Oxen.

The demand for work steers on this frontier must be great this coming Spring. Last year's emigration almost drained the country of cattle, and it is thought by men who are considered good judges, that prime work cattle will be worth eighty dollars a yoke. It might be a grand speculation for cows and steers to be driven from the Mississippi river through to this point. Here is the great cattle, horse and mule market. Bring them on in season. Emigrants will do well to buy their oxen and cows before they get here.

Query.

Will some clergyman more talented and discerning than the Mormons, read the second chapter of St. John's Gospel, and tell us who was married at Cana, of Galilee, where the water was turned into wine? We wait an answer.

Goods for the Valley.

The people in the Salt Lake Valley, are but scantily provided with goods, wares and merchandize. Notwithstanding the heavy stocks that were taken there last year. They have gold there to purchase with, and hundreds of men in the mines, digging for more. Goods, groceries, farming utensils, glass, nails, paints, oils, machinery, mill irons, bolting cloths, and about twenty thousand good young cows,—forty thousand sheep are needed there. Chickens, pigs, cats and dogs plenty in that place already. They want turkeys and geese there still. We hope to see trains of goods and emigrants weekly starting from this point to the Valley every week, from the 1st day of May, till the 15th day of June. Goods! Goods!! GOODS!!! is the cry there; and Gold! Gold!! Gold!!! is the response.

President's Message.

The President's Message necessarily excludes much other important matter this week. Mr. Cobb is elected Speaker of the House we learn, by the consent of all parties that a plurality vote should determine the election.

The parties in Congress are so equally divided, that little can be done during this session if we may judge from appearances. The President's Message speaks for itself. It is characteristic of the man, and is American to the back bone. Just what it should be.

If those boys, who are planning to steal chickens for their party, will come to us for chickens, we will buy all they want, and make them a present of them. Don't steal them, for if you do, you will have to eat gizzard and contents too, which will be bitter in your mouth and in your belly.

Answer to the Charade in our last—KANESVILLE.

Look Here.

We call the attention of our readers, to an article in the colums of this paper, from the Great Salt Valley, Carrying and Transporting company. We consider the arrangements entered into by this company to be of the utmost imporance to all who intend emigrating the coming season by the overland route to the gold mines of California.

Our friends and correspondents in Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and in Northren Illinois, can address us at Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, while those who reside farther South may address us at Saint Joseph, Upper Missouri. There seems to be some temporary arrangments for the transmission of the Desmoine mail. It has just been brought in by private hands.

For the Guardian.

The Great Salt Lake Valley Carrying Company.

MR. EDITOR: Messrs. Shadrack Roundy, Jedediah M. Grant, John S. Fulmer, Abraham O. Smoot, G. D. Grant, Russell Homer, wish through the columns of your highly esteemed paper to inform the public generally, and more especially those who are desirous of going to, or sending goods or packages to the Great Basin or to the Valley of the Sacramento—that they are and will be prepared to accommodate passengers who may be disposed to visit the gold region the ensuing season, or merchants who wish to send merchandise to the Great Salt Lake City. Our passenger and freight trains will both leave as early in the spring as there will be sufficient grass on the plains to sustain animals. Light wagons will be used and so arranged as to accommodate three passengers each and the driver, including one hundred and fifty pounds of baggage to a person; this comprises all their eatables, clothing, bedding, fire-arms, &c. The Company assures passengers they can re-supply in the Valley, with every thing needful, groceries excepted. The point chosen to start from is on the Missouri river, eighteen miles from Kanesville, two miles below the mouth of Platte, thirty miles above Old Fort Kearney, and one hundred and thirty above St. Joseph. All our trains whether for passengers or merchandize will start from the above named point, traveling on the south side of the Platte under the direction of one or more of the proprietors to each organized company. This Association is intended to be permanent and sure from year to year until the Great National Railroad shall supercede its necessity. The Company possess facilities that few at present avail themselves of, owing to their peculiar situation or location, living as most of them do, in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, they can (by active exertion,) obtain fresh supplies of animals to aid in the enterprize they trust, to the full and entire satisfaction of all concerned. Two or more of the firm will remain in the valley to see that suitable horses or mules are on hand to aid the line when it shall require their assistance from the Valley to Suter's Fort. Emigrants last year from inexperience and other causes, sacrificed hundreds and even thousands of dollars, and most generally broke down their teams before or by the time they arrived in the Valley; nevertheless many of them seemed to feel amply paid for all losses in the improved state of their health. The mountain air, and pure cold water, with change of diet and scenery had fully fitted them for digging gold from the mines of California. The above are some of the advantages of the route over the plains and mountains to the great load stone which is virtually attracting the nations of the earth.

Gentlemen who wish to favor this line, and feel disposed to obtain a through ticket to Sutter's Fort, (in the vicinity of the gold,) can obtain one, by paying to us or our Agents the sum of three hundred dollars. Two hundred in advance, and one hundred on arriving in the Great Salt Lake City. Those who cast in their lot with us, may expect the proprietors to use every exertion to render them as comfortable as the nature of the journey will admit of. Yet we do not wish any one to think that it is a play spell to cross the mountains neither do we desire to hold out any inducements but those which are substantially true, as we are desirous of proving ourselves worthy of the confidence, reposed in us by the highest authorities of the State of Deseret, under whose direction we organized, and from whom, (in connection with all our friends,) we look for strength influence and support to aid us in our arduous undertaking. That all interested may understand, we will further add: that each wagon designed for the "Swiftsure Line," will be drawn by four horses or mules, with a sufficient number of loose animals as a reserve in case of accident or failure. Wagons with merchandise will be drawn by oxen, purchased expressly for this line and business. Merchants sending goods by this line, will please consign them to "S. Roundy & Co., Deseret and Iowa Depot."

Price for hauling goods to Great Salt Lake City, twelve dollars and fifty cents per one hundred pounds, or two hundred and fifty dollars per ton—two-thirds of said price to be paid in advance. All communications addressed to S. Roundy & Co., Kanesville, Iowa, and to J. M. Grant, St. Louis, Mo., will receive prompt attention, and all desired information given promptly and immediately. Those wishing a through ticket will do well to secure it by the first of April, as the company wish to make up their trains as early as possible in the spring. In hopes of success in business.

We are respectfully, &c.,
SHADRAC ROUNDY,
J. M. GRANT,
J. S. FULMER,
G. D. GRANT,
RUSSELL HOMER,

Kanesville, Dec. 24th, 1849.

We copy the following from the Mo. Statesman because it is so short, and so sweet:

The Fayette Democrat calls the new Mormon State in the Salt Lake Valley the State of Desert. Fie, man! It is Deseret. The Locofocos of Missouri (not the Mormons) are in a desert state—a wilderness of trouble with no "pillar of fire" to guide them. Very soon they will be completely swallowed up in the Red Sea of faction. The Whigs will pass over dry shod to rule the country in righteousness.

The trial of the case of the State of Missouri, against N. Childs, Jr., on a charge of embezzling part of the funds of the State Bank, terminated just as we expected on Saturday the 8th ult. The jury returned a verdict—not guilty. This trial lasted for five weeks, and after all ended in smoke. What next?

Mrs. Miller, the depraved woman, who sought, by exhibiting the semblance of suicidal preparations at Niagara Falls, to conceal the degradation and disgrace involved in the abandonment of her husband and childre to become the paramour of the villain Blackmer, was arrested, says the Rochester American, of Saturday week, at Syracuse.

For the Frontier Guardian.

MR. EDITOR: On Tuesday (New Year's) evening, I attended a social party at Mr. John Sherrett's, where I met a few choice friends, and truly it was a feast. The richness of the plate, the beauty of the servers, the variety, quantity and excellence of the different dishes was magnificent. And the wine, made by the hands of our hosts, (the fruit from which it was pressed having been collected from one of our native vineyards,) was superior to anything that I have tasted on the frontier.

After all had partaken of the excellent supper, the cloth was removed, and a prayer offered by President H. Redfield, our fine band then struck up one of their favorite airs, and young men and maidens, silver greys and little ones went forth in the dance. After enjoying that amusement for a time, it was proposed that we have a song. Several of the ladies united in singing one or two sentimental and sacred songs, and concluded by singing, in full chorus, the favorite glee song, "Come my boys, let's all be merry."

After which, our worthy President, Orson Hyde, Esq., led off in the popular dance "Money Musk." When all had danced to their satisfaction, and being near midnight, a prayer and benediction was offered by O. Hyde, when we all got into our carriages, and Jehu like, rattled over our fine frost paved roads into Kanesville. A happy new year to our worthy friend Br. Sherrett and fair partner. May they live to enjoy many.

A. GUEST.

Kanesville, Jan. 2d, 1850.

Being present at the above we cannot well pass unnoticed the social party given in the Music Hall on Thursday evening 3d inst., by Mr. John Needham, to his friends and acquaintances. Union, freedom, and the best of feeling prevailed, while at intervals, melodious notes of sentimental and sacred songs from the ladies, fell upon our ears with a pleasing charm, in connection a favorite song from the talented Musician, Mr. Hutchison, with an abundance of cake and delicious wine, which rendered the evening very agreeable and plensant.

It is our sincere desire that persons who are making covenants to their hurt, may never be able to go to the Valley, but in an opposite direction. They are not wanted there,—they are not wanted here. The Lord will not have them—the devil will be ashamed of them, and if he gets them, he will put them in the meanest place in his domtaions.

Tallow.—Cash will be paid for tallow at this office.

Thanks to Mr. McLennan for the President's Message in advance of the mail.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE EUROPA.

One Week Later from Europe.

BOSTON, Sunday Morning.

The Europa arrived at Halifax on Friday morning; the news she brings, is in a political point of view, of little importance.

France.

On the 15th November, the high court of Versailles sentenced Ledru Rollin and thirty three others implicated in the June insurrection to transportation for life. The papers continue being seized and the editors tried for expressing opinions considered detrimental to the Government. Twenty seats in the Assembly have been made vacant by the convictions at Versailles. Louis Napoleon has published a decree cashiering Pierre Bonaparte, thus depriving him of his rank of Cheif de Batallion of the African Legion for an alledged breach of discipline. Pierre Bonaparte published a long letter in which he says that the President's decree has no force in law, and looks upon his dismissal as null and void, Guizot is in Paris much lionized. The only interesting item in the assembly, is the refusal or grant an additional salary to the President of 20,000 francs. Challenges are of daily occurence and particularly among the members of the Assembly and editors. Garibaldi had arrived at Gibralter on board a Sardinian vessel, which had been placed at his disposal by the Sardinian Government. Ten thousand francs were also ordered to be given him, which he refused.

The President of the Council had given a grand dinner to the American Minister.

Spain.

The minister of Foreign Relations has officially announced the recall of the Spanish troops from the Roman States.

Turkey.

Letters from Widdin, of the 4th November, state that the Hungarian and Polish refugees had been transported from Widdin to Shumla. The Magyars, headed by Kossuth and Balogh, left on the 3d. M. Demidoff, the alledged assassin of Count Lamberg, was at Constantinople. His mission was supposed to be secretly to sow discontent between the French and English ambassadors, and upset the Pacha's cabinet. The rumors of war between Russia and Turkey are fast dying away at Constantinople. Nothing further has been heard relative to Russian Emperor's decision on Turkish affairs.

Important from Canada.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24—P. M.

The French papers state that Lord Elgin has written an autograph to the Catholic Bishops, promising to give up the Jesuit estates to that church, providing they will stifle the annexation movement now in progress. The thing seems almost incredible to us, but it is, nevertheless, believed by well informed persons.

Riot and Loss of Life in Bermuda.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 23d.

By an arrival from Bermuda, we have accounts of a serious riot which broke out at Hamilton, in consequence of the legislative council having introduced a clause into an ordinance, by which debtors are subjected to the same prison discipline as criminals. Some lives are said to have been lost in the melee.

Qualifications of a good Housewife.

One indispensable qualification of a good housewife is, a practical knowledge of cookery. It makes the husband so good natured when his meals are nicely prepared by the hand of an affectionate wife. He does not feel that his earnings are thrown away in a burnt, sour, salt, tasteless, half-cooked dish. We would never advise a young lady to marry a connosseur of the school of Epicurus, unless she is thoroughly skilled in the fine art of manufacturing a corn-dodger in the latest and most approved style, and other things in like manner. But this cannot be expected of the dear woman unless she is furnished with the necessary materials.

How gratifying it is to the husband when the wife is mindful of all his little wants, and anticipates his wishes,—when she puts every thing in its place and recollects where that place is, and can find it at any time, though at midnight. How pleasing to the husband when he can see that his earnings, when brought into his house, are prudently and wisely appropriated, and made to count to the best possible advantage:—Nothing wasted or thrown away;—nothing permitted to be come stale or useless, through neglect or forgetfulness. She looks forward, and sees what she or the family may need, and employs her, otherwise, leisure moments in making things ready against the time they are needed, so that she is not thrown into confusion at all, for want of proper calculation and arrangment.

Few things are more gratifying to the husband than when he goes into his house and asks for any article, and the wife is able to get it for him, or tell him right where it is. She should be a kind of every-where-present creature in all parts of her kingdom, or her domestic circle.

These may be considered small matters and not worthy of much attention; but it will be remembered that life is made up of small matters, as the bold and swelling current is made up of small springs and streams. A small helm can direct the course of a great ship; so these small matters may materially influence the course of the husband, and keep him so far to windward that he will never wreck on the shoals of despair, or become water-logged in the cross currents of life.

MARRIED,

Near this town, on Thursday, the 26th ult., by our Senior, Mr. WILLIS K. JOHNSON, son of Bishop Aaron Johnson, to Miss LAURA CRANDAL, both of this county and precinct.

The cake and wine were excellent, both of home manufacture. Our devil says that if all newly married folks were as mindful of the printer as this graceful couple, their consciences would never be smitten with the unpleasant appearance of his dark visage in their night visions.

In this town, Jan. 2d, by Abel Lamb, Mr. HORACE MARBLE, to Miss MARTHA ANN DAVENPORT, both of Poney Creek.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

KANESVILLE ASSEMBLIES.

THE Managers of the Kanesville Assemblies would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville that they will give four Dancing Parties, the first to commence on Tuesday evening, January 15, 1850, to continue every Tuesday evening for four weeks. Season tickets $1 75. Single tickets 50 cents. Tickets can be had at the Guardian Office, or at Mr. Needham's Store.

Tickets limited. Good music in attendance.

HARLOW REDFIELD,
JOHN NEEDHAM,
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,
RICHARD BENTLY. } Managers.

Kanesville, Jan. 9, 1850.

RAISINS! RAISINS!!

JUST received a large lot of Fresh Raisins "new crop," for sale by

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

KANESVILLE, Jan 9, 1850.

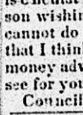
GREAT BARGAIN.

THE subscriber offers for sale his improvement, situated at the landing at Council Point, said farm has been under cultivation for about fourteen years, containing eighty acres of well improved land, has about thirty-five acres of wheat growing, most of it was sown in August, also four dwelling houses; one good barn, corn cribs, root house, &c., and all out houses that is calculated to make a farmer comfortable. Any person wishing to purchase, so as to double his money cannot do better than call; for the price will be so that I think the grain on the ground will refund the money advanced and have the farm clear. Call and see for yourselves.

CHARLES BIRD.

Council Point, Jan. 9, 1850.

ESTRAY NOTICE.



TAKEN up by Andrew J. Stewart at the Old Agency in Pottawatamie county, nearly opposite the mouth of the Platte river, a STEER, described as follows, viz: Said steer is white in the face, with red around the eyes and cheeks, and his body red and white spotted There is the appearance of a brand on the left hip, and he is about four years old; prized at sixteen dollars.

T. BURDICK,
Clerk, Board of County Com.

Kanesville, Jan. 2, 1850.—3t*

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

GRAND EXHIBITION
AT THE
NEW STORE
OF
J. A. KELTING & CO.

Performances every day in the week—Sundays excepted.

Admittance Free—Children half price.

The subscribers are now receiving and exhibiting to an "admiring public" the best assortment of

GOODS

Ever offered to the citizens of the independent State of Iowa. Among which may be found: Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Satinetts, Jeans, Bleached and Brown Muslins, Ginghams, Cashmeres, Prints, Alpacas, Linens, Cambrics, Laces, Edgings, Ribbons, &c., &c.

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes,

READY MADE CLOTHING of every description—from a three dollar suit up to the "Heigth of Extravagance," suited to the taste of the most fastidious old bachelor that ever cast sheeps eyes on the fair of the Land.

Also a splendid assortment of

Fancy Goods, Hardware and Cutlery.

Salt Lake and California Emigrants,

Supplied with every article wanted on the journey, at as cheap rates as at any place west of New York.

In short they intend their establishment shall not be behind the first houses in the country in point of variety and cheapness. All in want of Goods are invited to call and examine for themselves, as nothing will be charged for showing goods at the

ENSIGN OF THE WEST,

Kanesville, (Council Bluffs,) Iowa, Jan. 1, 1850.

TAXES! TAXES!!

THE taxable inhabitants of Pottawatamie County are hereby notified that the indebtedness of the County for County purposes, and the pressing demands of the State Auditor for State purposes, requires immediate collection as the law directs. Therefore sincerely desiring the good feelings and best interests of the people. I do hope that all who have not paid their taxes will come forward promptly and pay them immediately, and thereby save themselves cost and trouble, and relieve one from the most unpleasant task of distraining property, which should be done immediately for the unpaid taxes of 1848, and cannot at fartherest, be put off longer than the first day of January next for 1849.

C. M. JOHNSON, Collector.

Kanesville, Oct. 22, 1849.—3t

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m*

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again

MR. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Holloware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high,; in a word, we only want to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent," for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN,
at Brown & Millers store.

Kanesville, Oct. 11, 1849.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware,

LATEST ARRIVAL

OF

FALL & WINTER GOODS.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON have just received a large and choice selection of Fall and Winter Goods, consisting of DRY GOODS, GROCERIES, HARDWARE, BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, CUTLERY, HOSIERY, HABERDASHERY, &c., &c., fresh from St. Louis and the Eastern markets.

We invite our friends and the public generally to call and examine our large and well assorted stock, feeling confident that we have the largest and cheapest lot of goods ever brought to this market.

We return our thanks for the liberal patronage we have heretofore received, and hope by strict attention to the wants of the public to merit a continuance of their favors.

Kanesville, Oct. 11, 1849.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRESH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)

St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

TAKEN up by Andrew Burnam, living near Kanesville, on the road leading from Kanesville to Council Point, TWO STRAY COWS, described as follows, viz: one of them is red, white faced, line back, white under the belly, ears supposed to have been cropped or frozen, judged, five years old, about common size, prized at nine dollars and fifty cents. The other is a small red Cow, white face and belly, end of her tail white and three white feet, a red spot under her right eye, two white spots on her back, ears supposed to have been cropped or frozen; judged, four years old, last spring, prized at nine dollars.

T. BURDICK,
Clerk, Board of Co. Com.

Kanesville, Nov. 29, 1848.—d12 3t*

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1850.

From the Keokuk Register, Dec. 27.

By Electric Telegraph to St. Louis.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Fellow Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Sixty years have elapsed since the establishment of this Government, and the Congress of the United States again assembles to legislate for an Empire of Freemen. The Predictions of evil prophets who formerly pretended to foretell the downfall of our institutions are now remembered only to be derided. And the United States of America at this moment present to the world the most able and permanent Government on earth. Such is the result of the labors of those who have gone before us. Upon Congress will eminently depend the future maintenance of our system of Free Government, and the transmission of it unimpaired to posterity. We are at peace with all the world and seem to maintain our cherished relations of amity with the rest of mankind. During the past year we have been blessed by a kind Providence with abundance of the fruits of the earth, and, although the destroying Angel for a time visited extensive portions of our territory with the ravages of a dreadful pestilence, yet the Almighty has at length deigned to stay his hand and to restore the inestimable blessings of general health to our people who have acknowledged his power, deprecated his wrath and implored his merciful approbation. While enjoying the benefits of amicable intercourse with foreign nations, we have not been insensible to the distractions and wars which have prevailed in other quarters of the world. It is the proper theme of thanksgiving to Him who rules the destroyers of nations, that we have been able to maintain amidst all these contests an independent neutral position towards all belligerent powers. Our relations with Great Britain are of the most friendly character. In consequence of the recent alteration of the British navigation acts. British vessels from Britain, and other Foreign ports, will under existing laws after the first of Jan. be admitted to entry in our ports with cargoes of the growth, manufacture, or production of any part of the world, on the same terms as to duties in port and charges as vessels of the United States with their cargoes; and our vessels will be admitted to the same advantages in British ports, entering therein on the same terms as British vessels, should no order in Council disturb this legislative arrangement, the late act of the British Parliament by which Great Britain is brought within the terms proposed by the act of Congress of the 1st of March, 1817, it is hoped will be productive of benefit to both.

A slight interruption of Diplomatic intercourse which occurred between this Government and France. I am happy to say has been terminated, and our Minister there has been received; it is therefore unnecessary to refer to the circumstances which led to that interruption. I need not express to you the sincere satisfaction with which we shall welcome the arrival of another Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from our sister Republic to which we have so long been, and shall remain bound by the strongest ties of amnity.

Shortly after I had entered upon the discharge of the Executive duties, I was appraised that a war Steamer belonging to the German Empire, was being fitted out in the harbor of New York, with the aid of some of our Naval Officers, rendered under the permission of the late Secretary of the Treasury. This permission was granted during an armistice between the Empire and the Kingdom of Denmark, who had been engaged in the Schleswig Holstein War. Apprehensive that an intervention on our part, might be construed as a violation of our neutral obligations incurred by the treaty with Denmark and of the provisions of the act of Congress of the 20th of April, 1818, I directed that no further aid should be rendered by any agent or officer of the navy, and I instructed the Secretary of State to apprize the minister of the Empire of my determination to execute the law of the United States, and maintain the faith of treaties with all nations. The correspondence which ensued between the Department of State and Minister of the German Empire is herewith laid before you, with the section of the law and the treaty, the observance of which were deemed by me to be due to the honor of the country as well as to the sacred obligations of the Constitution. I shall not fail to pursue the same course, should a similar case arise with any other nation. Having avowed the opinion on taking the oaths of office, that in disputes between conflicting foreign Governments; it is our interest, not less than our duty to remain strictly neutral, I shall not abandon it. You will perceive from the correspondence submitted to you in connection with the subject that the course adopted in the case has been properly regarded by the beligerent powers interested in the matter.

Although the Minister of the United States to the German Empire was appointed by my predecessor in August, 1848, and has for a long time been in attendance at Frankfort on the Maine, and although a Minister appointed to represent that Empire was received and accredited here, yet no such Government as that of the German Empire has been definitely constituted. Mr. Donaldson, our Representative at Frankfort, remained there several months in the expectation that a union of the German States under one Constitution or form of Government might at length be organized.

It is believed by those well acquainted with the existing relations between Prussia and the States of Germany, that no such union can be permanently established without her co-operation. In the event of the formation of such a Union, and the organization of a central power in Germany, of which she should form a part, it would become necessary to withdraw our Minister at Berlin. But while Prussia exists an independent Kingdom, and diplomatic relations are maintained with her, there can be no necessity for the continuance of the Mission to Frankfort. I have therefore recalled Mr. Donaldson, and directed the Archives of the Legation at Frankfort to be transferred to the American Legation at Berlin.

Having been apprised that a considerable number of adventurers were engaged in fitting out a military expedition within the United States against a foreign country, and believing, from the best information that I could obtain, that it was destined to invade the Island of Cuba, I deemed it due to the friendly relations existing between the United States and Spain; to the treaty between the two nations; to the laws of the United States, and, above all, to the American honor, to exert the authority of this Government in suppressing this expedition, and preventing the invasion. To this end I issued a proclamation; enjoining it upon the officers of the United States, civil and military, to use all lawful means within their power. A copy of the proclamation is herewith submitted. The expedition has been suppressed. So long as the act of Congress of the 20th of April, 1818, which owes its existence to the law of nations, and to the policy of Washington himself, shall remain on our statute book, I hold it to be the duty of the Executive faithfully to obey its injunctions.

While the expedition was in progress, I was informed that a foreigner, who claimed our protection, had been clandestinely, and as was supposed, forcibly carried off in a vessel from New Orleans to the Island of Cuba. I immediately caused such steps to be taken as I thought necessary, in case the information I had received should prove correct, to vindicate the honor of the country, and the rights of every person seeking an asylum on our soil, the protection of our laws. The person alledged to have been abducted, was promptly restored, and the circumstances of the case are now about to undergo an investigation before a judicial tribunal. I would respectfully suggest, that although the crime charged to have been committed in this case, is held odious, as being in conflict with our opinions on the subject of national sovereignty and personal freedom, there is no prohibition of it, or punishment for it, provided in any act of Congress. The expediency of supplying this defect in our criminal code is therefore recommended to your consideration.

I have purposely avoided all interference in the wars and contentions which have recently distracted Europe. During the late conflict between Austria and Hungary, there seemed to be a prospect that the latter might become an independent nation. However faint that prospect at the time appeared, I thought it my duty, in accordance with the general sentiment of the American people, who deeply sympathized with the Magyar patriots, to stand prepared upon the contingency of the establishment by her of a permanent government, to be the first to welcome Independent Hungary into the family of nations. For this purpose I invested our agent, then in Europe, with power to declare our willingness promptly to recognize her independence, in the event of her ability to sustain it. The powerful intervention of Russia in the contest extinguished the hopes of the struggling Magyars. The United States did not at any time interfere in the contest, but the feelings of the nation were strongly enlisted in the cause, by the sufferings of a brave people, who had made a gallant though unsuccessful effort to be free.

Our claims upon Portugal have been, during the past year prosecuted with renewed vigor, and it has been my object to employ every effort of honorable diplomacy to procure their adjustment. Our late Charge D'Affairs at Lisbon, the Hon. Geo. W. Hopkins, made able and energetic but unsuccessful efforts to settle these unpleasant matters of controversy, and to obtain indemnity for the wrongs which were the subjects of complaint. Our present Charge D'Affairs at that Court, will also bring to the prosecution of these claims, ability and zeal. The revolutionary and distracted condition of Portugal in past times, has been represented as one of the leading causes of her delay in indemnifying our suffering citizens, but I must say it is a matter of profound regret that these claims have not yet been settled. The omission of portugal to do justice to the American claimants has now assumed a character so grave and serious that I shall shortly make it the subject of a special message to Congress with a view to such ultimate action as its wisdom and patriotism may suggest.

With Russia, Austria, Prussia, Sweeden, Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands and the Italian States, we still retain our accustomed amicable relations.

During the recent Revolution in the Papal States our Charge d'Affairs at Rome has been unable to present his letter of credence, which indeed he was directed by my predecessor to withhold until he should receive further orders. Such was the unsettled condition of things in those States, that it was not deemed expedient to give him any instruction on the subject of presenting his credential letter, different from those with which he had been furnished by the Administration, until the 25th of June last, when, in consequence of the want of accurate information of the exact state of things at that distance from us, he was instructed to exercise his own discretion in presenting himself to the then existing Government; if in his judgment it was sufficiently stable, or if not to await further events. Since that period Rome has undergone another revolution, and he while the establishment of a Government sufficiently permanent to justify him in opening diplomatic intercourse with it.

With the Republic of Mexico it is our true policy to cultivate the most friendly relations. Since the ratification of the treaty of Guadaloupe Hidalgo, nothing has occurred of a serious character to disturb them. A faithful observance of the treaty and a sincere respect for her rights cannot fail to secure the lasting confidence and friendship of that Republic. The message of my predecessor to the House of Representatives of the 8th of February last, communicated in compliance with a resolution of that body, a copy of a paper called the protocol, signed at Quartero on the 30th May, 1848, by the Commissioner of the United States, and the Minister of foreign affairs of the Mexican Government, having been a subject of correspondence between Department of State, and the Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of that Republic accredited to this government; a transcript of that correspondence is herewith submitted.

The Commissioner on the part of the United States for marking the boundary between the two Republics though delayed in reaching San Diego by unforeseen obstacles arrived at that place within a short period after the time required by that treaty, and was there joined by the Commissioner on the part of Mexico. They entered upon their duties and at the date of the latest intelligence from that quarter some progress had been made in the survey. The expenses incident to the organization of the commission, and its conveyances to the point where its operations were to begin, have so much reduced the fund appropriated by Congress, that a farther sum to cover the charges which must be incurred during the present fiscal year will be necessary. The great length of frontier along which the boundary extends, the nature of the adjacent Territory, the difficulty of obtaining supplies, except at, or near the extremes of the line, render it also indispensible that a liberal provision should be made to meet the necessary charges during the fiscal year, ending on the 4th of June, 1851. I accordingly recommend the subject to your attention. In the adjustment of the claims of American citizens in Mexico, provided for by the late treaty, the employment of counsel, on the part of the Government, may become important for the purpose of assisting the Commissioners in protecting the interests of the United States. I recommend this subject to the early and favorable consideration of Congress.

Complaints have been made, in regard to the inefficiency of the means provided by the Government of New Granada, for transporting U. S. Mail across the Isthmus of Panama, pursuant to our postal Convention with that Republic, on the 4th of March, 1844. Our Charge d'Affairs at Bogota, has been directed to make such representations to the Government of New Granada, as will, it is hoped, lead to a prompt removal of this cause of complaint. The sanguinary civil war with which the Republic of Venezuela has for some time past been ravaged, has been brought to a close. In its progress the rights of some of our citizens resident or trading there, have been violated. The restoration of order will afford the Venezuelan Government an opportunity to examine and redress these grievances, and others of longer standing which our representative at Carraccas has hitherto ineffectually urged upon the attention of that Government.

The extension of the coast of the U. S. on the Pacific, and the unexampled rapidity with which the inhabitants of California especially, are increasing in numbers has imparted new consequence to our relations with other countries whose territories border upon that ocean. It is probable that the intercourse between those countries and our possessions in that quarter, particularly with the Republic of Chili will become extensive and mutually advantageous in proportion as California and Oregon shall increase in population and wealth. It is desirable therefore that this Government should do everything in its power to foster and strengthen its relations with those States, and that the spirit of amity should be mutual and cordial. I recommend the observance of the same course towards all other American States. The United States stands as the great American power to which as their natural alley and friend they will always be disposed first to look for mediation and assistance in the event of collision between them and any European nation. As such we may often kindly mediate in their behalf without entangling ourselves in foreign wars or unnecessary controversies. Whenever the faith or our treaties with any of them shall require our intervention we must necessarily interfere.

A convention has been negotiated with Brazil, providing for the satisfaction of American claims on that Government, and will be submitted to the Senate. Since the last session of Congress we have received an Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from that empire, and our relations with it are founded upon the most amicable understanding.

Your attention is earnestly invited to an amendment of our existing laws relating to the African Slave Trade with a view to the effectual suppression of that barbarous traffic. It is not to be denied that the trade is still in part carried on by means of vessels built in the United States, and owned and navigated by some of our citizens.

The correspondence between the Department of State and the Minister and Consul of the United States at Rio Janerio, which has from time to time been laid before Congress, represents that it is a customary device to evade the penalties of our laws by means of vessels with sea letters sold in Brazil. When presented with such papers by the Consul, instead of returning to the United States for a new register, they proceed at once to the coast of Africa for the purpose of obtaining a cargo of slaves. Much additional information of a similar character has recently been transmitted to the Department of State. It has not been the policy of our laws to subject an American citizen, who, in a foreign city, purchases a vessel built in the United States, to the inconvenience of sending her home for new register before permitting her to proceed on a voyage. Any alteration of the laws which must have a tendency to impede the free transfer of property, in vessels, between our citizens, or the free navigation of those vessels between different ports of the world, when employed in lawful commerce, should be well and cautiously considered. But I trust your wisdom will devise a method by which our general policy, in this respect, may be preserved, and at the same time the abuse of our flag, by means of the sea letters in the manner indicated, may be prevented.

Having ascertained that there is no prospects of a union of the five States of Central America, which formerly composed the Republic of that name, we have seperately negotiated with some of them treaties of amity and commerce, which will be laid before the Senate.

A contract having been concluded with the State of Nicaragua, by a company composed of American citizens, for the purpose of constructing a ship canal through the territory of that State, to connect the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. I have directed the negotiation of a treaty with Nicaragua, pledging both Governments to protect those who shall engage in and perfect the work. All other nations are invited by the State of Nicaragua to enter into the same treaty stipulations with her, the benefit to be divided between each. Such an arrangement will be protection of this inter-oceanic communication against any power which might seek to obstruct it or monopolize its advantages. All States entering into such treaty will enjoy the right of passage through the canal on payment of toils. The work of construction under the guaranties will become a bond of peace, instead of a subject of strife between the nations of the earth. Should the maritime States of Europe consent to this arrangement—and we have no reason to suppose that a proposition so fair and honorable will be opposed by any—the energies of that people and ours will co-operate in promoting the success of the enterprize. I do not recommend any appropriation from the National Treasury for this purpose, nor do I believe such an appropriation necessary. Private enterprize, if properly protected, will complete the work, should it prove to be feasible. The parties who have procured a charter from Nicaragua for its construction, desire no assistance from the Government beyond its protection; and they profess, that having examined the proposed line of communication; they will be ready to commence the undert king whenever that protection shall be extended to them. Should there be reason, on examing the whole evidence, to entertain a serious doubt of the practicability of constructing such canal, it would speedily be solved by exploration of the route. Should such a work be constructed under the common protection of all nations for equal benefits to all, it would be neither just nor expedient that any Government or maritime State should command the communication. The territory through which the canal may be opened ought to be freed from the claims of any foreign power. No such power should occupy a position that would enable it hereafter to exercise so controlling an influence over the commerce of the world, or to obstruct a highway which ought to be dedicated to the common uses of mankind.

The routes across the Isthmus at Tehuantepec and Panama are also worthy of serious consideration. They did not fail to engage the attention of my predecessor. The negotiator of the treaty of Guadalope Hidalgo was instructed to offer a very large sum of money for the right of transportation across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. The Mexican Government did not accede to the proposition for the purchase of the right of way, probably because it had already contracted with private individuals for the construction of the passage from Huatasecula to Tehuantepec. I shall now renew any proposition to purchase for money a right which ought to be equally secured to all nations, on payment of reasonable toll to the owners of the improvement who would doubtless be well contented with that compensation, and the guaranties of the maritime States of the world in separate treaties negotiated with Mexico, binding her and them to protect those who should construct the work. Such guaranties would do more to secure the completion of the communication through the territory of Mexico than any other reasonable consideration that could be offered, and as she would become the greatest gainer by opening this communication between the Gulf and the Pacific Ocean, it is presumed that she would not hesitate to lend her aid to the completion of an improvement so important to her own best interests.

We have reason to hope that the proposed Railroad across the isthmus at Panama will be successfully constructed under the protection of the late treaty with New Grenada ratified and exchanged by any predecessor on the 10th day of June, 1848, which guarantees the perfect neutrality of the isthmus and the rights of sovereignty of N. Grenada over that territory with a view that a free transit from ocean to ocean may not be interrupted during the existence of the treaty. It is our policy to encourage every practicable route across the isthmus which connects North and South America either by railroad or canal, which the energy or enterprise of our citizens may induce them to complete, and I consider it obligatory upon me to adopt that policy especially in consequence of the absolute necessity of facilitating intercourse with our possessions on the Pacific, Sandwich and other Islands.

The success of the persevering, benevolent persons who peopled that remote quarter in christianizing the natives and inducting them to adopt a system of Government and laws suited to their capacity and wants; and the use made by the numerous Whaleships of the harbors on the Islands as resort for obtaining refreshments and repairs, all combine to render their destiny peculiarly interesting to us. It is our duty to encourage the authorities of these Islands in their efforts to improve and elevate the moral and political condition of the inhabitants, and we should make reasonable allowances for the difficulties inseparable from such a task. We desire that the Islands may maintain their independence and that other nations should concur with us in this sentiment we could in no event be indifferent to their passing under the dominion of other powers. The principal commercial States have in this common interest and it is to be hoped that no one of them will attempt to interpose obstacles to the entire independence of the Island.

The receipts into the Treasury for the fiscal year ending on the 13th of June last were in cash, forty-eight millions eight hundred and thirty thousand and ninety-seven dollars and fifty cents, and in Treasury notes funded, ten million eight hundred an thirty three thousand dollars, making an aggregate of fifty-nine millions six hundred and sixty-three thousand ninety-seven dollars and fifty cents, and the expenditures for the same time were in cash, forty-six millions seven hundred and ninety-eight thousand six hundred and sixty-seven dollars and eighty-two cents, and in Treasury notes funded ten millions eight hundred and thirty-three thousand making an aggregate of fifty-seven millions six hundred thirty-one thousand and six hundred and sixty-seven dollars and eighty-two cents.

The accounts and estimates which will be submitted to Congress in the report of the Secretary of the Treasury show that there will be probably a deficit occasioned by expenses of the Mexican War and treaty on the first day of July next, of five million eight hundred and twenty-eight thousand one hundred and twenty-one dollars and sixty-five cents, and on the first July 1851, of the ten millions five hundred and forty-seven thousand and ninety-two dollars and seventy-three cents, making in the whole a probable deficit to be provided for, of $16,375,214 39. The extraordinary expenses of the war with Mexico and the purchase of California and New Mexico exceed in amount this deficit, together with the loans heretofore made for those objects. I therefore recommend that authority be given to borrow whatever sum may be necessary to cover that deficit. I recommend the observance of the strictest economy in the appropriation of the public money.

I recommend a revision of the existing Tariff and its adjustment on the basis which may augment the revenue. I do not doubt the right or duty of Congress to encourage Domestic industry which is the great source of national as well as individual wealth and prosperity. I look to the wisdom and patriotism of Congress for the adoption of a system which may place home labor at last on a sure and permanent footing and by due encouragement of manufactures give a new and increased stimulus to agriculture and promote the development of our vast resources and the extension of commerce. Believing that to the attainment of these ends as well as the necessary augmentation of the revenue and the prevention of frauds a system of specific duties is best adapted, I strongly recommend to Congress that system, fixing the duties at rates high enough to afford substantial and sufficient encouragement to our own industry, and at the same time so adjust it as to insure stability.

The question of the continuation of the Sub-Treasury is respectfully submitted to the wisdom of Congress. It continued, important modifications of it appear indispensible. For further details and views and other matters connected with commerce the finances and revenue I refer you to the report of the Secretary of the Treasury.

No direct aid has been given by the General Gov. to the improvements of agriculture save the expenditure of small sums for the collection and publication of Agricultural statistics and for some chemical analyses which have thus far been paid out of the patent fund; aid in my opinion wholly inadequate to give this leading branch of industry the encouragement which it merits. I respectfully recommend the establishment of an agricultural bureau to be connected with the Department of the Interior—to elevate the social condition of the Agriculturist—to increase his prosperity and to extend his means of usefulness to his country, by multiplying his sources of information, should be the study of every Statesman, and a primary object with every legislator.

No civil government having been provided by Congress for California, the people of that Territory, impelled by the necessity of their political condition, recently met in Convention for the purpose of framing a Constitution and State Government, which the latest advices give me reason to suppose has been accomplished; and it is believed they will shortly apply for the admission of California into the Union as a sovereign State. Should such be the case, and should their Constitution be conformable to the requisites of the Constitution of the United States, I commend their application to the favorable consideration of Congress.

The people of New Mexico will also, it is believed, at no very distant period, present themselves for admission into the Union. Preparatory to the admission of California and New Mexico, the people of each will have instituted for themselves a republican form of government, "laying its foundation in such principles, and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness," and by waiting their action, all causes of uneasiness may be avoided, and confidence and kind feeling preserved. With a view of maintaining the harmony and tranquility, so dear to us all, we should abstain from the introduction of those exciting topics of a sectional character which have hitherto produced painful apprehension in the public mind; and I repeat the solemn warning of the first and most illustrious of my predecessors, against furnishing any grounds for characterizing parties by geographical discrimination.

A Collector has been appointed at San Francisco, under the act of Congress extending the Revenue Laws over California, and measures have been taken to organize Custom Houses at that and the other ports mentioned in that act. In pursuance of the act of Congress, at the earliest period practicable, the Collector proceeded overland, and advices have not yet been received of his arrival at San Francisco. Meanwhile, it is understood that the customs have continued to be collected there by officers acting under the military authority as they were during the administration of my predecessor. It will I think be expedient to confirm the collections thus made and direct the avails, after such allowances as Congress may think fit to authorize, to be expended within the Territory or to be paid into the Treasury for the purpose of making appropriations for the improvements of its rivers and harbors.

A party engaged on the coast survey was despatched to Oregon in January last; according to the latest advices they had not left California, and directions had been given to them as soon as they should fix on the sites of two light houses, and the buoys authorized to be constructed and placed in Oregon to proceed without delay to a reconnoissance of the most important point on the coast of California, and especially to examine and determine on sights for light houses on that coast; the speedy erection of which is urgently demanded by our rapidly increasing commerce.

I have transferred the Indian agencies from the upper Missouri and Council Bluffs to Santa Fe and Salt Lake, and have caused to be appointed such agents in the Valley of the Gila, Sacramento and San Joachim rivers until further legal provision will be necessary for the effective and successful extension of our system of intercourse over the new Territories.

I recommend the establishment of a Branch Mint in California, as it will in my opinion afford important facilities to those engaged in mining, as well as to the residents on the mineral lands.

I also recommend that commissions be organized by Congress to examine and decide upon the validity of the present subsisting land titles in California and New Mexico, and that provision be made for the establishment of a Surveyor Generalship in New Mexico and California and Oregon, and for the survey and bringing into market the public lands in those Territories; these lands remote from provision and difficult of access ought to disposed of at terms liberal to all, but especially favorable to the early emigrants. In order that the situation and character of the principal mineral deposits in California may be ascertained, I recommend that a geological and mineralogical expedition should be in connection, with the linear survey, and that the mineral lands be divided into small lots suitable for mining, and be disposed of by sale or lease so as to give our citizens an opportunity of procuring a permanent right of property in the soil, which would seem to be as important to the success of mining as of agricultural pursuits.

The great mineral wealth of California and the advantages which its ports and harbors, and the coast of Oregon afford Commerce especially with Islands of the Pacific and Indian Oceans, and the populous regions of Eastern Asia make it certain that there will arise within a few years a large and prosperous community on our western coast. It therefore becomes important that a line of communication, the best and most expeditious which the nature of the country, will admit should be opened within the Territory of the United States from the navigable waters of the Atlantic or of the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific. The sentiments expressed by two large and respectable Conventions assembled at St. Louis and Memphis, point a railroad, which if practicable, will best meet the wishes and wants of the country. But while if in successful operation it would be a work of great national importance and value to the country which it would be difficult to estimate, it is also to be regarded as an undertaking of vast magnitude and expense, and one which must if it be indeed practible encounter many difficulties in its construction and use, therefor to avoid failure and disappointment to enable Congress to judge whether in the condition of the country through which it might pass, the work be feasible and if it be found so, whether it should be undertaken as a national improvement, or be left to individual enterprise, and in the latter alternative, what aid if any ought to be extended to it by government. As a preliminary measure a careful reconnoisance of the several routes by a scientific corps should be had, and a report as to the practicability of making such road with an estimate of its construction and support.

For further views on these and other matters connected with the duties of the Home Department I refer you to the Secretary of the Interior.

I recommend early appropriations for continuing the river and harbor improvements which have been already begun, and also for the construction of those for which estimates have been made as well as for examinations and estimates preparatory to the commencement of such operations as the wants of the country, and especially the advance of the population of our new district and the extension of commerce may render necessary. An estimate of the amount which can be advantageously expended within the next year under the direction of the Bureau of Topographical Engineers accompanies the report of the Secretary of War, to which I respectfully invite the attention of Congress.

The cession of Territory made by the late treaty with Mexico has greatly extended our exposed frontier, and rendered its defence more difficult. That treaty has also brought us under obligations to Mexico to comply with which the military establishment is not materially changed as to its efficiency from the condition in which it stood before the commencement of the Mexican War. Some addition to it will therefore be necessary, and I recommend to the favorable consideration of Congress an increase of the several departments of the army at our distant western ports as proposed in the accompanying report of the Secretary of War. Great embarrassment has resulted from the honorable rank in the Army, heretofore given to Brevet and Staff Commissions. The views of the Secretary of War on this subject are deemed important, and if carried into effect, will, it is believed promote harmony in the service. The plan proposed for retiring disabled officers, and providing an asylum for such of the rank and file as from age, wounds and other infirmities occasioned by service, have become unfit to perform their respective duties, is recommended as a means of increasing the efficiency of the army, and as an act of Justice due from a grateful country to the faithful soldier.

The accompanying Report of the Secretary of the Navy presents a faithful and satisfactory account of the constitution and operations of the Naval service during the past year. Our citizens engaged in the legitimate pursuits of commerce have enjoyed its benefits. Wherever our national vessels have gone, they have been received with respect, our officers have been treated with kindness and courtesies, and they have on all occasions pursued a course of strict neutrality in accordance with the policy of our Government. The Naval force at present is as large as is admissible with the number of men authorized by Congress to be employed.

I invite your attention to the recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy, on the subject of the reorganization of the Navy in its various grades of officers, and the establishment of a retired list for such of the officers as are disqualified for active and efficient service. Should Congress adopt some such measure as is recommended, it will greatly increase the efficiency of the Navy and reduce its expenditures. I also ask your attention to the views expressed by him in reference to the employment of War Steamers, and in regard to the contracts for transportation of the United States Mails, and the operation of the system upon the Navy.

By an act of Congress, passed August 14th, 1848, provision was made for extending Post Office and mail accommodation to our possessions on the Pacific, and exertions have been made to extend the benefits of the service as contemplated by law. But the compensation allowed by those laws, compared with the prices of labor and rents in California, render those exertions in a great degree ineffectual. More particular and efficient provision by law is requisite on that subject.

The Act of 1848, reducing postage, has already, by its operation during four years, produced results fully showing that the income from such reduction of postage is sufficient to sustain the whole expense of the service of the Post Office Department, not including the cost of transporting, in Mail Steamers, from the line from New York to Chagres, and from Panama to Astoria, which have not been considered by Congress as properly belonging to the mail service. It is submitted to the wisdom of Congress whether a further reduction of postage should not now be made, more particularly on the letter correspondence, which should be relieved from the unjust burden of transporting and delivering the franked matters of Congress for which public service, provision should be made from the Treasury. I confidently believe that a change may safely be made reducing all single letter postage, to the uniform rate of five cents, regardless of the distance, without thereby imposing any greater tax on the Treasury than would constitute a very moderate compensation for this public service; and I therefore respectfully recommend such a reduction. Should Congress prefer to abolish the Franking system, it is probable that no damage to the Treasury will result from the proposed reduction of postage. Whether any further diminution should now be made, or the result of the reduction to five cents, which I have recommended, should be first tried is submitted to your decision. Since the commencement of the last session, a Postal Treaty with Great Britain has been received and ratified, and such regulations been formed by the Post Office Departments of the two countries, in pursuance of that Treaty, as to carry its provisions into full operation. The attempt to extend the same arrangement through England to France has not been equally successful, but the purpose has not been abandoned. For a particular statement of the condition of the Post Office Department, and other matters connected with that branch of the public service, I refer you to the Report of the Post Master General.

By act of 3d March, 1849, a board was constituted to make arrangements for taking the seventh census, composed of the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, and the Postmaster General, and it is made the duty of this board to prepare and cause to be printed, such forms and schedules for collecting statistical tables. Such information as to mines, agriculture, commerce, manufactures, education, and such other topics would exhibit a full view of the pursuits, industry, education and resources of the country, the duty enjoined upon the census Board thus established, having been performed, it now rests with Congress to enact a law for carrying into effect the proposition of the Constitution, which require an actual enumeration of the people of the United States within the ensuing period.

Among the duties assigned by the Constitution to the General Government, is one of local and limited application, but not on that account the less obligatory; I allude to the trust committed to Congress as the exclusive Legislator and sole guardian of the interests of the District of Columbia. I beg to commend these interests to your kind attention. As the national Metropolis, the City of Washington must be an object of general interest, and founded as it was under the auspices of him whose immortal name it bears, its claim to the fostering care of Congress, present themselves with additional strength. Whatever can contribute to its prosperity must enlist the feelings of its constitutional guardians and command their favorable consideration.

Our Government is one of limited powers; and its successful administration eminently depends on the confinement of each of its co-ordinate branches within its sphere. The first section of the Constitution ordains that all Legislative powers therein granted shall be vested in the Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Executive has authority to recommend, not to dictate measures to Congress on any subject of legislation until that decision shall have been officially submitted to the President for approval. The check provided by the Constitution in the clause conferring the qualified veto will never be exercised by me, except in the cases contemplated by the Fathers of the Republic. I view it as an extreme measure to be resorted to only in extraordinary cases, as where it may become necessary to defend the Executive against encroachments of the Legislative power, or to prevent hasty and inconsiderate or unconstitutional legislation. By cautiously confining this remedy in the sphere prescribed to it in the contemporaneous expositions of the Constitution, the will of the people legitimately expressed on all subjects of legislation through their Constitutional organs the Senators and Representatives of the United States, will have its full effect as indispensable to the preservation of our system of self government. The independence of the Representatives of the States and the people is guaranteed by the Constitution, and they owe no responsibility to any human power but their constituents. By holding the Representatives responsible only to the people and exempting them from all other influences we elevate the character of the constituent, and quicken his sense of his responsibility to his country. It is under these circumstances only, that the elector can feel in the choice of the law-maker, that he is himself truly a component part of the Sovereign power of the nation. With equal care we should study to defend the rights of the Executive and Judicial Departments. Our government can only be preserved in its purity by the suppression and entire elimination of every claim or tendency in one co-ordinate branch to encroachment on another. The strict observance of this rule and the other injunctions of the Constitution with a sedulous inculcation of that respect and love for the Union of the States, which our fathers cherished and enjoined upon their children, with the aid of that overruling providence which has so long and kindly guarded our liberties and institutions, we may reasonably expect to transmit them with their innumerable blessings to the remotest posterity. Attachment to the union of the States should be habitually fostered in every American heart. More than half a century, during which Kingdoms and Empires have fallen, this Union has stood unshaken; the patriots who formed it have long since descended to the grave; yet still it remains the proudest monument to their memory and the object of affection and admiration with every one worthy to bear the American name. In my judgment its dissolution would be the greatest of calamities, and to avert that, should be the study of every American. Upon its preservation must depend our own happiness and doubtless that of the countless generations yet to come. Whatever dangers may threaten it I shall stand by it and maintain its integrity to the full extent of the obligations imposed and the power conferred upon me by the Constitution.

ZACHARY TAYLOR.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14th, 1849.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY,

JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers.

Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens of various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Joiners Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.

Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

BOOKS—1000 volumes Times and Seasons (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.

For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

MEALS! MEALS!!

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

NEW GOODS.

C. VOORHIS & Co.,

ARE now in receipt of their FALL AND WINTER STOCK OF GOODS. Being one of the largest stocks ever brought to this village. It will be the interest of every body wanting cheap goods to call and look at our assortment, Give us a call and you will find all kinds of

DRY GOODS & GROCERIES,
HARDWARE & QUEENSWARE,
COOKING STOVES & CASTINGS,
IRON, a large assortment,
LEATHER of all kinds,
BOOTS & SHOES, &c.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.

PRIVATE BOARDING.

TWO or three single gentlemen can be furnished with genteel board and lodging on reasonable terms, at the WHITE HOUSE, one door West of the Printing Office.

Transient persons desirous of taking Dinner or staying for the night can also be accommodated.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—6t

HEIGHO! HEIGHO!!

Saddle, Harness and Shoe Manufactory.

THE subscribers wish to inform the public generally that they have commenced the above business at ST. FRANCIS or TRADING POINT, where they intend keeping constantly on hand: Saddles, Harnesses, Bridles, Martingales, collars, and boots and shoes, of all descriptions. Persons wishing to purchase any of the above articles will do well to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere; for our motto is,

Small Profits and Ready Pay.

BECK & McENTURF.

N. B. We keep all the above articles at Voorhis' and Johnson's stores in Kanesville. B. & M.

Also 500 hides wanted in exchange for work.

St. Francis, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

HORSE AND OX SHOEING.

WILLIAM F. CARTER,

TOF this town, would avail himself of this opportunity to tender his thanks to the citizens of this county, and also to the traveling community, for the liberal patronage with which they have favored him heretofore; and having enlarged his shop and obtained a heavy stock of iron and steel of all kinds, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuation of public favor.

He is prepared to shoe horses and oxen on the shortest notice, having every facility for these branches that can be had any where. He will also have on hand a good supply of his superior Steel Plated Hoes. Emigrants would do well to purchase this article here instead of purchasing elsewhere, as has been proven by the last three years experience. He will also execute with neatness and despatch any jobs in the general line of BLACKSMITHING.

Shop at the Old Stand Opposite the Log Tabernacle.

N. B. Mr. C. has an excellent Lathe, for turning iron, connected with his establishment.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—3m

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

UNION HOTEL.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.

Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

APPLES AND PEACHES—A fresh supply just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

Kings and Thrones are Falling.

BY J. C. LORD.

Kings and thrones are falling,
The sound comes o'er the sea,
"Deep unto deep is calling"
To the conflict of the Free;
At the voice of the Nations, like the roaring of a flood,
The "sun is changed to darkness, the moon is changed to blood."

The Word of power is spoken
In accents loud and long,
The iron chain is broken
From the ancles of the strong;
The blind and beaten Giant is staggering up at length,
And the pillars of his prison house begins to feel his strength.

To exile goes the King,
The throne is in the street,
And royal floors are echoing
The sounds of Plebeian feet;
O'er gilded rooms and Halls of State the common throng,
Half fearful of the sceptre yet that haunted them so long.

The Purple Robe is given,
Aye, crushed beneath the thread
Of masses hunger driven,
Demanding work and bread;
And Death is riding grimly forth, and Terror by his side,
With blood-stained War and Pestilence, and Famine, hollow-eyed.

The Powers of Earth are shaken,
From the Danube to the Rhine,
Old Germany is waking
Like a Cyclop from his wine:
And dark his brow with hatred, and red his eye with wrath,
While he scatters his tormentors like pilgrims from his path.

The famished Celt is crying,
Arm, brethren, one and all,
The Saxon Lord is flying
To castle keep and wall;
Unhappy Ireland grasps again the old detested hands,
And lifts toward the indignant heavens her bruised and bleeding hands.

The Seine is running red
Through the capitol of France,
Over ramparts of the dead
The cry is still advanced!
With pike and gun and paving stone the maddened people arm,
And Peace and Freedom fly the scene of tumult and alarm.

With terror, pain and sorrow
Till the travail throes are past,
But then a glorious morrow,
And the promised rest at last;
For the gospel of the Crucified shall triumph like the light,
From the golden gates of morning o'er the darkness of the night.

King or Priest shall never
Rebuild the broken wall,
For thought is freed forever
And Truth is now for all;
The startled Nations hear a voice through heaven and earth resound,
The everlasting Word of God will never more be bound.

O'er shattered Thrones shall rise
The kingdom of the Son,
And Ocean, Earth and Skies
Proclaim his reign begun;
The angel voices heard before on the plains of Galilee,
Shall sound once more on every shore and over every sea.

MISCELLANY.

Picking up an Acquaintance.

Some months since, a joyous, courageous young woman residing in this city the daughter of highly respectable parents, found herself somewhat unintentionally detained at the house of a friend not far distant from her father's house, one evening, and before she was aware of the fact, scarcely, night had set in. The distance to her own home was but a few blocks, however, as she expected a little gathering of ladies and gentlemen that evening at her father's, she determined on returning home unattended; and, bidding her friends good night she hurried along upon the walk towards her residence, into which her family had quite recently removed from another part of the city.

Upon turning the first corner, she was suddenly startled by the approach of a well dressed young man who accosted her with a "good evening," and offered his service to escort her home! Alarmed, for an instant, she would have avoided the stranger; but as he advanced to her side, she ventured to turn towards him, and a glance satisfied her—she recognized the young gentleman as a familiar acquaintance Disguising her voice, and replying in a timid tone, she accepted the proffered gallantry, determined at once to administer a lesson to her young friend, which he should not forget. The conversation which passed was brief, and the beau suspecting nothing as he was not aware the family had changed their quarters, tripped along at the young lady's side, apparently very well pleased with his companion. In a few minutes they halted before a modest brick house in a somewhat retired street at the west end, and the lady relinquished her attended arm.

"Will you come in!" whispered the lady, softly.

"Thank you," was the reply; and his fair companion opened the front door. Closing it carefully, they found themselves in the entry, in total darkness.

"Wait a moment," said the young woman "and be perfectly quiet. I will return instantly;" and with these words she ascended the stairs which led to the parlors.

The first thought of the young man, as she retired, was to open the front door and move! for he suspected all was not as he at first anticipated. He turned to the door, it was fast. He fumbled for the latch, or lock, or whatever secured it, but it was not to be found; an instant afterward, he heard footsteps approaching in the darkness. His heart thumped against his ribs, and he began to wish himself safely out of doors again; but he was quickly re-assued by the encouraging whisper of his new-made acquaintance, who approached him apparently with great caution.

"Hush!" she said, "all is safe. Be quiet now, a moment—remove your boots from your feet—I will return in an instant."

Our hero was content and drawing off his boots, he secured them together, and held them in his hand, to await the return of his lady friend who had again ascended the front stairs.

Entering the parlor a moment afterwards, the female rogue found some half a score of young lady friends, with her brothers and beaux present, to whom she quickly and briefly communicated the adventure.

"I've got him in the entry down stairs," she said. "Put out the lights, keep perfectly still, don't betray the slightest breath of sound and I will show your some sport in a moment."

The lights were removed, the party arranged themselves around the room—the bulk of company knew the victim intimately—and again the lady descended the stairs and approached her friend.

"Softly now," she said taking the hand which was unoccupied with the boots, softly." All is quiet up stairs—all is arranged—come! and she led her gallant shyly along up the stairway. His boots dangled against the railing—"Sh!" exclaimed the fair one: "for pity's sake make no noise, or all is lost!"

The beau moved on, grasped his boots more securely at his side, nor dreamed of aught save bliss. Least of all did he suspect the existence of huge rent in his stockings—but he was a bachelor, and this was but a trifle.

They entered the parlor. All was darkness and silence. The lady closed the door behind them, and led her companion into the centre of the room. Not a breath was heard, and little did the gentleman suspect that he was at that moment surrounded by a dozen of his acquaintances.

"Remain here, one moment, said the girl, I will get a light—"

The gallant raised the soft hand which had conducted him thus far toward he knew not what—and ventured to press upon it a kiss, but it was dexterously withdrawn at the very "nick of time and his lips came in contact with his own finger!

"Wait a moment," added his inamorata, leaving him quickly—and then passing through a door at the farther extremity of the room; she disappeared. A minute had scarcely elapsed but it seemed a month to the little party, who were nearly choking with suppressed merriment; it was an age to the victim. But the gentle footsteps were heard again, the beau gazed anxiously towards the direction of the door—it opened with a single movement—a blaze of light rushed into the parlor, and behind it the face of an old and familliar acquaintance.

"Ladies and gentlemen," "this is Mr. Smith."

Such a "ha! ha!" as went up from that little cotorie at that moment was seldom heard in the neighborhood before or since. Poor Smith stood for a moment, not exactly paralyzed—that would be a faint term of expression, he was frozen—actually statueized in his tracks: and he hugged his boots to his side, coughed, sneezed, choked—then grined a ghastly smile.

As soon as the paroxism of laughter was over the lady brought forward a chair, and placed it before the victim said:

"Pray, be seated, Mr. Smith."

He turned upon his tormenter a look of comical recognition, and like Falstaff, his wits coming quickly to his relief, he replied:

"Did you think, Calla, I didn't know you."

Another roar followed this remark, and the company were very soon on good terms.

This was his first and last effort at picking up an acquaintance; and it proved a cure for "sparking" with him. Within six months he made ample apology for his error by making Miss Calla. Mrs. Smith.—[New York Flag of our Union.

If you are poor and apt to squander your money, do not earn any. A number of lazy people have tried this remedy with great effect.

From the Literary Americam.

Contrast.

BETWEEN EUROPEAN AND ORIENTAL CUSTOMS.

A person accustomed to European customs would be somewhat surprised if suddenly introduced into Turkey. It seems as if in almost every respect the habits of the Orientals are opposite to those of Western nations. Let us look at some of them.

In the West, the ladies dress in gay colors and expose their necks and arms. They are not allowed to call on gentlemen, and hardly look at them, if they are strangers. The gentleman is to pay his addresses to the lady. He usually wears dark colors, and his person is entirely covered. His dress is tight to the form, while ladies wear loose gowns.

In Turkey, on the other hand, the men wear gay colors, and the women are confined to sober black and white. The women wear trousers, while the men are arrayed in loose robes. They have leap year all the time; for the ladies always have the privilege of calling on the other sex, and making advances to them.

In many Western States criminals are marked by shaving the head; among the Asiatic Turks, it is a custom with all classes.

Among us the schoolmaster is amenable to the parent; in the East, the parent acknowledges the teacher's authority, and does not punish his child without consulting that dignitary.

Here a servant is obliged to bring a recommendation to the person hiring him; there the servant requires evidences of respectability from the master.

Dancing is practised among us as a refined and agreeable recreation; the turks regard it as disgraceful in the extreme.

We enter our churches with uncovered heads; the Turk goes into his Mosque with uncovered feet. We take off our glove before shaking hands, as a sign of respect: the Turk, in the presence of a superior, conceals his bare hand under his garment.

Among us, ladies are admired for their symmetry of shape, and delicate forms; in Turkey, the fatter a woman is, the more she is admired. Belles of three hundred weight are not uncommon.

We might go on, and enumerate many more points of difference. We have mentioned enough, however, to show how diverse are the traits of charncter in different nations, and how these traits are developed in directly opposite habits.

A Love Letter.

DEAR J: Would that my pen were dipped in the dyes of the Rainbow, plucked from the wings of an Angel, and wedded with the prayer of an Infant's wit! then might I expect to paint the burning brightness of that flame which thy thrilling eloquence has enkindled—then might I hope to depict the bewitching likelihood of thine image, as it floats in prismatic radiance before my enraptured vision, or hovers buzzard-like over the depths of my soul. Thou sunbeam of sentiment! soft moonlight of modesty! thy voice is as gentle as the first surring of an infant's dream—thy step, like as the silken-footed zephyr which fanned with the wing of perfumie the new born Paradise—thine eyes are two brilliants stolen from a seraphic crown—thy lips are the riven rosebud, moistened with the honey-dews of affection—thy words are like drops of amber—thy teeth are snow-flakes set in a bed of verbena. Oh, bright enchanter! proud king of fascination! who sittest on a throne of unapproachable dignity, like a toad frog on a 'tater hill—sweet spirit of camphor, double-distilled essence of Homeopathy, sour-crout of my hopes, sauce of my thoughts, butter-milk of my joys, catsup of my fancy, tiger-lilly of innocence, dog wood of perfection—as the hyacinth among the flowers of the field, so art thou among men. Thy form is the model of grace, the embodiment of symmetry. Oh, Pluto! centre of a thousand attractions! thy heart is the bubbling wash-pot of passion:—thou art the julup of my dreams, ginger-pop of my waking visions, and cherry-bounce of my recollections. Would that all had a curl-touch probocis, instead of goose-quills! then might they pour forth epistolary streams of citron and molasses. Thou art harmless as the tiger, handsome as the elephant, melodious as the lion, meek as the hyena, spotless as the leopard, bright as the struggling ray of shivering, sneezing sunlight, peeping through the mortal cracks of an old barn loft, or a greezing streak of blue lightening churned to consistency in the milk-way, and peppered with a shower of turnip-tops, comets and pacoon roots, from the crust of Eternity. Thou onion of the soul! pickled pumpkin! preserved crab of the garden of Hesperides? thy glance is as melting as old butter in summer time—thou art a drop of nectar from the cup of the gods, or juice of a rotten pine-apple. Bright king of the seas! cradled on the floating crest—lulled to rest by the songs of the mermaid—the dolphins, with a fan of fairy smiles, shall burst the moonbeams from thy sleeping cheek. Slumber on, until some gnat shall tickle thy nose! Thou art the Sun of the whole planetary system of virtues—Mercury in spirit; Venus in modesty, Earth in domestic qualities, Mars in intense passion, Saturn in discretion, bound round with a girdle of mirth—Jupiter in bold, reckless independence—Herschel circulating way off yonder among the ghosts of space, butting is brains out against the brickbats of eternity, and dancing with the moon. * *
The clock of centuries tolls the hour of welve, and old Time pauses until this letter is finished; the cherubic choirs of heaven cease their mellow-sounding minstrelsy till the mighty task is completed—but a rat will keep after knawing my old shoes in the corner. * * * * * *
Awake thou that sleepeth! and get up to breakfast—for the pot, certainly the original dodgers are done. * * * *
And now, my dear J. I must conclude this interesting note. You cannot imagine the deep anguish I feel. The possibility of not hearing from you saddens my spirit, and spreads a melancholy gloom over my thoughts, and my soul heaves as if filled with hot gruel. Farewell! May thy head be pillowed on rose leaves, thy couch be eyebrows of butterflies! May you ride through life on the big toe of a blazing blue-bearded gossamer, and light in the rocking-chair of hymenial felicity or conjugal transports! Good-by! From thine HAGH.

From the Great West.

To the Ladies.

We've a secret to tell you, dear reader,
We can't for the life of us keep it,
We've tried to the best of our power,
But can't,—so to you we'll repeat it,
But don't let it out! we implore you,
If you do it will ruin us quite;
If we didn't so fondly adore you,
We know that it wouldn't be right.
As it is, we believe there's no harm in it,—
And, therefore, we say in your ear
We've something unusual to send you
In our paper, the forthcoming year.
We mean in our forthcoming volume,
To begin, as you know, in November;
You've read we presume our prospectus,
And its contents in toto remember.

But above and beside all the "features,"
Mr. Publisher Jones has portrayed;
There are others, of much more importance,
Which till now, we have kept in the shade,
We've received, per express from Olympus,
An invoice of things rich and rare;
For the ladies, yourselves, lady readers,
For your intellectual wear.

Most beautiful tissues of fancy;
Hugh caskets of poetic pearl,
And gossip, mouchoirs a la Francais,
For each madam and rosy-liped girl.
A great many bales of rare clippings,
And corals from out the Red Sea,
Rare spices and gums for the ailing,
Put up by our friend Dr. Glee.

In addition, we've got our Pegasus
A pair of new, silver-tipped wings;
Our lyre we've sent to be varnished,
And furnished throughout with new strings.
The reason we've kept it so quiet,
And mention it now but to you,—
Is, we feared such a rush of subscribers,
Such a counting of money to do.

That the two and a half winks of sleeping,
Which now we are trouble to find,
Would depart from our eye lids forever,
And leave us, "deranged in our mind."
But we've got some new devils to help us,
And think we may venture to say,
That what new subscribers you send us,
We'll attend to "without 'en delay.

A POSER.—The teacher in one of our Common Schools, a young lady, put the question to her sholars, one morning, "Who made you?" The oldest boy in the school could not tell, neither could any of the scholars, till she questioned the smallest urchin in school. He answered promptly that God made him. The teacher, turning to the largest boy said, "are you not ashamed not to know what this little fellow knows?"

"He," replied the "big 'un," Thunder! I should think he might know: 'taint a fortnight since he was made.

Short Sermon.

"Study to be quiet, and do your own business."—[1 Thess. 4 c. 21 v.

INTRODUCTION.—Most of the moral disorders and the wretchedness that prevails in the world, may be traced to two classes of persons, viz: those who have no business of their own, and those who meddle with the business of other people. Hence the importance of the apostolic exhortation, "Do your own business." From this injunction, we are taught—

I. That it is our own business in this world to attend to some kind of business."

1. We should study to ascertain the appropriate business of life. Error, at this point, is often ruinous See the failure of many. May we not ascribe it to erroneous views, and often to the preferences of parents and guardians?

2. We should do whatever our hands find to do with our might.—Eccles. ix. 10 "The idler's brain is the devil's workshop."

II. That it is our business to do our own business.

And what, may be asked, is our business?

1. To labor in some useful employment. "Not slothful in business." See Adam in Paradise. The ant, the spider and the feathered tribe, teach us lessons of wisdom and economy.

2. To glorify God and secure the salvation of our souls. This is the chief end of man, "One thing is needful;" many things may be desirable.

3. To labor to promote the temporal and spritual welfare of others. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Man is not to live for self alone.

4. To pay our honest debts, and keep all our temporal and spiritual matters in order, that we may be always in a state of preparation for death. "Owe no man anything," not even the printer. "Set thy house in order," and don't peep too often into your neighbor's.

III. That it is our business to let other people's business alone.

1. Are you a preacher? Do not obtrude you nose to far into the private concerns of your parishoners, or meddle with the private callings of subordinate officers in the church.

2. Are you a layman? Do not trouble yourself too much with the preacher's business, nor to be to officious in dictating to him what he ought to do, and what he ought not to do. Take care not to pay him calls on Sunday.

3. Are you an adherent of a particular sect? Do not intermeddle with the private affairs of other denominations, nor rejoice over their adversity. "Let him that standeth take heed lest he fall."

4. Are you an editor? Give "the devil his due." "Write no line which, when dying you would wish to blot." Give your readers good mental food, and if they do not pay up in due time, remind them of the precept in our text.

5. Are you a loafer? Remember, you dishonor God, disgrace mankind, and shame the Devil.—[Hornet's Nest.

DREADFUL SCENE AT AN EXECUTION.—A Rockingham (N. C.) correspondent of the Fayetteville observer gives the following scene at the execution of a man named Robert Hildreth, at that place on the 2d inst.

"The axe glitters, the trap door falls, and Hildreth swings by the neck. For half a minute he remains motionless. Is he dead? Can his own weight, without falling an inch, have broken his neck?—No! Poor fellow, he expected one pang, and that his last. But the fatality which often leads sheriffs to gross negligence in executing the law, must cost him now a world of woe. With a convulsive effort he reaches the platform, and stands again on earth alive. The cap has fallen from his face. The blood was already fast rushing upwards. But his large and muscular neck prevented the ropes from tightening. Even then his meekness did not leave him. He spoke, without complaint, in a clear voice, that was heard with awe by every ear: "Come here and fix the rope! it won't choke me to death."

The sheriff did go to him. First, with an axe, and then with a piece of scantling, he endeavored to knock away the boards. At last he pushed Hildreth's feet from the scaffold, and hung him inefficiently a second time. The poor fellow made no further effort to recover himself. Finding that he was hung in a way which produced the most excrutiating, because gradual, suffocation—with blood slowly collecting in his brain through a circulation only partially impeded—the unfortunate man, compelled by the pangs which momentarily grew greater, drew up his legs as high as possible then with all his force, threw them down to tighten the cord. Three, several times, at intervals of a minute, he did the same again. Then his struggles ceased—his own executioner, he becomes unconcious of pain.

WOMEN.—It seems as if nature connected our intelligence with their dignity, as we connect our happiness with their virtue. This therefore, is a law of eternal justice—man cannot degrade woman without himself falling into the degradation: he cannot raise her without becoming better. Let us cast our eyes over the globe, and observe the two great divisions of the human race, the east and the west. One half of the ancient world remains without progress, without thought, and under the load of a barbarous civilization; women there are slaves. The other half advances towards freedom, light, and happiness; the women there are loved and honored. Never shrink from a women of strong sense. If she becomes attached to you, it will be from seeing and valuing similar qualities in yourself. You may trust her, for she knows the value of your confidence. You may consult her, for she is able to advise, and does so at once with the firmness of reason and the consideration of affection. Her love will be lasting, for it will not have been slightly won; it will be strong and ardent, for weak minds are incapable of the loftier grades of passion. If you prefer attaching yourself to a woman of feeble understanding, it must be either from fearing to encounter a superior person, or from vanity of prefering that admiration which springs from ignorance, to that which approaches to appreciation.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths, Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Herdware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention.

There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

The Barberous Notice.

THE subscriber having opened a shop in Kanesville, takes this method of informing the gentlemen of the town and vicinity, and the traveler, that they can be shaved at all reasonable hours. Hair cut and dressed at the following prices:

Twice a week, for shaving, only 50 cents per month. An addition of fifteen cents for hair cutting.

My monthly customers can have their hair dressed at all times for a party gratuitously.

Traveling customers, single shave, 10 cents. Hair cutting, fifteen cents. W. A. WESTON.

Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Web Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins.	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the big boot, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your mone DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation. J. B. STUTSMAN,

Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.

Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturihg FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled

J. W. COOLIDGE,
S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

GUNSMITHING.

THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 25 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquito Creek, half a mile south of TRADING POINT.

m21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the non opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by JOHN GALLAGHER.

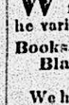
St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.



G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GUARDIAN

BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all he varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

QUIDO!!

S. M. BLAIR

Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.

Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSOF.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 23, 1850. VOLUME I.---NUMBER 26.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PARSON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES McGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M. BURNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MESSRS. McKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
ENG. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
GEORGE PEACOCK, Weston, Mo.
WM. MARTINDALE, traveling agent, throughout the United States.
LEVI STEWART, Illinois and other States.

Dialogue between Traditon, Reason, and Scriptus.

Tradition.—Good morning; Mr. Reason, I understand that you have lately embraced the Book of Mormon as a divine record, and believe Joseph Smith to be a prophet inspired of God. I am astonished that intelligent men like yourself should be so easily deluded.

Reason.—I am not sensible of having embraced any delusion. But as man is but a short-sighted mortal, and liable to be deceived, I shall be under infinite obligations to you, Mr. Tradition, if you will have the kindness to point out the deception.

Tradition.—Why, sir, the canon of scripture is full; and the very idea of any more revelation is the height of absurdity.

Reason.—Well, Neighbor Tradition, if you can prove your last assertion, viz: that "the canon of Scripture is full," you will do me a great favor, and save a soul from error.

Tradition.—I am pleased to see you so willing to be undeceived. There is hope in your case; for a world of evidence can be brought forward to prove that there is to be no more revelation. Why, sir, our fathers, our mothers, our kindred, our neighbors, and our nation, have all testified that the scriptures are full. Thousands of protestant reformers, among every class and society, have borne the same testimony. And finally, almost every christian denomination for many centuries past, have proclaimed boldly and publicly, that the volume of scriptures was completed by the apostles, and that there was to be no more. What more evidence do you want?

Reason.—I hope Mr. Tradition, that you will not be offended when I tell you that the "world of evidence" which you have now adduced, is not evidence, but merely tradition—the assertions of uninspired men without proof. How am I to know that or any part of these witnesses, to which you refer, testify the truth? Do they prove their assertions by the scriptures? If not, how do they know that the canon of scripture is full? Must I believe and put my trust in their foolish traditions, and vain assertions without one scriptural proof? "Cursed," saith Isaiah, "is he that trusteth in man, or maketh flesh his arm."

Tradition.—Do you suppose that so many millions of people are deceived upon this subject?

Reason.—If they found their conclusions upon their own imaginations and vain traditions, they are just as liable to be deceived as the millions of heathen who have deceived themselves with the vain traditions of their fathers. And now, Mr. Tradition, if you will furnish us some scriptural evidence to support your assertions, you will confer upon me a great favor; but away with unfounded traditions.

Tradition.—I am not much of a scriptorian myself, but depend chiefly upon the ministers for scriptural knowledge. Ah! yonder comes my old friend, the minister, who has studied the Bible and preached these forty years. He will shew you that the Bible contains all that God ever has revealed, or ever will reveal to man.

[Enter the Reverend Mr. Scriptus with a Bible in his hand.]

Good morning, Mr. Scriptus. I am happy to see you. You have arrived just in the right time. Your services are much needed. Mr. Scriptus, I introduce to you my unfortunate neighbor, Reason, who has lately embraced that fatal delusion—the Book of Mormon as a divine revelation. He seems to be an honest man; and it is a pity that he should be so imposed upon. Will you, Mr. Scriptus, have the kindness to show him, by the Bible, that there is to be no more revelation?

Scriptus.—It is to be greatly lamented that any honest man should be so grossly deceived. But, Mr. Reason, are you willing to admit the scriptures as evidence?

Reason.—Most certainly. The scriptures are esteemed very highly, both by myself and by all who believe the Book of Mormon. And I can assure you, that I shall receive all evidence drawn from that source with the greatest satisfaction. And if you really believe that I am deluded, I earnestly desire that you should bring forward the strongest and most convincing arguments that you are in possession of, that I may be reclaimed.

Scriptus.—I will read to you, Mr. Reason, the 15th, 16th, and 17th verses of the third chapter, 2 Timothy. "From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus." All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and it is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." "That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." You will perceive, Mr. Reason, that Timothy had enough scripture when he was a child, to make him wise unto salvation; and what necessity was there for any more? Could he be benefited by any more?

Reason.—Will you please to tell me, Mr. Scriptus, what scripture Timothy was acquainted with when he was a child?

Scriptus.—The Old Testament, I suppose; for the New Testament was not yet written.

Reason.—Then, according to your argument, the New Testament is useless, inasmuch as the Old was able to make Timothy wise unto salvation. What a pity it was that the Lord and his angels, while John was on the Isle of Patmos, did not know that mankind had enough scripture years before, or in the days of Timothy's childhood; it would have saved them the trouble of revealing that lengthy revelation to John, and saved him the trouble of writing it, and saved mankind from delusion in believing it. How long is it, Mr. Scriptus, since you made the important discovery that all the scriptures given since Timothy's childhood are useless?

Scriptus.—I must confess, Mr. Reason, that I never thought of the arguments which you have advanced; and I clearly perceive that there is no evidence in that passage against any more revelations being given; but I think that you must be convinced by the two following passages that we have enough to perfect the man of God, and thoroughly furnish him unto all good works Reason.—I do not perceive, sir, any such delaration in the passages to which you refer. It does not say that enough scripture is given by inspiration of God, to make the man of God perfect, &c., that there is no necessity for any more; but it says that "all scripture is given, &c." Leaving the man of God to be perfected by all scripture which should come to his knowledge, given at any period of time. Indeed, as a proof that more scripture was given after Paul wrote this, you are referred to that given on the Isle of Patmos many years afterwards.

Scriptus.—I perceive, Neighbor Reason, that you have a happy faculty of overturning my arguments. Your reasons are so very plain that I cannot withstand their force, and only marvel at the weakness of my own arguments. But I have one more passage of scripture left, which I think is so pointed and definite against any additional scripture, that it will be your turn next to yield the argument, and renounce the ruinous doctrine of more revelation. It will be found in the last chapter of John's Revelations. I will read it,—"For I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book. If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book." This, I consider, friend Reason, to be positive proof that the canon of scriptures is full, and no more to be added.

Reason.—Well, Mr. Scriptus, as you have fled to your strong hold and last refuge, the battering ram of reason will try its strength upon it, by asking a few questions. Is there anything in this passage which you have just read, that prohibits God from adding more revelations?

Scriptus.—Oh no! It is "man" who is under restraint, not God.

Reason.—You perceive, then, that God might give ten thousand more revelations, for ought there is contained in that passage.

Scriptus.—But do you not think that the idea is there indirectly conveyed that God would give no more?

Reason.—Surely not; for the same restraint was placed upon man as early as the days of Moses, saying, "Thou shalt not add nor diminish to the words which I command you." Would you not have considered the children of Israel very foolish, if they had said to Moses that the canon of scriptures was full? Yet they would have been as much justified in drawing the conclusion from the caution given in the book of Deuteronomy, as we are from the book of John's prophecy.

Scriptus.—I perceive the strength of your reasoning. You have overturned my strongest hold; and I know of no other scripture that conveys the most distant idea that the volume of scripture was completed by the Apostles. But admitting that there is no scriptural evidence against receiving more revelation, yet the idea of receiving the Book of Mormon, or anything else, as revelation without proof, is ridiculous. What evidence have you that it is a divine revelation?

Reason.—I must cordially concur with you, friend Scriptus, that we ought not to receive anything as divine revelation without evidence; and, if I am not deceived, I have as much evidence in favor of the Book of Mormon as you have of the New Testament.

Scriptus.—As much evidence for that book as I have for the New Testament! I am astonished at your presumption! Why, sir, look at the great miracles which were wrought by the Savior and his Apostles, in confirmation of their mission, miracles too, wrought publicly, and not in a corner: the sick, both in and out of the church, were healed. We have the testimony of large multitudes, entirely disinterested, having no connexion with the church.

Reason.—How do you know, friend Scriptus, that miracles were wrought in confirmation of their mission? Did you see them perform miracles with your own eyes? Did you hear them speak in new tongues with your own ears? Did you ever see or converse with any person that they healed? Have you ever seen any person that ever saw them do miracles? Or have you even read the testimony of one disinterested witness, out of the church, who saw them perform miracles? If not, how do you know that they wrought miracles?

Scriptus.—Why, the New Testament says so.

Reason.—I think, neighbor Scriptus, that you must have studied logic in the ancient schools of philosophy, for you seem to understand reasoning in a circle to perfection. First, you say that the New Testament is true, because miracles were wrought, because the New Testament says so. It is the evidence of both the book and its miracles that is now called for. Let me inform you, sir, that you have only the testimony of six eye witnesses, that there were miracles wrought in the days of the Apostles, viz: Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Paul, and Peter: and they were all in the church, and not out of it. It is upon their testimony, alone that you believe it. Not a solitary individual that was an eye witness either in the church or out of it, except those six have written and handed down their testimony.

Scriptus.—What! did not the lame man who sat at the beautiful gate of the temple testify that he was healed? And did not the multitudes who saw these miracles testify, saying, that notable miracles had been wrought?

Reason.—If they did testify you and I never saw nor read their testimony, but are entirely dependent upon the testimony of the six writers afore mentioned. Luke, who wrote the Acts of the Apostles, testifies that the lame man was healed: and we believe it on his testimony alone. Luke testifies that the multitudes saw miracles, but the multitudes have informed us nothing about it.

Scriptus.—Your reasonings seem to be very conclusive and cannot be overthrown. And I frankly acknowledge that I never thought of these things in this light before. But, neighbor Reason, can you bring forward as much evidence as there is in favor of the New Testament; that is, can you bring forward six witnesses in your church who will testify that they have seen miracles wrought with their own eyes? You must, sir, bring forward as much as six witnesses at least, in order that the Book of Mormon may have the same claims to our faith that the New Testament has, so far as miracles are evidence.

Reason.—I can assure you, friend Scriptus, that we are not dependent upon the testimony of six witnesses alone, but can produce more than sixty thousand who have seen miracles wrought with their own eyes. Multitudes have been healed by the prayer of faith in the name of Jesus, both in the church and out of it, since the year 1830. Thus you perceive that we have a cloud of witnesses. Now please take your pen, Mr. Scriptus, and write out the evidences on this sheet of paper in two separate columns, and compare them, and see if one book has not as good a claim upon your faith as the other, so far as the evidence of miracles is concerned.

(Here Scriptus commences writing as follows:)

NEW TESTAMENT EVIDENCE	BOOK MORMON EVIDENCE.
Six eye-witnesses testify in their writings that miracles were wrought in their day.	Sixty thousand eye-witnesses will testify that miracles are wrought in these days.
No witnesses have informed us that they were healed in the Apostles' days: it all depends on the testimony of the six.	Thousands of witnesses tell us that they have been healed in these days; it does not depend upon second-handed testimony.
The six witnesses of the New Testament are dead, and gone where we cannot cross-examine their testimony.	The tens of thousands of witnesses to the Book of Mormon are living, and their testimony can be re-examined.
No eye-witnesses, out of the church, have left us their written evidence to the truth of miracles in the Apostles' days.	Many eye-witnesses, out of the church, have seen and do testify that miracles are wrought in these days.

Scriptus.—I find, friend Reason, that I have been too much under the influence of my neighbor Tradition, to judge of things according to reason, and shall henceforth endeavor to shun his company, and shall esteem it as a great favor, if you will permit me to associate more frequently with you, for I am highly delighted with the soundness of the reasons you have advanced, and think that you have honorably extricated yourself from the charge of delusion.

Tradition, who had attentively listened to the conversation, became very much excited on hearing himself so lightly spoken of, and abruptly left the room, muttering the following soliloquy: My old friends, Reason and Scriptus, have both forsaken me and treated me with contempt. But I don't care. Whatever my fathers believed I will believe too; for my great grandfather, Mr. Heathen Tradition, was highly respected by millions, and died a happy martyr in testimony of our cause, and my grandmother, Mrs. Roman Chatholic, and my own dear mother, Mrs. Protestant, with all of her descendants, have been almost inflexible in the faith of their fathers. And of all the Tradition family but a very few apostatise, and they are generally led away by the unpopular Reason and Scriptus families.

PUNISHING LIARS.—In Turkey, whenever a storekeeper is convicted of telling a lie, his house is painted black to remain so for one month. If there were such a law in force in this country, what a sombre and gloomy appearance some of our cities would present.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Farewell.

BY V. H. BRUCE.

A farewell compliment to Elders Taylor, Snow, Richards, and others on missions from Salt Lake City to Europe.

Farewell, ye servants of the Lord,
We bid you all "God speed,"
As to the nations far you go,
To sow celestial seed.

The Priesthood on your heads you bear,
And in your hands the sword
Of truth you hold, which shall prepare
Men's hearts to serve the Lord.

Lo! nations trembling shall confess your missions, and your powers,
And, turning from their idols, bless
The Lord, your God and ours.

Your presence gives us pleasure here,
But, more your absence may;
When we shall hear of conquest, where
In foreign lands you pray.

Shall hear, that error's temples fall
Beneath your warning voice;
And multitudes their names enroll,
And make the truth their choice.

May Zion prosper where you go,
The gospel to proclaim;
'Til kings and ruler's hear and know,
Her beauty, and her fame.

And may God's blessing you attend—
His spirit with you dwell;
Aid, and relieve you to the end,
In all your work. Farewell.

Kanesville, Dec. 1849.

From the Millennial Star.

A Great Miracle — Narrative of Reuben Brinkworth.

On the 2d July, 1839, I entered on board the Terror, Commodore Sir John Franklin being then about to set out on a voyage of discovery for a northwest passage to India. Upon returning to England, we landed at Bermuda on the 16th of July, 1843, and in the afternoon of the same day a terrible thunder storm occurred, in which I was suddenly deprived of my hearing and speech. At the same time five of my comrades, viz., John Ennis, William Collins, John Rogers, Richard King, and William Simms, were summoned into eternity. I remained insensible fifteen days—perfectly unconscious of all that was passing around me; but upon the return of reason, came the dreadful conviction that I was deprived of two of my faculties. I well remember the period, and shall forever continue to do so—language cannot describe the awful sensations that pervaded my mind when I became fully sensible of the reality of my condition. I will here remark, that the subject of religion had never troubled my mind; nor did the calamity I was called to suffer awaken any feeling akin to it; nevertheless I felt a certain feeling of gratitude that I had not met with the same fate as my more unfortunate companions; yet I must, to mys hame, confess that it was not so directed by the Great Disposer of all events, who could have taken my life as those of my companions, had he willed it. But it was not his design. I was spared, and am now a living witness of his loving kindness to the most abandoned sinners, if they will turn and seek his face. At that time I was about nineteen years old. After remaining at Bermuda for about three weeks, we again set sail for England, and reached Chatham on the 14th December. I remained there only fourteen days, after which I went to London, and, by the kind assistance of some gentlemen, entered the deaf and dumb school in Old Kent Road, where I remained for ten weeks, but not liking the confinement, and being from home, I became dissatisfied and unhappy, and resolved to leave it, and accordingly did so. I then went to George Lock's, Oxford Arms, Silver Street, Reading, with whom I lived eighteen months, supporting myself the whole of that period upon the wages I earned on board the Terror. I afterwards went to Rugby, not to remain there, but on the way to my mother at Stroud, Gloucestershire.

I will here relate a circumstance of cruelty of which I was made the sufferer: being thirsty, I stepped into a public house to get something to drink; there were gentlemen in the parlor, who, seeing that I was dumb, motioned me to them, and put many questions in writing, which I answered in the same manner. While I was thus being questioned, one of the men went out and brought in a policeman, who hauled me away to the lock-up, in which place I was kept all that night, the next day and following night, and on the morning of the second day, I was taken before a magistrate, who ordered me to be taken to a doctor, where I underwent an operation, namely, having my tongue cut in two places: he became satisfied that I was both deaf and dumb, and then I was discharged. From the treatment I had received I was determined to go to another of the magistrates of that town, to whom I related by writing what had transpired. He said very little to me, more than that he would write to London respecting it, and I have since learned from a gentleman, that the magistrate who examined me, has been removed from his office. I then continued my journey to Stroud, which I reached without any other inconvenience, and remained there two days. I then went to Newport, Monmouthshire, and occupied my time in teaching the deaf and dumb alphabet for about three years at the end of which I became acquainted with the Latter-day Saints. At that time I was lodging at a public house, kept by James Durbin, sign of the Golden Lion, Pentonville. One of the customers of this house became acquainted with me and prevailed upon me to go to live with him and his brother, who was a member of the Latter-day Saint's church. There I first became acquainted with the doctrines taught by this people, by reading and by means of the finger alphabet. I continued to investigate them for about three months, when I felt convinced of the truth of those doctrines which have since become so beneficial to my temporal and eternal welfare. On the 22d September, I had been, by means of the deaf and dumb alphabet, conversing freely with some of the Saints, and had fully determined to be baptized that evening; therefore I expressed my desire to receive the ordinance of baptism, and was taken to the canal early on the morning of the 23d, and baptized in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; and upon my head emerging from the water, I heard the voices of persons upon the towing path, and this was the first sound I had heard since my deprivation upon the island of Bermuda, in 1843. With my hearing came also my speech, and the first words that I uttered were—"Thank the Lord, I can speak and hear again as well as any of you." I scarcely need state my own surprise at the moment, but such it was, and it appears marvelous in my own eyes, not that God is possessed of such power, but that he should manifest it in my behalf. I have much cause to praise him and glorify his holy name, for in obedience to his divine commands, I not only receive the remission of my sins, which I esteem above all earthly blessings, but also the removal of my deafness and dumbness; and now I can hear as distinctly and speak as fluently as I ever did, although I had been deprived of both these faculties, for upwards of five years not being able to hear the loudest noise, or to use my tongue in speech.

There is a mistake in the Merlin of the date of my landing at Bermuda: it should have been 1843 instead of 1840. The same error appeared also in the STAR, No. 22, vol. 10, and which was caused by extracting the account from that paper.

The following individuals are witnesses to my baptism:—

HENRY NAISH, JOHN ROBERTS, JOHN WALDEN, } M. of the Church.
JANE DUNBIN, THOMAS JONES, JACOB NAISH, } Non-Members.

SEVERAL CASES OF MIRACULOUS HEALING.

Jehovah and Son's effectual cure for Cholera, and all other diseases of the body.

Take one-spoonful of consecrated oil: mix with it half a grain of pure faith. This taken or administered in the name of Jesus Christ, will prove one of the most pleasant, safe, and effectual remedies.

The above medicine was established as the best and surest remedy for removing leprosy and restoring the blind their sight, the deaf their hearing, the dumb their speech, and for casting out devil's, &c., by Jesus of Nazereth and his apostles; and we unhesitatingly bear our testimony, that during 1800 years, it has retained all its restoring and healing power. In proof of which we select the following few testimonies out of thousands:—

St. Heliers, July 23d., 1849.—Sister Elizabeth Wyatt was seized with cholera, violent purging, vomiting, cramp, &c., in great agony. Elders Treseder and De la Mere were in attendance, applied the above mixture, and she was immediately restored, and attended chapel the same evening.

Witnesses,
RICHARD TRESEDER,
PHIL. DE LA MERE,
JAMES WYATT.

St. Heliers, August 5.—Sent for to visit brother Feron's child. Found her raving in a strong fever. Administered to her. The fever left, and her senses returned five minutes after. Next morning she was running about the doors.

Witnesses,
JOHN FERON,
THERESA FERON.

St. Heliers, Tuesday Morning, August 14.—Sent for to go and see brother George Allan. Found him laying on the floor, where he had been rolling about all the morning with cholera and the usual effects. I administered a dose of the above mixture, and he sat down and took a hearty breakfast along with me: went to his work as smith, the same day.

Witnesses,
SISTER ALLAN,
SISTER FERRIS.

Goray, August 23.—Brother Parchot De la Mothe, fisherman, (three days baptized) was put ashore very ill. We administered the never failing dose. He was instantly restored, went a quarter of a mile on the road rejoicing and bearing testimony to the truth.

Witnesses,
JOHN DUHAMEL,
FRANCIS KIRKBY, and many others.

St. Heliers, Wednesday Morning, August 29.—Brother William Wakly came for me to go and see his wife (not in the church,) she had been seized with the cholera the night before. When I saw her, she was in a deplorable condition. Purging, vomiting, cramp, body quite black, could feel no pulse, and eyes as if set for death. I administered as usual, and the cramp became less violent immediately, and the other symtoms gradually decreased. I considered it wise to send for a doctor: he came, examined her, and said my good man your wife will die, you have been too late of applying. He went away, ordering some medicine; I told brother Wakly to continue rubbing her with oil. Called next morning, found her natural color and heat returned, pulse well. She bore testimony that she was healed by the power of Jehovah. She continues to recover.

Witnesses,
W. C. DUNBAR,
WILLIAM WAKLY.

NOTICE.—A dose taken occasionally, according to circumstances, will greatly strengthen the appetite, increase muscular energy, and give a cheerful tone to the whole system.

CAUTION.—Beware of Satan and Co's spurious imitations. None are genuine but those marked with the following inscription, (Having Received Authority.) To be had gratis, by applying to any elder of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in all the principal towns of England, Scotland, Wales, United States, also Society Islands, and Great Salt Lake Valley; we expect shortly to have agents in every part of the world. Agent for Jersey and Channel Islands. W. C. DUNBAR.

Original.

Ordinances.

Among the multitude of questions that we Mormons, have to answer an inquiring public; the following is among the most prominent. What benefit is to be derived from obedience to ordinances? We would refer the reader to any location on earth, where there is a regular organized government; it matters not whether social, political or religious, the referee will find upon examination a constitution embodying stationary laws and ordinances regulating its subjects.

An ordinance, according to Noah Websters definition, is: A rule established by authority; a permanent rule of action. An ordinance being a rule established and that permanent, adding to, or diminishing from it, would destroy its virtue, and power, and make it of no effect. On the other hand, if obeyed in its purity, it becomes the medium of security to the subject.

This theory and its advantages, are clearly developed on the pages of our national constitution, thus, a foreigner, although on American soil, is excluded from enjoying the liberty and privileges, secured to a naturalized citizen, until he submit to the order of our government established for that purpose. What causes this difference? The ordinances.

If governments on earth, are empowed, regulated, and kept in order by laws and ordinances, the government and governed securing to themselves mutual benefit thereby, we know of no other method, that the kingdom of Heaven could retain its stability and order, but upon the same basis; although perhaps diverse in its administration, respecting the laws and ordinances.

It is written, that the invisible things of God from the creation of the world, are clearly seen, being understood by things that are made, even his eternal power and godhead, so that the heathen are left without excuse, and whatsoever was written aforetime was written for our profit and learning, &c. The Apostle Paul writing to his Corinthian brethren on a certain occasion, praises them for keeping the ordinances pure, as they were delivered unto them. Israel of old, during their travels in the wilderness, was severely chastened for departing from the odinances of their God. Through Joseph Smith, the prophet and seer of the last days, is written: "Without the ordinances, and the authority of the holy priesthood, the power of godliness, is not made manifest unto men in the flesh."

The inhabitants of Jerusalem and vicinity in the days of the Nazerene, as a nation rejected his authority, laws and ordinances, and finally slew him, for which their remnant unto this day are suffering under the displeasure of the Almighty. The reader can easily perceive from the tenor of the remarks advanced, that ordinances are of vital importance when obeyed from the heart, under the administration of a servant of the most high, duly authorised for that purpose. Innumerable illustrations could be furnished to bear upon this subject from sacred and profane history, but will let the present suffice. We conclude our remarks, by saying, that in the wise economy of Him who rules on high, the priesthood after the order of the Holy One, has been re-instated again on this earth with full power to administer in the name of Jesus of Nasareth with the laws and ordinances of the gospel of peace, that its blessings and privileges may be fully enjoyed by those, who feel in their hearts to obey the royal mandates of the King of Glory.

Appearances.

Trust not to appearances. If thou meet est a poor man, or beggar, by the wayside, think him not evil because he is poor, or base because he seeketh charity at thy hands, who is he that knoweth the day, though he be now rich and proud, when he may become poor and a beggar. Remember the misfortunes and infirmities which follow us all, and do that for the misfortunate whom thou meetest to-day, which to-morrow may become thy own necessity. And if misfortune come to thee asking charity, clothed in rags, or with haggard brow, spurn it not, for thou knowest not the spirit it may encompass—thou knowest not but it is a messenger sent of God to test thy spirit, and that in entertaining it, thou entertainest an angel in disguise.—[N. Y. Sun.

"My wife has made my fortune," said a gentleman of great possessions, "by her thrift, prudence and cheerfulness, when I was just beginning."

"And mine has lost my fortune," answered his companion bitterly, "by useless extravagance, and repining when I was doing well."

What a world does this open of the influence which a wife posseses over the future prosperity of her family! Let the wife know her influence, and try to use it wisely and well.

Do all the good you can, and make but little noise about it.

Apothecaries are more conscientious people than many imagine—as they often have weighty scruples about dealing out their doses.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE,.....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,...Printer.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1850.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail, will be at the risk of those who send it.

End of Volume 1.

This number closes the first volume of the "Frontier Guardian;" and with this sheet, we tender our best wishes to our subscribers and patrons, hoping that we may not have given just cause of offence to any. It has been our wish and our aim to promote just and amicable feelings,—feelings of friendship and good-will among all those who were that way disposed; and if we have failed to effect this, it has not been for want of a disposition, but for want of skill and ability. But we are all the time learning human nature, and hope to become more and more expert in touching those strings that vibrate with no uncertain sound.

Friends, will you try us another year? We will promise to put the "best foot forward," and serve you according to the style and order of the day—according to the signs of the times, and according to the encouragement which we receive from you. We know that you appreciate the value of a press up in this part of the world, just at the "jumping off place," and we are confident of your most cordial support. We think that we can be a benefit to you, and we know that you can be to us. Suppose then, that you all agree to take the Guardian another year, and just cash over in advance? This will put us beyond the reach of duns, and you also, so far as this paper is concerned. We await your generous action in response to this invitation.

Corn and Hay Wanted,

At this office, on subscription for the Guardian if brought immediately.

Receipts of Monies.

With the commencement of the Second Volume, we intend to acknowledge through the Guardian the receipt of all monies remitted to us or paid us on subscription for this paper. This will be more satisfactory to the majority that pay us money, than any other way, and it will save us the trouble of writing many letters, and save our correspondents some postage.

A Word to the Wise.

We are placed here to give counsel to the Church in the States, and to act as an agent, in many things, for the Church in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake. Any document from that place, executed by the proper authorities of the Church, and addressed to us, will meet with the most prompt attention that our circumstances and ability may allow us to give it. It cannot be expected, neither would it be a safe principle for the Council here to lend all their aid and influence to sustain and carry out a measure that would effect the whole Church here and also at the Salt Lake Valley, upon verbal testimony only, when the authorities there can as easily write as speak. If men coming from the Valley to this section, have received their orders there verbally, the fault is theirs if they do not execute them in the regions where they are sent. But if any particular move is required of us in Pottawatamie we expect to see that requisition in writing from under the hands of the Presidency of the whole church; until we see that, we cannot feel authorized to digress from our former written instructions, however respectfully we may regard the verbal testimony of individuals. Instructions and commandments given to Br. Thos. S. Johnson by word of mouth in the Valley, are not commandments to the authorities of the Church here. We consider it in due season for us to lend our aid and influence in favor of any measure, after we get positive instrustions to do so. Before the Council here could say to the people as Br. Johnson did, that every person who could raise enough to cross the Plains, and barely have provisions enough to last him to the Valley, even if he should have nothing to purchase with when he arrived there, ought to go, and that he would take the responsibility of providing for them. However charitable and benevolent his feelings might have been, the Council could not feel to rely upon his responsibility without the concurrent testimony of the Church in the Valley, which was daily looked for by our last mail. He might have been right, and he might have been wrong: We did not know until the mail came through, but that if we should send a great many poor people, it might prove disastrous to them and ruinous to the settlement. We considered that a little cool calculation would be better and safer than an extravagant zeal and heated words which were altogether unneccessary; for if we were not officially instructed to crowd the emigration faster than its natural current, no individual zeal, however burning, could influence us to do it. Since the mail has arrived, we learn, by various letters, and by the testimony of some thirty or forty men, that they will be prepared to receive all the emigrants that we can send there, rich and poor together. Well, God be thanked for their prosperity in the wilderness. If there is fertility enough in any soil to produce a living, the Mormons are just the folks that will have it! We would say, however, that we do not believe that those in the Valley can give away their eatables without a compensation,—take therefore, all that you can to buy with; and it is our opinion that a few extra groceries—a few barrels of flour, and several odd things in the eating line, would be no serious detriment to any poor person after he arrives there, to last him while he can situate himself in a house, and prepare to labor for more. But up for the Valley! While the tide and current flow, push off your boat,—dash over the sea of prairie, and land in your desired haven.

Our Exchange List.

This has already reached a number far beyond our need. Editors have certainly manifested a generous disposition towards us,—they have sent us their weekly for our semi-monthly; and in some cases, thrir tri-weekly. If the Government will send us a weekly mail, we will try to pay our respects to our Editorial friends a little oftener.

Gatherings.

The friends abroad throughout the States will do well to gather to this point as early in the Spring as they can. Those who are able had better drive stock here; young cattle, cows, oxen, and good young mares to take to the Valley. Sheep should also be driven. Who will take a good carding machine there, or every thing pertaining to it excepting the wood work? Young cattle are as good property as can be brought to this place, or as can be taken to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake.

Come early to this place, and if you are unable to go on, you will be in time to put in crops; and if you are able to go on, you may start with the first companies. Let all prepare that can, and be off to the Valley: But we want every nook, corner and field, put into spring grain before you start. It will probably be a forward Spring, and much small grain may be put in during the month of March.

The first company will probably leave here for the mountains about the first of May—one about the middle of May—one about the 1st of June, and one about the 15th day of June—none later. Every company of emigrants will have experienced guides—who know the route—who know the Indians, and who well understand the mode and manner of traveling on the plains.

Accusers of the Brethren.

By letters that we receive from various sources, we learn that the followers of Strang, Brewster, Wm. Smith and several other strange accusers of the Saints, are becoming cloyed and sick of the kind of food that has been given them for the last five years: And as the Saints have not been destroyed by the Indians nor by the crickets as they predicted—nor have their bones bleached upon the prairies as they declared they would; the poor things are getting weak in the faith, and seeing the prosperity of the good folks in the Valley, they are becoming restless and uneasy at their own condition. They have also seen that the desperate and wicked efforts of their leaders to convince the United States' that we are their sworn enemies, has had no effect—has not made "one hair white or black"—has not advanced them nor thrown us in the rear. The result is, that many of them intend coming here and going from here to the Valley in the Spring. They have tried hard to destroy us, yet if they have found repentance and will manifest it to us, we will forgive them, and ask our Heavenly Father to forgive them also. They have not injured us particularly; but the wound they sought to inflict upon us has fallen upon their own flesh and spirit.

To all whom it May Concern.

This is to certify before God and man—that we never took any oath, neither have we ever been brought under any covenant against the Government of the United States, as some vagabonds declare, who only profess the Mormon creed to bring disgrace and dishonor upon those who conscientiously follow its precepts. The crown which they could not place upon their own head, they seek to trample in the mire and filth. We know of no Mormon that has ever taken such an oath, or been brought under any such covenant. Neither do we know of one that ever intends to be.

If these vagabonds had said that we were combined against unjust and unlawful oppression, and against mobocracy by which we have suffered the loss of almost all things;—if they had said that we were combined to pray, and to teach our children to do the same, that a righteous judgment might come upon those who have shed the blood of the prophets, and who have sought our destruction, they would not have merited so severe a censure.

If the foregoing is not the truth, and the honest and undisguised sentiment, and feeling of our heart, then we are incapable of telling the truth upon any subject. If a nation fail to do its duty, the power that gave that nation birth, may chastise it. We say no more. Our yea is yea, and our nay is nay, touching this affair.

Slavery and the Mormons.

Why have not the Mormons said something about Slavery and the Wilmot Proviso in the Constitution of their New State of "Deseret?"

The answer is this: We view these questions as a prolific source of bitterness and strife, the agitation of which would tend to sour and alienate the feelings of our own people one against another; and that too, without any prospect of making "one hair white or black."

A mechanic has tools for executing all branches of his trade. It would not look well to see the joiner take his broad axe to bore a hole or an auger to plain a board. The Supreme Architect has a full set of tools in the shape of men for executing all his will; but he has never taken the Mormons to work up the knotty and cross-grained lumber of Slavery and the Wilmot Proviso. We are tempered to work in clearer stuff. Ye zealous partizans to these vexed questions, do your duty faithfully—clear your consciences and respect the wishes of your constituents. The hand of Providence invisibly guides the contest; and though its course may be through many a dark labyrinth, through many a rugged and thorny defile tinged with crimson, it is certain to bring about a wise and glorious purpose; and the slave owner and the Abolitionist will both confess: "True and righteous are thy ways, thou King of Saints." The Mormons will try to act well their part in the great drama; and it is hoped that they may not be forced into any work or contest that they do not feel has been assigned to them.

KANESVILLE ASSEMBLIES.—Being present at two of these harmless, yet unsurpassing recreations, we have formed the idea that the cream of the season is gently flowing on the top. All who would desire to participate may expect at the hands of the managers and guests the highest degree of decorum, good society, mutual friendship, intermingled with the best feeling.

Ferry at the Mouth of the Platte.

By a well timed suggestion of Maj. Barrow, the Indian Agent, the Commissioners of Pottawatamie county might do well to withhold a ferry license from any and every person that has designedly violated the intercourse law, by the sale of whisky to the Indians. We would further suggest that any ferry license granted by said Commissioners to ferry across the Missouri river, should be forfeited upon evidence that any whisky traffic was carried on by or through it with the Indians. The commissioners will doubtless give these things all due consideration before they grant any licence. We are in for good order and good regulations between white and red men on this frontier. We have suffered enough by the Indians being induced to come on this side by unprincipled whisky sellers. We believe that the Mormons cannot be charged with this offence; yet if any of them are guilty of it, we are bound to give them credit for their works.

Administration of Law.

In the above matters we only claim the voice of an humble citizen. Our county is legally organized, so far as the organization has been gone into; and it has been so acknowledged at Iowa City, and a county seal has been sent to us, and orders concerning the revenue which has been duly collected, and is in reserve, we are told, in the treasury, ready to be paid over to the proper source. Why then should some few individuals elect a magistrate in an unlawful way, and why should that magistrate presume to act in an official capacity, execute papers, cause property to be seized and sold in the face of the Statute—in the face of a legally and duly elected and qualified magistrate? To say nothing of the penalty to which a man subjects himself under those circumstances, it would seem that he must be greatly beside himself, and on the borders of reckless desperation.

So far as we are concerned, or to express our own views and sentiments, we should advise no under current operations or vexatious lawing, or any litigation where it can be reasonably avoided: But when it does become necessary—when justice and the rights and property of men call for the arm of the civil law to interpose, then let it interpose with a majesty and a power that every honorable man will sanction; and let threats of shooting and blood be regarded as the effusions of heated and foolish men who are not destined to an increase of power or influence, neither long to agree among themselves. We do not wish to offend, unnecessarily, any citizen, but to move calmly and deliberately in all matters that we undertake, and at the same time with decision and firmness. We could not end the proposition to elect a judge and to have a judiciary here, however desirable, from the fact that we did not believe that our action would be sustained by the higher courts or by the legislature. We believe that the legislature acted with much unfounded prejudice against us, and that they did us injustice—and instead of their acting with a liberality towards us that seldom fails to secure good will, they indulged a feeling that can never elevate a lawmaking body to the highest point of honor, in our opinion. Still, if they cut us short of the judiciary, (which they did,) we would rather pocket the inconvenience a while longer and hobble along in our crippled conditioned, than to take any illegal step. Anger cannot last forever, except in the bosom of fools; and believing the legislature of Iowa to be composed of wise men, their anger and prejudice must sooner or later give place to justice

The Whigs in that body acted the part of the Good Samaritan. To their praise be it spoken, and we hope never to give them cause to regret the stand they took in favor of Pottawatamie.

We go in, as we ever have, for sustaining the organization of Pottawatamie county, so far as that organization has been effected; and we trust that our patience will last till the legislature get cool on the subject, and become as ready to grant us our constitutional rights as they would have been if we had voted the Democratic ticket which vote was earnestly solicited by runners from that party.

The Poor.

On Saturday the 12th inst., according to previous appointment, the citizens of Kanesville, again exhibited their noble and generous spirit, by contributing many good things to comfort and cheer the hearts of the poor of this place. About 8 o'clock, A. M., the pies, tarts, chickens, sandwiches, &c., began to make their appearance, with other necessaries calculated to adorn the table, please the eye, gladden the heart, and cheer the soul of man.

At 12 o'clock, arrangements were entered into by the Bishop and the Committee of Arrangements to have the table spread and the guests seated; this being done, at 2 o'clock, P. M., the company partook of the sumptuous fare to their entire satisfaction. During the evening they had the privilege of participating in the dance. Refreshments were served at intervals, and we must say that the wine was excellent, and what made it still better, it was of home manufacture. The whole affair came off to the entire satisfaction of all present. The managers deserve great credit for the manner in which they conducted the festivity. "Blessed is he that considereth the poor, the Lord will deliver him in a day of trouble."

Raisins.

We have just been presented with a most beautiful cluster of fresh raisins by Messrs. Needham & Ferguson. They are truly excellent and fresh, call at the "Hive" and examine for yourselves.

Law Regulating Newspapers.

By the decisions of the higher courts, which decisions are considered as the common law of the land regulating newspapers, it is made the duty of the subscriber to notify the publisher, if he wishes his paper discontinued, before the first term for which he subscribed expires. In case of neglect to do this, he becomes legally responsible for another year's subscription if the Editor thinks proper to send him the paper. The publisher is not bound to discontinue a paper till all arrearages are paid up. It is at his option whether to do it or not under such circumstances. Where a man subscribes for six months and pays in advance, he sometimes lets it run, and receives the papers for eight or ten months, and then notifies the Editor that he wishes to discontinue with the first six month's subscription, without pay. This is not right. If he receives one number over the time for which he subscribed, and has not notified a discontinuance and paid up all arrearages, he becomes legally bound for the next term, or until he pays up what may be behind. In case a subscriber remove from one place to another, and fails to give notice to the publisher of the change, he is not released from responsibility though he receive not his paper by reason of such removal.

Our agents will please remember these items.

To Emigrants.

Salt Lake and California Emigrants may depend upon finding heavy stocks of goods in the Kanesville market. Our merchants, having had two years' experience in ascertaining the natural wants of emigrants to the above places, are preparing themselves to meet the demand of this coming Spring's emigration; and our farmers are preparing their wheat for Flouring. The mildness of the winter will leave a large surplus of produce in the country, most likely; and it will be remembered that those emigrants that went on last year through this place, had very little cholera or any other kind of sickness, in comparison with those who took a more southern route. Pass along this extreme northern route, and but few graves will be found along the line, but the graves on the more southern routes are not few nor far between. This should be remembered, and every emigrant should keep as far to the north as possible; for this is a fact that cannot be contradicted in truth, and if emigrants pay that regard to their health which they ought, they will keep up in as high a northern latitude as they possibly can, particularly at the point where they cross the Missouri river.

Domestic Law and Self-Constituted Administrators.

The above order of things may serve very well under certain circumstances where no other kind can be found. Bogus operations should be quelled. Yet we believe in giving the devil his due. No one in the county has been more diligent than we for the last year, we think, in trying to ferret out and break up the counterfeiting plans of some worthless and unprincipled men that have come to this region for that purpose; and since the bubble has burst and the machine brought to light, Mulholland, on whose premises it was found, declared that it was one that belonged to us which he held in security for $500, that he claimed to have lent us. We do not deem this false and wicked declaration worthy of comment, as the court and community here, both saint and sinner, have all the reason they want to know that it was a cunning falsehood.

However bad, men may be, we cannot endorse the system of confiscation, even of the property of a wicked man; and more particularly when that system of confiscation is enforced beyond the immediate limits of the guilty party. It would look rather better to apply to the legal officers of the county for process, than for a few men in a neighborhood to make a magistrate illegally, have process issued against property, sell the same, when that property may belong to an innocent and unoffending man. This looks too much like Satan rebuking sin, and as though some men would like to promote such flare-ups for the sake of having a show of plausibility for grasping something that is not their own, neither their due. Such proceedings are calculated to give the place where they are done a most unenviable notoriety. The great beauty of correcting an evil is, to do it in a way that shall not create a greater evil than the one you seek to correct.

We have just received a new paper, published at Greencastle, Pa. We will write its name; but we are not without our fears that we might break our jaw if we should attempt to pronounce it. It is not exactly the fever and ague, though it produces a chill when we think of its Editor who was Mr. Rigdon's right hand man until Mr. R's. virtue set him crazy. But the name! Coacontague—No! "Conococheague Herald." We have tried to pronounce it until our tongue feels like a cork screw. But our devil has just explained the whole affair. He says it is the grand key word that Rigdon introduced in his memorable sermon from these words: "Ye shall see as ye are seen, and know as ye are known," delivered near Chambersburg. The Herald is published by Ebenezer Robinson & Co., and is of the milk and water order, if we have translated its head correctly.

Tell us, ye wise men who come "to act Politically;" Will Democracy or mobocracy set up an independent standard in Pottawatamie County, or will the two join? Bodies possessing similar properties, commonly unite with the more readiness.

Mouth of the Great Platte River.

Near the mouth of the above stream, on the East side of the Missouri river, a town is destined to be built up. A ferry is about being established there, and the emigration will cross there most likely this coming season, as the route has been surveyed from the Mouth of the Platte to the point where it will intersect the road leading from Old Fort Kearney, on the Missouri river to New Fort Kearney at the head of Grand Island, and found to be good. By this route on the south side of the Great Platte River, the Elk Horn and the Loup Fork of the Platte will be avoided. Both of which are difficult, streams to cross, particularly the latter which is not only difficult, but dangerous for those who are unacquainted with it.

Our men who have journeyed up and down the Platte, on both sides, several times, recommend decidedly, the route south of the Platte. To avoid the crossing of the two rivers before mentioned, it is decided that our emigration cross the Missouri a little below the mouth of the Great Platte River. Goods destined for the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, and coming up the Missouri river, should be landed and stored at that point, where we learn that commodious storehouses are in progress of erection. Kanesville is the point that has the capital and facilities which must necessarily make it the rallying point for emigrants to get and complete their outfits for two or three years to come. By that time, we shall expect to see some passes towards making a Railroad about the mouth of the Platte.

We have noticed that merchants more frequently place their coarser goods, and goods of ordinary and inferior qualities directly before the eyes of the multitude, and sometimes, almost in the way of your feet; while their finer and more valuable fabrics are mostly concealed in drawers, and are not shown unless especially inquired for.

MORAL.—When you see a young lady or a young gentleman very forward in company, and meet you with a loud laugh, with a loud and careless sentence whereever you chance to come in contact, you may take it for granted that such persons are in market at a low price, because they are inferior in quality and dull of sale.

Who will keep wood for steamers on the banks of the Missouri river, in Pottawatamie county?

We learn that cholera was still raging in Chihuahua, Oct. 13, and that in the previous twenty days 750 cases had proved fatal. Among the American population there had been almost a total exemption from that raging disease.

Tallow.—Cash will be paid for tallow at this office.

KANESVILLE ELOCUTION ASSOCIATION.—This body met at the "Hall" on Wednesday evening last, and held forth in a style that furnished amusement for the crowded audience that attended until about ten o'clock at night. We must say, that for new beginners, they performed most admirably. We have seldom seen old experienced hands do better. If you wish to treat yourselves to the most bounteous dish of laughter that you can imagine, just pay over your quarter, and come and take a peep at "dem niggers da." They are to hold forth this evening, we are told, in this place, and onward from time to time. We hear that they have several new pieces, and will give us their usual variety.

Hemp.

Suppose that some of our enterprizing farmers embark in the raising of hemp. Their soil is good, and we believe, well adapted to the growth of the article; and it commands cash at a liberal price.

Weather.

On Saturday, 18th inst., we were visited with a heavy fall of snow. In some parts where it drifted it is two or three feet deep. Its average depth is about 10 inches. Until now we have had a very agreeable and pleasant winter, and still anticipate an early spring, or would wish to have it so. It is excellent sleighing.

Pay the Printer in Advance.

It is very gratifying so see the list of subscribers to the Guardian swelling into consideration and importance: But unless there is punctuality on their part in paying in advance, we shall have as little pleasure at being congratulated upon our success, as Hannibal had when his generals congratulated him upon the victory he achieved over the Romans in Italy, after having lost the flower of his army in the action. "Ah!" exclaimed the Carthagenian, "Another such a victory would ruin me." It is expected that those subscribers who are anxious to sustain a press in this upper country, will manifest their anxiety in a shape that speaks their continued good will towards it; and all who feel interested in the cause which it advocates, are invited to subscribe and pay in advance for the second volume. Brethren, Friends, and fellow citizens! take the Guardian, and forward us your money. This will make greatly to our advantage, and we will labor diligently to make it to your advantage also.

Things for Congress.

Will the Government of the United States ask William Smith, who says that the Salt Lake Mormons are sworn enemies to the Government, where he was at the time these Salt Lake Mormons raised five hundred men at the request of said Government for the public service during the war with Mexico? Or ask him where he expects to be when trouble may gather over the nation again? It is one thing to show patriotism on paper in time of peace, and it is another thing to show it in time of war by deeds of noble daring when your wife and children are left in an Indian country, in a tent or in a wagon, with only ten days provision, perhaps. Has not the Government eyes, and shall it not see?

Dissolution of the Union.

In a long and carefully prepared editorial in the Richmond Whig, under the head, "Abolition in the District of Columbia," the editor solemnly declares, that in his opinion, the Union will be instantaneously dissolved, upon the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia. His own words are as follows:

"With a full knowledge, therefore, of the responsibility which attaches to him who ventures prophecy upon a matter of so much moment, as the overthrow of an empire—without designing to speak any word which may by possibility be construed into a threat—with all the calmness of which our nature is susceptible, and after all the reflection which the weight of the subject seems to demand—we do declare it as our unalterable opinion, that the success of this step will be followed instantaneously by a dissolution of the Union."

Upon this subject, the editor represents the Southern mind as fixed and unalterable as the decrees of destiny, and that in spite of all considerations, it is deliberately resolved to dissolve the Union, in case the small District, in which the Temple of American Freedom stands, shall be redeemed from the curse and disgrace of slavery. Speaking of the people of the slave States, he says:

"But their sentiments upon certain points are as fixed and unalterable as the decrees of destiny itself, and upon no other more decidedly than upon this, the most important of all. It is a matter of small consequence whether they be right, or whether they be wrong. Argument in such a case is of no avail. Rhetoric falls coldly upon the ears of those whose minds are already made up. It is useless to preach to them of consequences; to represent the value of the Union: to depict the results which would spring from its disruption—to dwell upon the deplorable condition, in which it would inevitably involve all quarters of the country. All these things they have deliberately and maturely weighed; and have made up their minds to the crisis, in spite of them all."

CASH PAID FOR LAND WARRANTS.

ORSON HYDE Will pay cash for Land Warrants, and the highest market price, if they are offered soon at his office in Kanesville.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1849.

WANTED.

TO engage one hundred good young men as teamsters to go through to the Valley. They can have their board and a reasonable amount of luggage hauled for them. This will be a fine chance for young men that wish to go to the Valley or to the Gold mines this Spring. Enquire at this office.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

STRAYED.

FROM the subscriber last April, a HEIFER one year old of a light red color, with a little white across her shoulder and loins, and a round white spot on her right flank. Any person giving information to the subscriber, so that she may be obtained shall be rewarded by

JOHN W. BELL.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.—2t

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that I, the undersigned have obtained from the Judge of Probate Court, of Pottawatamie county, letters of administration upon the estate of John W. Strode, deceased, bearing date Dec. the 11, 1849. That all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against said estate, are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate; and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred.

PIUS SAPPINGTON, Administrator.

KEG CREEK MILLS FOR SALE.

THE subscribers, wishing to remove in the Spring to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, offer for sale their new SAW AND FLOURING MILLS, providing they can sell within one month, otherwise they do not wish to sell at present, for that would break into the arrangements for next Fall. The mills and the seat are decidedly the best in this Western country. Call and examine for yourselves.

The buildings, machinery, and location, are well worth the attention of any person or persons, intending to enter that line of business, and will be offered at a rate to justify any person that wishes to invest capital. They can also be bought cheaper now, than four weeks hence.

We will take one third in cattle, the balance cash.

JOSEPH W. COOLIDGE & CO.

Keg Creek Mills, Jan. 23, 1850.—2t

VALUABLE MILL SITE AND FARM FOR SALE.

BY the subscriber situated on Keg Creek, about six miles from the New Ferry near the mouth of Platte river, and near the main road from Kanesville to St. Joseph, Mo. The Mill site is considered she best in the county, with every facility for erecting a grist and saw mill and other machinery, there is an abundance of water at all seasons of the year. There is a plenty of Limestone on the premises. The farm consists of one hundred and sixty acres of land one house and other accommodations. As the subscriber designs emigrating to the west this season he offers the above, together with a pair of mill-stones for sale. For further particulars enquire of the subscriber at Coonville, on Keg Creek.

ELIJAH ALLEN.

Coonville, on Keg Creek, Jan. 23, 1850.—3t

IRON.

A choice lot of tire and band iron, for sale at this office. jan23

TWENTY DOLLARS REWARD.

WAS stolen from Nauvoo, on the 26th of October last a dark chesnut colored PONEY, about 14 hands high, supposed to be 8 or 9 years old, star in his forehead, long switch tail; mane and foretop trimmed square, some white spots on his right shoulder occasioned by hurts from collar—a hole or cork mark on the front of his right hind foot. Any person finding said pony and returning him to the owner will receive the above reward.

MICHAEL FISCHER.

Nauvoo, Jan. 23, 1850.—1t

SHEETINGS—15000 yards heavy sheetings for sale low by [jan23] C. VOORHIS & CO.

PRINTS—6000 yards prints, a splendid assortment, at [jan23] C. VOORHIS & CO.

ALAPACAS AND DELAINS—new styles at jan23 VOORHISS.

SHAWLS! SHAWLS! SHAWLS!—a large lot at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

GINGHAMS—Every variety, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

BROADCLOTHS, SATTINETS AND CASSIMERES—at [jan23] VOORHIS.

DRILLS—Blue, brown and white, at jan23 VOORHIS.

SHIRTINGS—Bleached and unbleached, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

FLANNELS AND LINSEYS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

HATS AND CAPS—Latest styles for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

BOOTS AND SHOES—1500 pairs for sale low by [jan23] VOORHIS.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY—at jan23 VOORHIS'.

HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—A large assortment, at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

AXES—Collin's, Simmon's and Nanson's axes at jan23 VOORHIS'.

GLASS AND QUEENSWARE—for sale low by [jan23] VOORHIS'.

COFFEE, SUGAR AND RICE—at jan23 VOORHIS.

TEAS—Imperial, gunpowder, young hyson and black teas, at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate article, at jan23 VOORHIS.

DRIED APPLES AND PEACHES—for sale by [jan23] VOORHIS.

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

CANDLES—Sperm, star, adamantine and tallow at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

VINEGAR—Cider vinegar, for sale at jan23 VOORHIS.

MOLASSES—Sugar house, for sale at jan23 VOORHIS.

STOVES—Premium and empire, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS'.

POWDER, LEAD AND CAPS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

LEATHER—A large lot, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

CANDIES AND ALMONDS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

UMBRELLAS—A good article at jan23 VOORHIS.

WINES AND LIQUORS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

TUBS AND BUCKETS—Wash tubs and painted buckets at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

SPADES AND SHOVELS—For sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

BROOMS, BROOMS—New brooms, at jan23 VOORHIS.

CASTINGS—All kinds for sale low by jan23 VOORHIS.

FLOUR—Superfine flour, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

IRON—Well assorted at jan23 VOORHIS.

1850.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

SALERATUS—A little more left of the first quality, at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

APPLES—Dried, first rate article, warranted, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

DRIED PEACHES—A large quantity, good, to be sold very cheap at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

RAISINS—A rare article, just rec'd, from St. Louis, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

ALMONDS AND CANDY—to be had at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

SPICE AND PEPPER—Always on hand at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

SUGAR—Loaf and brown sugar, a good dry article, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SHEETINGS—1000 yards, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

HATS AND CAPS—New styles, call at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

AXES—Collins, warranted, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARDINES—A good article can be found at nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

CIGARS & TOBACCO—An assortment, just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVE PIPE—Just rec'd, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PRINTS—1200 yds, beautiful patterns, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BRANDY AND GIN—Best article, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BROOMS—A large supply, for sale cheap at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

COFFEE AND RICE—Best quality, for sale by jan22 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, sattinetts and cassimeres for sale at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

QUEENSWARE AND GLASSWARE—for sale at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—A large assortment, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

DRILLINGS—Blue, brown, and white, for sale by [23] NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SHIRTINGS—Bleached and unbleached, best quality, for sale cheap by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TEAS—Young Hyson, and Imperial teas, at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SHAWLS—Brosha, plaid and other varieties, at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

MOLASSES—Sugarhouse and N. O., for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SPADES AND SHOVELS—for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

FLOUR AND MEAL—for sale at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

FLANNELS—Red and white, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

ALAPACAS AND DELAINES—New styles for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GINGHAMS—A large lot, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1850.

"How Can ye, being Evil, Speak good Things!"

The following from the Warsaw Signal, we copy to shew our readers, that that scurrilious sheet teems still with falsehood and slander. It hurts us very much when we do wrong, and get openly rebuked for it; but when we are openly charged with wrong and are conscious of our innocence, we will resolve and be glad. This latter is our condition in relation to the following article.

Mr. Thomas C. Sharp is regarded by the Mormons as a murderer, and that his sin is of such a character that he cannot obtain forgiveness. We regard his sin as being a sin unto death, a sin which the apostle said, "I do not say that you shall pray for it."

As his sin is unto death, he must die to atone for it. Repentance and prayer will not bring absolution to him. They will be of no avail in his case if we view the subject correctly. The sin of Herod, of Ananias and Saphira, was unto death; but in some cases the penalty is mingled with too much mercy. Cain is an example of this kind who slew his brother Abel. The legal penalty was, "He that sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed. But poor Cain was denied this great favor of being killed, and a mark of cursed protection placed upon him, and who ever presumed to take vengeance on Cain, vengeance should be taken upon him seven fold; and for Mr. Sharp's comfort, we say that we think he has no occasion to be troubled; for the MARK OF PROTECTION is upon him, and no Mormon who understands himself for a moment, will condescend to show Mr. Sharp such a marked favor and kindness as to kill him. Let him, like Cain live to become frightened at his own shadow, to become nervous at his own reflections:—Let him fulfil the words of John, the revelator, when he is brought to a sense of his sin, that it is unto death. See Rev. ix—6. "And in those days, men shall seek death and shall not find it: and they shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them." Poor Thomas, may come it!" He must not kill himself, for this would make his condition still worse. Oh horrid reflection! a man that cannot stay in time, nor fly to eternity, nor stay half way between! Well might he exclaim, "fall on us ye rocks and ye mountains and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the Throne and from the wrath of the Lamb."

As we hope to avoid the above awful state, the article from the Signal is, so far as we are concerned, unqualifiedly false. We have no knowledge of any such scheme. But if we ever should set out on any such mission, we would not return without accomplishing it. But he need not fear; we do not like him well enough to perform such a service for him.

We will now state our opinion, in all soberness, of the origin of this said article. We employed that said Bill Hickman to ferret out a bogus press and a gang of Counterfeiters that were going into operation in our new and frontier county. He was partially successful in his undertaking. James H. Mulholland was one of the principal actors in the bogus business. Hickman intentionally leaked out some secrets which led rather to an expose, but having little or no law here, little more than a moral influence was then arrayed against him. It is our opinion that this said Mulholland wrote the letter that is the but end of this article, or some person connected with the counterfeiting operations here. They have paid their particular compliments to us and Hickman for our valuable services; and as Hon. Babbitt spoke in favor of our ferreting out such scoundrels, and expelling them from the country when he was here among us, they wish to show proper regard to him; and as it is said that Van Fleet took a load of bogus money off with him to sell, (he being connected with the gang) and has appropriated it to his own use, and not made honorable returns to the company, particular mention is made of him.

A part of the bogus machine has been found here in Mulholland's possession. He was arrested, tried and found guilty—held to bail in the sum of two thousand dollars before Justice Browning of this county—the bogus fixings have been broken as fine as the chaff of the summer threshing floor and Mulholland and his crew, in part, blown away by the gust of popular indignation. Now, wont the Signal man give us the name of the writer of that letter? It strikes us that he is obliged to, or become responsible himself. We are going down that way again soon, but not to kill Mr. Sharp, but we may inquire into this matter a little. We are not so flush with money as to give five hundred dollars for Tom Sharp's worthless scalp:

More Mormon Villanies.

We have been shown a letter addressed by Thomas C. Sharp, Esq., from a man intimately acquainted with the Mormons in the western part of Iowa, warning him of a scheme on foot among the leaders there, to assassinate several of the most objectionable Anti-Mormons in this county. The men named in the letter as being in the most danger are Messrs. T. C. Sharp, John McAsely, James W. Brattle, and Daniel Douglass, and the writer states that all these men, as well as others he does not name, have been threatened in such a manner as leads him to conclude that their lives are in danger.

He further states that he knows of Orson Hyde's having offered $500 to a villian of the name of Bill Hickman, to come down here and kill Sharp; and that the fellow did come down last fall, but returned without having accomplished his object—alledged as reason, that Sharp was sick at the time, and he could not get at him! He states further that there is now prowling about among us a man by the name of Van Fleet—with large bushy whiskers, and sandy complexion—who is on the same errand; and that Orson Hyde's mission to this region and to St. Louis recently, may have some connection with the same object. He also says that a certain Almon W. Babbitt, United States Mail Agent, and would-be Representative in Congress for the new State of Deseret—is the man upon whom they depend for information as to the whereabouts of their victims.

That Orson Hyde has been in this region we know, and that A. W. Babbitt was a month or so since, is also well known; but whether Van Fleet has yet made his appearance is uncertain. It would be well, we opine, for this last personage not to show himself in Hancock County!

Many of our readers may honestly doubt whether it is the intention of the Mormon leaders to commit violence on the persons of these men; and it does require a good knowledge of Mormon character to believe it. But to those who know that emissaries were more than once sent to Missouri to assassinate Gov. Boggs, and that once he narrowly escaped with his life, and who know that the leaders among them now, were among the most unprincipled advisers and abettors of the Prophet then, the communications made in the letter referred to, will not be so very astonishing.

Let all assassins and aiders and abettors in assassination, beware!

Saul Among the Prophets, or Baalam Blessing Israel.

The following articles from the New York Herald, we copy for the amusement of our readers. We are sometimes treated with gravity—sometimes with contempt,—sometimes as scoundrels and villains—sometimes as human beings, and sometimes praised above our merit. But in the midst of all these conflicting opinions, whether they are encouraging or discouraging—whether they are for us or against us—whether they are respectful or disrespectful, sublime or ridiculous, grave or humorous. Our course is onward: Immortality and eternal life are our aim and object. The hope we cherish buoys us up under adverse circumstances; and as an enemy remarked: "The Mormons care nothing about death; if the get killed, the d—d fools think that they will go right straight to heaven." We are just fools enough to believe that very thing; but the D. D. which often stands for doctor of divinity, we omit:—but clear the track for James G. Bennett, of the Herald.

The New States and Territories—New Members and Delegates to Congress.

A feature of great interest in the next Congress, will be the number of members and delegates from the new States and Territories.

First of all, the Mormons in the Basin of the Great Salt Lake, have found time, in the intervals between their prayer meetings and their labors in cultivating wheat and potatoes, to organize a State government, the capital of which is the New Jerusalem, laid out on a large scale, and built of sun burnt bricks. They have erected a political platform, and appointed a delegate to Congress—Mr. A. W. Babbitt—who has crossed the Rocky Mountains and the great Plains, and is ready to report himself to the House on the first Monday in December next. His report will be curious and interesting. He is the organ of the Latter-day Saints, who, by pre-emption right—the organic law in the West—have assumed the sovereignty of the Great Basin, and defined the natural limits of a new State, covering an area ten times the surface of New York.

The history of the Mormon emigration to, and settlement at the Salt Lake, is one of the novelties of the age, and shows what a homogeneous community, by dint of hard labor, faith and prayer, may accomplish. The gay Cavaliers of Jamestown, the stern Puritans of Plymouth, the enthusiastic Huguenots of Carolina, the devotional Catholics of Maryland, established their respective colonies under great embarrassments; but the marvellous history and adventures of the Mormons, and their final settlement and success at the Great Salt Lake, have a parallel only in the wanderings of the Israelites from Egypt to the Promised Land. The romantic history of Captain John Smith is eclipsed by that of Gen. Jo Smith, and the sufferings of the colonists on James river were but pastimes compared with the trials and bad luck of the Mormons. That the simple and deluded followers of an ignorant impostor, driven from place to place, despoiled of all they possessed, and finally expelled, to take the chances among the "outside barbarians" of the buffalo country, should, within the space of three years, build up a thriving city and found a State a thousand miles beyond the frontiers of the backwoodsman, in the heart of a desert, from a narrative which has more the air of romance than of reality; but which is, nevertheless, as true as gospel. Such is a chapter in the history of the Latter-day Saints—such the people and circumstances under which the new city of Zion has arisen in the Valley of Jordan and on the borders of the Dead Sea of America.

Mr. Babbitt, the representative of this peculiar people, and the delegate from the new State of Deseret, will, doubtless, in his report to Congress, detail the trials and obstacles overcome by his constituents—the wonderful results of hard work and constant prayer—the miraculous preservation of the saints—and the astonishing prosperity of the Holy City. One incident in their history does approach the miraculous. The crops of the Mormons the first year were devoured by swarms of crickets, and a similar calamity the succeeding season would have reduced them to famine. But they had faith. They sowed their fields, and held their regular meetings for singing, thanksgiving and prayer. Their grain appeared above the ground, and the swarms of crickets returned. Ruin stared the colony in the face, when, one fine morning, a cloud of sea gulls came down from the Salt Lake, and fell upon the insects with the most astonishing success. Day by day the sea gulls returned, working faithfully among the crickets, till sunset, when the birds returned to the Lake. In a few months the crickets were destroyed. What has followed? A traveler, who inspected, during the last summer, a single field of wheat of ten thousand acres, estimates that it will average fifty bushels per acre. Thus much for the Mormons and the new State of Deseret.

The New State of Deseret—Wonderful Triumphs of our Free Institutions.

"The Desert and the solitary place shall be made glad, and the wilderness shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Thus speaks the prophet. We have no doubt that he forsaw the settlement of the Mormons in the Valley at the Salt Lake, and the gladness and rejoicing which follow the expansion of our American institutions. Before the war with Mexico, our wonderful prosperity in the arts of peace, excited the envy and admiration of the world; the war itself developed our possession of military talents, and resources still more surprising. The victories of Gen. Taylor fell upon the old monarchies like the first achievements of the "Little Corporal," and the marvellous exploits of Cortez were surpassed in the campaign of Gen. Scott, and in the bloody fields of the Valley of Mexico. The results of this war revived the republican spirit of Europe, and, by common consent, placed the United States in the front rank of the greatest powers of the earth.

But the results which have followed the restoration of peace, are greater still. The discovery of gold in vast quantities, over an extensive surface, will have changed, within a few months, a wilderness into a populous State, rapidly rising in all the elements of civilization, and commanding, at no distant day, the Asiatic and Mississippi cargoes of the swarming ships of the Pacific.

But most surprising and singular of all, is the successful colony of the Mormons. Driven from civilization by their fanatical follies, they set out upon the wild-goose chase of erecting a land of promise in the hitherto unknown Valley of the Great Salt Lake. Here, surrounded by mountains and deserts, a thousand miles from the frontier settlements of Missouri, they pitched their tents and went to work. Presto, change. A populous city springs up on the verge of the desert; the uninhabited valleys are teeming with crops of grain, and droves of fat cattle cover the plains. The music of machinery echoes in the mountain canones, and troops of Saxon children play upon the borders of the Lake. A populous city is there, and the sovereignty of a State encircles the Great Basin.

Such are the results of our liberal institutions. The colonies of Europe are of slow growth. They require all the official machinery and adjuncts of a long colonial servitude to rise to any importance, even as dependencies. No new State in Europe can be organized without first catching a King, Queen, Prince, or Pope. Not so with us. We acquire an unknown country. Emigrants from all parts of the world pour into it, and by their spontaneous action, the late wilderness springs at once into the sovereignty of a State, securing the possession of a good government and the protection of the whole Union. Such are the achievement of free institutions, as conducted by an intelligent people. Their influence is the leaven of the Canadian ferment—it is operating in Cuba, it is doing good in Mexico; it is "the leaven which is to leaven the whole lump." The cabinet which resists the spread of this influence is false to the country and the spirit of the age, and must be broken down.

The new State Deseret, comprising all the Great Basin, is a desert in its general character, though upon the borders of its numerous lakes and rivers along the mountains around it has some large slices of good land. It has, too, many other advantages. The Great Salt Lake lies within a labyrinth of mountains which abound in precious metals, gold among them; and it probably exists in all the mountain chains of the country, down to the Gila on the south, and west to the Sierra Nevada, their general geological character being identical. The Salt Lake is the overland half-way station to the Pacific, by the South Pass. With the erection of a railroad, it must become a depot of great importance. The manufacture of salt, which exists as rock salt in the mountains, as well as in the brine of the lake itself, may then be extended to the supply of half the world. The southern boundary of the Gila will give the State its only outlet to the sea by the Colorado and the gulf of California, and Congress should concede it.

The Mormons, while they do so well, should be protected and encouraged. The lands which they have located should be confirmed to them by Congress, and all other necessary measures passed to promote the prosperity of the new State. Success to trade! Success to the Saints and the new Jerusalem! The Lord be praised for all his mercies! Amen!

Important Invention.

We yesterday witnessed the operation of a small Saw Mill, constructed upon a new and singular principle — that of self-propulsion. The inventor is Mr. Amos Jackson, of Pottawatamie county, Iowa, who, in company with several of his brethren in the Mormon faith, are now in this city. Mr. Jackson has spent many years of toil, and large sums of money, in perfecting his invention, and our impression is that the method now presented will entirely supersede the mills now in use.

This mill is built in such a manner as to derive its entire propelling power from the weight of the log to be sawed, which he accomplishes in the following manner: the ordinary ways upon which the carriage travels, are fixed upon bearings that enter into the frame; the opposite ends are provided with large segments of a cog wheel working into a series of cog wheels and pinions: thus, it will be seen, that when the log is pushed forward to the saw, its weight is brought to act with great force through the segments, upon a shaft having several intermediate gearings to increase the speed sufficiently for driving the crank shaft. When we consider that the weight of saw logs is commonly six to eight thousand pounds, we may judge of the immense propelling power thus obtained, indeed, the fear is, that means will have to be used to check and regulate the velocity of the descending mass, as the segment describes its area. If the principle, when carried out answers anything like as well as the one we have witnessed, we cannot see what use there can be for steam, water, or any other power than that used by Mr. Jackson for saw-milling. Several years ago, while the invention was still incomplete, it was submitted to the Hon. H. L. Elsworth, then Commissioner of the Patent Office, who at once pronounced it the best means ever devised for sawing.

An important part of the invention consists in a new form of saw, whereby all setting is dispensed with. The toothed edge of Mr. Jackson's saw is made thick, and diminishing to the back, thus leaving all friction out of the question, and saving the setting. The price of these mills, we are informed, will be light, compared with others, and they can be attached to wheels for traveling through the country. Measures have been taken to secure a patent. The invention can be examined to-day at Mr. J. Ware's Patent Office Agency, 65 Second street. A mill on this principle will be in operation, in this city, in a few weeks.—[St. Louis Republican.

Let the slandered take comfort; it is only at fruit trees that thieves throw stones.

The North and the South.

When the late debate in relation to the admission of Father Matthew to a seat in the Hall of the Senate, was suddenly sprung upon that body, it took a wide range, and a good many unpalatable things were said upon both sides. Among others, Mr. Clemens the new member from Alabama, undertook to defend the South and the West from aspersions too frequently cast upon them, in relation to the state of society among them; and although some things which he says are too highly colored, the rebuke is not without its force. Mr. Clemens said:

The Senator from New York has spoken of his interference with the subject of slavery as a recommendation; and the Senator from New Hampshire adds that Father Mathew is not enough of an abolitionist for him. Both Senators claim that this officious intermeddling with the property and the rights of others is a very praiseworthy exhibition of Christian charity, and sympathy for the wrongs of the slave. I never doubted, sir, that such were the opinions of those gentlemen. Their acts for years past have been too unequivocal to admit of misconstruction. I know that the cruelties of the slaveholder and the sufferings of the down-trodden African, have formed the chief staple of all their discourses. Let me tell them that it would be well to look a little at home. There are at your own doors objects of charity enough without hunting for slaves upon whom to bestow it. There are at this very moment, in all your great cities, thousands of homeless wretches, destitute of food or raiment, and without a thought or an instinct that is not colored by crime. There are hordes of wretched females toiling by day and by night for a miserable pittance, which only adds to the horrors of starvation by protracting the agonies of the sufferer.

There are bands of little children to whom beggary has descended as an inheritance, and for whom State prison is a welcome asylum. Misery in all its forms—poverty in all its rags—sickness and starvation are around you; and yet, with a miserable hypocrisy you must travel away to the South, and waste your sympathies upon a population who are better clothed, better fed, who work less and live more happily, than four-fifths of yourselves. You compel a poor factory girl to perform an amount of labor which is not exacted for healthy and robust men by the planters of the South—seperate her from her friends and relations—allow no one to visit her without a written pass from an overseer, and all the while thank God that you are free from the curse of African slavery. Nay, more; you assume to be a better and a purer race. You unblushingly assert, on all occasions, that while the pistol and the bowie knife give law to the South, you are in the constant observance of moral and religious precepts. Sir, I admit with regret that there are occasional scenes of violence among us, and that sometimes we forget the value of human life; but our offences have always a touch of manliness in them. There are no petty larcencies—no outrages upon unprotected females—no midnight assassinations for money. When we stoop to imitate the brute creation, we take the lion, not the hyena, for our model. But, while I make the admission that we are not altogether free from crime, let me ask how stands the case with you? The city of New York alone furnishes more State prison convicts than the whole fifteen Southern States together. You tear down churches; burn up convents, inhabited by a few helpless nuns; get up processions in honor of a brutal prize-fighter; and raise riots at the bidding of a worthless player, in which scores of lives are sacrificed, without dreaming that there is any thing in all this unbecoming the descendants of the pilgrim fathers. Look at home, I say; correct your own iniquities, relieve your own sufferers, and then, but not till then, you may prate of the crime and misery which slavery engenders.

I regret, Mr. President, that this debate has sprung up. I regret still more the course it has taken—not, however, from prudential considerations; not because, as the Senator from Kentucky has intimated, it is imprudent to discuss matters in relation to slavery, but because this question must soon be met in another form, and I was willing to let it slumber till then. But I may as well now say that the time for prudential action is past. The disease is a desperate one, and requires desperate remedies. For one, sir, I yield no inch of ground—no, not one hair's breadth. Whenever this anti-slavery sentiment shows itself, whatever form it may assume, I am ready to do battle against it. The time for half measures has gone by. You must let us alone, or take the consequences.

Two Weeks Later from Europe.

HALIFAX, Friday morning, 6 o'clock.

The Cambria reached Halifax at 6 o'clock this morning, bringing Liverpool dates to the 15th.

It is said that Parliament will convene in the middle of January, to expedite business on the question of a reduction of the national expenditure. The reduction of the rates of discount by the Bank, is said to be the precursor of a rise in consols to par. The chancellor of the exchequer will lay before the holders of stock a proposal to accept a reduction of the rate of interest, which will save the country several millions.

The Queen Dowager Adelaide, died on the 3d, at fifty-eight years of age.

Another expedition is about being fitted out for Behring's Straits, in search of Sir John Franklin.

France.

Four hundred of the June insurgents arrived in Paris from Harve, having been liberated by the Attorney General. The elections that were to have taken place on the 4th, had been postponed to the 28th of January next. Ledru Rollin has issued a pamphlet, defending his conduct on the 13th of June. The pamphlet was seized, and proceedings instituted against the printer.

Orders have been sent to withdraw a portion of the army from Rome. Measures have been taken to improve the condition of the emancipated slaves. In the assembly a motion for abolishing the punishment of death for all offences had been rejected. In Lyons the Court Martial sentenced a number of the June insurgents to imprisonment for a term of years. The fortress of Gaeta having been repaired and armed with Pontifical troops, arrests continue to be made. The treasury of the triumvirate Cardinia is reported insolvent. No time is fixed for the return of the Pope to Rome.

Austria and Hungary.

The state of siege will be removed on the 1st of January. Affairs in Hungary continue unsettled. It is said that Metternich has written to an Austrian minister, declaring that the Austrian Monarchy cannot enjoy lasting peace, unless Hungary is maintained in its previous relations as a separate State. Thirteen recent condemnations have been commuted to hard labor for sixteen, eighteen, and twenty years. Notwithstanding the vigilance and precaution of the police, Kossuth medals have been introduced into Hungary. The Magyar patriots place an inestimable value upon them.

Prussia.

Prussia is increasing her fleet, and liberty has been granted for the exportation of bullion from the Russian Empire.

KANESVILLE MARKET.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 23, 1850.

Flour ₱ hundred,	$2 25@$2 50
Beef "	$2 50@$3 00
Sugar, ₱ lb.,	10c.
Coffee, "	12½c
Rice, "	5c.
Salt ₱ sack,	$3 50@$4 00
Tea, (various qualities,) ₱ lb.	60@$1 00
Molasses, S. H., per gal.	75
" N. O., "	60
Golden Syrup,	$1 00
Buckwheat Flour, ₱ lb.	02
Pork, (fresh,)	3@5c.
Bacon, ₱ lb.,	6c.
Lard, ₱ lb.	6@8c.
Candles,	15c.
Dried Apples, ₱ bush.	$1 50
Green " ₱ bbl.	$3 50
Dried Peaches, ₱ bush.	1 75
Raisins, (new) MR	25c.
Currants, (Zante)	20c.
Green hides, ₱ lb.,	2½c.
Dry do. "	4½c.
Iron, (tire,) "	6c.
" (assorted,)	6½c.
Potatoes, ₱ bushel,	37@40c.
Corn, "	20@25c.
Wheat, "	60@75c.
Oats, "	30c
Flaxseed, "	35c.
Onions, ₱ bush.,	50c.
Tallow, ₱ lb.	10c.
Butter, "	10c.
Cheese, "	8c.
Beeswax, "	16½c.
Honey, ₱ gallon,	$1 00
Eggs, ₱ dozen,	6c.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)

St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition; are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

MEDICINES! MEDICINES!

Just Received at the

EMPORIUM STORE,

Kanesville, Iowa.

10 dozen	Syrup Sarsaparilla;
10 "	London Mustard;
70 "	Inks, assorted;
6 "	Nerve and Bone Liniment;
6 "	Tooth Wash, assorted;
35 "	Tooth Powders;
3 "	Worm Syrup;
35 "	Vermifuge, assorted;
150 "	Court Plaster;
150 "	Pill Boxes;
6 "	Cough mixtures;
150 "	Pills, assorted, of every kind;
6 "	Cough Candy;
12 "	Childrens Cordial;
12 "	Cologne, assorted;
3 "	Cayenne in Phials;
12 "	Blacking;
2 "	Seidlitz, also tooth paste; balsam;

shaving cream, hair tonic, embrocations; lavender water; Beatties Remedies: antimonial wine; Rownes tonic mixture; Batemans drops; laudanum; paregoric; essence of life; British and Harlem oils; opodeldoc; bears oil; ox marrow; hair oils, all kinds; spirits nitre; hartshorn; syrup wild cherry and tar; Balsam of wild cherry; Cullins remedies; hair dye; headache snuff; ointments, all kinds; capsicune; venerial mixture; castor oil; sweet oil, turpentine; essences and drops of all kinds. Liberal deductions made to country dealers and Physicians.

☞ COME AND SEE.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 13th, 1849.

RAISINS! RAISINS!!

JUST received a large lot of Fresh Raisins "new crop," for sale by

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

KANESVILLE, Jan 9, 1850.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

TAKEN up by Andrew J. Stewart at the Old Agency in Pottawatamie county, nearly opposite the mouth of the Platte river, a STEER, described as follows, viz: Said steer is white in the face, with red around the eyes and cheeks, and his body red and white spotted There is the appearance of a brand on the left hip, and he is about four years old: prized at sixteen dollars.

T. BURDICK,

Clerk, Board of County Com.

Kanesville, Jan. 2, 1850.—3t*

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again!

MR. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Hollowware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high; in a word, we only want to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent;" for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN, at Brown & Millers store.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m*

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

GRAND EXHIBITION

AT THE

NEW STORE

OF

J. A. KELTING & CO.

Performances every day in the week—Sundays excepted.

Admittance Free—Children half price.

The subscribers are now receiving and exhibiting to an "admiring public" the best assortment of

GOODS

Ever offered to the citizens of the independent State of Iowa. Among which may be found: Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Satinetts, Jeans, Bleached and Brown Muslins, Ginghams, Cashmeres, Prints, Alpacas, Linens, Cambrics, Laces, Edgings, Ribbons, &c., &c.

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes,

READY MADE CLOTHING of every description—from a three dollar suit up to the "Heigth of Extravagance," suited to the taste of the most fastidious old bachelor that ever cast sheeps eyes on the fair of the Land.

Also a splendid assortment of

Fancy Goods, Hardware and Cutlery.

Salt Lake and California Emigrants,

Supplied with every article wanted on the journey, at as cheap rates as at any place west of New York.

In short they intend their establishment shall not be behind the first houses in the country in point of variety and cheapness. All in want of Goods are invited to call and examine for themselves, as nothing will be charged for showing goods at the

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

Kanesville, (Council Bluffs,) Iowa, Jan. 1, 1850.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN,

FRESH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortmeet of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

GREAT BARGAIN.

THE subscriber offers for sale his improvement, situated at the landing at Council Point, said farm has been under cultivation for about fourteen years, containing eighty acres of well improved land, has about thirty-five acres of wheat growing, most of it was sown in August, also four dwelling houses; one good barn, corn cribs, root house, &c., and all out houses that is calculated to make a farmer comfortable. Any person wishing to purchase, so as to double his money cannot do better than call; for the price will be so that I think the grain on the ground will refund the money advanced and have the farm clear. Call and see for yourselves. CHARLES BIRD.

Council Point, Jan. 9, 1850.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

W. A. ANDREWS, M. D.

PRACTICING Physician, Surgeon and Accoucher. Office at the Union Hotel.

REFERENCES: C. H. Bassett, W. A. Pebee.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 3, 1849.—tf

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

From the Galveston (Texas) News.

PIUS IX.

Fill your cannon to the muzzles,
Ram the balls and grapeshot home,
Let each well-directed volley
Batter down the walls of Rome!
Range all round and point the mortars,
That each bomb, in falling, will
Burst among the accursed Romans,
Dash their hearts out, tear and kill!

Huzzah! the walls are falling, Frenchmen,
Through the rebels bend your way;
Though they crowd the breach, there's only
More of daring slaves to slay!
Musket, pistol, bombshell, sabre—
Frenchmen, do your utmost work,
Till through all the Holy City
No Republican shall lurk!

Am I not, ye slaves, your Master!
For these last ten hundred years,
Pope, by aid of gold and peter,
Mary and —— Swiss carbineers!
By my keys all double dungeoned,
Slaves in state and slaves in soul,
Know! I wear the despot's purple,
Full as well as priestly cowl!

Dare ye reason, read and ballot
As they dare to do abroad!
Rome, at least, I'll rule untrameled
Vicar of the Almighty God!
Though the world has burst my fetters,
Rome, at least, shall dungeon some
Until slaves beneath my crozier,
Wholly papal—deaf and dumb!

Though o'er all the o'd and new world
Men are wakening into MEN,—
Yearning, struggling for their manhood
With the broadsword and the pen,—
Here, at least, in this last stronghold
Of the tyrant, chained and blind,
Man beneath my feet shall own me
Lord of body, soul and mind!

Jesus! Oh thou blasphemed Jesus!
King, yet crowned with thorns alone,
Lowly, meek—do Thou, almighty,
Hurl this tyrant from thy throne!
Pour thy spirit on the nations;
Change, convert, advance and bring
Earth through all its lips to hail thee
Only universal King.

Late Murder on the Plains.

We gave, says the Independence Commonwealth, of the 6th ult., on Monday, a brief recital of a most horrible massacre committed by the Appaches, as we received it from Mr. J. W. H. Patton, of this city, who had just arrived from Santa Fe; and promised that we should endeavor to obtain a more minute statement of the particulars of this terrible event, for publication to-day. Mr. P. has furnished us a statement, which is subjoined, and which may be regarded as strictly correct:

Mr. Patton's Statement.—Our party, consisting of twelve men, left Los Vegas on the 21st October; arrived at Point-of-Rock—about one hundred and seventy-five miles this side of Santa Fe—on the morning of the 24th, when we met a party of about fifty Mexicans, on their return from a buffalo-hunt, who informed us that they had been attacked the day before by a body of Appache Indians, numbering from sixty to one hundred, at Wheatstone Branch, some fifteen miles this side of Point-of-Rocks; had three of their number slain, and sixteen packs of dried meat taken. The Indians lost two of their warriors in the engagement. They also stated that about two miles beyond where they were attacked, they saw the bodies of four or five Americans, and a negro, lying upon the road side, and two carriages, broken and cut to pieces, standing on the prairie near them. Having no knowledge as to who were on their way to Santa Fe, we were of course unable to form an idea as to who the unfortunate party might be; nor did we, at the time, approach nearer the scene of massacre, that we might obtain more positive and satisfactory information in relation to the horrible affair; but were induced to return to the Spanish settlements, and there await additional strength to our party from Santa Fe, by the Mexican hunters, who assured us that the Indians were still encamped on the road ahead of us, near the scence of their recent savage vengeance; that our party was too weak to encounter them, and implored us to return. We arrived at Vegas on the 27th, and reported the facts which we possessed, in relation to the murder, to Capt. Judd, military commandant at Vegas, who, immediately communicated them to Head Quarters at Santa Fe, applying at the same time, to be allowed to escort us with a portion of his command over the most dangerous portions of the road. The commandant at Santa Fe not having noticed the application for an escort, Capt. Judd assumed the responsibility, and ordered a detachment of twenty Dragoons to accompany us as far as the lower Simerone Spring. Our company having now increased to about fifty men strong, (consisting of Mr. Smith's party, the mail party, under the charge of, Messrs Phillips and Clay, and the Dragoons) we resumed our journey on the 31st of November. Soon after leaving Vegas we met Spencer & Sabine's train, (five wagons,) and were informed that they had seen the bodies of the murdered party refered to, and that amongst them they recognized the bodies of J. M. White, merchant of this city; Wm. Calloway of Boonville, manager for F. X. Aubry; Ben. Bushman, (colored man of this city;) two Germans of St. Louis, who were traveling in company with Mr. White (names not known,) and a Mexican. The bodies were not decomposed when they saw them. Their party being very weak, and fearing an attack from the Indians, prudence dictated to them the propriety of hastening from the scene; which they did, without searching for other bodies than those they saw immediately on the road. Upon our arriving at the battle ground, we met Mr. White's train of wagons, in charge of Mr. Mitchell, who informed us that besides those mentioned above, Mrs. White and child, and a negro woman were among those who fell victims to the brutality of the Indians. We believe the negro woman to have been killed, but fear that Mrs. White and child were reserved for a worse fate! The dragoons, by order of Capt. Judd, collected and interred the remains of the victims.

Before leaving the Mexican settlements, information reached us from Santa Fe, that the citizens of that place and Taos were using every exertion to discover whether or not Mrs. White and child were alive in the hands of the Apaches, and to recover them. They had sent out a band of Pueblos, who were on terms of friendship with them, to purchase the prisoners at any cost, or to negotiate an exchange of some eight or ten Apache prisoners, who were in custody at Vegas for the lady and child. In case the Pueblos failed to rescue them, the troops in New Mexico were held in readiness to be put upon the track of the savages to hunt them down and wreak a terrible vengeance upon them. The Governor of New Mexico had offered a reward of $1000 for the recovery of Mrs. White and child, and the citizens of Santa Fe, we understood, had made up a much larger amount.

After leaving Santa Fe, news came to us of a party of thirty-two California Emigrants having been murdered by the Indians somewhere near El Paso; but who they were, or where they were from, we were unable to ascertain. It appears that they were surprised by a superior force, while carelessly traveling along the road, not dreaming of being in the vicinity of danger, and cut off before they could close up together in order to make a show of resistance.

J. W. H. PATTON.

Independence, Dec. 5, 1849.

From Salt Lake City.

The following interesting letter from the Valley, written to Judge Holly, was published in the St. Joseph Gazette and forwarded to us by Judge H. He has our thanks for this favor in advance of the mail. We are glad to hear good news from the Mormons in the Valley, God bless them! They have labored—they have toiled—and have not fainted. May they live forever!! We publish the letter with the remarks of the editor of the Gazette.

Judge Holly of Andrew county, has kindly furnished us with the following extracts of a letter written by Mr. Frederick Rohrer, formerly a citizen of that county, who left for California some four weeks after the foremost trains had left the States. Mr. R. is well known in Andrew and his statements may be relied on. The letter is dated "City of the Great Salt Lake, August 9th, 1849."

* * * "The only bad road to this place is about 40 miles, running across the "Utah Mountains." We could travel but 10 miles each day. From Fort Kearny to the mountains—say 1000 miles, the road is as good as any in the States, and for 200 miles after leaving the South Pass, it is as good as any turnpike. * * This is a beautiful country, and one of the finest climates in the world—equal to that of Italy. The City is laid out in large wards, the houses being about 100 yards apart. Each ward is enclosed with a straight fence and in profuse cultivation—which gives to the city somewhat the appearance of a town. The wards are all irrigated by leading water from the mountains, in small channels, running in every directing. The crops look well. Corn, though as good as ours, grows finely. Wheat is as good, if not better than ours, yielding from twenty to sixty bushels per acre. Barley and Oats are also cultivated and yield abundantly. Indeed, all kinds, and every variety of vegetables flourish profusely.

The harvest being over, the Mormons are stacking their grain—of which they have a considerable surplus—but owning to the great rush of emigrants—thousands of whom will have to abide here until spring—a high price is asked for it. Wheat $4 per bushel flour $12 per hundred.

We are boarding at a private house and are vegetating upon the luxuries of the Valley—such as milk, butter, cheese, green corn peas, beans, turnips, &c—the beef is the best I ever tasted.

The water is sweet free stone, cold as ice and the best I ever tasted. Any quantity of it can be drank without injury—which cannot be said of any other liquid. There are several sulphur springs of pure water, near the city, and a warm white sulphur one, used for bathing,—which would make a hydropathist laugh. The water running from it would turn a mill and is very warm giving from its surface a continual cloud of vapour. Its medical virtues are very great curing nearly every kind of disease, such as scurvy, itch, mange, sore eyes, rheumatism, &c., &c. In fact the most that is known in the "Valley."

The grasses are various and luxurious: blue grass, grows of the best quality and in abundance—also, wild flax. * * *

I can scarcely realise that I am a thousand miles from home! The cultivation of an old settled country—the bustle and activity of a city—the necessaries and even the refinements of civilized life—together with the habits and manners of an educated race of people are all around me! I am in the midst of a desert, and yet I see a large city, teeming with life and enterprise—with an exhaustless soil to sustain it—destined to become the metropolis of a mighty empire! I am away from home, and yet home influences are around and about me; and, in imagination, I forget the distance that intervenes between us! The Mormons are a great people, and whatever may be thought of the peculiarities of their religious creed, the rapidity with which they increase, the oneness of their councils—their discipline—all foreshadow their ultimate destiny.

Printers' Strike.—The Printers of Pittsburgh are on a strike for an advance of wages. They ask only 25 cents per 1000; low enough in all conscience. All the publishers, except the editor of the Gazette and the editor of the Mercury, have agreed to pay the bill of prices. The two papers that refuse to pay their workmen a fare compensation for their labor, are the most devoted tariff advocates in the country. They are constantly insisting that the country will be ruined unless more protection is given to "home industry." A pretty "protection" they would give "home industry!" "Such protection as vultures give to lambs."

A young lady who was rebuked by her mother for kissing her intended, justified herself by quoting the passage—"Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even se to them.

Youth indulges in hope—old age in remembrance.

California Emigrants — Turning Back.—Our townsman Mr. David H. Burnett, who left this place some six weeks since for California via the New Orleans and Panama route, returned here on Monday last. Mr. Burnett went as far as New Orleans, where he learned that the difficulty and uncertainty of securing a passage from Panama to San Francisco, without a "through ticket" from N. Y., was so great that he turned back to cross the plains in the spring. Mr. B. informs us that many are returning from Panama and New Orleans—thirty from Kentucky and ten from Jackson county in this State, came up on the boat with him, who will also cross the plains in the spring—that it is next to impossible to secure, at New Orleans or Panama, a passage from Panama to San Francisco, and if by chance or trickery it can be effected the expense is great. He has furnished us with a list of charges, which he obtained at the office of the Agent of the line in New Orleans, which is

From New Orleans to Charges,	1st Cabin,	$80,00.
" " "	2nd Cabin,	65,00.
" " "	Steerage and mess with Crew,	45,00.
From Panama to San Francisco	in Cabin,	$300,00.
" " "	Steerage and mess with Crew,	150,00.
Fare across the Isthmus from		15,00 to 20,00.

From these statements, and the facts that all, who crossed the plains last spring, have arrived in California, although the trip was long and exceedingly hard, and that a new and shorter route from the Salt Lake through the mountains to the gold mines has been discovered, by which the most difficult and dangerous part of the route—the desert—traveled by those who went out last spring, is avoided, we believe that across the plains is cheaper, better and more certain than any other route; and we expect, from what we can learn of the excitement prevailing through the country, that next spring we shall see another great emigration.

The advantages of St. Joseph as a starting point are now so well known through the States, by the representations, to their friends, of those who came here last spring, that we have no fear, but a much greater proportion of the emigration will come to this place than ever before, notwithstanding the flaming, lieing hand-bills and slanderous reports that probably will be, as they were last spring, published from another point.—[St. Joseph Adventurer.

From the Plains.—Mr Thomas Forsyth, a well known mountain man, arrived in this city day before yesterday. He left the Salt Lake about the last of September, and Fort Bridger, one hundred and ten mils this side about the 1st of October; crossed over the Plains to the head waters of the Arkansas, and came in by Bent's Fort and the Santa Fe trail.

At a stream emptying into the Arkansas below Bent's Fort, he found the Cheyenne, Arapaho and Kiowa Indians encamped, awaiting of Maj. Fitzpatrick, the Indian Agent. Below the Big Timber, and but a short distance from the Indian encampment, he met Maj. Fitzpatrick and his party, with Mr. Ward and others. Further down the Arkansas, he met Capt. Vrain's train, on their way to Santa Fe. At Cow Creek, he met a train for Santa Fe, name not recollected, which had lost a large portion of their stock.

Throughout the distance, Mr. Forsyth had pleasant weather. When he left the Salt Lake settlement, the most of the emigrants, including all the early trains, had gone forward to California. Of this number was Gen. Wilson as Indian Agent, and his party. A number of emigrants, however, expected to pass the winter at Salt Lake City and Fort Bridger. Mr. F. informs us that the Mormons have discovered a route occupying only some some twenty or thirty days to cross the desert and Sierra Nevada, on which there is abundance of wood and water at every stage and of easy crossing. Parties of Mormons had made the whole distance from the Sacramento to the Salt Lake, with packed mules, in fifteen days. Major Stansbery, of the U. S. Topographical corps, with his party, had arrived in the Great Basin. It was understood that, under orders of the United States Government, he would make a survey of the Lost Lake, and the various streams traversing the Great Basin.

The Mormons raised fine crops this past season—an abundance of wheat and other grains, potatoes, turnips, &c., more than they could consume; but the influx of emigrants was furnishing a ready market for all their surplus, at high prices. Money was plenty in the Basin, and to this may be added the fact, that the Mormons have established a mint of their own, at which a large amount of the California gold dust has been coined. They have issued coin of various denominations, to the amount of $20 pieces.—Republican.

Chinese Emigrants.—Large numbers of Chinese have pitched their tents in San Francisco. From early morn until late in the evening these industrious men are engaged in their occupation of house builders, of which a great many have been exported from China, and the quietness and order, cheerfulness and temperance, which is observable in their habits, is noticed by every one. The buildings brought from China are generally twenty feet square—one story in height—and twelve feet from the floor to the ceiling. The timbers are round, and many of them very crooked. The first movement, after raising the frame, is to attach the window, which consists of a frame and blind, without sash. The blind is so constructed as to close itself, by its own weight—the slat being of double width outside. The timber is very uniform in size, and about six or eight inches in diameter. The boards are well seasoned and resemble American cedar. The price of a Chinese building, such as we have described, including the erection, is $1,500 The building, however, consists of simply the frame and covering. They are brought from Hong Kong.

California Fleet.—The total number of vessels that have left the United States for California, from the commencement of the excitement, is as follows: 189 ships, 175 barks, 119 brigs, 34 schooners, and 7 steamers—total 578.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY,

JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers.
Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens af various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Joiners Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.
Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

BOOKS — 1000 volumes Times and Seasons (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.
For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.
Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

MEALS! MEALS!!
Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.
Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.
Kanesville, Oct. 31. 1849.

NEW GOODS.
C. VOORHIS & Co.,

ARE now in receipt of their FALL AND WINTER STOCK OF GOODS. Being one of the largest stocks ever brought to this village. It will be the interest of every body wanting cheap goods to call and look at our assortment, Give us a call and you will find all kinds of
DRY GOODS & GROCERIES,
HARDWARE & QUEENSWARE,
COOKING STOVES & CASTINGS,
IRON, a large asrortment,
LEATHER of all kinds,
BOOTS & SHOES, &c.
Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.

PRIVATE BOARDING.
TWO or three single gentlemen can be furnished with genteel board and lodging on reasonable terms, at the WHITE HOUSE, one door West of the Printing Office.
Transients persons desirous of taking Dinner or staying for the night can also be accommodated.
Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—6t

HEIGHO! HEIGHO!!
Saddle, Harness and Shoe Manufactory.

THE subscribers wish to inform the pubilc generally that they have commenced the above business at ST. FRANCIS or TRADING POINT, where they intend keeping constantly on hand: Saddles, Harnesses, Bridles, Martingales, collars, and boots and shoes, of all descriptions. Persons wishing to purchase any of the above articles will do well to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere: for our motto is,
Small Profits and Ready Pay.
BECK & McENTURF.
N. B. We keep all the above articles at Voorhis' and Johnson's stores in Kanesville. B. & M.
Also 500 hides wanted in exchange for work.
St. Francis, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

HORSE AND OX SHOEING.
WILLIAM F. CARTER,

OF this town, would avail himself of this opportunity to tender his thanks to the citizens of this county, and also to the traveling community, for the liberal patronage with which they have favored him heretofore; and having enlarged his shop and obtained a heavy stock of iron and steel of all kinds, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuation of public favor.
He is prepared to shoe horses and oxen on the shortest notice, having every facility for these branches that can be had any where. He will also have on hand a good supply of his superior Steel Plated Hoes. Emigrants would do well to purchase this article here instead of purchasing elsewhere, as has been proven by the last three years experience. He will also execute with neatness and despatch any jobs in the general line of BLACKSMITHING.
Shop at the Old Stand Opposite the Log Tabernacle.
N. B. Mr. C. has an excellent Lathe, for turning iron, connected with his establishment.
Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—3m

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!
JOHN MARTIN,
North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.
Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.
St. Louis, Sept. 19,1849

UNION HOTEL.
Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.
Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.
THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.
Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take hom with them.
Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.
NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.
St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!
TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!
A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST,

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.
ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c., and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.
ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.
ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Cards, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.
ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.
A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention.
There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally.
J. E. JOHNSON.
Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

The Barberous Notice.
THE subscriber having opened a shop in Kanesville, takes this method of informing the gentlemen of the town and vicinity, and the traveler, that they can be shaved at all reasonable hours. Hair cut and dressed at the following prices:
Twice a week, for shaving, only 50 cents per month. An addition of fifteen cents for hair cutting.
My monthly customers can have their hair dressed at all times for a party gratuitously.
Traveling customers, single shave, 10 cents. Hair cutting, fifteen cents.
W. A. WESTON.
Kanesville, Oct. 31, 1849.

BOSTON STORE.

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.
No. 236,
Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.
The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Caiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins	" Monroe slippers.
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.
If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the BIG BOOT, on the top of the House, No. 236, New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your mone
DAVID CROCK.
St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Another chance for the Gold Hunter
Great Cash and Produce Depot.
MIDDLETON & RILEY,
St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as
Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.
Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.
Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.
St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

DISSOLUTION.
THE Copartnership heretofore existing under the name and firm of SMITH & STUTSMAN, is dissolved by the death of Mr. Smith. All claims against the late firm will be settled by the surviving partner, and the name of the firm used by him in liquidation.
J. B. STUTSMAN.
Surviving partner of Smith & Stutsman.
Kanesville, Oct. 3, 1849—3m

KEG CREEK MILLS.
J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturihg FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.
Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled
J. W. COOLIDGE,
S. M. FARNSWORTH.
Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

GUNSMITHING.
THE subscriber is prepared to manufacture, to order, improved Fire-arms, viz: revolving rifles and pistols; also slide guns, from 5 to 9 shooters. All on an improved plan, and he thinks not equalled this far East. (Father west they might be.) The emigrating and sporting community are invited to call and examine Browning's improved fire-arms before purchasing elsewhere. Shop eight miles south of Kanesville on Musquite Creek, half a mile south of Trading Point.
m 21 6m JONATHAN BROWNING.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.
PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres, sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; pick-axes and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.
We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of
READY MADE CLOTHING,
Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.
Our attention is also invited to a large lot of
DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,
Warranted to keep in any climate.
All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the man opportunity of judging for themselves.
PERRYS & YOUNG.
St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.
No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.
GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.
Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.
N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by
JOHN GALLAGHER.
St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!
WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.
Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.
G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.
Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GUARDIAN
BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as
Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.
We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.
Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.
Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste.
Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

QUIDO!!
S. M. BLAIR
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.

HAS located in this place and offers his professional services to the citizens of this county. Particular attention will be given to the Bounty Claims, Back Pay, Lost Horses, &c., due the Mormon Battalion.
Kanesville, July 25, 1849.

TAILORING.
THE subscriber wishes to inform their citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.
Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.
ERASTUS H. DERBY.
Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.
St. Joseph, Mo.,
Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.
Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.
St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

CHARLES F. HOLLY,
Attorney and Councillor at Law.
Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.
Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.
Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSOF.

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 6, 1850. VOLUME II.----NUMBER 1.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

L. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PRESTON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES McGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M BURNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COUTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
ENJ. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
GEORGE PEACOCK, Weston, Mo.
WM. MARTINDALE, traveling agent, throughout the United States.
LEVI STEWART, Illinois and other States.

From the Millennial Star.

Are the Father and Son two Distinct Persons!

This is a question which we proposed answering some months since, but circumstances have prevented us from devoting an article exclusively on this subject until now.

We desire, that our readers, and the public generally, may have correct views concerning the faith of the Saints: it is for this reason that we refer to the personalities of the Father and the Son.

We have no hesitation in answering this question in the affirmative. All revelation, both ancient and modern, that has said anything on this subject, has represented the Father and Son as two distinct persons.

There are some, however, who believe that the spirit of Christ, before taking a tabernacle, was the Father, exclusively of any other being. They suppose the fleshy tabernacle to be the Son, and the spirit who came and dwelt in it to be the Father; hence they suppose the Father and Son were united in one person, and that when Jesus dwelt on the earth in the flesh, they suppose there was no distinct separate person from himself who was called the Father.

We shall proceed to show from the scriptures, that this view of the subject is erroneous. Jesus addresses his Father in this language:—"And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." (John xvii.. 5.) From this we learn that the spirit of Christ, not only existed before the world was, but there was another person called the Father with whom he existed, and with whom he had glory before this world was made. "In the beginning was the word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God." "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us,. (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." (John, i.. 1. 2, 14.) The word who is Christ, was in the beginning with the Father; indeed, he was "the beginning of the creation of God."—(Rev. iii.. 14.)—"the bright and morning star."—(Rev. xii. 16.)—"the first born of every creature."—(Col. i, 15.)

The work of creation was performed by a plurality of persons, as is evident from the description given by Moses. "In the beginning, the ALEHEM created the heaven and the earth."—(Gen. i., 1." The translators of the English Bible have rendered the word "Aleheem" in the singular, whereas, in the Hebrew, it is plural, and should be translated "GODS," instead of "God." It is universally admitted that the Hebrew word Aleehem is plural, and many learned translators have rendered it in the plural form in the English. "Some have translated it, The Testifiers—The Covenanters—The Sworn Ones; some The Divine Ones." Dr. Burgess, the late bishop of Salisbury, rendered it "Adorable Persons." or, "The Adorable Ones." The great prophet of the last days, Joseph Smith, in his translation of Abraham's writings concerning the creation, has given the noun in the plural, showing that the Aleheem or Gods were engaged in the creation of the heaven and the earth.—(Millennial Star. No. 4. Vol. 3.)

If the Hebrew noun Aleheem, which has a plural termination, was a defective noun, used only in the singular number, then there might be some excuse for translating it God in the singular; but, "the singular, as well as the plural of this word frequently occurs in scripture. Reason therefore, declares, that if there had only been one agent concerned in the creation of the world, the language here used is improper, and calculated to mislead. But if there were more agents than one, then the language is just what it ought to be, and it would not have answered in a different form.' —(Rev. David James in Unitarianism Confuted, page 386. How much more consistant with the Hebrew scriptures this passage would be, were it translated thus: "In the beginning, the Aleheem.—the Gods,—the Adorable Ones, or the Divine Ones, created the heaven and the earth. This word occurs in the first chapter of Genesis no less than thirty times, and in each place it is in the plural form, showing in the mast positive manner that a plurality of persons were engaged throughout the whole process of creation. Moses in describing a portion of the sixth day's work, uses the following language:—"And the Aleheem (or Gods) said, Let US make man in OUR image, after OUR likeness."—(Gen. i, 26.) Here we find the pronouns us and our are in the plural form, as well as Aleheem, which clearly confirms the idea contained in the previous passages. Again, after the fall of man, "The Lord God (Jehovah Aleheem) said, Behold, the man is become as ONE OF US, to know good and evil."—(Gen. iii., 22.) ONE OF US is a form of expression which never could be applied to a single individual person. There is no principle by which the language could be distorted to mean only one person. To show that we are not alone in our views concerning the plurality of persons employed in the grand work of creation, we here give a quotation from the writing of the Rev. David James on the Trinity.

"Reason declares, that if such a pluralty exists, the Divine Being could not have possibly adopted a more appropriate form of speech to clear up and confirm the intimations already given of it. But if such be not the case, her confidence in the language of scripture will soon be at an end, because it is so calculated to embarrass the understanding, and deceive the very persons whom it is intended to enlighten.

Our conviction, however, is, that such language was employed, simply because the fact itself required it. And we confidently anticipate other statements in a form of language that will perfectly harmonize. For if the fact required such form of language in one place, the same fact will require a corresponding mode of language in another place. The followiug is a passage in the Book of the Proverbs:—"The fear of the LORD (or Jehovah) is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the Holy is understanding"—in the Hebrew it is, the knowledge of the HOLY ONES.—(Prov. ix. 10.) Again we find similar language in the Book of the Prophet Malachi.—"A son honoreth his father, and a servant his master: If then I be a father, where is mine honor? and if I be a master, where is my fear?"—in the Hebrew: "if I be MASTERS, where is my fear? saith the Lord of Hosts."—(Mal. i. 6.)

But forasmuch as the first intimation of a plurality of persons in the Godhead was given in connexion with the creation of the heavens and the earth, and especially of man, we will now turn our attention to such passages as contain direct allusions to that great and exclusive work of Deity.

The following is one:—"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth."—(Eccles. xii. 1. I imagine I hear many of you say, 'A few moments ago the speaker attempted to show from the language of Scripture, "Let US make man in OUR image, after OUR likeness,"—that more agents than one took part in the creation of man: if that view was correct, we might now expect to find the word Creator in the plural number; or, at any rate, the word ought to assume the plural form in some passage or other' Your expectation is fair; and, to your satisfaction, I beg to inform you, that the word in the original is not Creator, but Creators: "Remember now thy CREATORS in the days of thy youth."

A similar passage occurs in the Book of the Prophet Isaiah. The Jews, whom God had chosen and espoused to be a people unto himself, are addressed in that character: "Thy Maker is thy husband, the Lord of Hosts is his name."—(Isaiah liv. 5. In the Hebrew both the nouns are plural, Thy MAKERS,—thy HUSBANDS.

It is also written in the Psalms, "Let Israel rejoice in him that made him: in the Hebrew, "Let Israel rejoice in his MAKERS."—(Psalm cxlix. 2.

And in the Book of Job, Elihu is stated to have said, "But none saith, Where is God my Maker, who giveth songs in the night?"—in the original, "Where is God my MAKERS."—(Job xxxv. 10.)

It is now shown as plainly as language can do it, that a plurality of agents concurred and co-operated in the creation of man: for scripture speaks distinctly of Creators and Makers. Our next inquiry, therefore, is, Who were these Creators, and what may have been their number? As there is no longer a doubt of their existence, it is not too much to expect that Holy Scripture will point them out one by one in connexion with their peculiar work of Creation, so as to settle the fact, and remove every scruple from the subject forever. We shall indeed find it even so.

When the inhabitants of Lystra were about to offer sacrifice to Paul and Barnabas, supposing them to be gods, the Apostles cried out, "Sirs, why do ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you, and preach unto you that ye should turn from these vanities unto the living God, which made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein."—(Acts, xiv. 15.) If we ask: who is intended here by the living God? the Unitarians reply: The same as is generally denominated Father in the New Testament. For the Apostle St. Paul has the expression "the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him."—(1 Cor. viii. 6.) With this explanation we feel satisfied. And thus one of the producing agents of the creation is ascertained—The Father.

In other places, creation is ascribed to the Word, or to the Lord Jesus Christ. Moses said:—"In the beginning the Adorable Ones created the heaven and the earth." St. John writes;—"In the beginning," meaning the same beginning, "the Word was with God; All things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made." And lest any one should suppose that by this Word he meant divine wisdom, or any of the divine perfections, he adds immediately—"In him was life," a property which distinguishes a person from a mere attribute or quality. And this living agent, he afterwards informs us, "was made flesh," or became man, "and dwelt among the Jews who beheld his glory, the glory as of the only-begotten of the Father." But how was he competent to assist the Father in the creation of all things? St. John gives the answer: "And the Word was God."—John i. 1—4, 14. St. Paul ascribes the creation of all things to the same person under his more usual name of Son, or the Son of God. "Giving thanks unto the Father, who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son; who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature: for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him. And he is before all things, and by him all things consist." Thus another of the "Creators" is ascertained—the Word or Son of God.

We proceed to enquire farther, if any other agent was associated with these two in this great work. Moses, in describing the state of the new-made earth before the process of the six days' work had passed upon it, records: "And the earth was without any form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters,"—(Gen. i. 2. The "Spirit of God" is throughout Scripture distinguished from the Father and the Son, so as to be viewed in the light of a distinct agent, as will be made to appear in a subsequent part of this discourse. The expression, "moved on the face of the waters," more literally rendered, would be "brooded over the waters;" an expression which at once conveys to the mind an iden of the part undertaken and achieved by this divine agent in the construction of the globe. It was his especial office, not only to reduce the elemental mass into order, and make matto assume certain forms and mingle in certain combinations, but also to impregnate the whole with productive energy, fertility, and life, that the surface of the dry land might burst forth with vegetation, and the sea and air swarm with living things appointed for the use and support of innumerable human beings.

The following passage, which occurs in the Book of Job, shows that that the agency of this Divine Spirit was not confined to the earth beneath, but extended to the heavens above, and assisted in fixing the chambers of the sun and stars, and adjusting the orbits of the moon and planets. "For by his Spirit," observed that venerable patriarch, "he hath garnished the heavens."—(Job xxvi. 13.) Again, the same Spirit was assistant to the Father and the word in the formation of Man. This is positively asserted by Elihu: 'The Spirit of God hath made me and the breath of the Almighty hath given me life."—(Job xxxiii.. 4. Thus the third of the producing agents of creation is ascertained—the Spirit of God."

(To be Continued.)

Forgiveness and Revenge.

Of the blind Goddess Justice, there were born two children. The one was fair and golden haired as the Morning, the other dark and black-eyed as the daughter of the East. The fair one was weak and gentle like the lamb—the dark one was proud spirited and dauntless as the Lion. And the fair and gentle maid they named Forgiveness, while her dark, proud sister, they called revenge.

When the two had grown up to womanhood, their blind Mother called them to her side, and, having blessed them, bade them say which of her possessions she should bestow upon them as their dower. To her eldest child, Revenge, she gave the first choice.

And the dark damsel asked for the sword wherewith to protect the injured and punish the injurer. But gentle Forgiveness, falling on her knees, besought her Mother that she might inherit her blindness as her portion, as that, being blind, she might be merciful to erring Man.

Then Justice, turning to her younger child said, "Thou has chosen rightly, my gentle one; for whereas thy sterner sister hath asked of me that which was given to me by Man, thou has desired of me that which was given to me by God."

Then Revenge, jealous of her sister's praise, parted from Forgiveness forever, and went abroad to see which of the two would win most favor among the sons of the Earth.

Wherever she went, high and low, noble and ignoble, bent the knee and worshipped her. And to those who sought her aid she gave such strength and courage, and spoke so winningly, and looked so like her mother, that men took her for Justice herself. At her bidding, nation warred against nation; for she preached the captivating creed of blood for blood, until men blessed the sword, and the fairest of the land admired him the most who wielded it the best.

So that, when at length Forgiveness came, and strove to teach gentle doctrine to Mankind, they spurned her for her blindness and her weakness; and those that listened to her counsels they branded as cowards, while those that slew the most they praised as heroes.—[Magic of Kindness.

"Christians should be disposed to treat worldly men with tenderness; not to show that they are spiritually proud, but to let them see that they have a secret in possession, which keeps them humble, patient, holy, meek, and affectionate, in a turbulent and passionate world."—[Cecil.

When Peter the Great visited Westminster Hall, he asked who were all those men in wigs and gowns. He was told that they were lawyers. "Are they all lawyers," said he, "why there are but two lawyers in all my dominions, and I am going to hang one of them as soon as I get home."

For the Frontier Guardian.

Lines suggested in Contemplation of Elder L. Snow's Mission to Italy.

Fair Italy! Oh thou sunny golden clime;
Oh thee! has nature shed her brightest smile.
Your vine groves, and your merry vintners there;
Your sons of joyous mirth, your daughters fair,
Have oft been sung, and told in romance bold—
Thou art a "Star" that once hast shone as gold.
On thy fair soil, the Royal Cæsars rose to life,
Fill'd thee! with carnage, war and bloody strife,
Yes, Mars! with hand and stride so wondrous bold,
Has nations oft, to thee in bondage sold.
Thy imperial "Metropolis" thundering forth,
Edicts from East to West, from South to North,
The shrine of Mystic Babylon, there for years;
Has lived and kept the world in hellish fears,
Where art thou now? thy prowess? thy iron band?
Oh where thy pow'r? that compass'd sea and land?
Ignoble dost thou lie—nor can'st thou now retain
The shade of liberty thou wished of late to gain.
Awake thou humbled "one!" The gospels cheerful sound
Is sent to thee! Oh may'st thou willingly be found,
To hear its soul's reviving, sweet, harmonious lay,
That once was sung to thee—[illegible] day,
Since then a night of darkness and of gloom,
Of priestcraft! popery! and monastic doom—
Awake thee! from base thraldom—nature's chosen spot,
Bring forth your energies. Oh sure, you've not forgot,
Your years of sacredotal's impious chain,
In dungeon secret, did your sons retain.
Awake! and hear the words of life and liberty,
Sent by the God of heaven—far o'er the sea,
From Zion's beauteous land! whose sons so brave,
Long'st to find thee out, and thee to save
From Satan's thraldom, and his mighty host
To Israel's place of gathering—Zion's boast
Where God's Apostles, at the word of quick command;
Start forth to travel—day and night—by sea and land
Leaving in haste their dearest ties and pleasant home,
In Winter's biting frosts—o'er earth to roam—
The glorious Gospel's sound to carry forth,
To Eastern Hemisphere from South to North.
Ye poor in spirit! In Italy's favor'd clime
Receive the chosen "Man" that brings you truth sublime—
Your soul's to win—his many comforts doth forego
The messenger of mercy sent you, is—Lorenzo Snow;
A "Name" that o'er your land will travel fast,
As herald of salvation, an honor that will last,—
(If he be faithful in the mission that's now given
In Italy to ope the portals wide, and point to heaven)
Oh yes! in all eternity—in God's celestial world,
There will he reign not fearing to be hurl'd,
From out his "Fathers" presence—O Thou! who lov'st well,
To reward thy sons, for saving souls from "hell,"
Go then Lorenzo! He will, your pathway ever guard;
By ministering angels—Go! and earn you heav'ns reward;
Flinch not—nor falter, you've no cause to fear,
Your direst foe will fall impotent in the rear;
Spread! spread! the Gospel's banner unfurl her waves,
Of glorious light, that gathers all she saves,
Beneath her folds—for up to Zion soon 'twill bring,
Her millions who will there, her loud Hosannas sing.

Kanesville, Jan. 5th, 1850.

The spirit and tone of the American Press, respecting the New State of Deseret, and the Mormons.

From the Little Rock, (Ark.) Democrat.

MODERN MIRACLES—THE NEW MORMON STATE.—The history of these progressive times is full of wonders, and many of the events border upon the miraculous. Amongst the occurrences of the present age, the application of the Mormons to enter the confederacy as a State, challenges in a most striking manner, the attention of this nation. The history of the career of this people, from the period of their exodus from the States, up to the present time, savors about as strongly of the special intervention of Providence in their behalf, as the events of the times, when the chosen servants of the Lord led the Israelites out of their bondage in Egypt. Persecuted by all sects in Illinois and Missouri—their temple desecrated by the assaults of mobs—their holy of holies polluted by the sacrilegious violence of law-defying rioters—they shake the dust of a civilized land from their feet, and flee away to the desert and the wilderness, seeking among wild beasts and savages, the security and peace in the practice of their religious rites which Christendom denied them! Arriving in this far distant region they erected anew their altars and their temples, and beneath the smiles of Providence their community rapidly increases in numbers, until cities, towns, villages and hamlets, bedeck the Valley of the Great Basin, and the noise of a nation of workers engaged in all the arts of peace, is heard reverberating among the mountain-tops, and through the valleys, disturbing the silence which since creation had brooded over the entire domain, unbroken save by the howl of the prairie wolf and the whoop of the Indian. Under the influence of the labor of the people, gradually, the solitary places are made glad, and the wilderness blossoms as the rose, when, suddenly, an Empire, destined to rival that which they have left behind them, starts into existence on the shores of the Pacific, hedging them about about with a cordon of communities, and transferring, by a miracle, almost, their ultima thule, at once into a central locality! Interpreting this last manifestation to indicate that the true location of the New Jerusalem of these Latter-day Saints has been found, they adopt a constitution, and seek at the hands of Congress admission to the Union. Let them come, we say; and let politicians, patriots and prophets consult together in the Councils of the nation for the people's good. We have had patriots, and politicians for our counsellors in times past: but a delegation of prophets from the Salt Lake might at this time prove very seasonable.

The following extract from a letter of recent date from the Mormon country, shows that miracles are still being wrought in their land:

"The crickets have not troubled us any this year. Hundreds and thousands of gulls made their appearance early in the Spring, and as soon as the crickets appeared the gulls made war on them, and they have swept them clean, so that there is scarce a cricket to be found in the Valley.

We look upon this as one of the manifestations of the favor of the Almighty, for the Mountaineers say that they never found gulls here till the Mormons came. It was truly cheering to see the flocks of these saviors, extending several miles in length, come from the Lake early in the morning, and eating crickets all day, then at sundown form in a mass, and wing their way to the Lake, for a night's rest.

One curiosity about them is that they don't eat the crickets merely to live, but after feeding themselves they would vomit them up and go to eating again, and thus continue eating and throughout the entire day. It is a matter of astonishment to see how fast they will pick them up, and a person could form but a poor estimate of the amount destroped daily by these winged saviors. Suffice it to say, that about three weeks after the gulls made their appearance, scarce a cricket could be seen. This is plainly a miracle in behalf of this people, as the sending of the quails in the camp of the Israelites; and what makes it more manifest is the fact that, although in the surrounding valleys, where there are no crops, the gulls came by them to the farms, and stayed there till they had cleared them off, although men were at work around them at the time. There has been no damage done by crickets this season.

From Belleville (Ill.) Advocate.

THE MORMONS.—A question has been raised, and which Congress will possibly be called upon to decide, whether the community of Mormons, calling itself the State of Deseret, will be entitled to admission to the Union, its internal organization being a Theocracy, with the forms of a popular government or Democracy. It has been contented that the Mormonites are to be classed with idolitors as professing a form of faith which is not Christian. The Charleston (South Carolina) News, alluding to the subject says:

"Whatever may be the principle which obtain as supreme within the limits of the States separately, the Constitution of the United States creates no distinction between any one form of religion and another. As regards individuals, they are naturalized by oath or affirmation, according to the creed in which they have been educated or have adopted. With reference to States, the only pre-requisite for admission to the Union is the formation of a Republican form of government. If Congress could look beyond the external form and into the interior structure of a State, they might with equal propriety examine the modes of belief professed by its citizens, as a qualification of citizenship, or even for office. The Mahomedan who swears by the Koran, or the Chinese who do the same by the books of Confucius, might be excluded from giving evidence in a court of the United States, on a question of life or property. Whether a State is constituted of a compound of elements theocratic and secular, or whether its government is pure Theocracy, is no question for Congress, on an application for admission into the Union. The condition for that admission is political, and in no respect religious.

From the New York Tribune.

The Mormons in the valley of the Great Salt Lake held a Convention on the 5th of March last, and formally organized a State Government, for which they propose to claim admittance into the Union at the approaching session of Congress. They give to their new dominions the name of "The State of Deseret," a mystical appelation derived from their religious dialect and signifying the land of the honey-bee or of industry and all kindred virtues: within its boundaries, as they have laid them down, is included the whole of California that lies east of the great dividing ridge of the Sierra Nevada, a territory some six hundred miles wide by eight hundred long, only a speck of which is occupied by the 10,000 Mormons who compose almost its only civilized population. The Government is of course on the model generally followed in this country; a Governor, Lieut. Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor of Public Accounts, and Treasurer, compose the Executive; the Legislature consists of a Senate of 17 members and House of Representatives of 35; the Judiciary is composed of a Supreme Court and such inferior tribunals as shall be established by the Legislature. The Declaration of Rights guarantees absolute religious liberty. Not a word is said about Slavery. The Constitution was adopted by a vote of the people, and the machinery of the Government put in operation. The Legislature met on July 2d, appointed a Delegate to Congress and adopted a memorial to that body setting forth the reasons for the new organization and asking that it be sanctioned, or, if that be impossible, a territorial government established. Their great reason for the recognition of the State is the ability of the people to pay the cost of administering their affairs, which will save the General Treasury the cost of a territorial establishment. The objection to granting their request will be the smallness of their numbers, but as that deficiency is disappearing every day, it will probably not be conclusive against them. They have, however, marked out a more extensive country for their own than they are sure of getting.

This movement affords a striking illustration of the practical, organizing instinct of the Anglo-Saxon race and of its inbred attachment to law and order.

From the New York Western World.

DESERET.—A few years ago, a small and persecuted people, under the denomination of Mormons, left our thickly populated towns, and opened for themselves a colony in the far-off Western territories. They have rapidly increased in population, and have lately applied for admission into the Union: Though professing a religion contrary to our own, and one possessing many peculiar traits, they have proved themselves good citizens, and upright men. From the general tone of the Press, we think that if they have a sufficient number of inhabitants no serious opposition will be made to their request.

The name they have given to their country is Deseret. It is a title of Mormon origin, signifying honey-bee, and is typical of industry and its kindred virtues.

From the New York Herald.

THE NEW STATE OF DESERET.—We publish, in another part of to-day's Herald, the Constitution of the New State of Deseret, which has been founded by the Mormons, in the Great Basin of Upper California. It is a very liberal document, and will compare favorably with the constitution of any of the old States.

The London Times indulges in a grave speculation upon the results likely to flow from having a State of Mormons added to the Union. It does not understand how, even with the large liberality of our constitution touching the religious opinions of our population, we can escape some great evil from contact with people so loose and radical in their notions of God, and religion, as the followers of Joe Smith. The Times need not be uneasy for a moment.—[Lowell Journal.

The Boston Pilot, a Roman Catholic paper in speaking of the New States coming into the Federation, says:

Then there's the State of Deseret. The name, perhaps, is not familiar to the generality of our readers. This State is a Mormon State—and presents one of the most curious and extraordinary conditions of humanity that ever existed. The fanatical Mormons, a sect established by Joe Smith, being forced to quit Illinois about three years ago, migrated Westward beyond the Rocky mountains; and squatting in the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, they began to build and till and raise up the fabric of their civilization in a wilderness. In two years they have done wonders. They have erected a city, governed by good municipal regulations, and so tamed the savage genius of the plains, that corn waves and potatoes grow in their season in vast quantities on the fields and uplands surrounding their New Jerusalem—as they call it. About ten thousand of these Mormons live together and are the most industrious community in the world. Even under the garb of a new profession, these people have carried along with them a vast amount of the Yankee shrewdness and enterprise. After they had secured food in the future harvests of their land and built their neat and comfortable city; they set about setting their boundaries, the other day; and they left themselves elbow-room enough, on all sides. They left a mighty space for their future millions to grow in, called it, as lay upon the chart, Deseret, which they say, means honey-bee, and elected Mr. A. W. Babbit as their delegate to the Congress at Washington.

Printers and Printing.

J. T. Buckingham, Esq., in his series of reminiscences, in course of publication in the Boston Courier speaks of the importance of the printer to the authors, as follows:

"Many who condescend to illuminate the dark world with the fire of their genius, through the columns of a newspaper, little think of the lot of the printer, who, almost suffocated by the smoke of a lamp, sits up till midnight to correct his false grammar, bad orthography and worse punctuation. I have seen the argument of lawyers in high repute as scholars, sent to the printer in their own hand-writing, many words—and especially technical and foreign terms—abbreviated, words misspelled, and a few or no points and those few, if there were any, entirely out of place. I have seen the sermons of eminent 'divines' sent to the press, without points or capitals to designate the division of the sentences; sermons, which if published with the imperfections of the manuscript would disgrace the printer's devil, if he were the author. Suppose they had been so printed. The printer would have been treated with scorn and contempt as an illiterate blockhead—as a fellow better fitted to be a wood-sawyer than a printer. Nobody would believe that such gross and palpable fault were owing to the ignorance or carelessness of the author. And no one but the practiced printer knows how many hours a compositor, and after him a proof-reader, is compelled to spend in reducing to a readable condition manuscripts that the writers themselves would be puzzled to read."

No man ever loved God too much. No man ever trusted too much to Christs blood and righteousness and intercession for salvation. No man ever thought himself a greater sinner than he was. No man ever put the world too low in comparison with the service of Christ. No time ever put too high an estimate on the value of time. No dying man ever said he had heard the Gospel preached too plainly or too tenderly. No dying Christian ever regretted that he had made sacrifices for Christ and his people.

The Boston Post is entitled to the credit of the following:

"THE PURSUIT OF KNOWLEDGE UNDER DIFFICULTIES.—Attempting to acquire the science of statesmanship from six ill-taught private tutors, who agreed in nothing but in the opinion that the pupil should be mystified as much as possible—and amused with the sly irony of being called a 'second Washington.'"

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY

ORSON HYDE.....Editor and Proprietor.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1850.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all. The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail will, be at the risk of those who send it.

I Am going to the Valley, and shall I take the Guardian!

Put the question, involving the same principle in another form. I am going to Heaven myself and shall I help any one else to get there? It should be remembered by every person going to the Valley, that it is more important to him to sustain and keep up the Guardian than it is for him who remains here. Indeed, the inhabitants of "Deseret" had better contribute two thousand dollars a year to keep up the Guardian, though they should never receive a copy of it, than to let it go down for want of support. Deseret is a little world by itself, and so far away that it cannot be momentarily heard upon questions and matters that involve their immediate interest in the "States," and an organ right here on the ground, that can throw out their sentiments, and even anticipate them in advance, by which perhaps measures adverse to their interests, may be checked or counteracted, should be an important consideration with every person that intends to become a permanent citizen of the Honey State; and instead of his narrowing down his feelings to a point that would exclude the Guardian, he would even do well, not only to subscribe for this paper, but to leave, in addition, a handsome donation to the office to be expended in diffusing correct information upon important subjects in times that are fraught with more than ordinary interest. We believe that there are men that will duly consider the foregoing, and act towards the Guardian as though they wished and expected their interests in the Valley to be defended by a picket guard, stationed on the frontier of both Territories. It will be the object of the Guardian to promote and maintain just and amicable feelings between the General Government and her remotest dependencies—between the citizens of the various States and Territories in Western America, and to render the way of the Emigrant to Salt Lake and to California as agreeable and easy as possible.

Now, will you leave for the Valley without showing and proving to the Guardian man that you respect your own personal welfare in that country, by subscribing liberally to the support of this establishment before you go? What can Br. Hyde do in any emergency for you at the Salt Lake, if you narrow him down to such a point that after his expenses are paid, he has not enough left to buy a loaf of bread? How loudly, or how extensively do you calculate that he can speak for you under such circumstances?

We do not know in what light the Guardian and its continuation may be looked upon by our friends in the State of "Deseret." But humble as our exertions may be; and as little tact and skill as we may possess in conducting a journal under the most peculiar circumstances, if those exertions are suffered to be shut out of their field of operation by reason of your with-holding your support who are about to emigrate, we tell you the plain honest truth, (though we do not claim that they are the words of a prophet's son,) that you will be the first to suffer, if you suffer the Guardian to go down, except it is vetoed by the authorities in the Valley. By this, all Israel may know whether the Angel of the Lord told us the truth or not, sixteen years ago, in the State of New York, when he assured us among other things, that "our words should be fulfilled." We, therefore, say to our friends that go, and to those who stay, subscribe for the Guardian; and you who have liberal minds and liberal purses throw in something for emergencies, and for the gratuitous diffusion of correct information to be sent where it ought to go. Oil the press well, "and let her slide." We believe that the Church in the Valley will not only see that we occupy an important position, but will appreciate and second our exertions.

RENTS IN CALIFORNIA.—A wag said, in our hearing the other day, that it costs a man fifty dollars to look at a house in California, including the sublime privilege of sleeping out of doors.

Division of Deseret.

If that portion of the Great Interior Basin lying east of one hundred and sixteen degrees of West Longitude, had an average ratio of fertile land, with most of the other States of the Union, it would be territory enough to satisfy a pretty ambitious people. But when we consider that there are only a few fertile spots, comparatively, in the whole and entire territory, and they like Islands in the vast and mighty ocean, or like the oases in oriental deserts. Mr. Foote's proposition to divide that territory at the hundred and sixteenth degree of West Longitude, giving what lies west of that line to California, and that portion that lies east to Deseret, is giving to the latter a wide scope of sterrility, it is true; yet but little arable land. The Sierra Nevada Mountains is the natural boundary, and the whole Basin only has fertile land enough to sustain the population of a respectable State, as to numbers.

France.

By letters and papers from Europe, we learn that the Gospel has found its way into Havre, and several other parts of France. Instead of Br. Taylor's opening the way there for the gospel, the gospel has opened the way for him. Well, it's all right. It was the prayer of the Saints in the Valley that the Angel of God might go before him and open his way. God works by whom he will, and we say, Amen to it; yet we should like to work some too, and when we read how things are moving in that country, we feel the fire shut up in our bones which, seemingly, can only have vent by our droping the quill and starting off without purse or scrip, and sounding the tidings through those countries where we have frequently been. Friends and brethren there, you have our hearty good-will if we cannot be with you. We give you an interest in our prayers that a better friend than we may be with you, even the SAVIOR'S FRIEND.

Boundaries of California and Deseret.

By the Constitution of California, the entire pacific coast, from Oregon to the northern line of Mexico is incorporated within the limits and boundaries of that State. This gives them nearly five times the distance of coast to the distance back into the country. It would seem that the accommodation, convenience, and interest of the citizens of the great interior basin, which is destined of necessity, to form a distinct State or Territory at no distant period, have been completely lost sight of by a disposition too greedy and overreaching. They wanted all the coast that joined them. It is but reasonable that a portion of that coast to the South, be given to the Basin State. Justice to the country, and common respect for the feelings and natural rights of citizens would award, in our opinion, to Deseret an extent of coast that would call out the maratime skill and enterprize of her citizens, and add to the improvement of the interior, and contribute to the Commercial interests of Western America. There is only an extent of about sixty or seventy miles coast claimed by the State of Deseret, while they left nearly seven hundred miles coast for the State of California. The Constitution of Deseret was adopted by a Convention of the people on the 10th day of March, 1849, about seven months before the Constitution of the State of California was adopted. To say nothing about the spirit of the pre-emption law, Congress, in their wisdom will, no doubt, secure to Deseret the distance of coast necessary to secure the improvement and prosperity of that, otherwise, inland State. To allow no portion of the coast to Deseret, would be, in our view, an act of great injustice, not only to the people of that State, but to the General Government, also Congress must see that California will have every commercial advantage that she can enjoy or profit by, if the claim of Deseret of sixty or seventy miles coast be allowed, and the latter State would be greatly benefited by it, while the former one would not be incommoded. We are confident that Congress will reserve a vacancy for the bees to fly out through from their own hive without trespassing or being dependant. It is but little coast that Deseret asks for, and her petition is first; and we think that it will, and of right ought to be granted.

The proposition of Mr. Foote to divide Deseret at the 116 degree of West Longitude, and to give the Western portion to California, would not suit the Desretians very well, because there is but a small portion of that vast territory that can be inhabited, or made to produce anything for the sustenance of either man or beast. It would be giving to California more than twice as much as she asks for. The Sierra Nevada mountains is the boundary that nature has made between California and Deseret. In this respect, we think she has done her own work wisely, and we think that Congress should subscribe to her dictation.

Cause for which William Smith was excluded from the Church!

It is a law of the church that its members shall pay over one tenth part of their property which they may have at the time they join the body, and annually thereafter, one tenth part of their increase This is called the law of tithing. This tithing is appropriated for the benefit of the poor, for public purposes, &c. The temple at Nauvoo was built by the tithing of the people After the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, the Twelve came into power, and they formed the council that were to apply this tithing, or to create a bishop to apply it. William Smith was, at that time, nominally one of the Twelve, and he claimed that it was his right to have one-twelfth part of the tithing set off to him, to be appropriated to his own individual use, or in any way that he thought proper. This was not allowed any one of the Twelve; and he was the only one that ever asked or expected such a thing; and we were conscious that none but a prodigal in every sense of the word, (which we considered him to be,) would indulge such a wish. This being positively denied him, he went up to Galena and published there, or at some other place, a pamphlet, in which he laid many false and grievous charges against the whole Twelve; but more particularly against Elder Brigham Young. This pamphlet was read in part to a large collection of people in the Temple, and he was then and there excluded from the society and fellowship of the church by a unanimous vote of the entire body, among whom were assembled almost the entire authorities of the whole church. To present the cause of his expulsion from the church in a few words, it is this. A wish to appropriate the public funds of the Church to his own private use—for publishing false and slanderous statements concerning the church: and for a general looseness and recklessness of character which ill comported with the dignity of his high calling.

Indians.

Why are so many Indians strolling about through our county? They have had a successful hunt and cannot be hungry. Our citizens should be very cautious about trading with them, and particularly about buying horses or mules of them. They have several horses and mules belonging to our citizens on this side, which they stole, and yet it seems to be very hard to get them, although they have been seen in the possession of the Indians, and recognized by several of our citizens. The argument that they are retained as an indemnity for the privilege of our living, for a season, at Winter Quarters, is only an excuse to keep stolen property. Our great father, and their great father gave us the privilege of living at Winter Quarters for a reasonable length of time upon the condition that we raised five hundred men for him to go to California. If we spared the men, we had to have a place to stop, for we were then on the move. But the scores of cattle they killed for us about Winter Quarters, are a sufficient indemnity for all the privileges that we had there. They have, moreover, hunted on this side the river this winter, and killed an immense quantity of game. They had no right to do this: still we would not object to their doing so, so long as they behave themselves.

When reasonable proof can be adduced that horses among the ndians and in their possession and can be identified as belonging to the citizens on this side; or if the owners have removed to the Valley, and left their business here with their friends and neighbors, and they are enabled to prove property, it does seem as though the Indians should be made to give up the animals, or abate the amount of their worth from their annuities. If citizens here have to be put to more trouble to get a horse from the Indians than he is worth, after they have stolen him, they will be very apt to resort to measures unpleasant to them, and painful to the Indians. In the mean time, these red men should be taught to stay on their own side; and no person should offer any inducement or encouragement to them to come here. They have already become quite saucy and insolent to families when the men are gone.

Millennial Star.

The above is the title of a Semi-Monthly paper published by Elder Orson Pratt, No. 15 Wilton street, Liverpool, England. It fell to our lot to edit that paper in '46 and '47, and we are glad to get hold of it whenever we can. We perceive that the Lord is with its present editor, and also with the people under his charge, not only in causing hundreds and thousands to embrace the work, but by many most astonishing miracles done in the eyes of both saint and sinner. God be praised for his mercies! His miraculous power has not ceased, though the most popular and influential religionists declare that it has. In the face of facts that cannot be denied, their erroneous declarations only prove that they do not walk in the light of truth themselves. They discover a treasure, and because they possess it not, many of them vainly imagine to persuade mankind that such miraculous power is not for any at this day. If they admit that it is, they impeach their own standing and attainments before the Most High. Such ought to be as generous as some poor beggars who are ready to confess that some men may have plenty of gold, but they have none—they have been unfortunate, and are destitute themselves. Let us all acknowledged the truth of the bible, and the fulness of the power of the gospel, though we should be forced to acknowledge thereby our own deficiency and leanness. "Let God be true, though every man a liar." It betrays a darkened mind, mixed with a kind of stubborn self-will, which is calculated to increase and perpetuate that darkness, for a person to attempt to justify unbelief in the miraculous power and mercies of Heaven, by the Holy Scriptures. "God be merciful to us, sinners!" and accept of our sincere repentance and deep contrition of soul that we have fallen so far short of our high privileges, and of the scriptural standard of faith and good works! It strikes us that the above language would be more pleasing in the ears of the Savior, than any opposition to his miraculous power being made manifest at this day.

By several of the late Stars, we learn that the sick are healed—the lame are made to walk—the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak; and the poor have the gospel preached unto them. This looks too much like things in old times to call it the works of the devil. Satan does not do such things. But to Br. Pratt, a word of caution:

Remember that one who was healed in days of old, was told to tell no one of it, but to go and offer the gift that Moses commanded for a testimony unto them. Publish not too freely the miraculous manifestations among you, lest the Spirit be grieved, and so leave you. The stream may be seen by all, yet its source is in some secret and unfrequented place, where perchance, the lone traveler may discover it in a ravine at the base of some rugged hill or mountain. The eyes of the multitude look not upon it.

Fort Desmoines Gazette.

We have just received the second number of this new paper, published at Fort Desmoines, Iowa. It is a neatly executed sheet, of liberal size, and devoted to the general news of the day. Its politics are Whig, and will advocate Whig principles in their purity, and enforce them by the zeal and ability, no doubt, of a patriotic and devoted servant of our country's best interests. Mr. L. P. Sherman, is its editor and proprietor. Success to the enterprize, and victory perch on the banner of conservative measures, and upon a stable and sure policy!

Punctuality.

One year has elapsed since the Guardian began to be published at this place, and never has it been delayed an hour behind its regular time. This speaks in favor of our foreman, Mr. Gooch, whose long and bony fingers can pick up type as fast as a chicken can pick up corn. Our little devil has not been slow either. Is it not a miracle that a printer has remained in one county a whole year! And a miracle of miracles that he should not go out of town but once in the same length of time. Such are the facts with regard to Mr. Gooch; and indeed, we are indebted to his steady and constant application for the regularity and punctuality of our issues. What must be thought of the religion and morals of a community that can influence a journeyman printer to stay in town, and at one office for the space of an entire year?

QUESTION.—Who, among the Saints, will raise up a family of children without giving them education, the bible, and the Guardian?

Major Barrow has our thanks for late St. Louis papers.

The weather has been very severe for the last few days. Our beautiful sleighing was ruined by the late thaw; but a sudden change has caused the roads to be very rough and icy. The Missouri river is firmly bound in chains of frost, and teams are daily crossing it.

Ferry over the Missouri.

The Legislature of Iowa granted the right of ferry, we are told, to Messrs. Clark, Townsend & Brophy, across the Missouri river at Council Bluffs. If we are correctly informed, they were to locate their ferry at some point, and from that point their chartered privileges were to extend ten miles up and ten miles down the river. We have understood that they located their ferry last year at Trading Point, and that it became the load star that guided the "wise men of the East," in their survey of the State Road whose terminus, interest and consistency decreed should meet the Ferry at the point of its location.

Now it is more than probable that the tide of Salt Lake and California Emigration will cross the Missouri river at or near the mouth of the Great Platte; and the question arises in our mind, whether the chartered privileges of the above named gentlemen, are elastic enough to stretch down to the mouth of the Platte or below? If they are, what will become of the State road? That will have to be shifted also in order that the road may agree with the ferry.

We want a good Ferry at the mouth of the Platte; and one, too, that is responsible, and that may be depended upon, so as to enable our emigration to pass up on the south side of that river, to avoid the dangerous crossing of the Loup Fork. It matters little to us who keeps it. All the interest that we have in it, or that we wish to have is, to see a safe and commodious ferry established there.

It is rumored that there is only one right of way through the Indian country from this point, secured by treaty stipulations; and that way is said to be on the north side of the Platte. Concerning this matter, we have no knowledge; but we have supposed that the right of way to the emigrant through the Indian country was as free and diverse as the right and diversity of way on the ocean to the storm beaten mariner. We will take some little pains to inform ourself on this subject, and if we find that there is no right of way on the South side of the Platte, nearer than old Fort Kearney, then old Fort Kearney is the point that our emigration will make for.

Subscribe for the Guardian.

The present is, and will be an important year with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; and not only an important year with us, but with many nations and kingdoms of the earth. Who then that feels that all things will not remain as they were from the beginning," will suffer himself or herself to be deprived of a journal that will be faithful to record events that transpire, in connection with our faith and expectation? You who feel too poor to subscribe for the Guardian, just ask yourselves how much money you pay out for comparatively useless things. Do you not think that by a little more economy, and by a little more zeal for the success and prosperity of Zion's cause, you might collect two dollars and pay it over for the support of an engine that can often parry the thrusts of an enemy, and pour a stream of intelligence, not only into your own bosom to cheer and gladden your heart, but into the hearts of thousands of others. Remember that if you live for yourself only, your heaven will be a lonesome one, so much so, that you will want to forsake it; and where can you go? You often want Br. Hyde to give you counsel, and he often spends whole days, nights, and half days and hours, and minutes in this way: But if he should charge you for such things, you would think that if he received freely, he did not give freely. You would say also, that Br. Hyde worked for the loaves and the fishes: Well, he does work for all the loaves and fishes he gets, and he does not get all he works for either. But give him plenty of employment and pay him for his labor and we assure you that he will try his best to give satisfaction, and to keep you duly apprised of all things that transpire which are likely to involve your interest. When you read this number we shall expect that some of you who may have felt too poor to subscribe this year, will certainly come forward and renew your old subscription, and subscribe for an additional paper to send to your friends. Now depend upon it, if you keep Br. Hyde with you, you have got to support him. But he will work for his support: and that, you know, is the creed that he enforces upon all. He would much rather work than eat, except when he is hungry; and we believe that if you pay him two dollars a year for the Guardian, with all the private counsel and advice that you may naturally expect, thrown in with the bargain, you will not be a thousand dollars poorer at the end of the present year.

Satan Shooting Himself.

William Smith has procured the publication of the following, which he asserts is the oath sworn and subscribed to by all the principal Salt Lake Mormons:

"You do solemnly swear in the presence of Almighty God, his holy angels, and these witnesses, that you will avenge the blood of Joseph Smith on this nation, and teach the same to your children; and that you will, from this time, henceforth and forever, begin and carry out hostilities against the nation, and to keep the same intent a profound secret, now and forever. So help you, God."

If any person has taken the above oath, that person has violated it by divulging it; and if he has broken such an oath, can his word be relied on when he swears to its truth? Again: If the hostile intention against the United States is to be kept a profound secret, now and forever, according to that oath, how far could the Mormons carry hostilities against the government before they would reveal the secret themselves? If the Mormons would ever keep that intent a secret, we believe that the Mormons and the oath would be perfectly harmless: for if they once began to shed rivers of blood, and to make a bluster of opposition, their intent is not kept a profound secret now and forever. Again: when the Mormons were driven out of Nauvoo what was the first act of hostility against the nation, that they were guilty of? Och mon! do ye not know? Why, to raise 500 volunteers for Santa Anna to fight against Gen. Taylor. Can't you see how we have fulfilled the oath to the very letter? Answer a fool according to his folly, said Solomon: But to the point. We have before contradicted it, and we now say, that it is the very gangrene of revenge and malice. William Smith has proven himself unworthy the confidence of any upright and moral person. He was lawfully excluded from the Church in Nauvoo, as thousands of witnesses can testify in this country, and as the general church records now at the Salt Lake Valley will testify to any one who will search them. But it is no use to reason or talk about this affair further. The devil would not acknowledge, we presume, that he was legally or righteously expelled from Heaven; and if he thought that he could enlist the whole nation on his side to break down the Almighty, he would doubtless be as patriotic and as much attached to Republican institutions as William Smith. In the days of Solomon two women contended for a certain child: one was its mother and the other was not, and as they could not agree, the wise king of Israel called for a sword to cut the child in two and give half to each one. She that was not the mother sanctioned the proposition, while the other shrieked with horror at the idea of cutting the child in two. "Ah!" says Solomon to the latter, "the child is yours." So also with William, because he cannot be the ruler or leader of the church, he seeks to destroy it, and that too, by the most glaring falsehoods that disappointed ambition can utter. But we here predict that his influence will be of short duration, and his race will soon be run. He will yet come out and deny his present position, and those who may now be his friends, will become his enemies; and such as support him the strongest now, will turn to be the most potent against him. When these things come to pass, then know that he has most wickedly and maliciously lied against those who would rather be his friends than his enemies, if his conduct were such as to merit our friendship.

Subscribers Abroad.

Those of our foreign or mail subscribers, who wish the Guardian continued to them, would do well to remit us the money before their former term of subscription expires; for, as a general rule, their papers hereafter will be discontinued whenever the term for which they have subscribed and paid, is out; unless timely remittances are made. Those who know themselves indebted to the office of the Guardian are requested to forward the amount with as little delay as possible; for we wish to lay in our Spring's supply of stock as early as the navigation of the Missouri river will allow us. We must either do this, or stop the press.

QUESTION BY AN ANTI-MORMON.—Friend Hyde, if Mr. Thomas C. Sharp is so bad a man as you represent him to be in your last Guardian, why do you not cast the devil out of him and make him a good man, as your creed invests you with miraculous power to do it?

Answer.—It would be a great pity to exercise such power upon Mr. Sharp as to cast the Devil out of him; for there would be nothing left but his shirt and nose.

Mill-Dam.

We are assured, by a responsible man residing on Musquito Creek, near the mill site of Mr. Meeks, that no encouragement was given to erect the dam by any persons residing above it, or near the Creek, and that the dam has been removed out of no ill will to Mr. Meeks; but the numerous cases of fever and ague that have been among the citizens of that section the last fall and this winter, occasioned, as they believe, by the great quantity of land flowed by the water of the pond, they resolved out of respect to their own health, to abate the nuisance. They have done so, and however much we dislike to see a man lose his labor, we dislike still more to see a great number of people with pale faces and shaking with the ague. We have visited the settlement, and are well convinced, from personal observation, that the health of the neighborhood demanded the removal of the dam; and in the absence of legal power to abate the nuisance, the citizens are unquestionably justified in removing the said dam.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We learn from Judge English of Austin, Fremont county, that a Mr. George Allen, residing with Mr. George Wilkinson, was accidentally shot by the latter, on Sunday evening Jan. 10th, near Austin, and died the same evening.

Companies for the Valley.

The emigrating companies destined for the Valley it is expected, will be organized by the presidency and council of the Church in Pottawatamie; and it will be our object and design to place such men for leaders or captains as have stood by the council, and have co-operated with them in all things. The spirits of such men we know, for we have proved them, and therefore know and can trust them.

The Guardian can be had in St. Louis at Concert Hall, on Market street before and after meetings on Sundays, and at all times, at Elder N. H. Felt's office, number 14 North Third street, over the "Rainbow Dye-House."

It can also be had at the City of the Great Salt Lake by enquiring at the office of the Secretary of State. It may also be had at the Millennial Star office, number 15 Wilton Street, Liverpool, England.

High Council.

This body, at their last session, did not see fit to stop the dancing until the first day of March next. They thought that this unusual length of time granted for that recreation, would suit the simple; but recommended wise people to wind off now, and go about something more profitable for soul and body. Suppose the wise go to take care of the simple till the first of March? But, now is the time to let your moderation be known to all men.

☞ The New York Tribune will please accept our thanks for particular favors.

New Post Office.

We learn that a new Post office has been established at Indian Town, in this county, about forty-five miles east of this town. Mr. John Pettingill, we learn, is appointed Postmaster. This reminds us of a man who said he had an excellent mill seat on his farm, but there was no stream of water. If we could have a mail running regularly past, it would be very desirable; but we almost despair of such a luxury.

CHOLERA.—We notice from some of our exchanges, that this raging disease has re-appeared in New Orleans. There were 62 cases on Dec. 27th, and reported to be on the increase the following day.

Any person wishing to send letters to the Mississippi river by W. McLennan Esq., will leave them at the store of Joseph E. Johnson, before 6 o'clock P. M. on, Friday next.

Subscribers who intend Emigrating.

There are many persons abroad whose subscriptions expired with the last number, and they expect to emigrate to this point or to the Valley at the opening of Spring. Such can have the paper three months, and receive it at their homes mostly before they leave. This number of the Guardian will be sent to most subscribers whose subscriptions ended with the 26th number of volume 1. Should any one to whom it is sent decline receiving it for another term, he will please re-mail it back to this office without delay, if his past subscription is paid up, and write his own name on the wrapper or envelope, and say: "Frontier Guardian, (Returned,) Kanesville, Iowa."

KANESVILLE ELOCUTION ASSOCIATION.—This company design holding one of their grand exhibitions at the Music Hall in this town, on Wednesday evening next, 13th inst. They have taken unwearied pains to get up something both amusing and instructing to the people, and it is to be hoped that they may be patronized by all that love to learn human nature from the peasant to the king. The world is a mirror, and whoever looks into it will generally see himself.

This same company design giving a fancy dress ball on Tuesday, 19th inst. See advertisement in another column. Tickets can be had of Mr. C. H. Bassett, at Mr. Voorhis' store.

FRANKING PRIVILEGE OF POSTMASTERS.—The following important letter is in reply to one from the editor of the New York Mirror:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Appointment Office, Dec. 31, 1949.

SIR: The Postmaster General, after careful consideration of the question as to the right of Postmasters that have the privilege of franking, to frank letters to publishers of newspapers covering money for subscriptions or the names of subscribers, has decided, that when the Postmaster is agent for the publishers, he has the power to frank such letters, and his agency will be presumed from the fact that he franks them. As no Postmaster has any authority to frank these communications but when he is such an Agent, it is proper to regard him as acting in that capacity when he so conducts, until information is received to the contrary. In doing this business, the Postmaster must be regarded as entirely the Agent of the publisher and not the Department.

Very respectfully, &c.,
FITZ HENRY WARREN.

CANADA TO BE ABANDONED BY GREAT BRITAIN.—The London United Service Guzette has reasons for "boldly announcing that the question of abandoning Canada, as a British Colony, has been the most absorbing topic, (with the Cabinet,) and we learn, from authority in which we are apt to place firm reliance, that it has been all but determined to give up Canada, as a dependence of the British Crown.

STEAMBOAT DISASTERS.—During the past year 81 steamboats have been either sunk, burned or or otherwise injured on the Western Waters, and 28 which were afterwards raised and repaired. The total loss of boats and cargoes, is estimated at $1,600,400; not including the numerous other accidents, such as sinking, collapsing of boilers, flues, &c.

A fair estimate of every loss connected with Western steamboat navigation, if included would swell the amount to the enormous sum of $200,000,000, or more, and included into this, accidents of flat, keel, and various other species of water craft; we might safely set the sum total at $2,500,000,000.—[St. Louis Republican.

List of Monies received since the 1st of January 1850, on subscription for the Frontier Guardian, from abroad.

Amos P. Musser, Iowa, $1 00; O. P. Wilson, Ill., $2 00; James Hill, Ill., $1 00; Lydia Richards, Ill., $1 00; G. W. Brake, Iowa, $1 00; Emily S. Hoyt, Iowa, $1 00; J. P. Williams, P. M., Ill., $5 00; Wm. Baldwin, Ill., $2 00; Stafford A. Greenwood, John W. Wakeham, Samuel Lever, James Lemon, and S. W. Woodcock, Savannah, Mo., $1 00 each; J. L. Foreman, Mo., 50 cents; George Clare, N. Y., $1 00; Amy C. Aldrich, Mass., $1 00; Nicholas Foos, Ohio, $2 00; Orrin Mansfield, Conn., $1 00 John M. Thompson, Tenn., $1 00; Nancy R. Pierson, Mass., $2 00; Lewis Eaft, Vt., $2 00; Elisha B. Foster, Mass., $1 00; W. D. Reamer, N. J., $1 00; James L. Curtis, N. J., $1 00; Harrison Brown, Conn., $1 00; E. I. Harper, Mo., $2 00; J. Pace, Mo., $1 00; Joseph P. Risley, Mo., $1 00 James Townsend, Mo., $1 00; Wm. Ladd, Mo., $1 00.

MARRIED,

In this town by the Editor, on Tuesday, the 29th ult., Mr. STEPHEN WIGHT to Miss LUCY WATERBURY.

DIED,

At Austin, Fremont county, Iowa, on Wednesday, January 17th, JULIA VAN VLIET, aged 18 months, only daughter of W. R. English, Esq.

☞ St. Louis and Philadelphia papers are requested to copy.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

FERRY NOTICE.

WE the undersigned having made application to the Honorable County Court, of Pottawatamie County, Iowa, at there last term, on the 7th day of January, 1850, for a Ferry License at the place occupied by J. H. Rose, about one mile below the mouth of Platte River, and opposite Iron Eye Bluff, which we expect at the next term of said court to obtain license, by complying with the requisitions of the law.

MARTIN, ROSE & ALLEN.

February 6, 1850.—1t*

FANCY DRESS BALL.

THE KANESVILLE ELOCUTION ASSOCIATION, will give a Grand Fancy Dress Ball, in behalf of the above Association on Tuesday, Feb. 19th, 1850, in the Music Hall. Refreshments furnished by the Association. None admitted unless in costume. Tickets, $1 00. Limited number of tickets will be issued. A full band in attendance.

Kanesville, Feb. 6th, 1850.

MUSICIAN'S BENEFIT.

REALIZING the continued labors of the Musicians for the gratification and amusement of the citizens generally, we deem it a mark of respect and a recompense due to them, to give a ball for their benefit on Tuesday the 12th inst., in the Music Hall. All friendly to the object are invited to make an early application for tickets, as a limited number will be issued.

Tickets, $1,00. To be had at the Guardian Office.

Persons are requested to furnish their own refreshments as this is a benefit for the musicians.

J. B. STUTSMAN,
J. NEEDHAM,
C. H. BASSETT,
D. CANDLAND,
JOHN GOOCH Jr. } Managers.

E. I. HARPER,

WATCH MAKER AND JEWELLER,

St. Joseph, Mo.

HAS now on hand, and will be constantly receiving a general assortment of the following articles—gold and silver, patent lever and plain watches; ear and finger rings; silver and German silver table, tea, salt and mustard spoons; ladies and gentlemans breast pins; gold, silver and steel spectacles; thimbles; gold pens and pencils; bowie, hunting and pocket knives; steel beads; purses and trimmings; musical boxes; violins; guitar and violin strings; coral beads; double barrel guns and pistols; percussion caps; powder horns; flasks; shot bags and goggles, with a great variety of fancy articles, all of which will be sold at Eastern prices.

N. B. Good Watches and Jewelry of every description, repaired and warranted.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 6th, 1850—1y

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

I now must have some cotton logs
To build me a new stable;
For in the Spring I'll have a horse,
If I shall then be able.

For further particulars, enquire at this office.

Kanesville, Feb. 6, 1850.

FOR SALE.

A span of young horses are offered at a reasonable rate, for sale, or to exchange for work oxen by O. CRAW, at Carterville. Call soon.

Carterville, Feb. 6, 1850—1t*

LOST.

A FANCY GOLD RING in the neighborhood of Voorhis' Store, on Wednesday, Jan. 30th, 1850. Any person finding said ring will be liberally rewarded by leaving it at the store of C Voorhis & Co. C. H. BASSETT.

Kanesville, Feb. 6, 1850—1t

SOLDIERS OR THEIR HEIRS.

THAT have Bounty Land, Back Pay, Three Months' Extra Pay, Pension and Mileage due them, can procure the amount due on making application at this office. E. EASTON,

Pension and Bounty Land Agent, Walnut street, one door below 4th street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 6, 1850.

STRAYED

FROM JOSEPH GRIFFITH, Ferryville, some time in July last two young steers about three years old. One was white with black head and neck and his tail cut short. The other brindled with white back. Whoever will give information where they can be obtained shall be rewarded for their trouble. JOSEPH GRIFFITH.

Ferryville, Feb. 6, 1850—2t*

TO EMIGRANTS.

I TAKE this opportunity to inform those that may wish to send in the spring to the Valley of the Salt Lake, Merchandize, Household goods or loading of any kind, that I am prepared to carry a few tons on the cheapest terms; therefore I wish you to consider the probability of teams and wagons being very high in the coming spring, and give me a call on Main street, a few rods west of the Bluff House. HAMILTON KEARNEY.

Kanesville, Feb. 6th, 1850.

WANTED.

THIRTY good young men to start to the Salt Lake Valley as teamsters, by the 1st day of April next. Also a company of from fifteen to twenty-five men to go through in haste, on horseback, and pack their luggage. No charge for piloting them, though the undersigned is well acquainted with crossing the plains—is acquainted with the Indians and with Indian character—with the mountains and with mountain life, and will be able to render any assistance that may be required in the Salt Lake City. Mutual protection is the object of this company. Teamsters will be boarded and a reasonable quantity of baggage hauled for their services through. Mr. Williams will give all necessary instructions how to rig out a pack animal, and will agree to take them through as quick as any white or red man can expect to go.

Apply to Mr. David Candland of this town.

T. S. WILLIAMS.

Kanesville, Feb. 6, 1850—2t*

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1850.

Mormonism in the Old Countries.

It appears from the Millennial Star, and from various other publications, and also from private letters, that Mormonism has met its antagonists in England, bible in hand, stood its ground, and repulsed the enemy. It has met its foes with science and philosophy, and has bourne off the palm; and to crown the climax, miracles of the most astonishing character, performed in the face of saint and sinner, have come down upon the literati of that country like a torrent or an avalanche from the Mountains! God be praised for his wonderful works among the children of men! "Salvation, Oh the joyful sound: 'tis pleasure to our ears!"

The following is from the "Cheltenham Examiner."

"Tracts for the Times."

We find that the instigators in the Mormon delusions are neither dead nor sleeping. They are now going about the town, leaving tracts at the doors of the poor, and appear to be pursuing their labors in a systematic and persevering manner. One of these "tracts" has been handed to us: it sets out with the question—"Was Joseph Smith sent of God!" and attempts to prove the affirmative by citing the numerous "prophecies" and "miracles" which the said Joseph Smith, it is alleged to have uttered and performed! And not only is it alledged that Joseph Smith the founder of the Latter-day Saints, performed the numerous miracles, but that he has transferred the power to "vast multitudes" of his followers, who can also heal the sick and work by faith in the name of the Lord! What a pity it is that these blasphemies cannot be put an end to.—[Cheltenham Examiner.

To the Editor of the Cheltenham Examiner."

"Dear Sir: As I know you always promote the cause of religion and morality in your Examiner, I take the liberty of requesting your advocacy in the work of Scripture readers, or, as sometimes called, lay readers, in our villages. Very many of the really pious and good clergy do subscribe to the fund, now in existence nearly twenty years, and are most anxious for the continued assistance to receive: the Bishop himself takes interest in the work, and has promoted at Stroud an institution of the kind: the villages round Cheltenham, I grieve to say, are in a sad neglected state—Mormonism increasing beyond belief, many of the churches entirely neglected, dissent of all denominations increasing, and yet the committee find it difficult to keep up the funds required to pay a faithful yet humble men, who have done and are doing, unbounded good in the spread of the Gospel. Should this statement meet the eye of those anxious for the glory of God and the well being of society, I trust they will communicate with you, who can refer them to me for any explanation, and the truth of what I now state. I am, dear sir, yours,

"JUSTICE."

August 8th, 1849.

Mexico and its Prospects.

The intelligence which we are receiving from time to time from Mexico warrants the belief that unfortunate country is still on the downward track, without any prospect of better times. It seems that the agent of the British bondholders has recently had a difficulty with the government, and the latter returned to England for the purpose of laying the matter before Lord Palmerston. There is a good deal of surmise as to what the British government will do concerning the debts due from that country to British subjects. It is very evident, however, from the givings-out of Lord Palmerston on several occasions that the British government meditates a bold stroke toward Mexico and the Central American Republics, on account of those debts. It has been frequently laid down as a principle, that Great Britain had a right to demand payment of money due her subjects in foreign states; and it has been threatened, on more occasions than one, that in case such demands were not complied with she would seize the territory of the defaulting States as indemnity. A short time since the British naval force seized Tigre Island, belonging to Honduras, on this ground as well as a portion of San Salvador and adjoining states, they being indebted to British subjects in large amounts. If England persists in following such a policy, it will strike a blow at the independence of those States from which they would perhaps never recover and lead to difficulties with the United States which might result in a collision between the two nations. In all probability this subject will receive some attention during the present session.—[N. Y. Sun.

Will the United States suffer a transatlantic power to prey upon small Republics raised up on American soil without remonstrating in tones that are not to be misunderstood? Republicanism will eventually defend itself whatever branch of it may be assailed; for if she does not protect herself, society will not be apt to protect her. We do not believe in a nation being held responsible for the debts of her individual subjects created in good faith, unless the national faith were plighted upon the contracting of those debts, any more than we believe that the father should be held responsible for the debts of his son after he has become of age and acting upon his own individual faith.

Correspondence of the New York Express.

Horrible Position of the Nicaragua Question—Highly Important from Washington!

WASHINGTON, Jan 6.

The British Minister has already opened negotiations with the U. S. Secretary of State on the subject of his mission. The Nicaragua question will no doubt be amicably settled—the right of way for a ship canal to be guaranteed both by the United States and Great Britain; and Sir Henry Lytton Bulwer disavow Mr. Chatfield's acts on the Bay of Honduras, respecting Tigre Island. There is every reason to believe, that there is the best understanding between the two Governments, and a determination on the part of both to keep the peace.

Poetry Prose Drowned.—An English paper contains a melancholy account of the loss of twenty pilots attached to the Shields station, who were drowned in a humane attempt to rescue the crew of a wrecked vessel.

TELEGRAPH NEWS,

From St. Louis Papers.

ARRIVAL OF THE CANADA.

Fourteen days Later from Europe.

HALIFAX, Sunday Morning, 10, A.M.

The Canada has just arrived after a boisterous passage. Col. Webb and suite had reached Liverpool, en route for Vienna.

An express from India had arrived, bringing cheering news for the manufacturers. It was expected, that with the new year a large speculative business would be done.

A rebellion had broken out in Servia, which had alarmed the Austrian Government; the insurgents number over 100,000 and the ranks are hourly swelling by deserters from the military districts of Peterwarden and Essey. It is supposed that Russia is at the bottom of the conspiracy, in order to compel Austria and Turkey to be dependent on her. The rebellion will probably lead to a rupture between Austria and Turkey.

A plot, on a formidable scale, has been discovered against the Government in St. Petersburgh; it was to have been brought to a focus on New Year's day. The Czar has ordered a number of troops to the Turkish frontier, to be prepared for any emergency.

France.

There is nothing of special interest from France. A Havre paper says, that private letters had been received from the United States, stating that the cabinet of Washington have acknowledged the justice of the indemnity demanded by Poussin, and which led to the rupture between that gentleman and Mr. Clayton.

A regiment of soldiers stationed at Comorn had mutinied and killed a large number of officers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14, 5 P. M.

The Cherokee arrived yesterday morning from Chagres, bringing two hundred and fifty passengers and $700,000 in gold, with dates to 1st December. The news has been generally anticipated. About 40,000 persons will winter in the mines. Provisions throughout the gold regions are scanty. The present value of all houses at Sacramento City is estimated at $2,000,000. All the former reports concerning the abundance of gold, land Speculations, &c., are fully confirmed. The "Placer Times" takes from $1,000 to $2,000 weekly for job work. Compositors' wages fifteen dollars per day.

The Union of the British Provinces of North America.

MONTREAL, Jan. 1, 1850.

At a meeting, in this city, of the British League, resolutions were adopted in favor of electing a council of confederated union, for the purpose of adopting measures for securing the independent union of the British Provinces of North America.

From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

South Carolina.

We have received a copy of the message of Gov. Seabrook, of South Carolina.

After a brief introduction, the Governor proceeds at once to the subject of "federal relations," to which he devotes about a column, or one-fifth of his message. He discourses in good set terms against the "aggressions of the North," and of the danger to themselves and the Union in the persistence in their courses.

He approves highly of the plan of a Southern Convention, in case of the passage by Congress of the Wilmot Proviso, or kindred measure, and recommends that the Governor be empowered, in such a contingency, either to convoke the Legislature, if not in session, or to issue writs of election for a convention of the people.

He invites the attention of the Legislature to the offence of circulating within the limits of the State of papers and offensive pictorial representations, calculated to disturb the public peace. He holds that the power to prohibit the circulation of such incendiary papers through the mails, was not one of the powers granted to Congress, and therefore among the "reserved rights of the State," and one which the South at least would never abandon.

He recommends that the circulation within the limits of the State "be declared an offence punishable with severe and definite penalties, and that the existing laws be so modified, as effectually to prevent emissaries in the State, by personal efforts, or incendiaries out of the State, from effecting, through the mail, the accomplishment of their nefarious schemes."

The Governor goes at some length into a history of the Bank of the State, his hostility to which he expresses in no measured terms. He says:

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to assure you that South Carolina must, hereafter, exist as a military people. The history of our country, for the last ten years, affords abundant proof that, as long as the Union endures, there is to be no peace for the slaveholder. An eternal warfare against his rights of person and property, under the associated influence of the people and the States of the north, and the central power, has been solemnly and deliberately decreed. For this reason, it is essential, that the community, of which he is a member, should be prepared, at any moment, for every emergency.

He recommends measures to be taken for the re-organization of the military; the appropriation of $50,000 to purchase arms and ammunitions of war, &c.

The State census has been completed, and the returns are in the office of the Secretary of State. The white population is 280,305, an increase in the last ten years of 23,209. The increase between 1829 and 1839 was only 6,714.

STEPHENS' MYSTERIOUS CITY.—We read in the Courier des Etats Unis, that the Government Chiapas has sent out on an expedition to explore the Pinienta, a part of the mountain chain of the Cordilleras, with a view to set at rest the question as to whether there exists in that locality a city and people with whom no communication has ever yet been established.

From Washington.

Correspondence of Philadelphia North American.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5, 1850.

I enclose to you a copy of the territorial proposition, designed to be introduced by Mr. Foote, as the experiment of Mr. Calhoun and his Southern coadjutors, the moment occasion for its consideration is allowed. Though ostensibly the work of the Mississippi Senator, it is the ultimatum of the great South Carolina Statesman, who, in order to avoid the direct question at issue, is at last willing to enter upon a scheme of compromise.

The bill contains fifty-eight sections—the first eighteen of which provide, as you will observe, for the organization of the remaining ungoverned territories belonging to the Union. It is unnecessary to lay before the public more than the first division of the bill, for the remaining sections contain exactly similar provisions relative to New Mexico, Deseret and Jacinto. It is proposed to erect each of the latter into distinct dependencies, with boundaries described as follows:

For Deseret, (in the order of the bill,) beginning at the point on the 42d degree of north latitude, where it is intersected by the 116th degree of west longitude; thence due east with the northern boundary of California, until it strikes at the northern point of the eastern boundary of California; thence south by this eastern line, until it arrives at the northern point of the western boundary line of New Mexico, thence southwardly by the western boundary line of New Mexico, until it strikes the Mexican boundary line, (as per treaty with that government at Hidalgo Guadalupe;) thence westwardly by the last mentioned line to its intersection with the 116th degree of west longitude; and thence north, in a direct line to the place of beginning.

[California, independently of this division, contains about 400,000 square miles, two-thirds of which (250,000 square miles) lie north of the line of 36 deg. 30 min., and the residue south of that line. The boundaries contemplated for Deseret, encompass the Great Basin, and pursuing the 116th line of longitude, until it strikes the Mexican boundary line, divide the territory nearly through its centre, north and south; giving to the California division 175,000 square miles, bordering upon the Pacific, 125,000 square miles lying north of the line of 36 deg. 30 min., and but 50,000 square miles lying south of that line. Deseret, by the same division, will contain 225,000 square miles, 175,000 square miles of which will lie north of 36 deg. 30 min., and 50,000 south of the line. Thus, altogether, the Southern claimants will have only 75,000 square miles, while we of the North will hold 175,000 square miles!

For New Mexico.—The boundaries contemplated for New Mexico are those described in the treaty of peace with Mexico, which secured to us our Pacific possessions, omitting the disputed territory between the Nueces and Rio Grande.

This territory contains about 70,000 square miles, lying between the Sierra Madre Mountains and 105th degree of west longitude, and the 32d and 39th degrees of north latitude. Geographically, 30,000 square miles lie north of 36 deg. 30 min., and 40,000 square miles south of 36 deg. 30 min. Our Southern friends, in this case, will have 10,000 square miles of advantage over us.

For Jacinto.—The territory proposed for Jacinto, includes the disputed territory between the State of Texas and the Republic of Mexico, or that barren country lying west of the Nueces, and east of the Rio del Norte.

The disputed country here designated probably contains 100,000 square miles, or about one-fourth of the whole territory of the State. The entire region lies south of the point 36 deg. 30 min., and connects the territory of New Mexico with that of Texas, as Deseret connects New Mexico with California. The geographical position of each division may be described as follows:

	North of 36d. 30m.	South of 36d. 30m.	Total.
California -	125,000 sq. m.	50,000 sq. m.	175,000
Deseret - -	175,000 do	50,000 do	225,000
New Mexico	30,000 do	40,000 do	70,000
Jacinto -		100,000 do	100,000

Letter from the President of the United States to Gov. Ujhazy.

We published, some days since, a letter from Ladislaus Ujhazy, late civil governor of Comcra, to the President of the United States, announcing his intention, and that of several of his compatriots, to seek an asylum in this country. The following is the President's reply:

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20, 1849.

SIR: I have duly received your letter of November 2d, from London, announcing the determination of yourself and comrades to seek an asylum in America.

The people of this Republic have deeply sympathized with the Hungarians in their recent struggle for constitutional freedom, and in the calamities which have befallen their unhappy land; and I am sure that I but speak the universal sentiments of my countrymen in bidding you and your associates a cordial welcome to our soil, the natural asylum of the oppressed from every clime. We offer you protection and a free participation in the benefits of our institutions and our laws, and trust that you may find in America a second home.

I am, with high respect, your sincere friend, Z. TAYLOR.

LADISLAUS UJHAZY,
Late Governor of Comorn, in Hungary.

THE PROPOSED WATER COMMUNICATION BETWEEN THE ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC.—It is said that among the passengers sailed yesterday were some of our enterprising steamshipmen, who have chartered the steamer Orus, at Chagres, for the purpose of proceeding to the mouth of the San Juan river, and going up to Lake Nicaragua and thence to Lake Leon with the view of exploring those waters and if practicable steam navigation be discovered to the head of Lake Leon to cut a communication thence to the Pacific, a distance of only thirteen miles, which could be done with comparative ease.—[N. Y. Herald, 14th ult.

TELEGRAPH ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.—A plan has been matured to connect New York and Liverpool by means of electric wires. S. T. Armstrong, of the Hudson (Gutta Percha) Manufactory, proposes to contract to lay down a line of coated impregnable and perfectly insulated wire cable, that shall be capable of continued action for ten years, and for a sum not to exceed three millions of dollars; and to be completed in twenty months from the date of contract. He proposes, also, to lay a similar line from some poinis on the Mississippi river to the Pacific, on the same terms, to be guaranteed by any bonds that may be required. This scheme has the sanction of Professor Morse, and will be laid before Congress at an early day.

Those who possess any real excellence, think and say the least about it.

KANESVILLE MARKET.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 6th, 1850.

The market continues steady at former quotations. Business rather dull, but our merchants are availing themselves of the opportunity, by preparing for a rich harvest in the spring.

For particulars we refer to the following quotations:

Flour ℔ hundred,	$2 25@$2 50
Beef "	$2 50@$3 00
Sugar, ℔ lb.,	10c.
Coffee, "	12½c.
Rice, "	6c.
Salt ℔ sack,	$3 50@$4 00
Tea, (various qualities,) ℔ lb.	60@$1 00
Molasses, S. H., per gal.	75
" N.O., "	60
Golden Syrup,	$1 00
Buckwheat Flour, ℔ lb.	02
Pork, (fresh,)	3@5c.
Bacon, ℔ lb.,	6c.
Lard, ℔ lb.	6@8c.
Candles, "	15c.
Dried Apples, ℔ bush.	$1 50
Green " ℔ bbl.	$3 50
Dried Peaches, ℔ bush.	1 75
Raisins, (new) MR	35c.
Currants, (Zante)	20c.
Green hides, ℔ lb.,	2½c
Dry do. "	4½c.
Iron, (tire,) "	6c.
" (assorted,)	6½c.
Potatoes, ℔ bushel,	30@40c.
Corn, "	25@25c.
Wheat, "	60@75c.
Oats, "	30c.
Flaxseed, "	35c.
Onions, ℔ bush.,	50c.
Tallow, ℔ lb.	10c.
Butter, "	10c.
Cheese, "	8c.
Beeswax, "	16½c.
Honey, ℔ gallon,	$1 00
Eggs, ℔ dozen,	6c.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

CASH PAID FOR LAND WARRANTS.

ORSON HYDE Will pay cash for Land Warrants, and the highest market price, if they are offered soon at his office in Kanesville.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1849.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that I, the undersigned have obtained from the Judge of Probate Court, of Pottawatamie county, letters of administration upon the estate of John W. Strode, deceased, bearing date Dec. the 11, 1849. That all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against said estate, are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate; and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred.

PIUS SAPPINGTON, Administrator.

KEG CREEK MILLS FOR SALE.

THE subscribers, wishing to remove in the Spring to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, offer for sale their new SAW AND FLOURING MILLS, providing they can sell within one month, otherwise they do not wish to sell at present, for that would break into the arrangements for next Fall. The mills and the seat are decidedly the best in this Western country. Call and examine for yourselves.

The buildings, machinery, and location, are well worth the attention of any person or persons, intending to enter that line of business, and will be offered at a rate to justify any person that wishes to invest capital. They can also be bought cheaper now, than four weeks hence.

We will take one third in cattle, the balance cash.

JOSEPH W. COOLIDGE & CO.

Keg Creek Mills, Jan. 23, 1850.—2t

VALUABLE MILL SITE AND FARM FOR SALE.

BY the subscriber situated on Keg Creek, about six miles from the New Ferry near the mouth of Platte river, and near the main road from Kanesville to St. Joseph, Mo. The Mill site is considered also best in the county, with every facility for erecting a grist and saw mill and other machinery, here is an abundance of water at all seasons of the year. There is a plenty of Limestone on the premises. The farm consists of one hundred and sixty acres of land one house and other accommodations. As the subscriber designs emigrating to the west this season he offers the above, together with a pair of mill-stones for sale. For further particulars enquire of the subscriber at Coonville, on Keg Creek.

ELIJAH ALLEN.

Coonville, on Keg Creek, Jan. 23, 1850.—3t

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

THE subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Gaiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Morocco do;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pumps-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots,	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do;
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the big boot, on the top of the House, No. 236 New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money.

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 14, 1849.

A choice lot of fire and safe iron, for sale at this office. jan24

CLOCKS—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again!

MR. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Hollowware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high; in a word, we only want to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent," for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN, at Brown & Millers store.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

GRAND EXHIBITION

AT THE

NEW STORE

OF

J. A. KELTING & CO.

Performances every day in the week—Sundays excepted.

Admittance Free—Children half price.

The subscribers are now receiving and exhibiting to an "admiring public" the best assortment of

GOODS

Ever offered to the citizens of the independent State of Iowa. Among which may be found: Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Satinetts, Jeans, Bleached and Brown Muslins, Ginghams, Cashmeres, Prints, Alpacas, Linens, Cambrics, Laces, Edgings, Ribbons, &c., &c.

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes,

READY MADE CLOTHING of every description—from a three dollar suit up to the "Heigth of Extravagance," suited to the taste of the most fastidious old bachelor that ever cast sheeps eyes on the fair of the Land.

Also a splendid assortment of

Fancy Goods, Hardware and Cutlery.

Salt Lake and California Emigrants,

Supplied with every article wanted on the journey, at as cheap rates as at any place west of New York.

In short they intend their establishment shall not be behind the first houses in the country in point of variety and cheapness. All in want of Goods are invited to call and examine for themselves, as nothing will be charged for showing goods at the

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

Kanesville, (Council Bluffs,) Iowa, Jan. 1, 1850.

GREAT BARGAIN.

THE subscriber offers for sale his improvement, situated at the landing at Council Point, said farm has been under cultivation for about fourteen years, containing eighty acres of well improved land, has about thirty-five acres of wheat growing, most of it was sown in August, also four dwelling houses; one good barn, corn cribs, root house, &c., and all out houses that is calculated to make a farmer comfortable. Any person wishing to purchase, so as to double his money cannot do better than call; for the price will be so that I think the grain on the ground will refund the money advanced and have the farm clear. Call and see for yourselves. CHARLES BIRD.

Council Point, Jan. 9, 1850.

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

STRAYED,

FROM the subscriber last April a HEIFER one year old of a light red color, with a little white across her shoulder and loins, and a round white spot on her right flank. Any person giving information to the subscriber, so that she may be obtained shall be rewarded by

JOHN W. BELL.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.—2t

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectfully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take home with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY

St. Joseph, Mo., March 31, 1849—may 1f

C. VOORHIS & Co.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware,

Kanesville, Iowa.

SHEETINGS—15000 yards heavy sheetings for sale low by [jan23] C. VOORHIS & CO.

PRINTS—6000 yards prints, a splendid assortment, at [jan23] C. VOORHIS & CO.

ALAPACAS AND DELAINS—new styles at jan23 VOORHIS'.

SHAWLS! SHAWLS! SHAWLS!—a large lot at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

GINGHAMS—Every variety, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

BROADCLOTHS, SATTINETS AND CASSIMERES—at [jan23] VOORHIS.

DRILLS—Blue, brown and white, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

SHIRTINGS—Bleached and unbleached, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

FLANNELS AND LINSEYS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

HATS AND CAPS—Latest styles for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

BOOTS AND SHOES—1500 pairs for sale low by [jan23] VOORHIS.

SCHOOL BOOKS AND STATIONARY—at jan23 VOORHIS'.

HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—A large assortment, at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

AXES—Collin's, Simmon's and Nanson's axes at jan23 VOORHIS'.

GLASS AND QUEENSWARE—for sale low by [jan23] VOORHIS'.

COFFEE, SUGAR AND RICE—at jan23 VOORHIS'.

TEAS—Imperial, gunpowder, young hyson and black teas, at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

SALERATUS—A first rate article, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

DRIED APPLES AND PEACHES—For sale by [jan23] VOORHIS.'

SOAP AND STARCH—For sale by jan23 VOORHIS'.

CANDLES—Sperm, star, adamantine and tallow at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

VINEGAR—Cider vinegar, for sale at jan23 VOORHIS'.

MOLASSES—Sugar house, for sale at jan23 VOORHIS'.

STOVES—Premium and empire, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS'.

POWDER, LEAD AND CAPS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

LEATHER—A large lot, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

CANDIES AND ALMONDS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

UMBRELLAS—A good article at jan23 VOORHIS'.

WINES AND LIQUORS—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

TUBS AND BUCKETS—Wash tubs and painted buckets at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

SPADES AND SHOVELS—For sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

BROOMS, BROOMS—New brooms, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

CASTINGS—All kinds for sale low by jan23 VOORHIS.

FLOUR—Superfine flour, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

IRON—Well assorted at jan23 VOORHIS.

1850.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

SALERATUS—A little more left of the first quality, at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

APPLES—Dried, first rate article, warranted, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

DRIED PEACHES—A large quantity, good, to be sold very cheap at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

RAISINS—A rare article, just rec'd, from St. Louis, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

ALMONDS AND CANDY—to be had at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

SPICE AND PEPPER—Always on hand at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

SUGAR—Loaf and bigown sugar, a good dry article, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

HARDWARE AND CUTLERY—A large assortment, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

DRILLINGS—Blue, brown, and white, for sale by [jan] NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SHIRTINGS—Bleached and unbleached, best quality, for sale cheap by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

TEAS—Young Hyson, and Imperial teas, at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SHAWLS—Broshe, plaid and other varieties, at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

MOLASSES—Sugarhouse and N. O., for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SPADES AND SHOVELS—for sale by jan24 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

FLOUR AND MEAL—for sale at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

FLANNELS—Red and white, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

ALPACAS AND DELAINES—New styles for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

GINGHAMS—A large lot, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SHEETINGS—1000 yards, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

HATS AND CAPS—New styles, call at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

AXES—Collins, warranted, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

SARDINES—A good article can be found at nov24 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

CIGARS & TOBACCO—An assortment, just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVE PIPE—Just rec'd, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

STOVES—A good assortment of stoves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

PRINTS—1200 yds, beautiful patterns, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BRANDY AND GIN—Best article, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

BROOMS—A large supply, for sale cheap at jan24 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

COFFEE AND RICE—Best quality, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

CLOTHS—Broadcloths, sattinetts and cassimeres for sale at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

BOOTS & SHOES—A large lot for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

QUEENSWARE AND GLASSWARE—For sale at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

WANTED.

TO engage one hundred good young men as teamsters to go through to the Valley. They can have their board and a reasonable amount of luggage hauled for them. This will be a fine chance for young men that wish to go to the Valley or to the Gold mines this Spring. Enquire at this office.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

Original.

Signs of the Times.

Change upon change, succeeds in rotation,
Defying the power of millions to tell
What yet will transpire in this generation,
Among the great mass that desire to prevail.

The past only furnishes series of trouble,
Millions have died, within the last year,
Friends and acquaintances, freed from the bustle,
At present are sleeping—whose names we revere.

The old and the young are lying together
The rich and the poor both wearied, now rest;
The bereav'd and distressed are left to consider
That life's like vapor, soon vanished at best.

Kingdoms and thrones are continually falling,
Rulers and Judges, are hurl'd from their seats,
Nobles and statesmen, deserting their calling;
And fleeing for refuge, from mobocrat threats.

Famine and plague, are making their inroads;
Distress and perplexity, stalking abroad;
Anarchy, wrath and confusion 's the Tripod,
That vice has erected to worship her God.

Signs in the Heavens, the wise men have notic'd,
On earth, blood and fire, and vapor of smoke,
They are but omens, and sent to admonish
Mankind of their danger before the great shock

Great partisan zeal, and selfish ambition,
Have severed the links of friendship and truth,
Till tumult and war in every direction,
Are sweeping their thousands to misery and death.

Well might the prophets pause and reflect, on
The picture displayed in vision to them,
And mourn over man for sin and transgression,
Understanding the wrath reserved for some.

A prophet's been raised, by the council of Heav'n,
To guide the affairs of the children of men,
Unto him the keys of knowledge were given,
To open the door of salvation to them.

Although he is dead, his priesthood is living,
Ministering still, notwithstanding he's gone,
Through agents on earth, ordained to this calling.
The Gospel is offered to all that will come.

Ye nations! wake up, embrace its salvation!
Secure to yourselves, and your children, the truth,
Then you like a rock, in the midst of the ocean,
Shall stand 'mid the surges that time ushers forth

The spirit of Jesus will also be with you,
And in you abiding continually too;
Provided that you in his doctrine continue;
This promise is offered to gentile and Jew.

MISCELLANY.

From the American Union.

One of the Weddings.

A few days ago, there arrived at a hotel in Boston, a couple from Rhode Island, who came to get joined quietly in the bonds of matrimony. As soon as they were domiciliated, the would-be bridegroom—who was a rough, but apparently honest specimen of the country Yankee—sent for the proprietor of the hotel, who quickly answered his summons.

"Say, lan'lord," proposed the stranger, pointing to his modest Dulcinea in the corner of the parlor, "this is my young 'ooman. Natow we've cum all the way from Rh'eode Island, and want to be spliced. Sen' for the minister, will yer? Want it dun up rite strait off."

The landlord smiled and went out, and half an hour afterward, a licensed minister made his appearance. The obliging host, with one or two waggish friends, were called in as witnesses to the scene.

"Natow, Mr. Stiggins," said the Yankee, "deu it up brdown, and yur money's ready;" and forthwith the reverend gentleman commenced by directing the parties to join their hands. The Yankee stood up by his blushing lady-love, like a sick kitten hugging a hot brick—seized her hand and was as much pleased as a racoon might be supposed to be with two tails.

"You promise Mr. A." said the parson, "to take this woman?"—

"Yaes," said the Yankee at once.

"To be your lawful and wedded wife."

"Yaes—yaes."

"That you will love and honor her in all things."—

"Yaes."

"That you will cling to her, and her only, so long as you both shall live."

"Yaes, 'ndeed—nothin else!" continued the Yankee, in the most delighted and earnest manner. But here the reverend clergyman halted, much to the surprise of all present, and more especially to the annoyance and discomfiture of the intended bridegroom.

"Yaes—yaes—I said," added the Yankee.

"One moment, my friend," responded the minister, slowly—for it suddenly occurred to him that the law of Massachusetts did not permit of this performance, without the observance of a "publishment," etc., for a certain length of time.

"Wot'n thunder's the matter, mister?—Daon't stop—go on—put 'er threu. Nothin's split, eh! Ain't sick, mister, be yer?"

"Just at this moment, my friend, I have thought that you can't be married in Massachusetts."

"Can't! Wot'n natur's the reason?—I like her; she likes me; wot's tu hender?

"You haven't been published, sir, I think."

"Ain't a goin to be, nuther! 'At's wot we come 'ere for. On the sly. Go on—go on—old feller!"

"I really, sir"—said the parson.

"Railly! Wal, go ahead! 'Tain't fair—you see 'tain't, I swaow. You've married me, and hain't teched her! Go on—daon't stop here! 'at ain't jes the thing naow, by grashus, 'tain't.,'

"I will consult"—

"No, yer wunt—no, yer wunt—consult nothin' ner nobody, till this 'ere business is concluded, naow mind I tell ye! said Jonathan, resolutely—and in an instant he had turned the key in, and out of the lock, amid the titterings of the "witnesses," who were nearly choked with merriment!

"Naow say, mister, as we ware—" continued the Yankee, seizing his trembling intended by the hand again—go on, rite strait from where you left off; you can't come nun o' this half way business with this child; so put 'er threu, and no dodging. It'll all be right—go it!"

The parson reflected a moment, and concluded to risk it, continued—

"You promise, madam, to take this man to be your lawful husband?"

"Yaes," said the Yankee, as the lady bowed.

"That you will love, honor, and obey—"

"Them's um!" said the Yankee as the lady bowed again.

"And that you will cling to him so long as you both shall live!"

"That's the talk!" said John; and the lady said "yes," again.

"Then, in the presence of these witnesses, I pronounce you man and wife—"

"Hoorah!" shouted Jonathan, leaping nearly to the ceiling with joy.

"And what God has put together let not man put asunder!"

"Hoorah!" continued John. "Wot's the price?—Hnow much?—spit it nout—don't be afeared—yeu did it jes' like a book, old feller!—'eres a V—never mind the change—sen' fur a hack, lan'lord—give us yer bill—I've got her!—Hail Columbia, happy land!" roared the "poor fellow, entirely unable to control his joy;" and ten minutes afterward he was on his way again to the Providence depot, with his wife, the happiest man out of jail.

We heard the details of the above scene from an eye witness of the ceremony, and we could not avoid putting it down as "one of the weddings."

Gold in Solomon's Time.

In these days of golden speculations, it may not be uninteresting to turn to ancient records for the purpose of seeing what the gold mines of those periods furnished, especially as Major Noah believes that Solomon's temple was supplied by "California gold." Silver, in Solomon's time was so plenty that "it was nothing accounted of," probably because it was all found in the hands of a few persons.

14. Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred three score and six talents of gold.

15. Beside that he had of the merchantmen, and of the traffic of the spice merchants, and of all the kings of Arabia, and of the governors of the country.

16. And king Solomon made two hundred targets of beaten gold; six hundred shekels of gold went to one target.

17. And he made three hundred shields of beaten gold; three pounds of gold went to one shield; and the King put them in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

18. Moreover the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold.

19. The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne was round behind; and there were stays on either side on the place of the seat, and two lions stood beside the stays.

20. And twelve lions stood there on the one side and on the other upon the six steps; there was not the like made in any kingdom.

21. And all king Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of the Lebanon were of pure gold; none were of silver; it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

22. For the king had at sea a navy of Tharskish with the navy of Hiram; once in three years came the navy of Tarskish, bringing gold and silver, ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

23. So king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and for wisdom.

24. And all the earth sought to Solomon, to hear his wisdom, which God had put in his heart.

25. And they brought every man his present vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, and armor, and spices, horses and mules, a rate year by year.

26. And Solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen; and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he bestowed in the cities for chariots, and with the king at Jerusalem.

27. And the king made silver to be in Jerusalem as stones, and cedars made he to be as the sycamore trees that are in the vale, for abundance.

28. And Solomon had horses brought out of Egypt, and linen yarn; the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price.

29. And a chariot came up and went out of Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and a horse for an hundred and fifty; and so for all the kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, did they bring them out by their means.—1 Kings, Chapter 10.

"The world will allow a vehemence approaching to ecstacy on almost every subject but religion, which, above all others, will justify it."—[Cecil.

"An active mind, if it be a virtuous one, finds time for everything."—[Buchanan.

Similitudes from the Vegetable World.

The fragrant white clover thrives though trampled under foot; it furnishes the bees with stores of pure honey without asking or receiving the credit of it.—Meekness and disinterestedness.

The vine clinging to the elm acknowledges its weakness and at the same time makes itself strong.—Faith.

The morning-glory makes a fair show at sunrise, but withers as soon as it becomes hot.—Excitement without principle.

To cut off the top of the dock does no good, its root must be eradicated.—Sin is the dock root.

The thistle has a beautiful blossom, but it is so armed with spines that every body abhors it.—Beauty and bad temper.

The elder-bush produces delicate and fragrant blossoms: but the farmer abhors it, because if he gives it a foot it will take a rod.—Obstrusiveness.

If the grasshopper eat the silk of the corn there will be no harvest.—Irreligious principles in childhood.

If you go into a field of beggar ticks in Autumn, when you come home your clothes will reveal the fact.—Vulgar companions.

Cranberries hide themselves beneath the moss; he who will find them must look for them.—Modest worth.

"You see how such of the trees as bow their branches to the winter torrents escape unhurt; but such as resist perish root and branch."—Sophocles. Yielding to the opinions of others.

The blossoms of the barberry blast grain in their vicinity.—Bad examples.

Thistle-seed have wings.—Bad principles

From the Home Journal.

The Maiden's Advertisements.

AT EIGHTEEN.

A heart to let!
A warm, fresh, cheery, virgin heart,
Untenanted by man as yet,
New and unsoiled in any part!
Who bids the prize to get?
To him who 'll pay the easy rent,
Daily and hourly due a wife,
Of honest love, I am content
To give a lease for life.
It has large chambers, warm and bright,
Well furnished with affections fine,
And draped with hopes that glow with light,
However the sun may shine.
The owner's title's good; no claim
Has yet been raised, and every part
Is hers in her own right and name—
Who'll take this precious heart?

AT TWENTY-EIGHT.

No tenant yet!
To let! A valuable heart!
Who seeks such property to get,
Will nowhere find, in any mart,
A better to be let.
The terms are easy, payments few—
Ah, yes! the heart described above
Offers inducements to the true
Economist in love!
The property's in good repair,
The furniture has ne'er been used,
The drapery 's slightly worse for wear,
But naught has been abused.
'T is cumbered with some trifling debts
Of unrequitted love, but these Shall all be cancelled, if it gets
A tenant it shall please.

AT THIRTY-EIGHT.

Take down the sign!
Alas! the truth must now be told;
Decay has preyed on every part,
No pauper now would take this old,
Dilapidated heart.
I'll bar the doors, hang all in gloom,
Lay the affections on the shelf,
And then, into its narrowest room,
At once I'll move myself.
There shall I pass each heavy day,
And living for myself—no more—
I'll scorn the charities that may
Come knocking at my door.
This old estate—this heart—may do
To hide these ruined hopes of mine—
For others it has comforts few;
So then take down the sign!

Independence.

This eternally walking in beaten paths this hanging on to others' skirts, is what we most cordially despise. There is a great deal of it in the world. We may safely say that ninety-one hundredths of grown up humanity are "led by the nose." Their opinions, actions, ay, and thoughts, are formed, governed, and moulded by those of others.

Stand out, and be a man. Let go of your neighbor. Perhaps, if you were to set about finding it out, you would discover, that, he hasn't half the sense you possess; and that, instead of being your leader—your thinking machine—you might, with more propriety, be his.

Now, neighbor, do try a way of your own, Every one may, generally speaking, attain his wishes better, by striking out a way for himself, and walking therein, firmly and saucily; than by creeping behind, and following the shadow of, some body trying to reach the same goal. To Heaven there is only one road. But, almost everything else may be arrived at by several and divers ways.

This going on one's own hook, we have called Independence. You may name it self-reliance, a good opinion of one's-self, or whatever else you please. It is a very scarce ingredient in the composition of the mass of mankind.

We believe in having a good opinion of one's-self; and in one's thinking that he has not been made that imbecile ass, that, at first view of himself, it would appear he is. We know very well that a great many "don't know enough to go into the house when it rains." They receive the gentle, or the heavier, irrigation, and divine not why it comes, nor how to keep themselves from getting wet. It were well for those to listen to wisdom, crying from the house-top, and come in to the proffered shelter.

But, neighbor, do use the appendages for locomotion with which nature has provided you. Ride not—like a little child playing horse—upon another's back. Pass along, and if he attempt to say "follow me," look directly into his face, and, with you thumb upon the extremity of your nasal organ, and your remaining digits playfully oscillating, say, in the happiest possible manner, "you can't come it."

Go ahead! Do not let that individual on yonder hill-top pull you up with a rope. You can climb up yourself. Go ahead, will you!

PLEASURE.—We strip pleasure to the skin—take her cloak, frock, bonnet, bustle and all—rob her of every charm—and then say there is no such thing as pleasure in the world! We extinguish the torch that Hope holds in her hand; and follow lightning-bugs into a mud puddle! By superlative folly, you frighten happiness from your firesides, and then say she has "left your bed and board without provocation." Thus man makes hills to tire himself with climbing—produces darkness to grabble about—creates corns to swear at—and puts difficulties in his path in order that he may struggle with them! Well, my friends, if you can't move without first setting fire to your shirts, all I have to say is, blaze away—anything to give a start. —[Dow Jr.

NAVAL FORCE OF GREAT BRITAIN.—The naval force of the United Kingdom consists of 671 ships of war, either building in ordinary, or in commission (in the Mediterranean, in the West Indies, coast of America, coast of Africa, East Indies, the Pacific, &c.,) carrying from one to 120 guns each, of various calibre. Of this number, one hundred and eighty are armed steam vessels constructed on the most approved principles for active sea, service, of from 100 to 800 horse power engines. The immense fleet, the largest of any maritime power in the world, employs in time of peace from 35,000 to 40,000 able-bodied seamen, 2,000 strong lads, and 12,000 royal marines, divided into four divisions of 112 companies.

GOLD.—A correspondent of the London Times says:

"It will hardly be believed that the whole quantity of gold in the world, taking it at its usual estimate of 150,000,000 sterling, would have weighed 1,150 tons; and that in bulk a room 20 feet long, 12 feet wide, and 10 feet high, would hold it all."

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the han opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

Another chance for the Gold Hunter

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)

St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRESH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

ESTRAY NOTICE.

TAKEN up by Andrew J. Stewart at the Old Agency in Pottawatamie county, nearly opposite the mouth of the Platte river, a STEER, described as follows, viz: Said steer is white in the face, with red around the eyes and cheeks, and his body red and white spotted There is the appearance of a brand on the left hip, and he is about four years old: prized at sixteen dollars.

T. BURDICK,
Clerk, Board of County Com.

Kanesville, Jan. 2, 1850.—3t*

SARSAPARILLA—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST.

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c. and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Hardware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous too mention There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant use. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

HORSE AND OX SHOEING.

WILLIAM F. CARTER,

OF this town, would avail himself of this opportunity to tender his thanks to the citizens of this county, and also to the traveling community, for the liberal patronage with which they have favored him heretofore; and having enlarged his sho pand obtained a heavy stock of iron and steel of all kinds, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuation of public favor

He is prepared to shoe horses and oxen on the shortest notice, having every facility for these branches that can be had any where. He will also have on hand a good supply of his superior Steel Plated Hoes. Emigrants would do well to purchase this article here instead of purchasing elsewhere, as has been proven by the last three years experience. He will also execute with neatness and despatch any jobs in the general line of BLACKSMITHING.

Shop at the Old Stand Opposite the Log Tabernacle.

N. B. Mr. C. has an excellent Lathe, for turning iron, connected with his establishment.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—3m

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets

St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

UNION HOTEL.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.

Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

KEG CREEK MILLS.

J. W. COOLIDGE & Co., have erected a GRIST MILL for manufacturing FLOUR AND MEAL on Keg Creek, 18 miles below Kanesville, on the main road leading to St. Joseph, Mo., which is now in successful operation. The flour manufactured at our mills will equal if not surpass any manufactured in the country. All grists will be promptly ground, and will endeavor to give general satisfaction. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

Also connected with the above mill, is a SAW MILL, which will be in operation about the 1st of November, where we shall keep constantly on hand a good supply of the different kinds of lumber needed in this country. And we also shall keep a supply of axle-tree timber and felloe plank for wagon makers. All orders promptly and correctly filled

J. W. COOLIDGE,
S. M. FARNSWORTH.

Keg Creek, October 3, 1849—3m*

MEDICINES! MEDICINES!

Just Received at the

EMPORIUM STORE,

Kanesville, Iowa.

10 dozen Syrup Sarsaparilla;
10 " London Mustard;
70 " Inks, assorted;
6 " Nerve and Bone Liniment;
6 " Tooth Wash, assorted;
35 " Tooth Powders;
3 " Worm Syrup;
35 " Vermifuge, assorted;
150 " Court Plaster;
150 " Pill Boxes;
6 " Cough mixtures;
150 " Pills, assorted, of every kind;
6 " Cough Candy;
12 " Childrens Cordial;
12 " Cologne, assorted;
3 " Cayenne in Phials;
12 " Blacking;
2 " Seidlitz, also tooth paste; balsam; shaving cream, hair tonic, embrocations; lavender water; Beatties Remedies: antimonial wine; Rowanes tonic mixture; Batemans drops; laudanum; paregoric; essence of life; British and Harlem oils; opodeldoc; bears oil; ox marrow; hair oils, all kinds; spirits nitre; hartshorn; syrup wild cherry and tar; Balsam of wild cherry; Cullins remedies; hair dye; headache snuff; ointments, all kinds; capsicune. venerial mixture; castor oil; sweet oil, turpentine; essences and drops of all kinds. Liberal deductions made to country dealers and Physicians.

☞ COME AND SEE.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 14th, 1849.

RAISINS! RAISINS!!

JUST received a large lot of Fresh Raisins "new crop," for sale by

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

KANESVILLE, Jan 9, 1850.

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

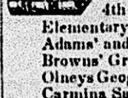
Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo.

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y*

SCHOOL BOOKS

AND

STATIONARY,



JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers.

Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens of various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Joiners Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.

Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 14, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax, honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venison hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GUARDIAN

BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all the varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

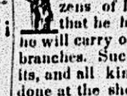
We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

TAILORING.



THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

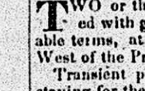
PRIVATE BOARDING.

TWO or three single gentlemen can be furnished with genteel board and lodging on reasonable terms, at the WHITE HOUSE, one door West of the Printing Office.

Transient persons desirous of taking Dinner or staying for the night can also be accommodated.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—6t

SADDLE AND HARNESS MANUFACTORY IN KANESVILLE.



THE subscribers, beg leave to inform their friends and the public in general that they have commenced the above business in all its branches in the town of Kanesville, having engaged the services of good workmen, we hope to be able to give satisfaction to all who may favor us with a call. All orders for work attended to with dispatch, and all kinds of repairing done in a neat and substantial manner. All orders received, and a supply of all kinds of Sadlery and Harness constantly on hand at our store. NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1848.

BUILDING LOTS—I have several lots, which I will sell low, if application is made soon at this office. Also two beautiful lots suitable for stores. JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.

BOOKS—1000 volumes Times and Seasons (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.

For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

MEALS! MEALS!!

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Oct. 31. 1849.

President W. Richards

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 20, 1850. VOLUME II.----NUMBER 2.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,.....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monhly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PRESTON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES McGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M. BERNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY SANFORD, Linden, Mo.
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRYWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MURDOCK MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
Benj. R. HULSE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
GEORGE PEACOCK, Weston, Mo.
WM. MARTINDALE, traveling agent, throughout the United States.
LEVI STEWART, Illinois and other States.

From the New York Atlas.

Burial of the Mormon Girl.

BY WILLIAM COMSTOCK.

"And lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone,
And o'e her cold ashes upbraid her—
But little she'll reek if they let her sleep on,
In the grave where her brethren have laid her."

"To make French muffins you must take three eggs to a pint and a half of milk, with a small piece of butter, a little yeast, and flour enough to make it as thick as pancakes—let it rise and then pour it into rings. Split and butter them as soon as done. It appears to me as if these words would never pass from the table of my brain; words of small import to me but which I heard between sleeping and waking—as they proceeded from the lips of my hostess, at a time that I was traveling in the west. It was early in the morning. There was but a board between the apartment in which I slept, and that in which the family cooked their victuals. Loud talking in the adjoining apartment awakened me, and these words are remembered together with the interesting events of the day.

Having parted with my rude, but hospitable entertainers, I took my carpet bag in my hand, and struck into a winding path which carried me into the heart of a forest.

The birds of the wild wood carrolled on every tree, and the green leaves tossed cheerfully in the morning breeze. The little cataracts murmured, and the pure waters of the brook went joyously on in their gravelly beds. Beautiful wild flowers, which the far of citizens knew not of, sent up their perfumes. The lizard slid away among the dry leaves and the fox drew after him his bushy tail, as I penetrated the sombre depths of the woods. Here, as I was felicitating myself on the solitude that reigned around me, and admiring the harmony of nature, I was suddenly interrupted in my contemplations by a human figure moving toward me, as if desirous of companionship. Smothering my resentment as well as I could, I stopped until the stranger came up. My first glance at his countenance was very unsatisfactory. Large wall eyes that seemed to seek for an opportunity to get some advantage over me, a long sharp chin, and thin white lips, afforded a poor recommendation to my charity. That a man in the midst of so much beauty should feel the need of a companion—that he should be willing to forego the reflections which naturally arise where green leaves and wild flowers, and clambering vines invite the fancy to try its airy wing, was of itself sufficient to prejudice me against him. The world was stamped upon his features. As he approached me he spoke.

"Fine day for traveling, sir." It was impossible to deny the gentleman's assertion. He next stated that he was on his way home, and lived but a few miles distant—that he was tired of walking in the woods, and was in a hurry to get out upon the highway.

I replied that I preferred the wood to the highway, and pointed out a most romantic sight where a number of rocks seemed to have been thrown together by some revolution of nature, and a tall pine stood upon the summit, as if to call upon the passer by to remark and ponder upon what had been done in ages long since gone by. I saw his countenance change, and I thought he lowered with his white eyebrows. I could not imagine what right a man had to force himself upon my company, and then find fault with my discourse. He was silent a moment and then seemed ready for an effort.

"There are a great many Mormons in this neighborhood,"

"Are there, indeed?" returned I.

He pondered another moment, and then demanded very abruptly if I had any dealings with that people.

I was in no hurry to answer a question so impertinently put; and in a moment he continued.

"Perhaps, sir, that you are a Mormon."

"I cannot be one until I know what they are," said I, "but have you a court here to decide upon the creed of the inhabitants?"

"We don't allow Mormons here," returned he, eyeing me as if he still doubted whether I was a Mormon or not.

"May I ask why you do not allow people to believe their doctrine, and how you contrive to prevent it," replied I.

"We don't want them about here, and we won't have them on our hands," was his answer. "They are against every body's religion, and Joe Smith is the greatest villain that ever went unhung. Now, stranger, you may be a Mormon for all I know; but if you are I advise you make tracks out of this State as fast as you can go."

"What's the principal tenets of the Mormon religion?" inquired I.

"A Mormon's a Mormon," cried he in a rage, and his white lip quivered, "and they ought all to be hung—the one for the sake of the other."

"But sir, I merely ask for information. I have simply heard that there is such a scope, and am aware that they are every where spoken against. I wish to know what are the most objectionable tenets that they hold!"

"You say you are not a Mormon?"

"I need not say it again."

"Very well, I'm glad to hear it. Then I shall not be ashamed to keep your company."

"Then I hope you will tell me all about the Mormons."

"Why as to that," said he, "they've got a scape gallows rogue Joe Smith for a prophet, and a golden bible, while you know that we've got one bible already, and that's more than I can find time to read."

"You believe it, however, I presume?"

"Yes, I believe in the bible—I hope so."

"May I ask if you believe the whole of it?"

"Certainly. I was always taught to believe it, and so I'll stand up for it: but I have not read it very lately, not since I was a child."

"Have you read the Mormon's bible?"

"No, no, stranger, I wish that they and their bible were crammed into a big cannon and I had the touching of it off."

This edifying conversation had continued for some time, when I perceived that the wood had become less dense, and the rays of the sun occasionally fell upon our path. My companion then began to hint that some exhibition or adventure was about to take place, that many of his friends would be present at it, and that I should also be welcome. As he uttered these words, there was a dark and sinister expression on his countenance—an unfeeling, hard, and worldly eagerness in the gaze with which he regarded me—some like that which is ascribed to the eye of a hawk when he is about to pounce upon his prey. In short, he spoke more plainly, and acknowledged that he followed the profession of a gambler; and it plainly appeared that he was desirous of transferring what little loose change I might have, from my pocket to his own. "What horrible creatures these Mormons must be," thought I, "when even a professed blackleg, and a man who never read the bible since he was a child, is shocked at their wickedness!"

I looked forth upon the green landscape, and the distant hills, which opened to the view as we emerged from the forest, and contrasted the heavenly prospect before me with the blackness and deformity of that heart which was panting at my side for an opportunity to strip me of my little all, and send me forth a despised and penniless wanderer upon the earth. I thought of the Garden of Eden which was deemed too sacred for the abode of fallen man, and asked myself the question, "When shall the poisonous serpent and the laughing hyena no longer infest a world which the Almighty pronounced good on that morning when the stars of heaven sang together, and the sons of God shouted for joy;" and for a moment I seemed to anticipate a time when wrangling sectarians should no longer howl for the blood of those who dissented from themselves, or wander among the tombs, darkened and benighted, in search of the living among the dead.

The creaking of wheels interrupted my reverie, and looking up, I saw a train of wagons just coming over the brow of a hill, attended by men women and children. My companion seized my arm, and endeavored to hurry me back into the forest.

"Come," says he, "and go through the forest a piece—I will raise a few presently ly, and you will see some fun."

"I don't understand you," replied I.

"We will get together about fifty stout men, and make ourselves masters of the horses and wagons," said he.

"What!" cried I, "would you rob women and children of their all?"

"Women and children!" shrieked he, "they are Mormons!" and the spirit of a demon glared in his great white eyes.

Roused to the highest pitch of indignation, I exclaimed:—"Mormons they may be; but thank God they are not gamblers!"

"Quick as thought the man showed the blade of a bowie knife, and then I drew a pistol from my bosom, and levelled it at the monster's breast. His countenance grew more white—his eye fell—he slowly backed off from me, until he was hidden in the recesses of the wood; and then I remembered the words. "Resist the devil and he will flee from thee."

I now looked out upon the travelers as their wagons filed by me. The men were generally weather beaten, and plainly clad; but I did not see an ordinary countenance among them. Their bearing was dignified and manly. They talked cheerfully together, and their faces were irradiated with all those benign and lofty sentiments that belong to mortals in whom strong faith has slain the love of earthly objects. There were young women there; and as the light of their angelic eyes flashed upon me, I seemed to be translated from earth to heaven! That uncommon union of high intelligence with perfect innocence—which is the great characteristic of angels—beamed upon their countenances, while their forms which had grown etherial by suffering, needed nothing but wings to be true representatives of the celestial and radiant hosts who watch over the peaceful slumbers of infancy. "And these," said I, "are the hunted and outraged martyrs of the present age. Those are the pilgrims upon the earth who seek a city not yet built. The world loves its own—why then should it not hate those who have come out from it? Why should not such worthies as the blackleg—the bigot—the worldly professor—all join like howling wolves in pursuing a people who have risen and shaken themselves from the dust of the earth?"

By this time the pilgrims had gained the summit of a wooded hill at some distance from me, and there they halted. I walked leisurely on, until I arrived at the spot. They had formed a circle and were gathered around some object in their midst. Curiosity prompted me to press forward, until I saw a plain pine box lying upon the green sward. The cover was off and in the box lay the most delicately beautiful being that I ever beheld. A deep wound on the forehead caused me to shudder, for why should such a creature have perished by the hand of violence? These friendless people gathered around the lovely remains of the young and beautiful martyr; and they "gazed upon the face of the dead," and looked upward, penetrating with the eye of faith the vail of the flesh, and assured that in the moment death was victorious, he had been destroyed. From the words spoken by some of the younger part of the company, I gathered that she had fallen the day before, a victim to her own generosity. An attack had been made upon the camp by some of the "Friends of good order," several were killed, and the girl had rushed between the uplifted arm of one of the assailants and an elderly man for whom the blow was intended. The axe fell upon her own head, and her life's blood flowed through the wound. She had arrived from England a few months before, and had left the highest prospects behind. She had deserted the pleasant halls of her fathers—the flatteries of the young and gitted to find a grave in the wilderness—to pour her virgin blood upon the soil of a country whose constitution declares that none shall be molested in the free exercise of their religion. But when our fathers drew up the Declaration of Independance, and the Constitution of the United States; they promised more than their sons have ever performed. It is easy to say what ought to be done; but the devil is not killed because he is denounced. The cry that "our craft is in danger!" is as impudently raised now as it was in the day of the apostles; and if it was the high professors who stimulated Pilate and the common people to murder Jesus Christ; so it is the sanctimonious Pharisees who are at the bottom of all the religious persecution which has raged against the Latter Day Saints.

I stopped not to examine whether the faith of this martyred maiden was correct or not—my decision would be fallible, and I had no right to condemn those who differed from me; yet I conceived that I had quite as much right to do so as any other mortal upon the face of the earth.

As these solitary people stood around the new grave, and spoke of the day when the wilderness should blossom as a rose; as stern men and frail women lifted up their voices together and hailed from the earth the expected Redeemer, in the skies—the scene became sublime. Their strong faith in the litteral fulfillment of the prophecies—so different from the thousand and one twistifications by which those prophecies are spiritualized into every thing and nothing—seemed to give a substantial reality to their religion—a freshness and vitality to their hope, which I had never witnessed among the jangling, Babal like, blind, bigoted sectarians of the day—who declare from the pulpit that one-half of the revelations of God mean nothing at all!

The rude coffin was nailed up, and the body was lowered into the grave. The turf was placed upon it, and the pilgrims pursued their way into the wilderness, followed by the dragon of this world who has not yet ceased to spout water after them, in order that they may be carried away by the flood. Yet it may be hoped that in the two great wings of the American Eagle—The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution—they will yet arrive at a temporary rest.

THE MEN OF THE TIMES.—We like an active man, one who has the impulse of the age—of the steam engine in him. A lazy plodding snail-faced chap might have got into the world fifty years ago; but he won't do for the times. We live in an age of quick ideas, men think quick—speak quick—eat, sleeep, court, marry and die quick—and slow coaches ain't tolerated. "Go ahead, if you burst your boiler," is the motto of the age; and he succeeds best in every line of business, who has the snapping turtle in him. Strive, readers, to catch this spirit of the times;—be "up and dressed" always, not gaping, rubbing your eyes as if you were asleep, but wide awake for whatever may turn up—and you may be "some body," before you die. Think, men, reflect as much as you please, before you act; but think quickly and closely, and when you have fixed your eye upon an object, spring to the mark at once.

CHARITY.—Pisistratus, the Grecian general, walking through some of the fields, several persons implored his charity. "If you want beasts to plow your land," said he. "I will lend; if you want seed to sow, I will give you some; but I will encourage none in idleness." By this conduct, in a short time, there was not a beggar to be seen in all his dominions.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Song to the Press.

BY ROBERT CAMPBELL.

Dedicated to Elder Orson Hyde, Editor of the Frontier Guardian.

O come! descend, my muse! from Heaven descend!
O come! ye kindred spirits! your harps new strung, now bring!
Come, join ye angelic pow'rs with me, and lend
Your hallow'd influence to a mortal's pen;
Echo the strains from heaven to earth again,
The praises of the press in one grand chorus, sing.

If words are language, the gift of God to man;
If truth and light from heav'n e'er sprang;
If the Almighty his creation's work begun,
Sun, moon, and stars, this universe display'd;
And man, and every living thing had made;
The praises of the Press, in one grand chorus, sing.

Let nature with her still small voice proclaim,
Her myriad atoms of combined matter bring;
Her attributes, laws and properties in one acclaim,
Through an endless, an eternal round, she never stays
Her motions, signs and change, in various ways:
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus, sing.

Arts, science, history, truth's unbroken chain;
And all that ever was, is, and yet to be; still rising
A living light, eternally ascribe to him again;
As source of life, and parent of their birth;
Let all the great in heav'n, the good on earth,
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus, sing.

Let too, proud kingdoms—mighty in their strength uprise,
Whose prowess stretch and spread out their broad wings;
Let ships wave o'er the ocean's tide, with wealth's own prize,
Of nations' commerce; what recorded deeds transpire;
Let wind, fire, steam; let telegraphic fire,
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus, sing.

Ye statesman too; holding with veneration dear,
The rights, the liberties of every living thing;
And loud proclaim without reward or fear,
The righteous mandates of your senatorial tongues,
Whose fame the plaudits of ten thousand hearts belong;
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus, sing.

Let those, who form the sacred altar, come;
The messengers of God to man, who bring
Salvation—op'ning the vell, and pointing to his home;
The Gospel preach, the world to save, the truth defend;
The broken heart to bind,—the sinner's friend;
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus, sing.

Let those who've trod on earth, whose hallow'd name,
On holy record stands, as prophet, priest and king;
Ancient of days, down to the apostle's time; who proclaim
God's purposes and designs, his intelligence impart,
And write his laws on the tablet of each heart;
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus sing.

Bring Music, too! in harmony let's join;
Bring ye the loud trumpets, the instruments of string,
And join symphonious in the song divine,
And swell triumphantly, melodiously the lays
Of every heart, of every tongue, continued praise;
The praises of the press, in one grand chorus, sing.

From the New York Herald.

California Affairs—the Recent News.

The intelligence from California, by the steamship Ohio, is interesting, as an exhibit of the present condition of affairs in the gold couutry; but more interesting as shaping out, to some extent, its prospects for the future. It gives us a wider sweep of the horizon than the mere details of the gold washings, and distinctly raises the question—what is to be the destiny of California?

On the western side of the Sierra Nevada, while the mass of the population are engaged in digging and sifting for an ounce of dust a day; while the churchmen are building churches, and gambling and preaching are all the fashion, the politicians are shaping their heterogeneous materials into the elements of a State. In the great interior Basin, we find the Mormons still farther advanced. Praying, psalm singing, and digging potatoes, have not occupied their whole attention. They have erected a state six hundred miles square, whose capital is the new Jerusalem, and think they are large enough for admission into the Union. Meantime the tribulations of the overland emigrants are coming in. From our correspondence it will be seen, that toads, fried rattlesnakes, and dead horses are good picking in the lower deserts, which are not blest, like the Mormons, with flocks of sea gulls, nor supplied, like the Indians of the Basin, with their pastry of dried crickets. But the worst, we fear, has yet to come. The people of San Francisco, learning of the sufferings of the great advancing columns of the emigrants in the Basin, were devising means for their relief, and by the next arrival we may expect to hear of the most disastrous scenes of starvation. But such is the power of gold. If the mines were in the defiles of purgatory, men would risk their souls to reach them, regardless alike of Bishop Hughes, the Pope, or the Devil.

Again, the State Convention of California appears to be already split up into three parties, with a sort of Tammany Hall in the ascendant; and the wonder is, that a people so far advanced should be destitute of their Five Points and the model artists. One party is strong for the proviso, but they have no John Van Buren to head them; the second party profess to let slavery alone, as a matter of no consequence; and the third clique appears to be like the cabinet, without any fixed principles whatever, and depending, like the cabinet, upon floating capital, the mere driftwood of the political current. The Mormons have got the start of them in politics and common sense, in resolving to keep entirely clear from the dispute between Benton and Calhoun. Their policy of neutrality is even better than that of Mr. Clayton, and they are entitled to encouragement, as a people really capably of self government. The Rev. Francis Hall objects to their admission into the Union, because they are infidels. But what is the fact? They believe in the Old and New Testaments, in Moses and the Prophets, in St. John the Baptist, Christ, and the Apostles; and, besides all this, they have a Testament of their own, and a Prophet and Apostles of their own, in all of which they believe, which is twice as much as the belief of Mr. Hall and the orthodox church. They are true believers, for they believe in almost every thing, except the niggerology of the Evening Post. They have no faith in that fishy philanthropy, and none in the squash philosophy of Greeley. They are men of common sense, true believers, and sound politicians. But the saints in the city of Zion will take care of themselves.

With all these developements before us, what are the prospects of California? Some three millions of gold dust have been received from the mines, and deposited in the mint at Philadelphia, besides an equal quantity sent to Europe. The diggings, pickings and siftings of the year are expected to reach to twenty millions. From the history of all previous gold discoveries, from geological facts, and the fact that the gold has already sensibly diminished, and the washings of the Sacramento and San Joaqum must be exhausted within five, six or ten years, at the farthest. The business, then, of extracting the metal from the rocks in the bowels of the mountains, will hardly pay, unless conducted by large companies, with steam engines and expensive machinery. What, then, becomes of the swarm of gold sifters? The valley affords but little encouragement for agriculture. Oregon has greater advantages in this respect. The go'd diggers, in a few short years will disperse—some to Oregon, Mexico, and South America; others will return, and the local population will be reduced to the standard resources and commerce of the country. The harbor of San Francisco and the Pacific trade, can alone make California a permanently prosperous State. It would be well for all future adventurers to reflect upon these things. California has agitated the world, excited the greatest commercial enterprises; but the gold is diminishing, the fever of emigration is subsiding, and the tide must return. In the meantime, it will be the duty of Congress to admit the State into the Union, and the new Mormon State also. Who speaks next?

State of Deseret.

Dr. John M. Bernhisel assists Almon W. Babbitt, the regular Delegate, in procuring a Government for the new State of Deseret. Dr. B. is duly authorized Commissioner from the Provisional Government formed last Spring. Congress will have to adjust the boundaries of California and Deseret, as the Constitutions of these States conflict with respect to this matter. The Deseret Constitution is much older than that of California, and this fact probably accounts for the clashing of the boundaries. All that the people of Deseret evidently desire are the natural boundaries formed by the Sierra Nevada on the West, the ridge between the waters on the Pacific and the Basin on the South and South east, the dividing ridge between the Bear and Colorado on the East, and the ridge between the Basin and the waters of the Columbia on the North. There can be no objection to the boundaries here indicated. The liberal feeling of Constitution of Deseret have received the favorable comments of the press generally, which indicates that no serious opposition will be made to the admission of the new State, whose inhabitants have proven themselves good citizens and upright men in their new home in the Far West.—[Desmoine Gazette.

The Mormon City.

In the Auburn Daily Advertiser of Wednesday we find a letter from an adventurer who had reached the Mormon City of the Salt Lake, on his way to California, and writes as follows of that newly-found community:

The settlement at the point from which I am now writing was commenced in the month of July, 1847, the second anniversary of which will be celebrated by them on the 24th of the present month. The valley in which the city is located is on the east side of the Lake, and is about twenty-five miles wide, and completely shut in by high mountains, the Utah and Bear River ranges being the principal. From the spot where I am now writing I can see the tops of them reaching almost to the clouds, covered with perpetual snow. The city contains about 9,000 inhabitants, and is laid out in squares, the streets running at right angles with each other. These squares are fenced in by one fence running around the whole; the squares are divided into wards, and the wards into blocks, and the blocks into lots—each lot contains one acre and one-fourth of land.

The possession of these was given by drawing lots, in this way: ticket were got up with the numbers on them, and put into a hat together, and then drawn out, each man taking the lot bearing the number of his ticket. The houses are built of adobes, or sun-burnt brick; they are small, but present a neat and cleanly appearance. The entrance to the valley is over a very rough and mountainous road, and the city bursts suddenly upon the view as you emerge from a cañon or gorge in the mountains, through which the road runs, and at the foot of which the city is situated. The Lake, which is a great curiosity, is 21 miles from the city; the water is a great deal salter than seawater, and is so buoyant that a man can float on it without any difficulty whatever. Salt is so plentiful about the shore that it is shoveled up by wagon loads like sand, and drawn to the city. It is course and clear, and is very clean. Fine salt is obtained by boiling the water, which yields one-third fine salt. There are boiling springs a few miles from he; also, sulphur and alkali springs, from which good saleratus is obtained.

The country is settled by farmers for forty miles north and south. They are now engaged in harvesting their wheat, which is yielding an abundant crop. They are very strict in enforcing their penalties—punishing each crime according to its enormity—making the thief return four-fold, and give so much into the public treasury by working on the roads. The Government is composed of a High Council, the President being the head; they enact laws, try offenders, and make suggestions for the good of the cummunity, and all such laws and suggestions are declared from the pulpit every Sunday. Their money consists of treasury notes, which are issued for coin and gold-dust placed on deposit. Arrangements are now made for coining this dust, and establishing a currency of their own. Large quantities of gold dust has been brought into the settlement by discharged soldiers, and those who have gone from there for the purpose of digging, so that all the reports we heard there are confirmed here by those who have been and returned loaded with gold.

The public improvements are carried on by a fund which is raised by every man giving one-tenth of his yearly earnings for that purpose. They are builing a council-house of stone—a large, substantial edifice. In that way they also intend to build a temple soon. They are expending large sums on the roads over the mountains, and are projecting a new road across the desert at the south of the lake to California. They are an industrious, hospitable people, and have the means within themselves to become rich and powerful.

Latter Day Saint's Faith.

We believe in God the eternal Father, and his son Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost.

We believe that men will be punished for their own sins, and not for Adam's transgressions.

We believe that through the attonement of Christ all mankind may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the gospel.

We believe that these ordinances are:—1st. Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. 2d. Repentance. 3d. Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins. 4th. Laying on of hands by the gift of the Holy Spirit. 5th. The Lord's Supper.

We believe that men must be called of God by inspiration, and by laying on of hands for those who are duly commissioned to preach the gospel and administer in the ordinances thereof.

We believe in the same organization that existed in the primitive church, viz: apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists, &c.

We believe in the powers and gifts of the everlasting gospel, viz: the gift of faith, discerning of spirits, prophecy, revelation, visions, healing, tongues, and the interpretation of tongues, wisdom, charity brotherly love, &c.

We believe the word of God recorded in the Bible, we also believe the word of God recorded in the Book of Mormon, and in all other good books.

We believe all that God has revealed, all that he does now reveal, and we believe that he will reveal many more great and important things pertaining to the kingdom of God and Messiah's second coming.

We believe in the literal gathering of Israel, and in the restoration of the ten tribes; that Zion will be established upon the western continent, that Christ will reign personally upon the earth a thousand years, and that the earth will be renewed and receive its paradisaical glory,

We believe in the literal resurrection of the body, and that the rest of the dead live not again until the thousand years are expired.

We claim the privilege of worshipping Almighty God according to the dictates of our conscience unmolested, and allow all men the same privilege, let them worship how or where they may.

We believe in being subject to kings, queens, presidents, rulers and magistrates, in obeying, honoring and sustainig the law.

We believe in being honest, true, chaste, temperate, benevolent, virtuous and upright, and in doing good to all men; indeed we may say that we follow the admonition of Paul, we "believe all things," we "hope all things," we have endured very many things, and hope to be able to "endure all things." Every thing virtuous, lovely, praiseworthy, and of good report we seek after, looking forward to the "recompense of reward." But an idle or lazy person cannot be a christian, neither have salvation. He is a drone, and destined to be stung to death and tumbled out of the hive.

The Bloom of Age.

A good woman never grows old. Years may pass over her head, but if benevolence and virtue dwell in her heart, she is cheerful as when the spring of life first opened to her view. When we look upon a good woman, we never think of her age; she looks as charming as when the rose of youth bloomed on her cheek. The rose has not faded yet; it will never fade. In her family she is the life and delight. In her neighborhood she is the friend and benefactor. In the church, the devout worshipper and the exemplary christian. Who does not respect and love the woman who has passed her days in acts of kindness and mercy; who has been the friend of man and God; whose whole life has been a scene of kindness and love, of devotion to truth and religion? We repeat, such a woman cannot grow old. She will always be fresh and buoyant in spirits, and active in humble deeds of mercy and benevolence. If the young lady desires to retain the bloom and beauty of youth, let her love truth and virtue, and to the close of life she will retain those feelings which now make life appear a garden of sweets, ever fresh and ever new.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....Editor and Proprietor.
JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,....Printer.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1850.

☞ Notice.—All communications addressed to the Editor, must be post-paid to receive attention.

☞ Important—We will be responsible for all monies paid into the hands of any of our agents on subscription for this paper. Persons remitting money to us by mail, and not through our agents, must do it at their own risk. It will generally come safely, however, and there is not so much risk after all The names of our agents will always be found in the Guardian; and in addition to which, they have written credentials from us.

Good current bills on any responsible bank in the Union will be received on subscription.

☞ All monies sent to us by mail will, be at the risk of those who send it.

High Council.

This body met in the Hall on Saturday last, and will continue to meet in the same place on every other Saturday. It was a matter of some little surprize that some of the traveling preachers in Pottawatamie County had not met with the Council and made their reports from time to time according to the instructions that were first given them. The same influence that prevails in the Council, ought to be carried into every branch of the Church in this region; and it is believed that every faithful man of God who fills a public station, will not only put himself in the way of receiving the mind and will of the Council by meeting with them, whenever consistent, but will seek to further and extend that same mind and will in all his intercourse with the Church. If he does not do this, you may know that he is not one with us; but begins to see a hundred and one faults in the course that is persued by the Council. This body will spare no pains to further, by all available means in their power, the emigration to the Valley of the Salt Lake. We furthermore advise every man, woman and child, that goes to the Valley, to seek to go with the faith, prayers and blessing of the Council: Such may hope and expect to prosper on the way, and those who go without the above, may prosper; yet if they do, they may say, when they get through to the Valley, (if indeed they get there) that Br. Hyde has not told them the truth. The General Conference will soon assemble, and will duly consider all these matters.

Emigrants for the Valley.

Such emigrants as come from abroad and may be desirous of removing to the Valley this Spring, would do well, as a general thing, to purchase their oxen, cows, horses and mules before they get here. The running gears of wagons only need be purchased abroad if sent here by boat. We have any quantity of the best kind of linn or basswood lumber for making wagon beds, and we have just the men and boys ready to trim them off, in the latest, most approved and most convenient style. The lumber is now on hand, and will be properly seasoned by the time you will need it. Sawyers, remember what we say, and have your lumber on hand: and wagon-bed makers, have every thing in order and be ready to do up jobs on short notice. Many entire wagons can be furnished here, but not enough to supply the emigration. Wagon bows should be made and ready, so that when a customer comes, he may be completely rigged in twenty-four hours. Our friends in Texas would do well to drive good young oxen, good cows, horses and mules to this point; as many of them can sell their farms for this kind of stock when they could not sell them, perhaps, for ready cash.

Ferry.

From the advertisement in this paper, of Messrs. Martin, Sarpy & Gingry, it appears that the great obstacles on the northern, or old Mormon trail, are about to be removed, by placing a good ferry-boat on the Horn and another on the Loup fork. If good boats are placed on these streams at suitable points where they can be crossed with safety, the route north of the Platte is the most desirable for health and comfort: and the men who have undertaken the ferrying on this northern route, have the capital and the enterprize, we believe, to carry it through.

It is our constant advice to all emigrants to the Salt Lake and to California, to keep as far to the north as possible. The pestilence of last year on southern routes confirms the propriety of this advice.

We learn that two hundred and fifty more of the brethren arrived at St. Louis two or three weeks since, from Liverpool, Eng.

Judiciary in Pottawatamie County.

It will be recollected that the propriety and legality of establishing a judiciary in this county was agitated a short time since, and the correctness of the measure very strongly urged. We could not feel it a safe measure to go into; and we were unwilling to venture without more light on the subject than we had. We accordingly looked to the East, the natural source of light, and behold it has come! and from a source, too, that would neither mis-lead through ignorance nor design. It confirms our expectations, and establishes our doubts. The bump of caution would not allow us to sanction the move.

The following is an extract, of a letter from an able Attorney in Davenport, Iowa:

"With reference to the question proposed to me in regard to the establishment of a Judicial tribunal in Pottawatamie County, I reply: that such an organization would be regarded as a violation of the Laws of Iowa and under the Statute passed in relation to the claim of the State of Missouri to a portion of Iowa. I have no doubt that any person who might exercise any authority or jurisdiction under such an organization would be subject to punishments, and all acts of any such court would be null and void.

I regret, my dear sir, in common with my political friends the course pursued by the Legislature of Iowa in regard to your County, and we feel now, that, at the next session of the Legislature, we shall be enabled to cause justice to be done your people, if they will but wait with patience, and give the Locofoco party no advantage by any ill-advised action on the part of the citizens of that county. We suppose Pottawattamie county was excluded from any Judicial District, solely that a Locofoco might be elected judge; and now that they are beat and a Whig elected, I presume there will be no objection to attaching that county to the fourth Judicial District."

Ressurrection of the Dead.

How is this all important work to be effected, is a question that is very often asked among the Saints. If we should advance our views upon this subject, exceptions would, most likely, be taken to them. It is a subject that is surrounded with so much mystery and darkness, that no inspired man, in ancient or modern times, has been able to dispel the gloom that hangs over it; or if able, has not been disposed to do it. Paul, Peter and John have spoken upon the subject, and also the Savior of the world. But who can say that the candle of intelligence has shone clearly enough in their communications to make that doctrine sufficiently clear to any enquiring mind. Death is a dark and gloomy valley to pass through; and the most favored of Heaven could say when standing on the verge: "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." None will fully understand this work, in our opinion, until they experience it; though they may have glimpses and flashes of light upon it. The mariner may have an idea of the port to which he is bound, though he has never seen it. It would ill-become him, however, to quarrel and differ with his shipmates on the passage about the appearance of their desired haven. His main care should be to know that he is steering a right course, and that his ship is in a proper lattitude, &c., he will then be sure to make his port, and will see all the beauties and splendor of the distant city. Let the Saints be on their guard and know that their present course is right, and be able to determine their true latitude and longitude, run as close to the wind as possible, and be careful to make no lee-way, and they will be sure and certain to obtain a part in the first ressurrection, and any views they may now have of it, whether those views are correct or not, can have no bearing to prevent them from enjoying the glory of that sublime and interesting scene. It is, therefore, not so necessary to strive to excel in present knowledge on this subject, as it is to excel in just, merciful, and in virtuous actions.

We have understood that a petition has been sent to the Superintendant of Indian Affairs at St. Louis, praying for the prohibition of every ferry across the Missouri River on this frontier, except one; and also to allow but one thorough-fare through the Indian country. The ostensible object of this petition is said to be, to prevent any unlawful trade being carried on with the Indians by emigrants passing through on routes not under the immediate eye of the proper authorities. Whether we have been correctly informed or not, we cannot say. We have caught these ideas from rumor only; and we have also been informed, from the same source that the Indians would be set on to emigrants if they crossed at any point save at the one designated.

It is our doctrine, that if a man steal, punish him for the theft; but not shut him up and deprive him of his liberty because we are fearful that he will steal. We are, and ever have been, and ever shall be in favor of good order being maintained on this frontier in regard to the intercourse or international law. Our views and feelings on this subject are already made public. But we are unwilling to see stakes driven down to force the emigration to cross at any certain point, and when we have no little reason to believe that certain measures are adopted, more with a view to secure a monopoly than to preserve, inviolate international law, we shall begin to think that it is not "free-trade and sailor's rights." If men abuse or violate their privileges or the law, punish them for the offence, but do not lay an embargo upon individual enterprize by forestalling it with fear of molestation. To threaten any emigrant or emigrants with Indian depredations is a crime for which the law has made provisions; and if any one does it, he should feel the smart of the law. Our doctrine is—no under current to secure monopoly—equal protection to all—particular favor to none,—"and the longest pole sweeps the persimmons." Fair play, we are in for; and we are with those who are willing to show it: but we will go fifty miles if necessary to avoid those that are disposed to set stakes.

Our readers are particularly referred to the advertisement of Mr. Ormond in another column. The goods that he offers, were the property of some of our Welsh friends who died last spring with the cholera. They are good and serviceable, for the Welsh have few articles that are not. Whoever wishes the articles named in his advertisement, would do well to call and examine them.

The notorious James Arlington Bennett, is at length caught in his own snare. He visited us at Nauvoo after the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and proposed to be the mighty chieftain to lead the Armies of Israel through to California and there set up an independant Government. But his folly, bombast and froth appearing in full view, we hardly dare express the contempt we had for the man. Suffice it to say, he left us suddenly; and published his own extravagant schemes as ours.

Every Mormon will say that he is glad that Bennett is exposed, and will consider it a just retribution. He may be considered a Mormon General by some; but the Mormons soon generaled him out of their midst when he was last at Nauvoo.

The following is from the New York Weekly Herald:

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.—More Mysterious Developments.—James Arlington Bennett, well known in this community as one of the Mormon generals, residing on his estate near New Utrecht, Long Island, and also, some few years ago, teacher of the art and mystery of book-keeping—was yesterday, much to the surprise of many of his old Wall street pupils, arrested and taken into custody by officer Smith, on a bench warrant issued by the Court of Sessions, on a charge of forgery in the third degree. We are not in possession of all the particulars relative to this strange case, but we hear that the affair grows out of some loan made to the accused by Mr. John Anthon, a wealthy lawyer, embracing some $8,000 on the security of his (Bennett's) estate, on Long Island, also in connection with a certain promissory note for the Sum of $9,000, purporting to be made by Mr. James Foster, one of the beau monde of the Astor Place Opera House, of which he is said to be part owner. There is also in the business a universal genius called "one-eyed Thompson," who was a short time since a tenant on the premises of James Arlington Bennett. This Thompson is the same person to whom the public is indebted for the disclosures and developments about to be brought to light on the recent arrest of the two Drury's. The officer conveyed Mr. Bennett before the Court of Sessions, the proceedings of which will be found under the proper head in another column. Bail to the enormous amount of $20,000 was demanded—failing in which, Mr, Arlington Bennett was committed to prison. It is said there is a mystery behind.

Agency for the sale of Land-Claims in Pottawatamie County, Iowa.

Whereas, many of the citizens of the above named county are desirous of removing to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake this coming Spring, and having valuable claims and improvements on the public lands which it will be necessary for them to sell in order to make their outfit for the journey; and whereas most people removing to this county to settle, will naturally apply to this office for information concerning the purchasing of claims for homes for themselves and families; it is, therefore, thought advisable and proper for an agency of the above kind to be established in this town for the mutual benefit and convenience of such as wish to go, and of such as may be inclined, through necessity or choice, to remain here for a season. There are many valuable claims that might not immediately meet the eye of a customer, by reason of their being situated a little aside from the main thorough fares, when a little exertion to point them out, might effect a sale.

Mr. Daniel Mackintosh would, therefore, most respectfully tender his services to the public as the above named agent for the sale of claims. Persons wishing to enter their names with a full description of their premises, on his books, can do so at any time by calling at the office of the Guardian. This will secure the utmost care and diligence of the agent in effecting a sale of the property. The fee of entrance will be fifty cents at the time the entry is made, and six per cent. will be charged on the amount for which the property may be sold, to be paid when the sale shall be effected. If there is no sale effected, then no charge will be made except the fifty cents entrance money which must be paid at the time of entering. His books will always be open for examination, by emigrants, who may wish to purchase the kind of property therein described. Houses, mills, oxen, horses, mules, wagons, cows, &c., &c., entered on the same principle. The public will be kept apprized of all property for sale at this Agency, through the columns of the Guardian.

Claims.

Houses, farms, wagons, mills, and various other property in Pottawatamie County, for sale at this Agency. Any person wishing to purchase, can have free access to the books: Whoever wish to find a good bargain, may call and examine the description of premises for themselves. The books of the Agency are kept at the office of the Frontier Guardian, and may be examined by all interested free of charge.

We thought we were right, and think so still!

Mr. Robert Wilson still insists that his statements concerning the arrest of Gen. Wilson and Mr. Pomeroy by the people of Salt Lake, are true; though he confesses that he was never there. It might have been another Willson that wanted to establish a trading post in the Valley, and this Mr. Robert Wilson may be a prettier man than he has been represented to us. But Mr. Kinkade's testimony can be relied on, we think; and if the Mormons did impose such an enormous duty on goods there, why should Mr. Kinkade wish to continue his mercantile operations in that quarter? Would a business man submit to such extortion, and then court the favor of those very extortioners, by suppressing and hiding their encroachments upon the rights of men? Does it look reasonable? Moreover, some of the very men that composed the municipal power that made the law of taxation, have been in our office this winter, and have assured us that a duty of fifty per cent. was laid upon spirituous liquors to exclude their use, one or one and a half per cent only, on other goods. This revenue has been laid out in making roads and bridges in the Valley.

We have published the matter just as we understood it, and we believe that we gave a true version of it in the main. If any such affair did take place, however, Gen. Wilson, himself, will, no doubt communicate it officially, and we are willing that he should speak; and we know of no reason why we should disbelieve him. We hope that he is not perished in the mountains.

The fact that our Agent is in Washington, suing for a government to be established or given to Deseret does inspire us with additional zeal to contradict any report prejudicial to our interests when we verily believe that it is not founded in truth; and we intend to take a course that will enable us to contradict in truth any such statements as made by Mr. Robert Wilson, and we claim the right to speak for ourselves; for Mr W., we perceive, is not inclined to speak for us. He may have heard just what he stated. Certain men may have said that the Mormons laid on such an exhorbitant tax in order to discourage any one else from taking goods there, that they themselves might reap the golden harvest without competition; but Mr. Kinkade, being less selfish, was willing the truth should be known.

The Valley of the Salt Lake is our home in prospect: our heart and soul are there, and the friends whom we particularly esteem, reside in that little world. We feel anxious for their prosperity, and though they are despised by many, we do know and declare that the magnet of truth is with them, and we believe that it will eventually, in this world or in the next, gather to it all such bodies as possess any affinity with that magnetic power. It will be remembered that that people have had many things to chafe and rile their feelings, and a charitable ear will consider their provocations if it should happen to hear a heated word now and then; and a man of sense must know that no substance can be so powerfully heated that it will not gradually cool off when laid out by itself, particularly when a cooling breeze fans its exterior. It is the true policy, in our view, to treat the Mormons at the Salt Lake with generosity; and if they do not respond to it with a dignity and a patriotism that become freemen, then set us down for a false prophet in this affair.

It is not becoming in us to give advice or counsel to the people of the Valley. It lies not only beyond our jurisdiction, but our superiors are there; and while the bridegroom is with them, they are not required to feed on our stale crusts: Nevertheless we would suggest one thing; and that is, that they defile not their hands by overhauling the rigging of any old mobocratic craft that may perchance, or through stress of weather, put into their port. It is a job so dirty that God himself won't do it, neither will he suffer it to be done with impunity until the devil has about fulfilled his course; then, just before he is bound, God may say, "there yet remains the dirtiest job on earth still to be executed." "What is that?" says the old fellow. "You must go and attend to the cases of all those mobocrats that have persecuted and slain my people. They are delivered into your hands! Their cases will doubtless be done up just as they should be, and God and his people are free and clean from their polluted touch.

Counsel to St. Louis Branch.

With this Spring's emigration, Elder N. H. Felt is released from his post upon this one condition: that he find a suitable man to take his place, and one that shall be approved by the great majority of that Branch, who must stay and preside over the Church that remain in that city, as all cannot get away. Elder Felt has done well, and the value of his labors is well considered by all his presiding officers; and it is hoped that he may find friends enough to take him and his little family through to the Salt Lake City, if he wishes now to go there. When the old Shepherd goes, all the sheep will follow that can. This is as it should be.

Who wants Books!

We have constantly on hand at this office, for sale, an extensive assortment of well selected School Books. Persons, who have families, and intend to emigrate in the Spring to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake, or to California, would do well to lay in a stock of books, in case that when they get to the end of their journey the books may be wanted; and though the means may be on hand; but to obtain them may be rather difficult. Therefore embrace the opportunity while it is within your reach.

Railroad.

We have received from the Eastern part of this State, a memorial to Congress for a grant of land to Iowa, to aid the State in the construction of a Railroad from Davenport on the Mississippi river, by way of Iowa City to Council Bluffs or to Kanesville. You are requested to call and sign the petition immediately; at least, all of you who feel interested in the construction of this proposed Railroad: and who that lives on this Frontier, can feel disinterested?

Important Little Item.

Every emigrant to the Valley should be particular to carry a quantity of small change, such as five, ten, and twenty-five cent pieces, in order to increase the facilities for trade which is often very convenient in that section. A person, however, sitting by our side, who is acquainted with the golden prices in that country, has just remarked; that it is of no use to take five or ten cent pieces to that place, for there is nothing sold so low there as five or ten cents. Such small stuff will buy nothing at all in that country. But we say, take the small change,—dimes and half dimes; and you will soon learn that they will be a great accommodation to yourself and to others. American quarters should be taken, as Spanish quarters are only worth 20 cents, while the former are worth twenty-five cents.

Weather.

We have had lately a little of almost every sort, but at present the sky is clear and atmosphere serene, and everything bids fair for the husbandman to resume his agricultural enterprize soon.

Wanted at this office in exchange for the Guardian: Flour, meal, butter, cheese, lard, eggs, chickens, turkeys, bacon, potatoes, venison, honey, pork, beef, wood, corn, oats,

Wine.

A very good article of Malaga or Sweet Wine, for sickness and for communion, may be had at this office.

Going! Going!! Gone!!!

Great sale of merchandize at auction on Thursday and Saturday next by J. A. Kelting & Co., in this town, at the "Ensign of the West." We may expect to see things knocked about as though they did not cost much. Tremendous excitement! Won't every body have business in town on Thursday and Saturday? They'll "see the Elephant if they do come." Well, you may never have a better chance; so come to town.

We refer our readers to the advertisement of the "Printer's Banquet" to be given on Thursday the 28th inst., which is expected to be one of the best parties of the season. Buy your tickets early as possible, if you wish to attend.

He who wishes to pay twenty per cent more for goods than they are worth, should go to those who do not advertise.

The Post Office at High Creek, Mo., has been discontinued—it being only two and a half miles from Linden, Mo. All mail matter for Fort Kearny and Fort Laramie should be directed by way of Linden, Mo. There is no Post Office at either of those places, but an express is sent in to Linden once or twice per month.

BOUNDARY COMMISSIONER.—We are gratified to perceive that Col. McClelland has received the appointment to run the boundary line between Mexico and the United States, in place of Col. Fremont resigned.

Conference.

The sixth day of April is rapidly advancing, and our Annual Conference, commencing on that day, (Saturday) will be an important, and it is to be hoped, an interesting and profitable one. We hope to see a general turn-out of the people. The spring will, no doubt, be an early one; and the weather will be comfortable and pleasant, we trust. It will be held not far from this place. Our friends in the county can do as they usually have done. They can come with their teams and covered wagons, and bring their bread and dinner, and a bed or two; and the friends residing at and near this place should make preparations to entertain strangers from abroad.

Information Wanted.

Who killed a lad many years ago at or near Little Rock, Arkansaw, because he had the independence to ask pay for his labor done in a brick yard; and then fled his country, and sought refuge among the Saints to elude his pursuers who were eager to catch him for two reasons: first, that he might be punished, and secondly; that they might get the reward offered by the Governor. The secret is out, and we may look for a requisition soon: Just watch now, and see who is suddenly missing; or who may have important business at some other place.

HEALTH OF ST. LOUIS.—For the week ending Monday, the number of deaths in the city of St. Louis were seventy-two, of which twenty-one were children of the age of five years and under. The City Register reports that of the above number seven died of cholera, being emigrants who arrived in this city on the steamer Constitution, and were taken from ship-board at New Orleans.—[Republican.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.—This national token of the gratitude of a free people has now reached the height of forty-eight feet above the ground. It is fifty-five feet square, cased with marble, with wall fifteen feet thick, leaving a cavity of twenty-five feet. Seventeen States and Territories have contributed a block of stone, the production of the State or Territory, towards erecting it, according to the original design, which includes a contribution of the kind from each State.

From the Salt Lake.

Messrs. J. L. Heywood, Hunter and others, arrived in this city a couple of weeks since, from Salt Lake City. From the accounts they bring, it would appear that the Mormons were enjoying a high degree of prosperity. Their crops, the past season, were fine, and gold was very plenty—almost every one had a share of it.

They were coining it into convenient amounts to answer the purpose of circulating medium. Some of the $20 pieces we have seen. They are about the size of a silver half dollar, but much thicker. On one side of the piece is a representation of the "All Seeing Eye," surmounted by a liberty cap. On the reverse, is a figure representing an open hand, with a scriptural quotation running around the inside of the rim. Mr. H. had a piece valued at $60. They speak of others who have their pounds, and one hundred and fifty pounds of the precious ore. A letter received in this city, brought in by these gentlemen, represents that gold is very plenty in the Valley but whether it is from the California mines—some seven or eight hundred miles distant—or whether the Mormons have made new discoveries nearer their location, is left entirely to conjecture. The writer says that silver change is very scarce there, and advises those coming out, if they bring money to bring it in half-quarter dollar and ten cent pieces. Salt Lake City is estimated to contain 10,000 inhabitants, and the Valley from 15,000 to 20,000 The foundation for another city had been commenced about 150 miles south in Utah Valley, and preparations were being made generally, to recieve a large emigration in the spring. We understand these gentlemen have returned for the purpose of settling up the business of the Church, and to remove out the more destitute members of their denomination. With that intention, they desire to purchase seventy-five or more yoke of oxen, for which they will pay the hard stuff.—[Quincy Whig.

A WIFE.—When a man of sense comes to marry, it is a companion he wants, not an artist. It is not merely a creature who can paint and play, and sing and dance; it is a being who can comfort; can assist him in his affairs, lighten his sorrows, purify his joys, strengthen his principles, and educate his children. Such is the woman who is fit for a mother and the mistress of a family. A woman of the former description occasionally figures in the drawing room, and attracts the attention of the company, but she is entirely unfit for a helpmate to a man, or to "train up a child in the way it should go."

WHOLE NUMBER OF VETOES.—The veto power has been exercised twenty-five times since the formation of the government, viz:

By George Washington	2
" James Madison	6
" James Monroe	1
" Andrew Jackson	9
" John Tyler	4
" James K. Polk	3
Total number of votes	25

The whole number of acts passed and approved since the origin of the government, is about 7000, which will make 280 acts to one veto.

BOSTON, Jan. 19—5 P. M.

The Grand Jury has found a true bill against Dr. Webster, for the murder of Dr. Parkman. The examination before the Grand Jury was not wholly exparte. Several witnesses said that they saw Dr. Parkman after his disappearance.

The New Orleans Delta publishes an anonymous letter, dated Washington, Texas, in which the writer says that Dr. Webster is innocent of the murder of Parkman; that he himself is guilty, and that he is going to California. The letter is written on coarse paper and in illiterate style.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Acrostical Enigma.

I am composed of Fourteen letters.
My 1, 14, 12, 5, 13, 4, is a place much frequented.
My 2, 3, 14, 4, 6, 6, is a certain piece of music.
My 3, 10, 2, 6, 12, is a celebrated house in New York.
My 4, 9, 2, 11, 3, 14, 13, 2, 5, is a polite French word in much use.
My 5, 3, 10, 2, a point of direction very familiar.
My 6, 2, 14, 9, 12, an animal much hunted for.
My 7, 13, 3, 2, a performance.
My 8, 3, 14, 5, is a delicious fruit
My 9, 1, 14, 3, 2, 13, 10, are owned by the rich.
My 10, 2, 6, 12, 5, 1, there is near a dozen in Kanesville.
My 11, 3, 12, a very necessary instrument for a thief.
My 12, 6, 1, 5, a beautiful flower.
My 13, 12, 12, 6, 12, 10, all are subject to.
My 14, 3, 12, 4, a nice article to be found at Johnson's bakery.
And my whole is a very interesting portion of the United States. AMICUS.

Answer next number.
Kanesville. 1850.

List of Monies received since February 6th, 1850, on subscription for the Frontier Guardian, from abroad.

S. M. Brice, Centre Point, Iowa, $2 00; David Judy, Mackinaw, Ill., $3 00; Barton Robinson, Mt. Pulaski, Ill., $2 00; D. B. Dille, Bentonsport, Iowa, $1 00; John McIntosh, Monroe, Mich., $1 00; John W. Roberts, Springfield, Ohio, $2 00; Ralph Jackson, Fayetteville, Ga., $2 00; Joseph H. Murphy, do. do., $2 00; Wm. Jackson, Jonesboro, Ga., $2 00; Jesse M. Jones, do., do., $2 00; Thos. Murphy, do., do., $2 00; A. H. Argyle, Austin, Mo., $1 00; Middleton & Riley, St. Joseph, Mo., $14 00; Perrys & Young, do. do., $2 00; H. V. Sumerville, do. do., $4 50; Moses Johnson, Royal Oak, Mich., $2 00.

The following persons paid $1 00 each, to Thos. McKenzie, our agent in New Orleans. Augustus Fervette, James Russell, James Fisher, Claude Clive, Wm. Lane, Geo. Caffal, John Hindley, Chas. Maxwell, James Ashton, John Kendall; Thomas Seddon, Caroline Parkin, Job Salter, Mary Smith, Henry Dinwoody, James Pailing, Benjamin Peel, Charles Tukette, Elias Hall James Stevens, R. A. Orton, Joseph Astle, Wm. Hughes, Wm. Aston.

Paid to W. Woodruff, our agent for the Eastern States. Israel Ivins, Toms River, N. J., $2 00; Hannah Potter, do., do., $2 00; James L. Wilbur, $1 00; M. Cannon, Cambridgeport, Mass., $1 00; Jona Ross, Franklin, N. J., $1 00; Jno. Druce, $2; Smith Tuttle, Fair Haven, Conn., $2 00; Jarius Sandford, do. do., $2 00; Jesse Luddington, do. $2; James Bishop, do. do., $1 00; Sherman Barnes, New Haven, Conn., $2 00; Julia Warren, do. do., $2 00; Jeremiah Bower, Hempstead, L. I., $2 00; Joseph H. Russell, Upper Canada, $2 00; Thomas T. Eldridge, West Harwick, Mass., $2 00.

Eli Whipple, Bradford, Pa., paid to Jacob Gibson, Philadelphia, $2 00.

John Doolittle, Wallingford, Conn., paid $2 00 to M. Jones.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Jan. 8, 1850.

PRESENTATION OF MEMORIALS.

Mr. Underwood presented a memorial from citizens of Kentucky, setting forth the evils of war and asking Congress to take measures for the establishment of a Congress of Nations, who shall arbitrate disputed matters between different powers.

Mr. Underwood stated that he entirely agreed with the memorialists in the sentiment of this petition

Numerous other memorials were presented.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

PRINTERS BANQUET.

Support the Press and the Press will support you.

LAST NIGHT OF THE SEASON.

THE PRINTERS of Kanesville will have a GRAND BANQUET, on Thursday the 28th inst., in the Music Hall, which has been gratuitously furnished for this occasion by the editor of the Frontier Guardian, for the benefit of the "Craft." Elder Orson Hyde and others are expected to deliver short addresses suitable for the occasion. Dancing, singing, eating, &c., will be the order of the evening. Tickets are limited to thirty—those wishing to purchase had better do it immediately. Tickets $1 00 including refreshments. The surplus funds will go for the benefit of the "Fraternity."

Dancing to commence at 5 o'clock, P. M.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.,
D. MACKINTOSH,
MATTHIAS COWLEY, } Managers.

Kanesville, Feb. 20, 1850.

EXHIBITION.

THE KANESVILLE ELOCUTION ASSOCIATION design giving another performance of HAMLET, (by particular request) on Thursday evening next, at the usual time and place.

The morality and instruction derived from this source of ammusement is worthy the patronage of a discerning public.

Tickets 25 cents, to be had of Chas. H. Bassett at C. Voorhis' Store.

Kanesville, Feb. 20th, 1850.—1t*

ATTENTION ALL!

JOHN ORMOND respectfully informs the inhabitants of Kanesville and its vicinity, particularly those that are emigrating to the Valley this season, that he has at HIS HOUSE in Carbonica Hollow, generally known by the residence of G. A. Smith, (formerly,) a large assortment of good English Clothing: Consisting of Men's dress and top coats, Cassimere and moleskin pantaloons; silk, cloth, and other kinds of vests; Gentlemen's hats, ladies dresses, silk, woollen and cotton shawls, bonnetts, silver watches and guns, buttons, thread, needles, &c. &c.

Mr. O. will trade for wheat, cattle, pork or cash.

Carbonica, February 18th, 1850.—1t*

For Sale at a Bargain.

NEARLY opposite the post office fronting the street one house seventeen feet long fourteen wide, and a small shop twelve feet by fifteen, which would suit a small family, and in the rear of said buildings one stable sixteen feet by fourteen also a good yard with half an acre of land attached.

HENRY PALMER.

Kanesville, Feb. 20th, 1850.—3m.

STOVES! STOVES!!

MR. DUSTIN AMY, of this town, would respectfully notify the citizens of this county, and particularly that portion of them that expect to emigrate to the Salt Lake, that he intends to have, by the first boat this spring, a heavy and well selected assortment of Cast Iron Cooking Stoves, which he proposes to sell on very favorable terms for ready cash.

As Mr. A. is a tinner by trade, he will fit up the stoves with furniture according to order, and on the shortest notice. He keeps constantly on hand a good assortment of tin ware, and a good supply of all vessels usually called for by Emigrants. He has secured sufficient help to execute almost any job that may be required in his line on very short notice. The experience that he has had in traveling in the West, and also in fitting out emigrants for the last two or three years to journey over the Plains from this place, enable him to anticipate, correctly, the present wants of emigrants; and he has and will, therefore, prepare his stock and articles for sale to suit this frontier Market.

Kanesville, Feb. 20, 1850.—3m

Nearest, Best and Healthiest route to the Salt Lake and California.

THE

OLD ORIGINAL MORMON CROSSING

AT KANESVILLE,

Council Bluffs, Missouri River,

Twenty five miles above the Mouth of the

PLATTE RIVER.

It has been proven beyond question that the NORTHERN ROUTE, crossing the Missouri river at Kanesville, 25 miles above the mouth of the Platte river, is the NEAREST, BEST, & HEALTHIEST ROAD TO SALT LAKE AND CALIFORNIA.

The difficulties of crossing the Horn and Loup Fork of the Platte, have been entirely removed by the subscribers placing upon each of those streams large and substantial flat boats.

Heretofore emigrants have had to lose several days in constructing rafts which at last made it rather a hazardous undertaking. Besides these considerations it is an undeniable fact that hundreds of persons who went up on the South side of the Platte fell victims to the dreadful pestilence while nearly all those who took the north side escaped unharmed. This is the Mormon trail and it is a subject of remark that so few of those people have suffered from disease while on the route. Another thing the emigrant must have in view, and that is their feed and camping places; the routes from Independence, Kansas, Weston, St. Joseph, and all other places below the Platte before going one hundred and fifty miles emerge into one road consequently when there is such an immense amount of travel, grass and wood become scarce. This too is the very end of the road where it is most needed, because emigrants expect to leave early and it is necessary that both "man and beast" should fare well in the beginning. The above is a very important advantage to those who take the north side and is a consideration compared with which all others sink into insignificance for grass is the only subsistence for stock on the plains.

In addition to these facts emigrants will avoid crossing the dangerous streams of the Saline, the South Fork of the Great Platte, and the Great Platte itself.

To sum up the whole in a very few words, the subscribers would respectfully say to the public generally, and all those who contemplate taking this route, particularly, that at the Kanesville Ferry on the Missouri river, they will find two good boats, each capable of crossing one wagon and team.

At the Ferry on the Horn they have one large and substantial boat capable of crossing a wagon and team every five minutes.

At the Ferry on the Loup Fork of the Platte we will have one excellent boat, which, with the men we will have in charge will ensure to all a safe and speedy crossing.

Emigrants who wish plenty of grass for their stock, and camping places for themselves, besides the best chance of escaping all epidemics will find this route far preferable over all others.

Our boats with competent hands will be at their places on the 1st of April; and all may rest assured that what we have said may be relied on with the utmost confidence.

In the Kanesville Market, Emigrants will find every thing necessary for their outfits at as reasonable rates as can be procured in the Western country.

SARPY, MARTIN & GINGRY.

Kanesville, Feb. 20, 1850.

The Frontier Guardian.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1850.

From the Washington Union.

Important Invention.

Messrs. Editors: I am authorised to announce the discovery and practical test of the most important scientific invention ever yet produced or brought to light since the world has been inhabited by man—an invention which must eventually, and almost immediately, produce an immense revolution in the commercial intercourse and business in general throughout the world; and, although it will break down and ruin many of the most important branches of business and avenues of wealth, with hundreds of wealthy corporations and business establishments, yet it will build up thousands of others, and contribute hundreds of millions to the benefit of mankind, especially to the American community.

The first and main feature and foundation of this invention, and which at once opens a field for hundreds of other inventions, is the discovery by Henry M. Paine, Esq., of a ready and almost expenseless mode of decomposing water and reducing it to a gaseous state. By the simple operation of a very small machine, without galvanic batteries, or the consumation of metals or acids and only the application of less than one-three-hundredth (1-300) part of one horse power, Mr. Paine produces 200 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, and 100 feet of oxygen gas per hour. This quantity of these gases (the actual cost of which is less than one cent) will furnish as much heat by combustion as 2,000 feet of the ordinary coal gas, and sufficient to supply light equal to three hundred common lamps for ten hours; or to warm an ordinary dwelling house twelve hours, including the requisite heat for one horse-power of steam. This invention has been tested by six months operation, applied to the lightning of houses, and recently the applicability of these gases to the warming of houses has also been tested with perfectly satisfactory results. A steam engine furnace and a parlor stove, both adapted to the burning of these gases, have been invented, and measures taken, for securing patents therefor.

Mr. Paine has one of his machines, new and elegant, now in full operation, and publicly exhibited, and many expected to exhibit the same in this city within twenty days. The only actual expense of warming houses by this apparatus is that of winding up a weight (like the winding-up of a clock) once a day; and the heat produced may be as easily graduated and regulated as the flame of a common gas-burner. No smoke whatever is produced, but a very small quantity of steam, sufficient to supply the requisite moister to the atmosphere. In its application to the production of steam power, it will reduce the expense therefore to the mere wear of machinery, and will immediately produce an immense demand for steam engines, and induce the establishment of thousands of manufacturing mills, reduce the expense of traveling, and increase the demand for agricultural produce while it ruins the coal and gas business, and such manufacturing establishments as depend on monopoly and high prices. This invention, moreover, removes completely the only obstacles which have hitherto existed to aërial navigation—the difficulty of procuring hydrogen gas, and carrying a supply of fuel; and it may now be considered a matter of tolerable certainty that man will be seen swiftly and safely soaring in various directions before the first of May next. These facts being of immense importance, should not be longer withheld; and I would therefore avail myself of your widely circulating journal to present them to the public. Yours, &c.,

R. PORTER.

Washington, December 22, 1849.

Condition of Rome.—The New York Courier contains the following extracts from a letter from Rome:

Rome, November 14th, 1849.

The late re-organization of the French Cabinet has upset the recent arrangements, and, at the last conclave of the Cardinals, it was decided that the return of Pius IX. should be indefinitely postponed. Some few of the Cardinals have found their way back to Rome, and have installed themselves in their old palaces, the return of the whole college will probably precede that of the Pope by several weeks. Several regiments of Spanish cavalry have just arrived, and a more ill-visaged, ungainly set I have not seen this many a day. The French troops have not left, and the time of their departure is altogether uncertain.

The people, on account of the grievous stagnation of all business, are impatient for the re-establishment of a regular government, and deputations have been sent to Portici by the Municipal Board and Chamber of Commerce, praying Pius IX. to resume his authority; they receive assurances of sympathy and good will but no definite promise. Truly the state of things here is a little odd. The Sovereign refuses to exercise his sovereignty; the people render their allegiance because they can't help it, and a third party noxious to both, rules in spite of its own inclinations. How long this anomalous condition is to continue nobody can divine.

The President's Message.—The copy of the President's Message sent forward by the Telegraph, as well as many of the first copies printed for the Eastern presses, contained the following erroneous sentence.

"We are at peace with all the world, and seek to maintain our cherished relations of amity with the rest of mankind."

In the official publication since received, the passage reads thus:

"We are at peace with all the nations of the world, and seek to maintain our cherished relations of amity with them."

California to be Admitted Free.—A letter from Washington says, "there is at least a majority of two in the Senate for the admission of California without any alteration of her present constitution. In the House there is a majority of at least sixty. There is a good prospect of the whole question, being settled as to California, before the first of March next."

Mail Communication with California.—It seems that Mr. Collamer, the Postmaster General, has been consulted concerning the delays that frequently occur in the transmission of the California mails. These delays are very annoying to the tens of thousands of persons on the Atlantic, who have relatives and friends in California, as well as highly injurious to the interests of the vast commerce which has sprung up, as it were in a day, with that distant region. In reply, however, Mr. Collamer says that he has no power, by law, to remedy the evil complained of; and that, if the present arrangement does not give satisfaction, the only manner in which redress can be obtained, is through an application to Congress.

We have had occasion before to speak on this subject; but the difficulty we have experienced in not being able to put our finger on the weak part of the new California system of mail transportations, prevented us from suggesting the appropriate remedy. Now, however, that the leak has been found, and that we have learned that none but the regular mail steamers can take the mail to or from Chagres, we trust that Congress will make further provision to enable the Post Office Department to provide against any future failures or delays. Our mail system, in connection with California, ought to be as perfect and comprehensive as possible, not only for the accommodation of thousands of the adventurous spirits who have emigrated thither, in search of the golden ore of which that extraordinary country appears to abound, but to promote the interests of that great commerce which, within the short period of eighteen months, has sprung into such magnitude, as to employ more steamships in its service and requirements than there are in our commerce with Europe. We hope Congress will give this subject their attention, at an early day, and apply the remedy referred to.

Phenomena of the Brain.—One of the most inconceivable things in the nature of the brain is, that the organ of sensation should itself be insensible. To cut the brain gives no pain, yet in the brain alone resides the power of feeling pain in any other part of the body. If the nerve which leads from it to the injured part be divided it becomes instantly unconscious of suffering. It is only by communication with the brain that any kind of sensation is produced, yet the organ itself is insensible. But there is a circumstance more wonderful still; the brain itself may be removed, may be cut away down to the corpus calosum, without destroying life. The animal lives and performs all its functions which are necessary to simple vitality, but no longer has a mind; it cannot think or feed; it requires that food should be pushed into his stomach; once there, it is digested, and the animal will even thrive and grow fat. We infer, therefore, that the part of the brain, the convolusions, is simply intended for the exercise of the intellectual faculties, whether of the low degree called instinct, or exalted kind bestowed on man, the gift of reason.

The Mother's Responsibilities.

"She is responsible for the nursing and rearing of her progeny, for their physical constitution and growth, their exercise and proper sustenance in early life. A child left to grow up deformed or meagre is an object of material negligence. She is responsible for a child's habits, including cleanliness, order, conversation, eating, sleeping and general propriety of behavior. A child deficient or untaught in these particulars, will prove a living monument of material disregard—because, generally speaking, a mother can, if she will, greatly control children in these matters.

She is responsible for their deportment. She can make them modest or impertinent, ingenious or deceitful, mean or manly, clownish or polite. The germ of all these things is in childhood, and a mother can repress or bring them forth.

She is responsible for the principles which her children entertain in early life. For her it is to say whether those who go forth from her fire side shall be imbued with sentiments of virtue, truth, honor, honesty, temperance, industry, benevolence, and morality, or those of a contrary character—vice, fraud, drunkenness, idleness. These will be found to be of the most natural growth, but on her is devolved the daily, hourly task of weeding her little garden, of eradicating those odious productions, and planting the human heart with the lily, the rose, and the amaranth, that fadeless flower, emblem of truth."

A Gentleman.

Show me the man who can quit the brilliant society of the young to listen to the kindly voice of age, who can hold cheerful converse with one whom years have deprived of charms, show me the man who is willing to help the deformed who stand in need of help, as if the blush of Helen mantle on her cheek, show me the man who no more looks rudely at the poor girl in the village than the elegant and well dressed lady in the saloon; show me the man who treats unprotected maidenhood as he would the heiress surrounded by the powerful protection of rank, riches, and family, show me the man who abhors the libertine's gibe, who shuns the traducer of his mother's sex, who scorns as he would a coward the ridiculer of woman's foibles or the exposer of womanly reputation, show me the man who never forgets for an instant the delicacy, the respect that is due to woman as woman in any condition or class, and you show me a gentleman—nay, you show me better, you show me a true Christian.

A Steam Man.—A mechanic in Russia is said to have succeded in making a steam man. It is probably one of the most interesting inventions ever offered to the public. It is a colossal statute, the feet of which are planned upon wheels upon a railroad, and as he goes thundering over the course, the steam comes puffing out of his nostrils in a manner to give the appearance of Satan as pictured in Revelations.

Postage.—A powerful, but silent, movement is going on in New York city, to induce Congress to reduce the rate of postage, to even below the rate recommended by Mr. Collamer. The New Yorkers want it uniform at two cents for letters, and one cent for newspapers, irrespective of distance.

Congressional.

Washington, Jan. 15.

Senate.—Joint resolution for suspending for a limited time, the act respecting the revenue, was passed.

The resolution of Mr. Bradbury, calling upon the President for information relative to the removal of officers, and the causes of the same, &c., came up and gave rise to an animated discussion.

The Hungarian exiles appeared on the floor of the Senate. The Senate confirmed the following appointments:—Charles Noble, Surveyor General of Ohio and Indiana.

Land Registers—Allen Long, of St. Louis, Missouri, and John C. Allen, Augusta, Mississippi.

Receivers—Samuel C. Major, of Fayette, Mo., Ralph Guild, Jackson, Miss., R. B. Sarvant, of Kaskaskia, Ill.

House.—Four additional ballottings were had for Sergeant-at-arms—on the last ballot, Glossenher, of Pa., received 107 votes, Giddings 102. Glossenher was declared duly elected.

During the votings, the Hungarians entered the Hall, and a general rush was made by the members, to shake hands with them. The proposition to appoint a door-keeper, and post-master, was ruled out of order, when the House adjourned.

Washington, Jan. 19.

House.—Mr. Clingman moved to postpone the election of door-keeper, and post-master until March, 1851; decided in the affirmative by two majority. Mr. Ashman moved a re-consideration of the vote, and to lay the motion on the table. He raised the point that the Constitution required the House to appoint its officers, and denied that the door-keeper of the last House was the door-keeper of this. The Speaker decided, that according to usage, the old officers continued until their successors were appointed; it was for the House to settle the question.

Shortly afterwards, a rough craggy looking man took his stand at the Clerk's desk, and in a stentorian voice, (urged on by the members) began making a terrific speech, saying, for five long weeks he had been waiting for Congress to do something for him, and he came to do something for his people. He was one of the B'hoys, and suffered every thing but death. Members urging him on—he spread himself for a big speech. I want Canada annexed, Victoria off the throne, and all creation in the Union.

Boisterous laughter and cheering followed this, amid which he was led out by Mr. Holmes. When he reached the door, he said his name was Harmerson, the lion of the West.

Washington, Jan. 22.

Senate.—Mr. Webster submitted a resolution which lies over. Senate resumed the special order of the day.

Mr. Cass having the floor, resumed and concluded his remarks on the Wilmot Proviso. "I believe the Union will survive all the dangers with which it may be placed. But to maintain this proud position, this integrity of political existence, on which, for us and the world so much depends, we must carefully avoid those sectional questions so much and so forcibly deprecated by the Father of his country, and cultivate a spirit of mutual regard. Adding to the consideration of interests which hold us together.

Sad will be the day when the first drop of blood is shed in favor of the preservation of the Union. That day will never come if the same spirit of compromise of each to the feelings of all which animated our Fathers, continue to animate us and our children. But if power offensive to our portion of the country and of doubtful obligations to say the least of it are to be exercised by another, and that under circumstances of a peculiar excitement, the Confederation may be rent in twain, leaving another example of that judicial blindness which God in his providence sometimes visits the sins of nations.

Now, sir, as a more practical question is the legislative adoption of this Proviso worthy the huzard by which alone it can be secured.

In view of the obstacles and dangers to which I have briefly alluded, there should be great advantages inestimable indeed to be gained before such a measure is forced upon the country. Does any man believe that they correspond at all with the magnitude of the evils which must follow in their train? For myself, I do not believe the slightest good will result or would result under the most favorable circumstances from this Congressional interference with the rights of the people of the Territories.

The object avowed is to prevent the introduction of Slavery. Can it go there, even if left without this prohibition? I believe it cannot, and I believe there are very few here or elsewhere that think it can. The Wilmot Proviso is urged, upon the ground of its expediency; it is opposed upon the ground of its unconstitutionality. Now is the contest worth the cost to place this barren and I believe unconstitutional proviso on the statute book. I will engage in no such crusade against the South from whatever motives it may originate. I will endeavor to discharge my duty as an American Senator to the country. And when I cannot do this I shall cease to have any duty to perform. My sentiments upon this Wilmot Proviso are now before the Senate. I am precluded from voting in conformity with them I have been instructed by the Legislature of Michigan to vote in favor of this measure. I believe in the right of instruction when fairly exercised under proper circumstances. I acknowledge the obligations of the instructions I have received, and cannot act in opposition to my own conviction of the true meaning of the Constitution. When the time comes and I am required to vote upon this measure as a practical one in a bill providing for a territorial Government, I shall know how to reconcile my duty to the Legislature with my duty to myself by surrendering the trust I cannot longer fulfill.

Cass concluded and Butler took the floor for to-morrow.

Gen. Wilson.—A San Francisco correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune, writing on the 20th Nov. says:

The various expeditions which were despatched for the relief of the emigrants, have, I am informed, all returned; one party recently lost seventy mules in a snow storm in the mountains. There is a report here that Gen. Wilson or Williams, the Indian Agent, and family, have been lost in the mountains. The party with which they started separated from them, the escort coming by the Southern pass and the General insisting upon taking the upper. The escort has been in some time, but no intelligence has been received of the General. Many parties have been missing longer than his and have yet turned up.

KANESVILLE MARKET.

Wednesday, Feb. 20th, 1850.

The market continues steady at former quotations.

For particulars we refer to the following quotations:

Flour ₱ hundred,	$2 25@$2 50
Beef "	$2 50@$3 00
Sugar, ₱ lb.,	10c.
Coffee, "	12½c
Rice, "	8c.
Salt ₱ sack,	$3 50@$4 00
Tea, (various qualities,) ₱ lb.	60@$1 00
Molasses, S. H., per gal.	75
" N.O., "	60
Golden Syrup,	$1 00
Buckwheat Flour, ₱ lb.	02
Pork, (fresh,)	2@5c.
Bacon, ₱ lb.,	6c.
Lard, ₱ lb.	6@8c.
Candles,	15c.
Dried Apples, ₱ bush.	$1 50
Green " ₱ bbl.	$3 50
Dried Peaches, ₱ bush.	1 75
Raisins, (new) MR	25c.
Currants, (Zante)	20c.
Green hides, ₱ lb.,	2½c.
Dry do. "	4½c.
Iron, (tire,) "	6c.
" (assorted,)	6½c.
Potatoes, ₱ bushel,	30@40c.
Corn, "	20@25c.
Wheat, "	55@65c.
Oats, "	30c
Flaxseed, "	35c
Onions, ₱ bush.,	50c
Tallow, ₱ lb.	10c
Butter, "	10c
Cheese, "	8c
Beeswax, "	16½c
Honey, ₱ gallon,	$1 00
Eggs, ₱ dozen,	6c

ADVERTISEMENTS.

E. I. HARPER,
WATCH MAKER AND JEWELLER,
St. Joseph, Mo.

Has now on hand, and will be constantly receiving a general assortment of the following articles—gold and silver, patent lever and plain watches; ear and finger rings; silver and German silver table, tea, salt and mustard spoons; ladies and gentlemans breast pins; gold, silver and steel spectales; thimbles; gold pens and pencils; bowie, hunting and pocket knives; steel beads; purses and trimmings; musical boxes; violins; guitar and violin strings; coral beads; double barrel guns and pistols; percussion caps; powder horns; flasks; shot bags and goggles, with a great variety of fancy articles, all of which will be sold at Eastern prices.

N. B. Good Watches and Jewelry of every description, repaired and warranted.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 6th, 1850—1y

SOLDIERS OR THEIR HEIRS.

That have Bounty Land, Back Pay, Three Months' Extra Pay, Pension and Mileage due them, can procure the amount due on making application at this office. E. EASTON,

Pension and Bounty Land Agent, Walnut street, one door below 4th street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 6, 1850.

STRAYED

From Joseph Griffith, Ferryville, sometime in July last two young steers about three years old. One was white with black head and neck and his tail cut short. The other brindled with white back. Whoever will give information where they can be obtained shall be rewarded for their trouble. JOSEPH GRIFFITH.

Ferryville, Feb. 6, 1850—2t*

TO EMIGRANTS.

I TAKE this opportunity to inform those that I may wish to send in the spring to the Valley of the Salt Lake, Merchandize, Household goods or loading of any kind, that I am prepared to carry a few tons on the cheapest terms; therefore I wish you to consider the probability of teams and wagons being very high in the coming spring, and give me a call on Main street, a few rods west of the Bluff House. HAMILTON KEARNEY.

Kanesville, Feb. 6th, 1850.

VALUABLE MILL SITE AND FARM FOR SALE.

By the subscriber situated on Keg Creek, about six miles from the New Ferry near the mouth of Platte river, and near the main road from Kanesville to St. Joseph, Mo. The Mill site is considered she best in the county, with every facility for erecting a grist and saw mill and other machinery, there is an abundance of water at all seasons of the year. There is a plenty of Limestone on the premises. The farm consists of one hundred and sixty acres of land one house and other accommodations. As the subscriber designs emigrating to the west this season he offers the above, together with a pair of mill-stones for sale. For further particulars enquire of the subscriber at Coonville, on Keg Creek.

ELIJAH ALLEN.

Coonville, on Keg Creek, Jan. 23, 1850.—3t

BOSTON STORE,

SIGN OF THE MAMMONTH BOOT ON THE TOP OF THE HOUSE.

No. 236,

Broadway, West side, opposite Cherry street, And next door South of the Liberty Engine House, St. Louis, Mo.

The subscriber would inform his friends and the public that he has this day received, in addition to his former stock, a portion of Spring and Summer Goods, which he respectfully invites his friends and the public to call and examine, as he intends to sell at a small advance above eastern costs, thus enabling this house to offer greater inducements than any retail Shoe Store in the city.

The stock consists, in part, as follows:

Ladies' Black Gaiters;	" do Cloth buskins;
" Light do	" do Monroe boots;
" Black Kid Slippers;	Gentlemen's Calf Boots,
" Fancy do do;	" pump-sole do;
" Black Kid Welt Ties;	" gaiter do;
" do do Buskins;	" Monroe slippers;
" Phil. Polka Slippers;	Mrs. calf p'g'd brogans
" do Gaiter Boots;	" do Pumps
" do Grane do;	" seal do;
" half Gaiters;	" kip do;
	Boys' calf Brogans;
	" kip do
	" do Slippers;

To the Farmers.

If you wish to purchase good and cheap BOOTS & SHOES, come to the Boston Store, sign of the big boot, on the top of the House, No. 236 New Market, next door south of Liberty Engine, House and west side of the street, opposite the Liberty Hall, where you will get the worth of your money.

DAVID CROCK.

St. Louis, June 13, 1849.

Clocks—A superior article, Brass works, and for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Sarsaparilla—Dr. Townsends, for sale by nov23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON

OH YES!

The Old Pioneer on the Track Again!

Mr. HENRY W. MILLER, well known in this region, as one of the first western men, has joined me as partner; and we have removed our large stock of English Goods,

Imported Direct from Liverpool,

to our new store opposite our late stand; and in addition to the largest and

Best Stock of Hardware and Smallwares

in Kanesville, we have selected some superior lots of

Dry Goods, Iron, Steel, Springs, Axles, Axes and Holloware,

in the St. Louis Market, expressly for the WINTER TRADE, and the necessities of this community.

We have re-marked all our goods and have agreed to sell off our stock—superior in quality though it be—at prices sufficiently low to induce a continuation and increase of our trade; and to remove an influence existing, not altogether without foundation, that some of the goods of the late firm—Brown & Barham were too high,; in a word, we only want to live among you and desire not to enrich ourselves, at your cost, we wish "to spend and be spent," for the good of the cause, which is to us, as to you the greatest and best. Our motto in business, is and shall be

"Small Profits and Quick Returns."

The truthfulness of which you cannot prove unless you come, see and trade with

BROWN & MILLER.

N. B. All accounts due to the late firm—Brown & Barham, will be received, settled and accounted for by THOMAS D. BROWN, at Brown & Millers store.

Kanesville, Oct. 14, 1849.

A NO. 1.

NEW FIRM AND NEW GOODS,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BY

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

(Successors to Smith & Stutsman,)

KANESVILLE, IOWA,

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of goods of Smith & Stutsman, and in addition, are now receiving and opening at the old stand

A No. 1, Sign.

Not the largest, but as large and better selected stock than any other House in the upper country.

Our stock consists in part of

Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, School Books, Cook Stoves, (Root's Premium,) Castings, Nails, Shovels, Spades, Hats and Caps, Boots and Shoes, Upper and Sole Leather, Calf Skins, and Iron, (well assorted.)

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

CALL AND EXAMINE OUR STOCK AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELVES.

Remember the "A No. 1," sign.

DONNEL, STUTSMAN & CO.

N. B. Furs, Peltries, Dry Hides, Beeswax, Gold Dust, Coin and Bank Bills taken in exchange for goods.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.—3m*

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

GRAND EXHIBITION

AT THE

NEW STORE

OF

J. A. KELTING & CO.

Performances every day in the week—Sundays excepted.

Admittance Free—Children half price.

The subscribers are now receiving and exhibiting to an "admiring public" the best assortment of

GOODS

Ever offered to the citizens of the independent State of Iowa. Among which may be found: Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Satinetts, Jeans, Bleached and Brown Muslins, Ginghams, Cashmeres, Prints, Alpacas, Linens, Cambrics, Laces, Edgings, Ribbons, &c., &c.

Hats, Caps, Boots and Shoes,

READY MADE CLOTHING of every description—from a three dollar suit up to the "Heigth of Extravagance," suited to the taste of the most fastidious old bachelor that ever cast sheeps eyes on the fair of the Land.

Also a splendid assortment of

Fancy Goods, Hardware and Cutlery.

Salt Lake and California Emigrants,

Supplied with every article wanted on the journey, at as cheap rates as at any place west of New York.

In short they intend their establishment shall not be behind the first houses in the country in point of variety and cheapness. All in want of Goods are invited to call and examine for themselves, as nothing will be charged for showing goods at the

ENSIGN OF THE WEST.

Kanesville, (Council Bluffs,) Iowa, Jan. 1, 1850.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that I, the undersigned have obtained from the Judge of Probate Court, of Pottawatamie county, letters of administration upon the estate of John W. Strode, deceased, bearing date Dec. the 11, 1849. That all persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment, and all persons having claims against said estate, are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate; and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred.

PIUS SAPPINGTON, Administrator.

St. Francis, Jan. 23, 1850.—3t*

GREAT BARGAIN.

The subscriber offers for sale his improvement, situated at the landing at Council Point, said farm has been under cultivation for about fourteen years, containing eighty acres of well improved land, has about thirty-five acres of wheat growing, most of it was sown in August, also four dwelling houses; one good barn corn cribs, root house, &c., and all out houses that is calculated to make a former comfortable. Any person wishing to purchase, so as to double his money cannot do better than call; for the price will be so that I think the grain on the ground will refund the money advanced and have the farm clear. Call and see for yourselves. CHARLES BIRD.

Council Point, Jan. 9. 1850.

WANTED.

Thirty good young men to start to the Salt Lake Valley as teamsters, by the 1st day of April next. Also a company of from fifteen to twenty-five men to go through in haste, on horseback, and pack their luggage. No charge for piloting them, though the undersigned is well acquainted with crossing the plains—is acquainted with the Indians and with Indian character—with the mountains and with mountain life, and will be able to render any assistance that may be required in the Salt Lake City. Mutual protection is the object of this company. Teamsters will be boarded and a reasonable quantity of baggage hauled for their services through. Mr. Williams will give all necessary instructions how to rig out a pack animal, and will agree to take them through as quick as any white or red man can expect to go.

Apply to Mr. David Candland of this town.

T. S. WILLIAMS.

Kanesville, Feb. 6, 1850—2t*

FOR SALE.

A span of young horses are offered at a reasonable rate, for sale, or to exchange for work oxen by O. CRAW, at Carterville. Call soon.

Carterville, Feb. 6, 1850—1t*

C. VOORHIS & Co.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware

Kanesville, Iowa.

Sheetings—15000 yards heavy sheetings for sale low by [jan23] C. VOORHIS & CO.

Prints—6000 yards prints, a splendid assortment, at [jan23] C. VOORHIS & CO.

Alapacas and delains—new styles at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Shawls! shawls! shawls!—a large lot at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

Ginghams—Every variety, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Broadcloths, sattinets and cassimeres—at [jan23] VOORHIS.

Drills—Blue, brown and white, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Shirtings—Bleached and unbleached, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Flannels and linseys—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Hats and caps—Latest styles for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Boots and shoes—1500 pairs for sale low by [jan23] VOORHIS.

School books and stationary—at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Hardware and cutlery—A large assortment, at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

Axes—Collin's, Simmon's and Nanson's axes at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Glass and queensware—for sale low by [jan23] VOORHIS'.

Coffee, sugar and rice—at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Teas—Imperial, gunpowder, young hyson and black teas, at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

Saleratus—A first rate article, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Dried apples and peaches—For sale by [jan23] VOORHIS.'

Soap and starch—For sale by jan23 VOORHIS'.

Candles—Sperm, star, adamantine and tallow at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

Vinegar—Cider vinegar, for sale at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Molasses—Sugar house, for sale at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Stoves—Premium and empire, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS'.

Powder, lead and caps—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Leather—A large lot, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Candies and almonds—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Umbrellas—A good article at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Wines and liquors—for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Tubs and buckets—Wash tubs and painted buckets at [jan23] VOORHIS'.

Spades and shovels—For sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Brooms, brooms—New brooms, at jan23 VOORHIS'.

Castings—All kinds for sale low by jan23 VOORHIS.

Flour—Superfine flour, for sale by jan23 VOORHIS.

Iron—Well assorted at jan23 VOORHIS.

1850.

DESERET HOUSE.

NEEDHAM & FERGUSON,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

Dry Goods, Groceries & Hardware.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

Saleratus—A little more left of the first quality, at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Apples—Dried, first rate article, warranted, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Dried peaches—A large quantity, good, to be sold very cheap at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Raisins—A rare article, just rec'd, from St. Louis, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Almonds and candy—to be had at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Spice and pepper—Always on hand at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Sugar—Loaf and brown sugar, a good dry article, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Hardware and cutlery—A large assortment, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Drillings—Blue, brown, and white, for sale by [23] NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Shirtings—Bleached and unbleached, best quality, for sale cheap by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Teas—Young Hyson, and Imperial teas, at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Shawls—Broshu, plaid and other varieties, at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Molasses—Sugarhouse and N. O., for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Spades and shovels—for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Flour and meal—for sale at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Flannels—Red and white, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Alapacas and delaines—New styles for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Ginghams—A large lot, for sale low by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Sheetings—1000 yards, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Hats and caps—New styles, call at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Axes—Collins, warranted, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Sardines—A good article can be found at nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Cigars & tobacco—An assortment, just rec'd by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Stove pipe—Just rec'd, for sale by nov28 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Stoves—A good assortment of sieves, just received by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Prints—1200 yds, beautiful patterns, for sale by NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Brandy and gin—Best article, for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Brooms—A large supply, for sale cheap at jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Coffee and rice—Pr quality, for sale by jan22 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Clothis—Broadcloths, sattinetts and cassimeres for sale at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

Boots & shoes—A large lot for sale by jan23 NEEDHAM & FERGUSON.

Queensware and glassware—For sale at NEEDHAM & FERGUSONS.

A choice lot of tire and band iron, for sale at this office. jan23

WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

I now must have some cotton logs
To build me a new stable;
For in the Spring I'll have a horse,
If I shall then be able.

For further particulars, enquire at this office

Kanesville, Feb. 6, 1850.

The Frontier Guardian.

POETRY.

For the Frontier Guardian.

Let me go to the Valley.

Let me go to the Valley, for there I have been,
Where the Sun's ever clear, and the sky's never dim,
And the streams from the mountains in grandeur do flow,
'Tis the home of the Mormon! Oh, there let me go.

Let me go to the Valley that lies in the West,
In the far distant mountains that I now love the best,
For the Saints will be there, and the Twelve they will go,
While the outcasts of Israel together will flow.

Let me go to the Valley in which I delight,
With my brethren and sisters again to unite,
Where the glory of Zion in her beauty shall glow,
Beneath our own fig tree! oh there let me go.

Farewell all ye mobbers, we bid you adieu,
The Saints you have driven, our brethren you slew,
And the blood of the prophets to heaven doth cry;
The widow and orphan you've caused to sigh.

Let me go to the Valley, where the Salt Lake doth flow,
At the foot of the mountains that's covered with snow,
Where no gallies with oars are seen on her streams,
Where no gallant ships are there to be seen.

From the Literary American.

On the Death of a Child.

Is is well with the child?
Look up from his clay,
See! angels have soared
With his spirit away,
To a land where disease
And Death cannot come;
It is well with the child,
With Jesus at home!

Is it well with the child?
Weeping mother, behold
On his brow saints have placed
A crown of pure gold;
The inscription is Love,
Christ's own undefiled;
Look upward, believe
It is well with the child!

Signs of Prosperity.

FROM THE CHINESE.

Where spades grow bright, and idle swords grow dull;
Where jails are empty, and where barns are full;
Where church-paths are with frequent feet outworn;
Law-court-yards weedy, silent, and forlorn;
Where doctors foot it, and farmers ride;
Where age abounds, and youth is multiplied;
Where these signs are, they clearly indicate
A happy people and well-governed state.

MISCELLANY.

Love in a Stage Coach.

BY A BACHELOR.

How it poured! Rattle, rattle against the casement; splash, splash on the ground underneath, all night; and now, when I awoke here, it was raining away harder than ever, as if a second deluge were at hand. Confound the breakfast bell! I do wish there was no such thing as a breakfast on a rainy morning; for then one might lie abed all day, or until the storm cleared off. Philosophers tell us that rain is necessary for the economy of nature; it may be true, though I never trouble myself about such things; but if so, men ought to be made like dormice—to sleep in unconsciousness until the rain sees fit to cease. Nature never intended us to be out in a shower, or we would have been born with patent oilcloth or India rubber skins.

Down it poured! What on earth was I to do? The day before had been the brightest one of the bright month of May; and as I had a passion for walking in the country—more food for it!—I had trudged away off here, eight miles and more from town, to see a country wedding, "after the order used among friends." I must say that the thing was very handsomely done, and that I was much edified—so much so, that one of these days I shall tell how the parties deported themselves—how many new hats there were in the wedding company, who drove the finest horses, and all other matters of gossip, so interesting to young misses and old bachelors like myself. The day passed off, with a bright blue sky until toward dusk, when a thunder shower came up that lasted till bed time; but I retired fully resolved that the morning would see a clear sky over my head. But morning had come; and here it was, pouring down in the dark, splashy, continuous stream, for all the world like an old maid's objurgations when her tongue gets wagging.

Down I hurried to the breakfast table. I had just buttered my bread, and was swallowing the first mouthful of coffee, when the horn of the coach to town was heard, and looking out of the window, I saw the vehicle, with its four smoking horses, dashing down the turnpike. It was my only chance to reach the city that day. I bolted my bread, gulped down the coffee till my throat was scalded, jammed my hat on my head, and made a dive through the door. The driver did not see me; but cracked his whip with a flourish and went on. I shouted: still the old villian would not notice me, but with another flourish of his whip, set his four-in-hand in a brisker trot, and rattled down the hill. Desperate with the fear of being left, I pitched after him, scattering the mud around at every step, and shouting at the top of my lungs; but I might have shouted on till doomsday, had not a passenger seen me and stopped the deaf old sinner. Out of breath, wet to the skin, covered with mud from head to foot, and not in the best humor from the loss of my breakfast, I mounted into the coach: but the instant I placed my foot inside the vehicle, all my sulkiness vanished, for one of the loveliest angels that ever blessed an old rickety coach, or warmed the soul of a sour, breakfastless bachelor with her presence, sat upon the back seat.

Did you ever fall in love? Of course. And the lady was the loveliest of her sex? To be sure. Then this stage-coach beauty was twice as handsome as your sweetheart; and if, after this, you don't think my fellow passenger a cherub, then I give up all hope of making you appreciate her. Such eyes, such teeth, and then lips—egad! it almost makes me crazy, to think of them. I put myself down for the luckiest dog in the world. She was dressed in a plain straw cottage bonnet, with a green veil—"just such a costume," said I, "as a real lady wears when traveling"—and then she gave me such a sweet, but half roguish smile, as I tumbled into the coach in the plight I have described, that I knew her at once to be a paragon in the way of education, taste, fortune, and all that; and I resolved—what knowing one wouldn't!—to make the agreeable off-hand, for there is nothing like meeting an heiress in a stage-coach, where she thinks she is unknown, and dreams that every attention is paid to her springs from true love—ahem—on your part.

I was in clover. What cared I for rain? Splash, splash, splash, aye! rain away there, like blazes—who cares? One doesn't get a tete-a-tete with a pretty girl every day of the week—so I determined to make the best of it.

And, faith, what with a few sly compliments, and my extraordinary good looks, I soon got as cosy with my unknown beauty, and she with me, as if we had been acquainted since the days of Noah. We talked of the wedding, for she too had been there—of the scenery—of the rain—and of whatever came uppermost; and there was such a charming frankness in all she said, that I really thought her the most winning little witch that I had ever seen; and I verily believe if the floor had been softer, and I had known the accurate number of houses of which I would be tenant, in courtesy, I should have gone down on my knees to her at once. I hate showing one's learning off in public, so I avoided any thing like literature, though I saw by the intelligent eyes of the charmer, that she had a soul alive to all the finer sensibility of nature. At length we got on the subject of house-keeping. Now, if there is anything I hate, it is a woman that can't keep house, and I trembled at every word, lest my angel should confess her ignorance of these matters. Shade of Apicius! how my heart leaped when she told me that hardly a day passed in which she did not make bread, or pies, or sponge cake, or some other of those shimshaws that delight the heart of man: and in expatiating on such delicacies, she rose to a pitch of eloquence that I never heard surpassed. I couldn't resist my feelings, but snatched her hand to my lips and kissed it.

Yes! I felt that she was destined to be mine, for if there is anything that a wife ought to know it is this. I come of a race of caterers. My grandfather lunched on half a dozen rabbits, and died at last of a surfeit produced by eating two young pigs. My father can break his fast on a brace of capons, or devour a pair of turkeys without having to pick his teeth; and a brother of mine can tuck in a hundred of pickled oysters and dishes of chicken salad, which does credit to the family. My own exploits in this line, my modesty forbids me to mention. No wonder I loved this rosy little beauty who could get up such a choice fry, and bake such delicious cakes. Ah! what a life of domestic happiness rose before my vision, when I pictured myself returning home from court at night, to meet a beefsteak ready broiled, or a bowl of the richest turtle soup, served up by the fair hand of the angel at my side. I resolved, if there was virtue in a pair of whiskers, in an eloquent tongue, or in my new blue coat, to win this seraph of pie-bakers.

There is no place like a stage coach for making love. It comes natural! You do it, egad, in a sort of easy, don't-care-for-any-thing style, that you can't for the life of you assume in any other place. What betwixt sitting on the same seat to talk more conveniently, and putting your arm around her waist to keep her from jolting off, you soon get to be wonderful cozy, and, ten to one, if you don't catch yourself squeezing her hand, or varying the entertainments in some other way, before you're aware of it.

For my part, as I have said. I was ready to surrender at discretion, and I already fancied myself lightening the dear creature beside me of the troubleseme duty of collecting the rents of her various fine houses. It was charming to think of the progress I had made in her affections. What a delicately rosy cheek it was that I just then slily kissed—she blushed the deeper at my warmth. And then her saucy, pouting lips; and then her figure, just the size for a man who hated your thin weasel-shaped young misses as he hated epidemics. Ah, what a wife she would make! How I thanked my stars that I had hitherto set my face like a flint against every temptation to marry—for now my firmness was to be rewarded by this beauty and heiress dropping into my mouth. And then I preached to myself a mental homily on the shortsightedness of man, as I ventured to steal another kiss from the conscious and blushing little angel at my side. I was just about to pop the question itself, when the coach stopped, and the driver descended and opened the door. My charmer rose. I was taken all aback.

"Do you get out here?" said I, in surprise.

"Yes!" said she, "I see Mr. Powell is waiting for me."

"Mr. Powell," said I, for that was the name of a friend of mine who lived up this very lane, not half a mile from the turnpike—"do you then live with him? Perhaps you're a relative?" "Strange," I muttered to myself, "I never heard him speak of this charming creature."

Before I could answer, Powell approached, and while he hailed me, my fellow passenger sprang to the ground as if by magic, and the next minute was in my friends vehicle.

"For heaven's sake," said I, half mad that the hearty gripe of Powell prevented me from hastening to his ward's assistance, "who is that angel? Is she a relative, a ward, or what? I'm dying for love of her!"

Powell burst into a laugh, and laughed on, till tears came in his eyes. Confound the fellow what did he mean? I began to look angry.

"Come my dear boy," he said, don't get into a passion, but consider how odd it is that you, of all men, should fall in love with my cook."

I never make acquaintance in a stage coach now until I have exchanged cards.

Satire is a glass in which the beholder sees everybody's face but his own.

ALWAYS PAY FOR YOUR NEWSPAPER.—The most remarkable case of remorse within our experience, which has been somewhat large, has occurred lately. William R. V. X——, having defrauded all his creditors, absquatulated suddenly to Alabammy. He left the premises entirely unbeknown to them; and while they were inspecting their ledyards to see what he owed them, casting up the debit and the credit side of ackeount, he was safely swimmin' his horse-t over the creek at Wetumpky. The next day he sot up a segar store in that town. But remorse wouldn't let him rest while he was twisting up his tobacky. He stood it a good while like a sodger, but at last he was obliged to cry out "Oh! oh!" and tumbling down onto his cot, he cried like a child. He writes us word that he stood every thing like a man; stood the debt he owed Mr. Arkelarus for bread; stood Mr. Pepperell's bill for groceries; stood the pangs of conscience because he owed black Timmins for hirin' his little poney;—but when he come to think that he had read the Bunkum Flag-Staff, and come off without settlin', his heart was bust. He rolled onto the floor a time or two, then goin' in to his office, gin up. He enclosed us the money, which we have received this day, and hereby acknowledge. Our advice to you, dear friend, is to keep your hands from pickin' and stealin', take the Flag-Staff; but to keep yourself from temptashing, pay in adwance. Can you do any thing for us in Wetumpky? Certingly. Cirkelate! cirkelate!!—[Knickerbocker.

MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.—Strong resolutions have been introduced into the Maryland Legislature on the Slavery question, by Mr. MERRICK. They declare that Maryland ceded to the United States that part of the District of Columbia originally embraced within her limits in good faith, relying upon a compliance with the terms of cession by the Gen. Government. That Maryland never designed, nor did the General Government at the time contemplate the using of sovereignty over the district to the detriment of the local institutions of that State. That Maryland is, in feeling, position and all the features of her constitution, and in her laws, essentially, fully and unequivocally, a slaveholding and a Southern State. That any interference by Congress with slavery in the District of Columbia, would be a violation of the terms of the cession, and that, in such case, the sovereignty over the District ought legally and of right to revert to the State of Maryland. That the State loves and values the Union, and that they will not believe the Congress of the nation contemplates the exercise of its powers for the purpose of oppressing, or trampling upon the rights and interests of any of the States. Finally, they say: "That the extreme alternative to which the State of Maryland, in common with her sister States of the South, with whom she is indissolubly allied by institutions, interests and sympathies, would be driven, in the event of a disturbance of the great compromises of the constitution, or of the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia, is too painful for contemplation, but it is one from which, if presented, she will not for an instant shrink, but meet with the same spirit of firmness which characterized her, when she fought through the common dangers of the whole country to the consummation of this great Union."

State of the Market.

Honor.—Dear and scarce. The old stock nearly exhausted, and the new crop rather unpromising.

Virtue.—Few importations, and that of native growth degenerating.

Honesty.—None in Market.

Patriotism, first quantity.—No demand.

Patriotism, second quantity.—Principully bought up on speculation, at par.

Prudence.—All held by old stockholders.

Pride.—Market glutted.

Politeness.—Very cheap, but the owners appear indifferent about the disposal of it.

Scandal.—None offered at wholesale; the article altogether engrossed by hawkers and pedlars.

Religion.—When brought into market it is generally adulterated. Sales nominal.

Love.—None offered, except for real estate.

Talent.—A scarce article. No credit allowed.

Sincerety.—Out of season.

What I have Never Known.

I never knew a poor man to obtain a premium at a fair, when there was a rich man to compete with him.

I have never known a naturally dishonest man, to become morally honest by becoming a church member.

I never have known a really poor man elevated to any important office, let his intellect and qualification be ever so brilliant.

I have never known a minister of the gospel to be called (by God) from a high to a low salary.

I never have known a poor man respected because he was poor.

I never have known a rich man, but what was respected for his riches.

I never have known a merchant to continue his conversation with a poor man when a rich man entered his store.

I never have known a white-headed, hairy faced office-seeker, to be very conversant with a poor man after election.

I have never known a fashion to ridiculous to be followed.

I have never known any system of religion too absurd to find followers.

I never have known a politicel abolitionist that would put a negro into his best bed.

I never have known the order of Nature reversed to punish or to please any man.

I never have known a minister of the gospel, that hated the women.

I never have known a man to be better than he should be.

"Early marriages make us immortal. It is the soul and chief of empire. That man who resolves to live without woman, and that woman who resolves to live without man, are enemies to the community in which they dwell, injurious to themselves, destructive to the whole world, apostates from nature, and rebels against heaven and earth.—[Facitus.

To Oregon, California, Salt Lake Emigrants and the Trading Community generally.

PERRYS & YOUNG

WOULD respectively announce that they are now receiving at their old stand on MAIN STREET, ST. JOSEPH, direct from the Eastern markets, the largest stock of dry goods, groceries; hardware; queensware, &c., ever brought to the West. Comprising French and English broadcloths, of every variety; plain and fancy cassimeres; sattinets; blankets; calicoes; domestics; boots and shoes; hats and caps; knives and forks; picks and shovels; tea; sugar; coffee; molasses; salt; spun cotton; dye stuffs; rope; castings, &c., &c.

We will have on hand in a few days a large and well assorted stock of

READY MADE CLOTHING,

Purchased by one of the proprietors, who by long experience, is well acquainted with the wants of the emigrant.

Your attention is also invited to a large lot of

DRY CLARIFED SUGAR,

Warranted to keep in any climate.

All persons who make this place their starting point, (and all who act wisely will do so for many reasons,) would find it much to their own interest to give us a call, before purchasing elsewhere, as we feel confident that they can find goods in our stock better suited to their wants and at lower prices than in any other House in Upper Missouri. As all persons procuring outfits, will necessarily remain in town a few days, we invite them to call and look at our goods as it will be a pleasure to us to show them And they will have the non opportunity of judging for themselves. PERRYS & YOUNG.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1849.

JESSE HOLLADAY.

St. Joseph, Mo.,

Corner of Main and Francis Streets.

WHOLESALE and Retail Dealer in Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, Glass, Glass Ware, Brushes, School Books, Stationary, Fine Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Cologne, and Fancy articles.

Physicians and merchants are invited to call and examine prices before purchasing, as he is determined to sell remarkably low for cash, or to punctual men on time. All articles are warranted pure and free from adulteration.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 11th, 1849.—6m

Another chance for the Gold Hunter

Great Cash and Produce Depot.

MIDDLETON & RILEY,

St. Joseph, Mo.,

ARE just receiving direct from the Eastern cities the largest and most complete assortment of California Spring and Summer goods ever brought to the upper country, to which we invite the attention of our old friends and public generally such as

Ladies dress goods and fancy fixins of every variety and latest style.
Cloths and cassimeres, black and fancy—latest styles
Brown and bleached cotton goods—all sorts.
Cottonades, striped, plaid and plain.
Hats and caps, of every description—stylish.
Boots and shoes, fancy and other descriptions.
School books and paper—general assortment.
Queensware—extra assortment.
Hardware, " "
Iron, nails, castings and cook stoves.
Salt, Kanawa, G. A. and table.
Ready made clothing—big stock—latest style.
Sugar, coffee, brandies, wines and whiskey.

Together with every other article usually kept in the country. So, come to the place straight and tell all your friends to come, as we are anxious you should get the gold in big chunks.

Having a large Warehouse on the river, we will attend to receiving and forwarding on the most favorable terms.

St. Joseph, March 7, 1849.

NEW FIRM.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH,

(Successors to Smith, Bedford & Tootle.)

St. Joseph, Missouri.

Beg leave to inform their friends and customers generally, that they have purchased the entire stock of Goods of SMITH, BEDFORD & TOOTLE, and in addition, are now receiving and opening, at the old stand.

THE SIGN OF THE ELEPHANT.

One of the largest and best selected stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Books, Stationery, &c., &c., ever brought to this market, which we will sell at wholesale and retail, as low, if not lower, than any house in the Upper Country. Persons coming to this market to purchase goods, will find it to their interest to give us a call.

Having a large Brick Warehouse situated near the river, we will also attend to the Receiving, Forwarding and Commission business.

Be sure, and recollect the sign of the Elephant.

TOOTLES & FARLEIGH.

St. Joseph, Oct. 17, 1849.

St. Joseph, Mo.

DRUGS! DRUGS! DRUGS!

HAYCRAFT & HOWARD,

On Main Street, at the Sign of the MAMMOTH BLUE & GOLD MORTAR.

Are receiving and opening the LARGEST and BEST assortment of Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Glass, DyeStuffs, Varnishes, Brushes, Patent Medicines, &c., &c., ever offered for sale in the Platte Country, which they offer at wholesale and retail at lower prices than any similar establishment in this part of the country. They respectfully solicit the patronage of the citizens of Kanesville and vicinity, assuring them that their articles and prices shall be such as to give general satisfaction.

N. B. We wish it distinctly understood that if any article sold by us fails to be such as recommended by us, we will refund the purchase money, or exchange it, at the option of the purchaser.

Give us a call when you come to St. Joseph and see if all these things are not true.

Remember the "Mammoth Blue and Gold Mortar."

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 17, 1849.

SIGN OF THE ELK HORN.

FRESH ARRIVAL

OF

FALL AND WINTER GOODS

AT

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL'S

CHEAP STORE,

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.

The undersigned inform their friends and the public that they have just received from the East a new and handsome stock of Fall and Winter Goods! Boots and shoes, varieties of all kinds; Clothes and Cassimeres; Hardware, Cutlery, Glassware and Queensware; A large stock of blankets and blanket Coating; Hats and Caps, and a general assortment of Goods of every description.

The above goods have been selected with great care in the Eastern Cities, and will be offered for sale very low. We think we are able to offer such inducements to our friends and customers as cannot fail to please.

Call and examine our stock and judge for yourselves. Remember the Elk Horn Sign.

DONNELL, SAXTON & DUVALL.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.—6m

EMIGRANTS LOOK HERE!

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the Salt Lake and California emigrants that he has and will keep constantly on hand a complete assortment of TIN-WARE, of all kinds. Those wishing to purchase will be supplied upon terms to correspond with St. Louis prices. All kinds of work in his line done to order, with neatness and dispatch. DUSTIN AMY.

Kanesville, Iowa, Sept. 5, 1849.—tf

CASH PAID FOR LAND WARRANTS.

ORSON HYDE Will pay cash for Land Warrants, and the highest market price, if they are offered soon at his office in Kanesville.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED!

TREMENDOUS EXCITEMENT!

A NEW VARIETY STORE.

J. E. JOHNSON, would respectfully inform the citizens of Kanesville and adjoining counties, and Emigrants to Salt Lake, California and Oregon generally, and every individual person in particular; that he is constantly receiving and will keep constantly on hand for sale at his LARGE and commodious, NEW FRAME STORE, where he has just opened at the SIGN of

EMPORIUM OF THE WEST.

A general assortment of Staple Goods: Consisting in part of Broadcloths, Cassimeres, Pilot Cloths Cassinetts, Jeans, Tweeds, Velveteens, Vestings, Full Cloths, Moleskins, Brown and Bleached Domestics, all varieties, Drilling, Checks, Hickory, Plaids, Tickings, Prints, Muslins, Coat Trimmings, Linseys, Ginghams, Linens, Flannels and Velvets.

ALSO, The best assortment and most fashionable patterns and varieties of FANCY GOODS, Jewelry, Toys, Trinkets, Flowers, Laces, Dress and Bonnet Trimmings, Hoisery, Gloves, Musical Instruments, Dress Patterns, Plaids, Delaines Alapacca's, Lawns, Muslin and cambrics, Bonnets, Shawls, &c, and quantity and qualities of every variety; of buttons that can't be beat, and in fact almost any article that could be purchased in large cities.

ALSO, An assortment of School, Miscellaneous and Literary Books, Toy Books, Writing do., Mottoes, and an amusing variety of Cards, Stationery, Pens, Ink, Quills, Sand, &c. Boots, Shoes, Slips, Hats and Caps—manufactured on purpose for this market. GROCERIES—all kinds; nails, glass, Putty, Herdware, Carpet Bags, Spanish Saddles, Saddle Trees, and riding Bridles and Halters, Girths, Belts, Sheaths, Trunks, &c.

ALSO, A full and general assortment of Drugs, Paints, Oils and Varnishes—every kind; Dye Stuffs,—fresh and warranted good; Turpentine, Perfumery, Brushes, Glassware, Bottles, Vials, Corks, Glue, Sand Paper, Instruments, Snuff, blacking, &c. WINES, BRANDIES AND LIQUORS of the choicest kinds for medical use.

ALSO, A very large and splendid assortment of Family and Patent Medicines; Thomsonian and Botanical do.; Ague and Fever Medicines, (warranted to cure,) and every article in the medicine line ever called for in this country.

A variety of Crockery and Glassware, Tools and Cutlery, Powder, Lead, Shot, Caps, Soap, Candles, Salt, Flour, and a variety of Ready Made Clothing, and a thousand articles to numerous to mention.

There is also connected with the above establishment and in the same Row an extensive

BAKERY AND CONFECTIONARY STORE,

Where can be obtained all varieties of Bread and Crackers for family or emigrant uses. Wedding, Fancy and Plain Cakes, Tarts, Jumbles, Pickles, Preserves, Jellies, Fruits, Nuts, Raisins, Syrups, Sweet meats, Candies in every variety; Cigars, Tobacco, choice Wines and Liquors, (By bottle or Case,) Cider, Ale, Mead, Cheese, Herring and Refreshments generally. J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 19, 1849.

MEDICINES! MEDICINES

Just Received at the

EMPORIUM STORE,

Kanesville, Iowa.

10	dozen	Syrup Sarsaparilla;
10	"	London Mustard;
70	"	Inks, assorted;
6	"	Nerve and Bone Liniment;
6	"	Tooth Wash, assorted;
35	"	Tooth Powders;
3	"	Worm Syrup;
35	"	Vermifuge, assorted;
150	"	Court Plaster;
150	"	Pill Boxes;
6	"	Cough mixtures;
150	"	Pills, assorted, of every kind;
6	"	Cough Candy;
12	"	Childrens Cordial;
12	"	Cologne, assorted;
3	"	Cayenne in Phials;
12	"	Blacking;
2	"	Seidlitz, also tooth paste; balsam;

shaving cream, hair tonic, embrocations; lavender water; Beatties Remedies; antimonial wine; Rowanes tonic mixture; Batemans drops; laudanum; paregoric; essence of life; British and Harlem oils; opodeldoc; bears oil; ox marrow; hair oils, all kinds; spirits nitre; hartshorn; syrup wild cherry and tar; Balsam of wild cherry; Cullins remedies; hair dye; headache snuff; ointments, all kinds; capsicune; venerial mixture; castor oil; sweet oil, turpentine; essences and drops of all kinds. Liberal deductions made to country dealers and Physicians.

☞ COME AND SEE.

J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 14th, 1849.

GUARDIAN

BOOK & JOB PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.

We are prepared with new and beautiful type, from the Eastern foundry's, to execute all he varieties of Printing, such as

Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Blank Deeds Blanks of all Kinds, Handbills, Notices, Labels, &c. &c.

We have been to great expense in purchasing a dry press, and we flatter ourselves that we can execute all kinds of Printing better and at lower rates, than at any other office this side of St. Louis.

Persons wishing Printing done will do well to call and examine specimens and prices.

Orders from abroad will be promply attended to and done with neatness and taste

Kanesville, Sept. 5, 1849.

TAILORING.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Linden and Atchison County, Mo. that he has opened a shop in Linden, where he will carry on the above business in all its various branches. Such as Gentleman's Cloths, Ladies Habits, and all kinds of Military work which will be done at the shortest possible notice.

Cutting done on application and warranted to fit if properly made up.

ERASTUS H. DERBY.

Linden, Mo., Oct. 3, 1849.

PRIVATE BOARDING.

TWO or three single gentlemen can be furnished with genteel board and lodging on reasonable terms, at the WHITE HOUSE, one door West of the Printing Office.

Transient persons desirous of taking Dinner or staying for the night can also be accommodated.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849—6t

BOOKS—1000 volumes Times and Seasons (bound;) 100 Voice of Warnings; Books Doc. and Covenants; 50 vols. Literary Museum.

For sale low by J. E. JOHNSON.

Kanesville, Nov. 30, 1849.

MEALS! MEALS!!

Persons wishing meals, can be furnished at the first house east of the Printing Office, at the usual meal hours at 15 cents per meal. A few day boarders can also be accommodated on reasonable terms.

Persons in from the country can pay for their meals in produce.

JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Oct. 31. 1849.

STRAYED.

FROM the subscriber last April, a HEIFER one year old of a light red color, with a little white across her shoulder and loins, and a round white spot on her right flank. Any person giving information to the subscriber, so that she may be obtained shall be rewarded by

JOHN W. BELL.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.—2t

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

THE subscribers respectully inform the Farmers of Buchanan county and adjoining country that they will put in operation at the Steam mills on Main street, one set of double wool carding machines, and will be ready to commence carding by the 20th of April.

Mr. Buell, a workman of thirty years experience, will give his personal attention, throughout the season, to the business—customers may rely on having their work well done and at short notice. The machinery will be propelled by steam, day and night all the season. Persons living at a distance may depend upon having their rolls to take hom with them.

Terms—As reasonable as at any factory in the country; all damage done to rolls, will be paid for, if the wool is in good order. One pound of clean oil or lard to eight pounds of wool, will be required from those who wish to furnish their own.

NORMAN BUELL,
WHITEHEAD & MOSELY.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 24, 1849—my2 tf

WANTED.

TO engage one hundred good young men as teamsters to go through to the Valley. They can have their board and a reasonable amount of luggage hauled for them. This will be a fine chance for young men that wish to go to the Valley or to the Gold mines this Spring. Enquire at this office.

Kanesville, Jan. 23, 1850.

HORSE AND OX SHOEING.

WILLIAM F. CARTER,

OF this town, would avail himself of this opportunity to tender his thanks to the citizens of this county, and also to the traveling community, for the liberal patronage with which they have favored him heretofore; and having enlarged his sho pand obtained a heavy stock of iron and steel of all kinds, he hopes, by strict attention to business, to merit a continuation of public favor

He is prepared to shoe horses and oxen on the shortest notice, having every facility for these branches that can be had any where. He will also have on hand a good supply of his superior Steel Plated Hoes. Emigrants would do well to purchase this article here instead of purchasing elsewhere, as has been proven by the last three years experience. He will also execute with neatness and despatch any jobs in the general line of BLACKSMITHING.

Shop at the Old Stand Opposite the Log Tabernacle.

N. B. Mr. C. has an excellent Lathe, for turning iron, connected with his establishment.

Kanesville, Dec. 12, 1849.—3m

SCHOOL BOOKS

AND

STATIONARY,

JUST RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE, McGUFFY'S 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Eclectic Readers.

Elementary Spelling Books;
Adams' and Colburn's Arithmetic;
Browns' Grammar;
Olneys Geography and Atlas;
Carmina Sacra;
Note, Cap and Letter paper, low, medium and high priced;
Steel pens af various kinds;
Pen holders;
Slates;
Slate and lead pencils;
Ink in large and small bottles;
Wafers and sealing wax;
Envelopes, white and buff;
Mottoes;
Inkstands;
School Writing Books;
Copy Books, or specimens of Penmanship, coarse and running hand;
Joiners Pencils;
Almanacs for 1850;
Sweet Oil in bottles, of a superior quality.

All of which are offered at reasonable prices for ready pay only.

Kanesville, November, 14, 1849.

PREMIUM RAINBOW DYE HOUSE.

No. 11, North Third Street, St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN'S Clothing Cleaned and repaired equal to any house in the city.

Gentlemen may depend upon having their Garment returned punctually and with dispatch.

N. B. Ladies' dresses, shawls and every other article in the trade, Cleaned, Dyed and Restored at the above Establishment by

JOHN GALLAGHER.

St. Louis, Oct. 17, 1849.

Emporium of the West Forever!!

WANTED at Johnsons' New Frame Store hides, furs, deer skins, buffalo robes, beeswax honey, butter, eggs, cheese, tallow, lard, pork, venson hams, onions and potatoes, for which the highest market price will be paid.

Oct. 17, 1849.

GOLD AND SILVER SMITH.

G. W. HARRIS, Silver Smith & Watch Repairer, is prepared to execute any business in his line with neatness and dispatch. Shop a little North of the Printing Office.

Kanesville, March 7, 1849. 6m.

GROCERIES! GROCERIES!

JOHN MARTIN,

North East Corner of Fifth and Green streets St. Louis, Mo.

RETURNS his thanks to his friends and numerous customers for their past patronage, and hopes that he shall merit a continuance of the same by strict attention to business. He has constantly on hand a full and complete supply of fresh Groceries of the best quality, and at low prices: Such as sugars, teas, coffee, flour, molasses, soap, hardware, dried apples, vinegar, spices of all kinds.

Persons who are emigrating to Council Bluffs or the Salt Lake, wishing to purchase groceries, would do well to give him a call before purchasing elsewhere. Goods delivered at any part of the city free of expense.

St. Louis, Sept. 19, 1849

UNION HOTEL.

Kanesville, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thankful for the very liberal support that he has received. The subscriber takes this method of informing the public generally that he has completely repaired the above mentioned house, and is ready at all times to accommodate the traveling community, either by the gross, dozen or single. A large and commodious yard for the accommodation of emigrating teams—with an abundance of water within the enclosure. Good stabling attached to the premises. Persons boarded by the day or week. ALEX. BRIM, Proprietor.

Kanesville, Nov. 12th, 1849.

BUILDING LOTS—I have several lots, which I will sell low, if application is made soon at this office. Also two beautiful lots suitable for store. JOHN GOOCH, Jr.

Kanesville, Nov. 28, 1849.

CHARLES F. HOLLY,

Attorney and Councillor at Law.

Residence—Savannah, Mo.

CLAIMS on Government for "Land Warrants," "Pensions" or "Arrears of Pay" promptly collected; or at the claimants' option, purchased at the highest cash price.

Office—at the Post-office, Savannah, Mo

Savannah, Mo., July 11, 1849—1y

President Willard Richards

THE FRONTIER GUARDIAN.

BY ORSON HYDE. KANESVILLE, IOWA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 6, 1850. VOLUME II.---NUMBER 3.

The Frontier Guardian.

PUBLISHED SEMI-MONTHLY, BY
ORSON HYDE,....EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

TERMS OF THE GUARDIAN.

One copy, one year, in advance, - - - - $2 00
One copy, six months, " - - - - 1 00
Single number, - 10 cents while semi-monthly.

Rates of Advertising in the guardian.

One square, (16 lines or less,) one insertion, $1 00
Each additional insertion, - - - - - - 50
A reasonable discount made to such as advertise by the quarter or year.

AGENTS FOR THE GUARDIAN.

H. MOWER, is our traveling agent, between this place and St. Joseph, Mo.
PASTON THOMAS, traveling agent, throughout the Southern States.
Elder JAMES MCGAW, Grimses county, Texas.
Dr. JOHN M BERNHISEL, Travelling Agent.
Mr. HENRY [illegible]
Mr. GRAHAM COULTRIN, Savannah, Mo.
Mr. JAMES TOWNSEND, St. Joseph, Mo.
Elder NATHANIEL H. FELT, General Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
Mr. JACOB GIBSON, Dock street, near Third, Philadelphia, Pa.
Elder THOMAS CARTWRIGHT, No. 97 Christie street, in the rear, New York.
Elder WILFORD WOODRUFF, Travelling Agent, in the Eastern States.
Dr. F. MERRIWEATHER, Vine, street, Cincinnati Ohio.
Mr. JOHN BOWEN, Montrose, Iowa.
MESSRS. MCKENZIE, Quincy, Ill.
Rev. R. HEISE, Oregon, Holt co., Mo.
GEORGE PEACOCK, Weston, Mo.
WM. MARTINDALE, traveling agent, throughout the United States.
LEVI STEWART, Illinois and other States.
THOMAS MACKENZIE, New Orleans.

From the Millennial Star.

Reply to the Objections of the Rev. Mr. Osborne, Minister of Darlington Street Chapel, Wolverhampton; made in the Saints Hall—St. James's Square, by J. Bell, an Elder of our Church.

1 THESSALONIANS v. 21.

Beloved Brethren and Sisters,—Most of you are already aware, from some hints which were thrown out this morning, that I propose replying to the objections which were raised against our views of baptism by the Rev. Mr. Osborne, in his sermon of this morning to the congregation of Queen Street. My discourse, will, therefore, be rather controversial; notwithstanding, I trust that the spirit in which I shall reply to his objections, will be that of truth, humility, and love, and that my remarks may savor of that charity which hopeth and believeth all things. I am inclined to believe, and would therefore sincerely hope, for his own veracity's sake, and for that only, that the rev. gentleman's objections are the offspring of a candid and impartial mind: nevertheless, when I reflect upon the old adage, which says, "even good men may be deceived," and daily see its truth developed, I am induced to believe that sincerity and infallibility are not so inseparably connected as might be desired.

The scripture which I have chosen for a text will be found in 1 Thessalonians v. 21, "prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." And here I would observe, before proceeding further, that text-taking is neither a divine institution nor an apostolic custom, but was introduced in the third century by Origen; he too it was who introduced the vile system of spiritualizing the scriptures, so that a mystical meaning, or fanciful interpretation, was perferred before the obvious meaning of words and phrases: (Stromata, book x) and it is only to comply with a popular custom, where I can conscientiously do so, lest by the neglect of it I should unwillingly offend my hearers, that I now take a text.

In the words of our text we have the apostle's injunction to the Saints of his day, to investigate carefully all that they heard, and to avoid relying too much upon the mere authority of the speaker. I would therefore earnestly impress upon your minds the necessity of giving heed to the apostle's advice, which, though especially addressed to the church at Thessalonica, is equally applicable to all people in any age of the world, inasmuch as it conveys a general principle, which if observed cannot fail to be productive of the most beneficial and lasting results; and I would say, both to saints and balances put away all prejudice, and let the sinners, of your minds be duly adjusted, that your judgments may be decided by the ponderance of truth.

I shall first call your attention to Mr. Osborne's text, which you will find in the 16th Acts, 33d verse, where the account is given of the baptism of the Philippian jailor. From the occurrence of the words "all his" and "all his house" in this account, Mr. Osborne drew the unwarrantable conclusion, and in plain terms declared, "here then, is infant baptism;" but it will be seen from a perusal of the 32d and 34th verses, that there were no infants in the jailor's household, for the word was preached to all, and all believed, which would not be true if infants are included in the signification of word "all." To preach to infants would be absurd, and for infants to understand or believe would be impossible. Neither can Mr. Osborne support the idea of infant baptism by quoting the words "suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not," &c., 19th Matthew, 14th verse, for there is not in these words the most distant allusion to baptism of any kind; on the contraty, the purpose for which they were brought to Jesus is plainly stated, namely, "that he should put his hands on them, and pray," and not (as Mr. Osborne would have us understand) to be baptized.

A few verses were quoted by Mr. Osborne from 17th Genesis, beginning at the 4th verse. His application of these verses was on this wise—that as the law of circumcision was enforced upon its subjects in their infancy as the most proper period, so should the ordinance of baptism in the gospel scheme. This I utterly deny for the following reasons:—

1. There is not a single passage which, when properly applied, at all favors the idea.

2. If infant baptism was substituted in the place of infant circumcision, there is then a change only, without any advantage resulting therefrom; for if the law of circumcision was unprofitable because not of faith, infant baptism must be so for the same reason. Infants are equally unable to believe in or understand the latter covenant as they are the former.

3. The purpose of each was diverse from the other. Circumcision was the seal of a covenant or promise then made, to be fulfilled at a future period, which becomes of no use when the promise has been fulfilled: whereas baptism is for the express purpose of conveying unto us, in the present act of its administration, the remission of our sins. (Mark [illegible]; Acts xxii. 16; Peter iii. 21.)

4. Circumcision was of one sex only, baptism is of both. (Genesis xvii. 12; Acts viii 12.)

5. Baptism is administered in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; which was not the case with circumcision. (Matthew xxviii. 19.)

6. In baptism no age is fixed upon by Jesus or the Apostles as the most proper period; whereas, the eight day after birth was expressly commanded for circumcision.

7. We read that the ancient Jews "were baptized unto Moses, in the cloud, and in the sea." Here, therefore, was baptism observed in the same time that circumcision was in force, which is inconsistent with the idea of the one superceding the other. It may be asked "why were both ordinances observed during the Mosaic dispensation, and only that of baptism in the Christian?" I reply that the gospel was preached unto the people of that day, as well as unto those of the apostolic age, "but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it," therefore "the law was added because of transgression." Hence the law and the gospel were in force at the same time, and the ordinance of circumcision being incorporated with the law, was performed upon infants eight days old, who on arriving at the age of accountability could then be baptized for the remission of their sins; but when the seed (Jesus Christ) came, to whom the promise was made, then the seal of that promise (circumcision) was no longer necessary. The observance of both ordinances during the same dispensation still further proves that the nature and purpose of each differed from the nature and purpose of the other, for if they had been similar in these respects there would have been no need for both at the same time. From these and other reasons it is plain that there is no analogy between the two ordinances, and therefore no argument can be drawn from the former to substantiate infant baptism.

The next passage which Mr. Osborne adduced in support of the absurd theory is the 39th verse of 2d Acts, but this also fails to prove the point, for children are not necessarily infants, any more than a woman is a man, because she is of the same species, or a great a guinea, because it is coin; you and I, and all the world are children of some parents, nevertheless we are not all infants.

Our objector continues his argument (if it may be called one,) by asking a question, in which he supposes, though without any reason, that if infants are not baptized, they are necessarily cut off from any participating the benefits of the atonement; why he should think so I cannot tell, but I will attribute it to the "sadly deficient view" which he has taken "of the love of God with respect to the infants," as it is more charitable than the supposition that he had intended to cast upon us the odium of an opinion most erroneous in itself, and not in the least degree countenanced by us. His words were, "if infants were cut off, why were they cut off? it must have been either in mercy or judgment; in mercy it could not be." This is quite true; but why suppose that they were cut off at all? the scriptures do not teach it, neither do the Latter-day Saints; on the contrary, the scriptures bear record, and we believe, that as much as was lost by Adam's transgression, so much we regain by the atonement of Christ; or in other words, "as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." Hence, neither infants nor adults have need of baptism until they themselves become actual transgressors; but when this is the case, and we have been awakened to a sense of our sad condition, we can then joyfully avail ourselves of the ordinances of the house of God, and by being born of water and the spirit, become new creatures in Christ Jesus, inasmuch as we believe the gospel, and do heartily renounce our sins. Mr. Osborne next cited the authority of one of the (so called) fathers of the church. His words are as follows:—"Irenæus, who was acquainted with Polycarp, and he with St. John, tells us that it (infant baptism) was practised in the early ages from the days of the apostles." This may be true, for many errors besides this were taught and practised very early; in fact, the "mystery of iniquity" commenced its operations as early as the days of St. Paul, and it is probable that the Apostle made use of the words of our text in view of these very heresies. The antiquity of errors is no proof of their truth, and if Irenæus is the best authority on this point, then bad is the best, for the very same Irenæus gravely informs us of a false case, in stating, that when the Harlot Rahab concealed the three spies, she concealed the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Many other absurd ideas were entertained by these ancient writers, and as for unanimity there is none to be expected from them. Origen is frequently quoted in support of infant baptism, but I think his testimony will have very little weight with any one who is acquainted with his inconsistent ideas on other subjects; for instance, he says that "the Holy Spirit was created by the Son, by the word." Another of these notable characters (St. Chrysostom, I believe,) says that in a certain country where he had been, he there saw people with only one eye, which was in the centre of their foreheads, and moreover, that they carried their heads under their arms! So much for the ancient fathers.

Mr. Osborne continued by making an assertion of the correctness of which he himself seemed to be doubtful. Said he, "not until the sixth, if not the tenth century, were there any dissents from this opinion." Now if Mr. Osborne is no more certain upon this particular than to be doubtful whether it was in the sixth or tenth century that dissents concerning this doctrine took place, it would have been better [illegible] to have avoided making the assertion at all; however he seems to have quite overlooked the fact that infant baptism was disputed as early as the third century.

Our divine endeavored to draw a comparison between infant baptism, and the oath of allegiance, but in this comparison he failed most signally; he said, "the oath of allegiance, does it not bind the children also? if the parents take the oath, do they not take it for the children as well?" And again, "it would be absurd to suppose that the children, when arrived at manhood, should take a fresh oath." Here, observe, the first parallel would exempt children from baptism when young or in infancy, because their parents' baptism served for them, as did the parental oath; and the second would exclude them from it when of a riper age, because, as Mr. O. would have it, such a thing would be absurd. When, then, are they to be baptized? According to Mr. Osborne's comparison they never would, and so far from supporting infant baptism, this comparison actually confutes it.

The next objection raised by our divine was, that "no advocate of adult baptism can find any prohibition of infant baptism." I reply neither is there any prohibition of infant communion, nor of the absurd practice of baptizing bells, (a custom formerly observed in those countries where Popery prevailed.) If the absence of a direct and definite prohibition of infant baptism be a sufficient warranty for its observance, then we shall have equally good reasons for infant communion. It is clear that Mr. Osborne,s argument proves either too much or nothing at all.

Our rev. objector's next argument was as follows:—"They say, 'he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved;' now this argument would carry them to this, if they cannot believe they cannot be saved." Here Mr. Osborne not only seems to have forgotten that there were the words of Jesus, merely quoted by us, but he also assumes that we believe in infants having faith and being baptized, which is not the case. He endeavors also to make it appear that his conclusion is deducible from our own views of baptism; but let me, once for all, state that a full, free, and sufficient atonement was made for original sin, so infants are not under condemnation on that account; and having committed no sins themselves, they have no need of baptism for the remission of any. The error consists in applying the words in question to the case of infants.

Mr. Osborne next says, that "immersion cannot be the order of God, because it will not meet the case of every one." How, says he, "can any one be immersed in a desert, where there is little or no water!" How, indeed! say I, not at all; but as there are no inhabitants except travelers in such deserts, and these never stay long on this very account, they would soon travel on their camels and dromedaries to a place where there was sufficient water; indeed we have the account of St. John doing so for this very reason. As to the impossibility of baptizing in the Polar regions, I would state that those parts of the Polar regions which are inhabited are not destitute of a sufficiency of unrozen water wherein they could baptize; even if they were, the inhabitants, traveling as they do with great swiftness upon the ice, sometimes by means of skates and at others with sledges, would soon arrive at water at such a temperature as would admit of baptism being administered with even a considerable degree of comfort. Mr. Osborne says, that "Immersion is a dangerous mode," but it is proved by the experience of millions, that it is not more pregnant with danger than benefit. In fact, a few minutes or seconds immersion in cold water in any season of the year is highly beneficial, and is strongly recommended by the faculty. As for the possibility of accidents, this would be the result of carelessness, and not of the mode of baptism.

The following passages were next quoted in favor of sprinkling:—"I will pour out my spirit upon him that is thirsty;" "the Holy Ghost fell upon them;" "I will sprinkle clean water upon you." With regard to the two first passages I will simply observe that they have no reference whatever to baptism, but to the Holy Spirit alone; neither has the latter any allusion to this ordinance, which will the plainer appear upon a perusal of the context, from which we gather,—first that the event is still future, inasmuch as the houses of Israel are not yet gathered to their own land, for in the 25th verse we are informed that then is the time when this sprinkling will take place. It is evident therefore, that if it referred to baptism we are all baptizing considerably before the time specified: secondly, from the gramatical construction of the passage, we learn that whenever it is fulfilled, God himself will be the agent. From these resons it is plain that the sprinkling here spoken of does not refer to baptism. If it did, then the example of Jesus, and the practice of the apostles, would be utterly at variance with the passage in question, inasmuch as they baptized by immersion (a fact which can be proved both by the scriptures and history,) whereas the passage in Ezekiel's propheey speaks of sprinkling.

Mr. Osborne next observed that "the Greek word—baptizo, has twenty-three different significations, such as dip, plunge, or immerse." But how does this support the idea of sprinkling? Not at all; any one in his senses will perceive that it is fatal to it, and instead of being an argument against us, it is one in our favor. He further said, "then great stress is laid upon four Greek prepositions; 1,411 times those prepositions are used in such a manner as to favor sprinkling." This I shall meet by observing that it is a gross error; the result of a most tortuous perversion and misapplication of scripture langunge, strained to support a point which has no foundation in Holy Writ. Mr. Osborne continued by observing, that "if these Greek prepositions must mean two and in, in one case, they must in another, and then we must believe in the absurdity that Jesus actually went into the mountain, instead of on to it. It will be perceived from this, that his intention was to set aside those words, so that they should not favor immersion; but I will now act upon his suggestion, and apply the rule the other way, and we shall then see that his argument in this case is equally as futile as the preceding ones.

According to Mr. Osborne, if these prepositions must have a certain meaning in one case, they must have the same meaning in all other cases; if, therefore, on to and on be the proper meanings of these prepositions in one case, they must be so in another; then we must understand that Joseph was laid on a pit, and there was no water on the pit; instead of Uzziah going into the temple, we must understand that he went on to it; we must also read that Noah went on to the ark, instead of into it; our father who art on heaven, instead of in heaven. Some may say, "how then, when reading the scriptures, are we to know which interpretation is right, since the Greek word is capable of both?" I answer, the nature of the case will always decide; for the nature of a mountain is such that no one in taking a walk need go into or right under the soil to do so; whereas the nature of baptism is an immersion of the body in water.

The next objection was that the 3,000 could not have been immersed in one day. But let us bring facts to bear upon the case:—Elder John Clinton, president of the Birmingham conference, on one occasion baptized thirty-nine in forty minutes; at this rate, the Twelve Apostles alone could have baptized them all in four hours seventeen minutes, and as they commenced early in the morning, (soon after nine o'clock,) they could have had intervals of rest, so as not to experience any inconvenience from continuing in the water long at a time; moreover the apostles, being fishermen and other like occupations, were no doubt inured to hardships, and especially exposed to the elements, and were therefore prepared for such occasions as the one in question. But we have good reason to conclude that the twelve apostles were not the only administrators in this great baptism; for in Acts ii. 1, we are informed that they were all in one place, the number being 120. Acts i. 15. Of this number no doubt the seventy whom Jesus had commissioned formed a part, and it is very unlikely that they would remain as idle spectators; therefore, taking these into the number of administrators, the 3,000 could have been baptized in half an hour.

Mr. Osborne next said that "the 3d, 4th, and 5th verses of the 6th of Romans have a reference to something altogether spiritual, because there is no similarity or point of comparison between the baptism of a believer and the death of Christ." This is quite true; surely Mr. Osborne must have known better than to think that we endeavor to draw a compurison between a baptism and a death; but this is one among the many absurd things that men will say and endeavor to apply to us, in order to make their own case appear good. However, let me tell Mr. Osborne, that the comparison lies in the burial and baptism both of these implying, in their very nature, a complete overwhelming or covering of the body; and St. Paul, in these very verses, makes an allusion to the mode of baptism by comparing it to the burial of Christ, as it is written, we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as he was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so should we also walk in newness of life." And again, "if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death we shall be also in the likeness of his ressurrection." Among those who have written upon this subject, and have understood these verses to have allusion to the mode of baptism, I may mention Grotius, Hall, Whitby, Schudder, Saurin, Newton, Davenant, Luther, Calvin, and many others, so that we are not alone in our view of the meaning of these verses.

The next objection was that "baptism by water is the sign of baptism of the spirit;" but for this there is not the least shadow of evidence, and on that account Mr. Osborne did not adduce any. If it were true, and I were to draw the analogy correctly, I should say, in Mr. Osborne's own words, "if we are no longer under the influence of the Spirit, then we are under the influence of the water, it is a very poor affair indeed, and of very little assistance towards our salvation."

Mr. Osborne then related an anecdote of a Baptist who told him that he believed some of his (the Baptist's) children were lost, and others were saved. In commenting upon which, our reverend objector said, "If baptism gives a man such super-horrible views of the destiny of his own family, God deliver me from such." Here Mr. Osborne falls into the vulgar practice of substituting claptrap for argument, and of attaching to others the ill consequences of a belief they do not hold. Here, observe, the Baptist could have had no allusion to baptism, when saying the words which Mr. Osborne repeated, because he of course did not believe in infant baptism: therefore the cause of his doubts must be found elsewhere, and that will be in the doctrine of predestination, which is held very strictly by many of the Baptists.

Our divine next quoted the words "neither circumcision nor uncircumcision availeth anything, but a new creature," just as if baptism was meant. Any one will perceive that it is circumcision, and not baptism that is here spoken of, unless he be blind or unable to read.

"If you break the law, your baptism is of no use," said Mr. Osborne, but I suspect that even some of those whom Mr Osborne himself has baptized are not quite infallible; in fact this we can gather from their own words, even in their most pious moments, when they will acknowledge that they are "miserable sinners." Hence their baptism is of no use, any more than any one's else, according to Mr. Osborne's own words. But is it not written that "if we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness!" And, again, are we not enjoined to pray that God will us forgive our tresspasses! It is possible that persons who have been baptized, and have entered into covenant with God, may sin and be overtaken in faults, but still their baptism has been, and still is of use, as an initiatory ordinance, and as an ordinance for the remission of sins that are past; and being by this ordinance made the adopted sons and daughters of God, they are entitled to greater favor, and more free forgiveness, inasmuch as they repent and do not wilfully persevere in sin. We have an High Priest who ever liveth to make intercession for us.

Having tried all Mr. Osborne's objections by right reason, and found them wanting in power to overturn the truth, let us hold fast the conclusion that adult baptism by immersion for the remission of sins is still unshaken, and is firmly founded on the word of God. Being a principal of truth, it is therefore mighty, and truth being mighty it must prevail.

I would therefore exhort all within the hearing of my voice to make no delay, but "arise and be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on the name of the Lord," so shall you have the witness of the Spirit, by which you shall also come in possession of principles and power so as to overcome and prevail, and be enabled to endure unto the end, which principles and power I beseech my Heavenly Father to bestow more abundantly upon his Saints, and though they be a little lower than the angels, to crown them with loving kindness and everlasting joy, and may the peace of God for ever dwell in your bosoms for the Redeemer's sake. Amen.

From the Millennial Star.

Are the Father and the Son two Distinct Persons!

(Concluded.)

When the Spirit of God descended upon Jesus after his baptism, a voice was heard from heaven, "Saying, this is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."—(Matthew iii., 17.) Here then is a separate distinct person uttering his voice out of heaven at the same time that his son was on the earth. Again, when Jesus was crucified "he said, Father into thy hands I commend my Spirit." Here is proof, the most positive, that there was a person called the Father existing independently, not only of the flesh, but of the spirit of Jesus that dwelt in the flesh. How could Jesus commend his spirit into the hands of the Father, unless the spirit of Jesus was one person and the Father another? Again, after the ascension of Christ, the martyr Stephen "being full of the Holy Ghost, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God; and said, behold I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God." Stephen saw two persons, and one standing on the right hand of the other.

When Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon had the heavens opened to them on the 16th of February, 1832, they bore testimony as follows: "The Lord touched the eyes of our understanding, and they were opened, and the glory of the Lord shone round about; and we beheld the glory of the Son on the right hand of the Father, and received of his fulness; and saw the holy angles and they who are sanctified before his throne, worshipping God and the Lamb, who worship him forever and ever. And now, after the many testimonies which have been given of him, this is the testimony, last of all, which we give of him, that he lives; for we saw him, even on the right hand of God, and we heard the voice bearing record that he is the only begotten of the Father," &c.

In the first vision which Joseph Smith received in the Spring of the year 1820, (he being between fourteen and fifteen years of age,) both the Father and the Son, while he was praying, appeared unto him. He says: "When the light rested upon me, I saw two personages, whose brightness and glory defy all description, standing above me in the air. One of them spake unto me, calling me by name, and said—(pointing to the other.) This is my beloved Son, hear him. Thus we find that the visions both of the ancient and modern prophets agree, and clearly demonstrate the existence of two distinct persons—the Father and Son.

